SNOW AND WIND— RESULT, BLIZZARD.

The Whirling, Eddying Snowflakes Piled in Hugh Drifts.

BUSINESS PRACTICALLY AT A STANDSTILL.

Railroad Trains Stalled, Streets Blocked and Only Those Ventured Out Who Had To.

Street Railway Did Its Best, But the Snow and Wind Was Too Much For It—Street Commissioner Gavett Handicapped For the Lack of Men—Public Schools Dismissed—Fire Department Prepared For Hard Work—Business Houses Were Closed—One Mail Since Yesterday Morning—Many Other Interesting Details.

All Jersey is now fast in the embrace of a great blizzard that raged with unremitting vigor for thirty-six hours. Traffic on steam and street car lines was paralyzed and is only now recovering on the most important lines. Business is practically suspended and Plainfield itself is as securely snow bound as it was at time of the memorable blizzard of '88.

All the necessary elements that go to constitute a genuine blizzard were apparent. There was a gale blowing from the north-east that whipped and whirled the snow and built it into monstrous drifts, many of which still deny all efforts to pass them. The snow fell thick and fast and came in fine light flakes that were easily carried by the wind. Then the mercury remained but a short distance above the zero point and added impediments to the general situation.

The snow storms marked the preceeding week and left some eight inches of snow on the ground, somewhat drifted. Sunday there came another storm that added five more inches. The wind blew Sunday and the snow began to drift. When the blizzard proper opened up its campaign, there was, according to the report of Weather Observer Neagle, just thirteen inches of snow on the level.

The campaign of this powerful storm was regularly opened late Sunday afternoon. It began to snow hard and fast and the wind blew out of the northeast in long and powerful gusts. All Sunday night it snowed and the wind blew. Monday morning found the city nearly cut off from the rest of civilization. Solitary trains struggled with the elements at times, but the fight was nearly a hopeless one and only a few ever accomplished their journey. The local traction company made a good fight but the elements were too much for it.

All yesterday it snowed with varying force and the drifts grew rapidly under the direction of the fierce wind which swung around to the north during the afternoon. There was little abatement in the storm until midnight. Then the snow stopped falling, the cluds broke and the stars came out. With the ending of the snow the wind increased in violence and made up for any lack of snowfall by blowing what had fallen in great clouds and drifting it everywhere.

It is next to impossible to tell how much snow fell during the storm. The snow is so drifted now that there is not a level spot to be found. Conservative estimates place it at sixteen inches, making a total of nearly thirty inches at present. As the snow nearly reaches the tops of the fences all through the city and borough, there seems no exaggeration in that estimate.

Saturday night, the mercury stood eight degrees above zero. Sunday morning it was six and rose to ten degrees above zero during the day. At night it fell to seven. This morning, at 7 o'clock, the thermometer registered eleven degrees above zero.

Everybody has been comparing this storm with the memorable one of '88. The snowfall this year is greater than in '88, but the wind did not reach as great a velocity as on that occasion. The general results are, however, just as bad.

STREET RAILWAY STRUGGLE.

All Regular Schedules Abandoned—No Cars to Netherwood or Dunellen.

No institution in Plainfield was more hard struck by the blizzard than the Plainfield Street Railway Company. The whirling, eddying and drifting snow completely lost the tracks to view under high white barriers, and effectually knocked the the regular schedules to smithereens. Every available employe was hard at work all day yesterday and today in the vain endeavor to keep the road open, bwt they were only partially successful.

The trouble began Sunday afternoon, when the cars commenced to run behind their schedule and caused innumerable delays and aggravations on the various lines. Yesterday morning saw the real opening of the tug of war with the elements, however. The continual fall of snowflakes during the night had done its disastrous work. Superintendent Adlemann started out to cope with the difficulties as best he could. Double headers were sent out exclusively. At all points along the various lines, where the wind had a sweep, huge drifts were encountered, and the cars tugged and moaned as they plowed their way through the snow. The first car on the line to Netherwood encountered an immense drift at Woodland avenue, and succumbed. The crews turned about and ran back to the centre of the city, and since that time no car has gone through to the Netherwood terminal.

Superintendent Adlemann was out early and he soon realized that it would be a useless task to try to cover the whole length of the Front street line, and so Grant avenue was established as the western terminal.

By the peculiar caprices of the storm the Somerset and Fourth street line was the easiest to keep open. Cars were run with considerable regularity over that line at half hour intervals all day. The Front street line ran as a sort of a go-as-you-please. Six big snow plows—four of them hauled by double teams of horses—were kept busy all day. They were run two together. One led the way, clearing away the heaviest parts of the drifts and then the other followed sweeping the snow clear of the tracks. But the road was drifted full again rapidly and it was only by repeating the process that minature mountains of snow were not formed to completely block the way.

The amount of travel on the street cars was very small all day. The biggest sum that any of the cars registered were $5 and $6 for the day's business.

At 7 o'clock last night cars No. 12 and 14 got stuck on the Putnam avenue switch. After much work, however, the cars were started out in a snail's pace and finally reached Plainfield avenue on the Fourth street line at 1 o'clock this morning. Then the power was shut off, and the cars were snowed in for the night on the street corner. All the rest of the cars were able to get into the car barns.

Twenty-three at Hospital.

Out of twenty-three patients at the hospital only one is considered critical and that is a private patient.

RAILROADS HARD HIT.

Central Did Fairly Well in Running Local Trains to New York.

Passenger traffic on the Jersey Central Railroad between Plainfield and New York just exists and that's all. West of Somerville the lines of that railroad are effectually blocked by the snow. The Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, west of Bound Brook, is also at a standstill with no immediate prospect of an opening for trains.

The Central officials made a desperate attempt to keep their passenger tracks between Jersey City and Dunellen open. The east bound trains were the most successful. Out of the forty eight scheduled to run yesterday, there were eleven that got through. It took from two to four hours to reach Jersey City and then the trip across on the ferry was accomplished with difficulty.

The last train to struggle on the P. and R. route reached Plainfield at 11:45 o'clock Saturday night. It reached Jersey City in safety. The last train to leave Plainfield for Jersey City left here at 5:20 o'clock. All the trains were drawn by two locomotives and consisted of two or three passenger coaches.

Only six of the forty eight westbound trains ever reached Plainfield. A Philadelphia train passed Plainfield at 3:55 o'clock Monday morning and passed Bound Brook. It is not known whether it arrived safely. A Somerville local arrived here at 2:17. It reached Somerville in time.

The paper train left Jersey City at 4:30 and reached here at 6:27. I brought the New York morning papers and the mail. There were two engines attached. The train went on and in the Finderne cut ran into a great drift. The locomotives left the rails and blocked both tracks. The wrecking train was sent out from Elizabeth port and finally succeeded in clearing them away.

A Dunellen local reached Plainfield at 11:07 in the morning with difficulty. The only train of the afternoon reached here at 2:17, drawn by a passenger and a freight engine. The latter was out of water, and they had to stop here a half hour to take it. The train left at 2:43, and reached Somerville where it was disbanded.

At 7:14, a train was despatched to Jersey City and reached there in two hours. Two locomotives were used on all the trains.

At 8:58, a special of two locomotives and four coaches left Dunellen and arrived here ten minutes later. There was a crowd of commuters who had been waiting at the depot from five to an hour. As the train pulled in, a great cheer arose that then there was a big scramble to get aboard and get seats. Over three hundred piled about the train, sixty more than its seating capacity. It was announced that the train would not make any regular stop until it reached Jersey City.

Heavy freight locomotives were kept running most of the night in an attempt to keep open the passenger tracks. No plows were used. The greatest trouble was met with in the cuts at Bayonne and those beyond Bound Brook. Switches were covered and the rails were slippery.

The railroad officials are not even thinking of the freights and coal traffic at present. All their energies are turned toward caring for the passenger traffic. Had the snow been heavy and sandy like that of the blizzard of '88, they say that the lines would have been entirely blocked for several days.

ONE MAIL ARRIVES.

No communication with the outside world, through the mails, has been had since early yesterday morning when the paper train due here shortly after 5 o'clock and carrying the first mail from New York, reached the city about 6:30 o'clock. This mail was delivered by the carriers. Since then no mail has been received from New York or points south and west, although Postmaster Bird is expecting some at any time.

Yesterday being a holiday, it was intended to deliver but one mail, so the storm made no difference there. The carriers were told last night to report at 10 o'clock this morning to deliver the mail. The carriers managed to make their collections, but the amount of mail dropped in the city was so small that it will not be delivered until the mails from the outside world are received.

About 10:30 o'clock this morning the paper train from New York succeeded in getting through bringing with it the mail, which was sorted as quickly as possible and delivered. By night it is hoped to get one from Philadelphia.

CAN'T GET ENOUGH MEN.

Street Commissioner Gavett Has a Big Job, But Can't Get Workmen.

The work of Street Commissioner Gavett is hampered by his inability to secure men. All of them are busy, and those who are not have no desire to go to work for the city at $1.50 a day when they can make five times that much shoveling paths for those who are unable to do it themselves. All this morning the Street Commissioner has been hunting for help, but no one wants work, and he is forced to attack the work of cleaning away the snow with a gang of only twelve.

The street gang went to work Sunday morning clearing off crosswalks. The snow plow also was out, but the men went in again at noon so as to be fresh for the next morning.

Yesterday morning there was a gang of eight at work, but the snow blew so hard that they were sent in again at noon, all except John Seay and Robert Yetman, who were with the snow plow. These men stuck to their task of breaking rough paths through the principal streets until dark.

This morning soon after daylight the gang, increased to twelve men, began their battle with the snow. Crosswalks are being cleared, and wherever possible the two snow plows are being used to break paths. As soon as more men can be hired the snow now piled up in the gutters will be carted away.

The people themselves are pretty generally clearing away the snow from in front of their houses assisted by the snow plows.

MILKMEN KEPT AT IT.

They Had a Hard Struggle, But Succeeded in Supplying Customers.

The milkmen had a hard struggle of it, and if the storm had not abated somewhat during the night it is probable that Plainfield would be threatened with a milk famine. While many of the local dealers in milk reside in the city or its immediate suburbs, all of them are compelled to go out into the country to secure their supply of the commodity. It was a tough time that the milkmen had, but stuck to their jobs and succeeded in supplying all their customers although some of them did not get their lacteal fluid until late in the day.

MORALLER'S FORM IN GYMNASTIC WORK.

Won Y. M. C. A. Novice Contest Without Trouble.

ELEVEN CONTESTANTS IN IT.

H. K. DOANE AND WALTER SAMPSON DID GOOD WORK.

They Finished Second and Third—Moraller Scored 113¼ Points Out of a Possible 120—Three Sets of Moves on High and Low Bars, Parallels and Horse—The Moves—List of Contestants and Points Scored.

First honors in the gymnastic contest for novices, held in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Saturday evening, were won by Eric Moraller. Moraller made a remarkable showing, scoring 113¼ points out of a possible 120. He was eighteen points ahead of the next highest competitor. The contest was considered a very successful one, some excellent work being done and eleven of the local gymnasts turning out to take part in it.

The contest was conducted on the general plan prepared by Physical Director C. A. Heywood, which has already been published in the Daily Press. There were four standard pieces of apparatus. The contestants did three moves on each, the three being designated by lot from five selected ones.

The low bar came first. Walter L. Long, who was debarred from taking part in the contest owing to the fact that he was a medal-winner at a previous contest, did the different moves for the instruction of the contestants. The three moves on the low bar were as follows: Squat vault to back rest, circle bar head foremost and snap under.

Then came the high bar on which the moves were as follows: Feet through between hands to hang, return; pull up to chin, straight arm over left and right; circle bar head-foremost to position, back dismount.

The third series of moves were on the parallel bars and included the following: Rear vault, quarter turn; side riding seat, rear dismount; riding seat, both bars, swing and front vault.

The contest was concluded with three moves on the horse, which were as follows: squat vault, half left turn; rear vault, quarter left turn; half left circle, half right circle, to back rest, half left turn with dismount.

There were several surprises at the very start. In the work on the low bar, Hervey K. Doane and Walter Sampson showed up in surprisingly good form. Both are new men for honors in gymnastics and their performances were therefore watched with much interest. McKillop showed good form but lacked strength. He should make an honorman in another year. Great things were expected of Harkins but he fell down woefully in the low bar work. Herbert Brokaw did not come up to expectations. Moraller was easily the best.

On the high bar, Moroller still excelled but Harkins did well and stood second, scoring 25 1-2, out of a possible 30. Cranston, Doane, Brokaw and McKillop were all 23 or better.

It was on the parallel bars that Moraller did his best work, scoring a clean 30 points. Robert A. Meeker, an old gymnast, who was one of the judges, said that his execution and form would be hard, indeed, to improve upon. Cranston came next in the excellence of his work upon the parallels, with Brokaw half a point behind. Doane, Sampson and Harkins followed a point behind with 23.

The bending of his legs on the retreat lost Moraller half a point on the German horse work. He scored 29 1-2. Doane and Sampson tied for second honors in this kind of gymnastic work with 24 1-2 points each. Wilson distinguished himself with a score of 24.

There was a possible 120 points that each contestant might score in the whole contest. The totals, as announced at the close of the contest, were as follows: Eric Moraller, 113¼; Hervey K. Doane, 91½; Walter Sampson, 92½, Cranston, 91½; Wm. McKillop, 89; Brokaw, 88; Wilson, 85; Harkins, 83½; Bentliff, 81; Zimmer, 80½; Barlow, 69½.

Two medals were offered in the contest, a silver and a bronze one. Moraller wins the silver medal and Doane the bronze. Moraller easily outclassed the rest and was entitled to first place without doubt. Doane has been working hard during the past year and his good showing was an excellent example of the succesful results of systematic exercise as is provided for in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. The same may be said of Sampson, who only fell behind Doane owing to his lack of strength to perform the evolutions on the high bar in the good form he showed in the other moves.

A good word should be said for Cranston, who is rapidly improving. As for Harkins, but for his poor work on the low bar, he would have undoubtedly been one of the first three competitors. He was the best on the high bar.

MAKING A HEALTHY CITY

WHAT THE BOARD OF HEALTH IS DOING IN PLAINFIELD.

City is Remarkably Free From Contagious Disease—Making Connections With Sewers Soon to be Resumed.

The following extracts from the tenth annual report of the Board of Health to the Common Council will be read with interest:

'It is with pleasure that we are able to report that the city has latterly been remarkably free from contagious disease, there being at present but one case of scarlet fever and one case of typhoid fever under our supervision. There have been during the past fall some cases of typhoid fever, but we have felt sure in almost every instance that the case was contracted outside of the city of Plainfield.

"Estimating the population at 15,000, there was an annual death rate of 14½ per thousand.

"We would call your attention to the fact that the death rate during the year 1898 was 1.7 per cent. lower than during the previous year.

"During the early part of the year a large number of sewer connections was made by the advice and direction of the Board, and in the central part of the city the use of the yard vaults has been abolished. The State law makes it the duty of the Board of Health to direct that houses and other buildings in the city of Plainfield be connected with the city sewer and it is the intention of the board to resume the orders for making connections as soon as the sewer beds are in condition to warrant such resumption.

"It is hoped that within the next two years all properties in the more thickly built up portion of the city will be connected with the sewer, and the use of yard vaults in these localities will be discontinued.

"The Board would take this opportunity to urge upon the Common Council the propriety of the city's assuming the business of the collection and disposal of garbage, ashes and other rubbish, with the understanding, however, that this Board could not endorse any plan for the collection and disposal of garbage unless such plan had received the endorsement of the State Board of Health."

WILFULLY ENDS LIFE BY BULLET IN BRAIN.

Aged John I. Alston Shot Himself Saturday Afternoon.

HE GREW MELANCHOLY.

WIFE SAW HIM WANDERING ABOUT ROOM WITH REVOLVER.

Then Came a Shot—Patrolman Cash Summoned to Investigate—Found Alston Unconscious with Bullet Hole in His Skull—Died Four Hours After—Was a Book-Finisher—Lived With His Niece.

John I. Alston committed suicide Saturday afternoon at 4:20 o'clock by shooting himself through the brain while standing before the mirror in his bedroom at the home of his niece, Mrs. Alexander Martin, of 659 East Sixth street. He never recovered consciousness, although he lived four hours after receiving the self inflicted wound.

Mr. and Mrs. Alston moved to this city a year ago with Mr. and Mrs. Martin from Brooklyn. Martin was then an engineer on the Brooklyn Bridge. Alston had been a book-finisher by trade, but retired some years ago. He came from the west to live with the Martins. Of late, Martin has been employed as an oiler at the Jersey City yard of the Jersey Central Railroad.

Alston was seventy-two years old. Of late, he has been weak and ill and the fact seemed to trouble him greatly.

Saturday afternoon, the old man left his bed and wandered about the room in his night clothes. Then his wife saw him with a revolver in his hand, examining it. At 4:20 o'clock, wife and niece were in the sitting room on the first floor. They were suddenly startled by a pistol shot that sounded in the chamber above. Fearing that some awful catastrophy had taken place, they hurriedly sent Mrs. Martin's little daughter to the home of Mrs. W. S. Crook, of South avenue, to summon assistance.

Mrs. Crook went to the Martin home at once. She found the women there trembling with fear and dread and not daring to investigate the cause of the shot. Mrs. Crook saw Mamie Gullberg, and called to her to ask Patrolman Jerry Cash, who lives on South avenue, just below, to step over.

Alston lay on his back facing the bureau when the patrolman entered the room. His head rested in a pool of blood and blood stained the cover of the bureau. On the bureau there was a 32 calibre revolver, of cheap make, with three of its five chambers empty.

When Cash turned the head over he exposed a great hole in the skull two inches above the right ear where the bullet entered. He wore only his nightshirt. Summoning the terrified women Cash placed the dying man on the bed. Then he hastened to the home of Whitney Frazee, on South avenue, where he notified Chief Grant by telephone. The Chief and Dr. M. B. Long arrived in a short time.

Dr. Long found that the shot had penetrated the brain and that the wound was mortal. There was no doubt that the man had deliberately shot himself. One peculiar fact was noticed by Patrolman Cash. While Alston had shot himself in the right side of the head, the revolver, when found, lay with the handle to the left and the barrel pointing toward the right. It seems probable, however, that it fell from his grasp and struck on the bureau.

Alston never recovered consciousness and died shortly before nine o'clock. There was no letter or message left behind, nor was there anything to show that the act was premeditated. The family say that his actions had been strange for the last week and they were inclined to believe that his mind became deranged. He had never spoken of taking his own life but had been very melancholy of late.

While the women down stairs were quite positive that they only heard one shot fired, it was at first supposed that he fired three as three chambers of the revolver contained discharged cartidges. A Press reporter, on examining the revolver yesterday, found that two of the chambars were rusty and the shells in them partially covered with verdigris, while one only showed signs of being recently used.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

Doan's Kidney Pills are endorsed by citizens.

Here is one case from the many we have:

Mr. S. J. Conklin, traveling salesman for a New York Confectionery house, living at 134 West Front street says: "I was subject to kidney complaint for seven years. My symptoms were pains in the back and hips which at times I felt in my side. The latter trouble annoyed me very much at night and caused more or less loss of sleep. I tried different kinds of kidney cures but received little or no relief. I read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills and I went to L. W. Randolph's drug store and got a box. I took three altogether and was wonderfully improved. Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy and accomplish all that is claimed for them."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers; price 50 cents a box. Mailed on receipt of price by Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.

OUR WAR IN THE EAST

Both a Morning and an Afternoon Fight with Usual Results

SUNDAY BATTLE FOR ILOILO

Two of Dewey's Ships Shelled the Town in the Morning—The Attack of the Insurgents Repulsed and Many of Them Killed—Native Villages Surrender.

Manila, Feb. 13.—A squad of the 14th infantry, on outpost duty to the south of Manila, while reconnoitring on Saturday afternoon had a brush with the insurgents, and being greatly outnumbered, retired to the main line. Thereupon a portion of the Fourteenth infantry and the Fourth cavalry advanced, driving the insurgents back. A large number of the insurgents were killed in the encounter. Three men of the Fourteenth infantry and two of the Fourth cavalry were wounded.

While the fight was in progress a small gunboat of Admiral Dewey's fleet with its rapid fire Colts swept the coast with good effect.

The Morning Battle.

Manila, Feb. 13.—The monitor Monadnock and the cruiser Charleston shelled the town of Malabon all Saturday afternoon and desultory firing is continuing between our troops and the insurgents on the left.

The troops which attacked and captured the town of Caloocan Saturday comprised the left wing of Gen. McArthur's division, supported by troops from General Anderson's brigade. The American loss was three killed and thirty-two wounded.

The Kansas and Montana boys in their magnificent charge through a wooded ravine suffered the principal losses. Nothing could surpass the fearlessness of their advance across an open field on the right, directly in the face of the enemy's strongest entrenchments.

Captain Dyer's guns of the Sixth artillery on the left, and Major Young's Utah Light Artillery kept pouring shrapnel into the enemy's lines at a range of 2,200 yards with great accuracy, almost every shot telling, and ceased firing only when the infantry approached close to the town. Brigadier General H. G. Otis, in commmand of the infantry, advanced with his troops, establishing his headquarters in Caloocan immediately after its capture.

Saturday night our lines extended from west to east beyond the town. Intrenchments were thrown up and outposts picketed to meet any possible attack from the enemy, who had retired toward Malabon.

Bass, an artist, was shot in the arm. He is about 30 years of age, a graduate of Harvard, and served as war correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph during the Graeco-Turkish war. The loss of the enemy is estimated at fully 50 killed and wounded to one American killed or wounded.

The heat knocked out many more of our men than did the Filipino bullets, especially in the marsh lands north of Malabon, where the Kansas regiment was stationed. Fully a score of them were taken to the hospital.

Iloilo Down for Sunday.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—General Miller is is expected took Iloilo Sunday, unless the city surrendered or the Filipinos retired.

It will be Tuesday before any news of the battle can reach Washington.

Rights of Stockholders.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—A decision has been handed down by Judeg Tuley of the Chicago circuit court dissolving the injunction issued in January restraining Lewis B. Perrin, a stockholder of the Rodger Ballast Car Company, from bringing mandamus proceedings against the company to compel the directors to allow him to examine the corporation records. In his decision Judge Tuley held that, under the law, a single stockholder had a right to examine the books and records of the corporation of which he was a shareholder, and that the corporation officials had no right in a court of equity to attempt to restrain such examination by injunction.

Held Man Up in a Bank.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 13.—Two thieves held up a man and snatched $1,550 from him in the Shoe and Leather Bank, Milk and Federal streets, yesterday noon.

The robbers fled down the stairs of the bank. The man who was robbed followed the one who had the money, and got so close to him that the robber dropped the bills. He escaped while the owner was picking up the money.

Fruit of the Hooley Exposures.

London, Feb. 13.—One of the fruits of the Hooley exposures is that Lords Deinwarr and Albemarle announced last week their intention of returning the 27,000 pounds which Hooley claims they received for becoming directors of the French Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Company. Both, however, repudiate Hooley's account of the matter.

Will Prosecute Cervera.

Madrid, Feb. 13.—The supreme military court, which has had under consideration the loss of the Spanish squadron at Santiago on July 3, has decided to prosecute in connection with the disaster Admiral Cervera and Commandante Emilo Diaz de Moreu, former captain of the destroyed Cristobal Colon.

Ian Maclaren on the Teutonic.

London, Feb. 13.—The Rev. John Watson (Ian Maclaren) and Mrs. Watson, who were passengers on board the White Star line steamer Teutonic will spend three months in the United States.

Philip and Sigsbee Invited to Texas.

Austin, Tex., Feb. 13.—Both houses have passed a resolution inviting Commodore Philip, United States navy, now in command of the Brooklyn navy yard, and Captain Sigsbee of the battleship Texas, to visit the legislature.

N. Y. State Officers to be Retained.

Albany, Feb. 13.—Governor Roosevelt stated yesterday that he has practically decided to appoint Hugh H stings, state historian, Charles M. Wieting state commissioner of agriculture and Frederick D. Kilburn state superintendent of banks.

Consistent Hostility of Germany.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—In view of the course which Germany has been pursuing in regard to the Philippines, and the irritation it has been causing Admiral Dewey and the American forces at Manila, the statement is made now that the late unpleasantness in Samoa is but another move to embarrass the United States and at the same time to weaken the bond of friendship between this country and Great Britain. It has long been the opinion of the officials here that when the true information reaches the United States in regard to the affair at Apia, it will be shown that Germany is responsible for the trouble.

The official reports from United States Consul General Osborn, at Apia, arrived in San Francisco by steamer this week, and are now on their way to the state department. While the department is awaiting Mr. Osborn's report concerning the outbreak, it would not be far from a correct guess to say that when the papers do reach here they will undoubtedly show that the conduct of Dr. Raffel, president of the municipal council at Apia, and Herr Rose, the German consul general at Samoa, has been overbearing and arbitrary to a degree that is most exasperating. They have, if half the unofficial reports that have lately come from Apia are true, violated the Berlin general act and have placed themselves beyond the pale of excuse or apology.

The administration is growing somewhat weary of protestations from the German government of continued friendship, while the officials of the foreign office and German navy are acting in a manner entirely at variance with the protests of the home government. Now that the peace treaty is ratified the United States can assert itself, and unless more discretion is shown, especially in and around the Philippines, the German government will be called to account for its action in that quarter, as well as in Samoa.

Andree's Brother Skeptical.

Malmo, Sweden, Feb. 13.—The brother of Professor Andree, the missing baloonist, who attempted to cross the Arctic regions, has informed a local newspaper that he does not believe the report received by way of Krasnoyarsk, Siberia, that the remains of Andree and his companions, and the car of the balloon in which he left Dane's island one of the Spitzmergen group, on July 11, 1897, heve been found between Kewn and Pit in the Province of Yeniseisk.

He says that locality is cultivated and that it appears incredible that the corpses and the car of the balloon could have been there a year and a half without having been seen before this. Furthermore, Andree's brother points out that in stormy weather the bodies would almost certainly have been separated from the wreck of the balloon.

Chicago Pastors in Demand.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—The draft upon Chicago clergymen from other cities still continues. Dr. Morrison of Epiphany church has gone to be bishop of Iowa. Dr. Witherow was taken by Boston, Brooklyn captured Hillis, Oberlin College claimed Dr. Barrows and Union Seminary Dr. Hall, and now it is announced that the eloquent Rabbi Hirsch has been tempted to forsake the city in order to lead a congregation in New York. It has come to that pass now that when at an unexpected place in the church service a pastor stops and looks at the congregation in an embarrassed way, after clearing his throat, the people settle back in their seats and prepare for the announcement that the pulpit is soon to be vacant.

Clothing Makers' Trust.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Clothing manufacturers are planning a trust. On the heels of the $60,000,000 consolidation of Massachusetts and Rhode Island woolen mills comes information that the great ready made clothing makers of the country were instrumental in its formation on terms that will insure to a second combination, which they will presently form, control of these mills' entire output, including the leading staple goods consumed by the American trade. Domination of the market, stoppage of profitless overproduction, and throttling of "small fry" competition are thus to be accomplished by one blow.

Grant Cottage to be Sold.

Amsterdam, Feb. 13.—In the matter of the general assignment of William J. Arkell to William A. Mehan, for the benefit of creditors, Judge John D. Wendell, county judge of Montgomery county, has granted an order, upon the application of the insignee, to sell at public sale certain real estate on Mount McGregor, which includes the cottage in which General Grant died. The cottage, which is open to the public at all times of the year, is in charge of the G. A. R. Everything in the room is exactly as it was the night the general died. Thousands of people from all parts of the country have visited the cottage.

Ohio Centennial Exposition.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—The ways and means committee have acted favorably on the bill for government participation in the Ohio centennial and Northwest Territory Exposition to be held at Toledo, Ohio, in 1902-3. The bill provides a government building to cost $200,000 and a government exhibit to cost $300,000. The exposition will commeorate Perry's victory by a naval display on Lake Erie, show the resources of Hawaii, Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines, and in particular exhibit the progress and development of the Northwest.

Motor Cab Company in Boston.

Boston, Feb. 13.—The incorporators of the new motor cab and omnibus company that asks to do business in Boston are B. D. Hyde, the president; H. N. Rice, treasurer; Colonel A. A. Pope, C. H. Cole, W. H. Coolidge and G. Henry Whitcomb. They have just been incorporated as the Boston Transit Company and they are authorized to do a common carrier business.

A New Jersey Physician Killed.

Hammonton, N. J., Feb. 13.—Dr. Edward North, one of the most prominent physicians in South Jersey, was killed while out sleigh riding Saturday. His cutter was struck by an express train on the Pennsylvania Railroad and wrecked. The horse was instantly killed, and when the doctor was picked up he was dead.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS.

The House Eulogizes the Late Congressman Dingley.

THE PRESIDENT TO REST.

Germany's Attitude Toward the United States is Understood at Washington to be Hostile—Sec. Long Writes Senate that Schley Disobeyed Orders and His Conduct Was Reprehensible.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—The memory of the late Representative Dingley was honored in the House of Representatives Saturday by those who had been closely associated with him. The tributes came from both sides of the House and expressed personal regard as well as admiration for the scholarly qualities of Mr. Dingley.

Mr. Boutelle, Republican of Maine, spoke feeling of the long and intimate personal association between Mr. Dingley and himself in public and political life, in journalism and in their every day relations. He sketched the useful and notable services of Mr. Dingley, the work he had done in Congress and the esteem in which he was held at home. Mr. Boutelle spoke of his late colleague as a student rather than an orator. Mr. Dingley himself had recognized that his field of usefulness in Congress was not to be as an orator. He had therefore turned his attention to the more laborious work of investigation and study of the great public questions before Congress, and the country, and it was in this that he attained such a masterful preeminence that he commanded the absolute confidence of the House of Representatives.

Mr. Payne of New York, long associated with Mr. Dingley in the ways and means committee, and his successor as chairman, gave an interesting recital of their services together, and paid a high tribute to the ability and sterling worth of the former chairman.

Other eulogies were delivered by Representatives Burleigh, Grisvenor, Dalzell, Swanson, Dolliver, Hopkins, Tawney, Dockery, Russell, Evans, McClellan, Johnson of North Dakota, Cousins, Linney, Clark of Missouri, Alexander, Hamilton, Bell, Lacey, W. A. Smith, Williams of Mississippi, Clark of New Hampshire, Faris, Moody, and Walker of Massachusetts. They all breathed the same spirit of admiration and respect, all political elements joining in the tribute to Mr. Dingley's scholarly ability.

Speaker Reed, who was closely identified with Mr. Dingley's public service, occupied the chair during the delivery of the eulogies.

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS AT SANTIAGO.

Number of vessels entered, 333; number cleared, 273; total tonnage entered, 201,314; total tonnage cleared, 176,434. Cash receipts—cash found at the treasury July 18, $7,044.15; import duties collected, $285,800.26; tonnage taxes, $14,24.47; duties on liquors, $2,452.09; sanitation tax, $4,517; export duties, $66.89; fines, etc., $104.23; miscellaneous customs receipts, $525.04; taxes for port improvements, $3,367.01; municipal receipts, $14,149.81.

The total receipts derived from all sources since the occupation of Santiago by the military forces of the United States on July 18, 1898, to December 31, 1898, amounts to $338,816.32.

President Needs Rest.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—The president is thinking of a vacation after Congress adjourns. He is considering a short sea trip, although it is not likely such a voyage will end with a tour of Porto Rico or Cuba. What the president wants is to get away from work and worry. He wants a complete rest and to go to Cuba or Porto Rico would hardly secure that. The president will take a few days' trip next week to Boston, and while everything is being arranged for his comfort and pleasure, fear is expressed that the cold weather may be anything but pleasant.

The president will be kept busy during the tour and will be obliged to be in the open air a great deal. If the weather keeps as cold and the snow as deep as at present, the trip will be a disagreeable one. He has been obliged to be housed so much of late that to be exposed at this time may give him a cold, if nothing worse. The president and Mrs. McKinley have been enjoying sleigh riding during the last week, and as the president drives, it is both beneficial and pleasant for him.

Progress on New Warships.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—According to the last advices received by Chief Constructor Hichborn from the establishment where ships are building for the navy, the vessels are in the following state of advancement: Battleships Kearsarge, Kentucky and Illinois, at Newport News, 83 per cent.; 80 per cent., and 62 per cent. respectively; Alabama, at Cramps, 74 per cent.; Wisconsin, at Union Iron Works, 59 per cent. The sheathed cruiser Albany building at Armstrong's in England, is 80 per cent. completed. No work has been done on any of the monitors, but progress is reported from the torpedo boats. The Dahlgren, at Bath, is put down at 93 per cent.; the Fox, at Wolff & Zwicker's, at 96 per cent., and the Craven, at Bath, 80 per cent.

Third Congress of Mothers.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—The third national congress of mothers will convene here to-morrow and will continue in session four days. Ample provision has been made for a large number of visitors. On Tuesday evening the women of the congress will hold a large reception in the parlors of the Cairo, to which the National Council of Women and other organizations meeting in the city at the time have been invited. One important feature of the congress will be the kindergarten room, which will be in charge of an experienced kindergartner, who will undertake to entertain all the children who come.

Reed Opposed Barrows.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—The fight over the librarian of Congress has been taken up by Speaker Reed, who has declared against the appointment of Congressman Barrows. He is trying to have Herbert Putnam, librarian of the Boston Public Library, reconsider his declination.

Mr. Reed declares that the speaker of the House and president of the Senate should have something to say in regard to the appointment of a librarian, because he is at the head of the library of Congress, and has notified the president that he wants only a practical librarian appointed. He says will see that the salary is increased so Mr. Putnam may accept.

Will Sue Rudyard Kipling.

New York, Feb. 13.—Beatty Balestier, a brother of Mrs. Rudyard Kipling, has avowed his purpose of bringing suit against his famous brother-in-law, claiming damages of $50,000 for alleged malicious prosecution and false arrest in 1896.

It will be recalled that in May of that year Balestier and Kipling met on a highway near Brattleborough, Vt., and Kipling caused the arrest of Balestier, and claimed under oath in the court a few days later that his brother-in-law had threatened to take his life. Young Balestier was bound over to the grand jury and put under bonds to keep the peace. The case was to have been tried at the September term of that year. Mr. Kipling, however, sailed for England in August and the case was dropped.

King Oscar's Health.

London, Feb. 13.—Advices from Stockholm show that the health of King Oscar is far from satisfactory. He will go to Biarritz, if he is able to do so, at the end of the month. Thence he will take a trip to North Africa. The queen of Sweden and Norway is still very feeble. She will go to Honnef, Prussia, after King Oscar's departure for Biarritz. Washington's birthday will be brilliantly celebrated at the United States legation at Stockholm by a ball, which the crown prince has promised to attend.

$2,000 Duty on Two Dogs.

New York, Feb. 13.—The steamship Germanic brought two Scotch collies consigned to J. Pierpont Morgan.

In the absence of the pedigree papers a duty of two thousand dollars was imposed and paid on the two. This, the customs officials said, was subject to be returned if the papers, when they arrive, show that the dogs are to be used for breeding purposes.

Senator-Elect Depew in Washington.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—Senator-elect Chauncey M. Depew came over from New York Saturday afternoon, and at night was given a large reception by Representative John Murray Mitchell, assisted by others of the New York delegation. The reception was held in the banquet hall of the Arlington Hotel, and was followed by a buffet luncheon. The guests included representatives of the cabinet, both houses of Congress and the official circle.

SCHLEY DISOBEYED ORDERS.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—Secretary Long's answer to the resolution of the Senate of January 23 asking for the facts and records on which the advancement of Admirals Sampson and Schley and other officers were made for their services in the war with Spain is a very interesting communication. It contains few comments. The secretary's letter is made up almost entirely of a statement based on the official records of the campaign in the West Indies, showing the movements of the vessels under the command of Sampson and Schley, with particular reference to Schley's withdrawal from Santiago after the Spanish fleet had entered the harbor. It is shown that despite Schley's statement that he was obliged to go to Key West for coal, he had enough coal left to maintain the Santiago blockade until supplies arrived. Attention is also called to the fact that up to a date given there was nothing to prevent the escape of the Spanish fleet. It is pointed out also that no signals were sent by Schley to the American vessels engaged in the fight with Cervera's ships, except that the enemy's fleet was escaping, "Cease firing," congratulations to the other ships and "Oregon well done." No commanding officer was directed by Schley in the fight, Sampson's previous directions being carried out.

Secretary Long refers to Schley's "reprehensible conduct," and says, in explaining why Sampson was promoted over Schley, that Schley's "unsteadiness in purpose and in push and failure to obey orders did not meet with the approval of the president or the navy department. Accompanying the letters are copies of telegrams, letters and reports, beginning with Sampson's assignment to the command of the North Atlantic fleet.

REID ON THE TREATY

GENEROSITY UNTO SPAIN.

Mr. Reid Said that a Criticism of the Treaty Was a Charge of Doing Too Well the Work at Hand—The Future of the Treatment of the Question Remains With Congress.

New York, Feb. 13.—Hon. Whitelaw Reid, editor of the Tribune, and late peace commissioner, in his address at the complimentary banquet of the Lotus Club, said in reference to the work of the commission.

"I shall make no apology—now that the Senate has unsealed our lips—for speaking briefly of this work just happily completed.

"The only complaint one hears about it is that we did our duty too well—that in fact we made peace in terms too favorable to our own country. In all the pending discussion there seems to be no other complaint. On no other point is the treaty said by any one to be seriously defective.

"It loyally carried out the attitude of Congress as to Cuba. It enforced the renunciation of Spanish sovereignty there, but in spite of the most earnest Spanish efforts, it refused to accept American sovereignty. It loaded neither ourselves nor the Cubans with the so-called Cuban debts, incurred by Spain in the efforts to subdue them. It involved us in no complications, either in the West Indies or in the East, as to contracts or claims or religious establishments.

HON. WHITELAW REID.

"It dealt liberally with a fallen foe, giving him a generous lump sum more than covering any legitimate debts or expenditures for pacific improvements; assuming the burden of just claims against him by our own people; carrying back the armies surrendered on the other side of the world at our own cost; returning their arms; even restoring them their artillery, including heavy ordnance in field fortifications, munitions of war and the very cattle that dragged their caissons.

Had to Take Everything.

"It secured alike for Cubans and Filipinos the release of political prisoners. It scrupulously reserved for Congress the power of determining the political status of the inhabitants of our new possessions. It declared on behalf o fthe most protectionist country in the world for the policy of the open door within the Asiatic sphere of its influence.

"With all this the Senate and the country seemed content. But the treaty refused to return to Spanish rule one foot of territory over which that rule has been broken by the triumphs of our arms.

"Were we to be reproached for that? Should the Senate have told us, 'You overdid this business; you looked after the interests of your own country too thoroughly. You ought to have abandoned the great archipelago which the fortunes of war had placed at your country's disposal. You are not exactly unfaithful servants; you are too blindly unswervingly faithful. You haven't seized an opportunity to run away from some distant results of the war into which Congress plunged the country before dreaming how far it might spread. You haven't dodged for us the responsibilities we incurred.'

"That is true. When Admiral Dewey sunk the Spanish fleet and General Merritt captured the Spanish army that alone maintained the Spanish hold on the Philippines, the Spanish power there was gone, and the civilization and the common sense and the Christianity of the world looked to the power that succeeded it to accept its responsibilities. So we took the Philippines. How could men representing this country, jealous of its honor, or with an adequate comprehension either of its duty or its rights, do otherwise?

"A nation at war over a disputed boundary or some other material interest, might properly stop when that interest was secured, and give back to the enemy all else that had been taken from him. But this was not a war for any material interest. It was a war to put down a rule over an alien people which we declared so wicked and barbarous that we could no longer tolerate it. How could we consent to secure peace, after we had broken down this wicked and barbarous rule in two archipelagoes, by agreeing that one of them should be forced back under it?

"There was certainly another alternative. After breaking down the only organized government in the archipelago, the only security for life and property, native and foreign, in the great commercial centers like Manila, Iloilo, and Cebu, against hordes of uncivilized pagans and Mohammedan Malays, should we then scuttle out and leave them to their fate?

"A band of old time Norse pirates used to swooping down on a capital, capturing its rulers, seizing its treasure, burning the town, abandoning the people to domestic disorder and foreign spoilation, and promptly sailing off for another piratical foray; a band of pirates, used to that sort of thing, might no doubt have left Manila to be sacked by the insurgents, and might have fled from the Philippines. We did not think a self-respecting, civilized, responsible Christian power could.

"There was another side to it. In a conflict to which fifty years of steadily increasing provocation had driven us we had lost 265 sailors treacherously murdered on the Maine; had lost at Santiago and elsewhere uncounted victime of Spanish guns and tropical climate, and had spent in this war over $240,000,000, without counting the pensions that must still accrue under laws existing when it began.

"Where was the indemnity which under such circumstances it is the dut, of the victorious nation to exact, not only in its own interest, but in the interest of a Christian civilization and the tendencies of modern international law, which require that a nation provoking unjust war shall smart for it not merely while it lasts, but by paying the cost when it is ended?

"Spain had no money even to pay her own soldiers. No indemnity was possible, save in territory. Well, we once wanted to buy Cuba, before it had been desolated by twelve years of war and decimated by the barbarian Weyler yet our uttermost offer for it, our highest valuation, even then, was $125,000,000—less than half the cost of our war.

We Must Act Promptly.

"But now we were precluded from taking Cuba. Puerto Rico, immeasurably less important to us, and eight hundred miles further away from our coast, is only one-twelfth the size of Cuba. Were the representatives of the United States charged with the duty of protecting not only its honor, but its interests, in arranging terms of peace, to content themselves with little Porto Rico, away off, a third of the way to Spain, and the petty reef of Guam, in the middle of the Pacific, as indemnity for an unprovoked war that had cost and was to cost their country $300,000,000?

"But, some one exclaims, the Philippines are already giving us more trouble than they are worth. It is natural to say so just now, and it is partly true. What they are worth and likely to be worth to this country in the race for commercial supremacy on the Pacific—that is to say, for supremacy in the great development of trade in the twentieth century—is a question too large to be so summarily decided, or to be entered on at the close of a dinner, and under the irritation of a Malay half-breed's folly.

"But nobody ever doubted that they would give us trouble. That is the price nations must pay for going to war, even in a just cause. I was not one of those who were eager to begin this war with Spain; but I protest against any attempt to evade our just responsibility in the position in which it has left us. We shall have trouble in the Philippines. So we shall have trouble in

"If we dawdle and hesitate and lead them to think we fear them and fear trouble, our trouble will be great. If, on the other hand, we grasp this nettle danger, if we act promptly, with inexorable vigor and with justice, it may be slight, but the graver the crisis the plainer our duty. God gives us courage to purify our politics and strengthen our government to meet these new and grave duties."

GEN. GARCIA LAID TO REST.

Havana, Feb. 13.—The funeral of General Calixto Garcia, whose body was brought to Havana on the United States gunboat Nashville on last Thursday, and has since lain in state in the municipal chamber of the Palace, took place Saturday, the entire population of the city turning out to do honor to the dead commander. Vast crowds lined the route of the funeral procession from the City Hall to the Colon Cemetery, a distance of four miles, and throngs of men, women and children preceded and followed the cortege, which was the most sumptuous ever seen here.

Everywehre flags were flying at half mast and every flag was covered with crape, while great quantities of cloth were hung over the faces of buildings and the doorways were draped. The crowd was quiet and respectful. For the first time since the American occupation of Havana, armed Cuban troops were permitted to enter the city in a body. The participation in the funeral of the American military and naval authorities added importance and dignity to the occasion, making a deep impjression upon the populace the better classes of which were greatly pleased. The various municipal department were closed as were also many stores and factories, in order that their employes might be allowed to attend.

On an American artillery caisson, draped with black, and drawn by six black horses, came the plain black casket, ornamented with silver, containing the body of the general. Garcia's campaign Panama hat and machete rested on the top of the casket, which was draped with a Cuban flag and decorated with a wreath. After the caisson came the priests, in gold embroidered vestments, swinging incense burners and reciting prayers.

Governor General Brooke, with Generals Chaffee, Ernst and Humphreys of his staff, and the members of his advisory council, in carriages, came next, followed by the other members of the governor general's staff on horseback. Immediately following were General Ludlow, military governor of the department of Havana, and his staff, mounted; General Fitzhugh Lee, military governor of the province of Havana, mounted. Many of the populace uncovered as General Lee passed.

Along the entire line of march the street lamps were lighted as a sign of mourning.

His wife at one time astonished him by asserting that for a sore throat the Tabules were a remedy of amazing effectiveness. He understands this better now since he has learned from his physician that sore throat—like many other apparently local troubles, notably headache—is often a direct result of a disordered stomach; and for this thousands of people well know Ripans Tabules are a specific.

Fair Senatorial Representation.

In discussing the project of forming a new county, with Plainfield for the county seat, the Elizabeth Journal says that the "scheme should be killed without delay or remorse." The Journal, with many other State papers, lays particular stress upon the fact that with another county the injustice of Senatorial representation in the Legislature will be increased more than ever, because it would mean that one more member of the Upper House would be given to the people in the proposed new bailiwick. The Journal says:

If representation in the Senate was based upon population as it is in the Assembly, the case would be different, but the new county would have one Senator to its 30,000 inhabitants, while Essex and Hudson each have one to their 350,000.

In other words, the 125 000 people with 25,000 voters, in Union and Somerset counties, who now have two Senators in the State Senate, would have three Senators if another county was formed. Their representation would be increased 33 1-3 per cent., while that of all the other larger counties would suffer a comparative decrease.

The Journal's "if the representation in the Senate was based upon population" is very well taken. It is suggestive. From a strictly honest and fair view the representation in the Senate should be according to population. It is that way in New York State and many other commonwealths. It is not Democratic that Cape May county with a trifle over 12,000 people should have the same influence as Essex county with 300,000. If New Jersey enjoyed the New York plan of Senatorial representation the larger counties would not be put to the disadvantage in the Legislature that they are not subjected to, and neither would we, consequently, hear so much objection to the formation of a new county. At present the new county idea obtains a great bugaboo in other sections on account of the prospect of further injustice in the apportionment in the Senate members.

With the representation in the Senate guaged on an equal basis in the matter of population in each district much of the hue and cry against the formation of a new county would be at an end.

There were 27,337 deaths in New Jersey during the year ending June 30, 1898, as shown by the State Board of Health report. This is 2,485 less than the average for eight years, notwithstanding the increase of population. The death-rate per 1,000 population was only 15 10, the lowest shown in twenty years' record. There has been a general diminution in preventable diseases. The lowest death-rate was in Ocean county, 10 34 per 1,000; Cape May county is second with 11.0; Bergen and Sussex counties are a tie for third place with 11 09.

The Metuchen Recorder observes that there is talk of running a branch trolley line from New Market to South Plainfield. Why not make the branch from Plainfield through that place to Metuchen? asks the Recorder. It would be a better paying route that projected between Plainfield and Metuchen by way of Oak Tree.

The general suspension of business brought about by the holiday and blizzard caused the decision not to issue The Daily Press yesterday With such a storm raging it would have been almost impossible, except at the risk of life and injury to the carrier boys, to have delivered the papers into the hands of subscribers. It is to the credit of every employe of The Daily Press to say, however, that all stood ready and willing to do their part in publishing the paper yesterday if it had been decided to do so.

We see by the papers that an Iowa girl advertised for a husband and got one. Her entire outlay was $9. When war with Spain broke out her husband enlisted and later was killed at Santiago. She collected $3,000 insurance and is now convinced that advertising pays.

Among the Republican candidates mentioned for the Mayoralty honors in the borough are N. B. Smalley, S. St. John McCutchen and A. V. D. Honeyman.

* * * * *

We don't see much chance for that scheme to which the Plainfield papers have given birth to cut a slice off both Union and Somerset counties and make a new county of which lovely Plainfield, the "Colorado of the East" as Editor Tom Morrison once felicitously described it, should be the county seat. Furthermore, we don't see any demand for it. Somerset county is so small now that it ought to be anxious to be merged into Middlesex out of pure loneliness. Pretty soon Somerset must have a new Prosecutor, and Governor Voorhees can actually find but two Republican lawyers who are eligible and they are not a bit anxious to have it. Somerset is small enough, goodness knows, to have the same representation in the Senate as Essex and Hudson, but it is not conspicuously modest in getting State offices. We do not believe it is willing to be depopulated to gratify the soaring ambition of Plainfield. Spring something more worthy of your massive intellects—ye editors of Plainfield.—New Brunswick Home News.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The fishermen of this city who visit Lake Hopatcong during the summer will learn with regret of the death of Morris Decke, the old reliable fisherman of that region. Decke always knew where the fish would bite and always had a hearty welcome for any of the Plainfield anglers who took the trouble to visit his home on the island, where he and his good wife always kept open house for their friends. The visitors were always sure of a good meal, no matter at what hour they dropped in. The veteran fisherman died suddenly at his home a few days ago. All his life was spent in the vicinity of the lake and he had lived on the island for many years.

From the days when as a lusty dark-skinned youngster, Louis Workman toddled about the streets, the glamour surrounding the fire fighters and their exciting life has had an irresistable attraction for him. "Lou" has now had his desire and is considered a part of the Plainfield Fire Department. Those who pass the fire department headquarters on East Second street, these days, will notice a young colored man busying himself about the place, lending a hand here and there where he can make himself useful. "Lou" has been at headquarters for sometime now. He won his way into the affections of the drivers by holding their horses at fires and sundry other little attentions until now he is looked upon as belonging there as much as the Chief himself. When "Lou" first haunted the headquarters he prepared to make the chemical engine his vehicle to the fires. He went to several fires on the engine until, on one occasion, the engine sprang forward with a jump and left "Lou" standing in midair. He subsequently fell to the ground and hasn't cared to ride behind Driver Feiring. Nevertheless "Lou" is a good fellow and although the firemen find much amusement in chaffing the lad, there isn't one of them but has a soft place in his heart for the youthful enthusiast.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Westfield, Feb. 14—The Board of Education has decided to ask the people of this place to appropriate $15 000 for a new schoolhouse at the coming annual school meeting March 21st.

The plans of the new school have been submitted by Architects Karr, Pocle & Lum, of New York city, and it is estimated that the new building will accommodate 500 children. A beautiful piece of property, situated at the corner of Elm and Walnut streets, in the centre of the town, has been selected as the site for the new building. Westfield has long felt the need of a new school for primary pupils, the present Prospect Street School being an old, dilapidated firetrap, in no way capable of affording the necessary room for the children of the town, many of whom have only been allowed to attend school for half a day.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 14—The spring election is fast approaching but neither Republicans or Democrats are hustling much or talking politics. The principal offices to be filled this year are a town committeeman and township clerk. Thomas J. Nicholl whose term as a member of the township committee runs out, will probably be renominated by the Democrats, while the Republicans have no candidates as yet in the field for the position. E. L. Hand, who has served the township so faithfully as township clerk for a number of years, will no doubt be renominated by the Republican party and the nomination for him will no doubt mean his re-election.

Rev. G. M. Shott, D. D., of the North Baptist church, of New York city, has been called to fill the pulpit of the Baptist church, of this place, which has been vacant since January 1st, when Rev. J. S. Baker left the church to accept the call of the Bath Eden church, of Waltham, Mass. Dr. Shott has occupied the pulpit several times as a supply, and was asked to occupy it again Sunday as a candidate. Mr. Shott leaves a much larger field and church to accept this call, and the church is to be congratulated for being able to secure him. Mr. and Mrs. Shott and family will take possession of the parsonage during the week and the doctor's first pastoral work will probably be at the Friday evening prayer meeting.

The cases of Moore against Emery, on a charge of assault, and Emery against Moore, on a charge of disorderly conduct, in Judge Clark's court Saturday afternoon, were by mutual agreement withdrawn and the cases settled out of court.

It is reported that Thomas Newman intends giving up the stage line between this place and Plainfield next month. "Oh for the trolley, is the cry."

Miss Emma Adams is enjoying a visit with her parents at Middletown, N. Y. State.

Resignation Soon Asked For.

It is stated that the resignation of Charles P. Sebring as Fish and Game Warden has been requested. The State Commission doesn't seem to know a good officer when it gets one, as Mr. Sebring has certainly been efficient.—Bound Brook Chronicle.

You are making a great mistake in not sending for a 10 cent trial size of Ely's Cream Balm. It is a specific for catarrh and cold in the head. We mail it, or the 50 cent size. Druggists all keep it. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

Catarrh caused difficulty in speaking and to a great extent loss of hearing. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm dropping of mucus has ceased, voice and hearing have greatly improved.—J. W. Davidson, Att'y at Law, Monmouth, Ill.

SPOKE TO THE JUNIORS.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey Made an Address in the Y. M. C. A. Meeting.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey spoke to about forty of the members of Franklin and Somerset Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. A much larger delegation was expected out, but the storm kept them at home. But those who did attend listened to a strong gospel talk upon the importance of living Christian lives.

Mr. McKelvey chose for his text these words from Second Peter, 'Give diligence to make your calling and election sure." He spoke of the importance of being fit to carry on the work of civilization and said that to successfully do this we must have health, education etc. but most important of all, salvation. The call of God to sinners, through Jesus, his son, 1900 years ago, is perpetuated today in the New Testament

Some people think that God personally calls those who are elected to be saved, and that the others perish, but Mr. McKelvey said that is not so. The calls is to everyone. Those who hear the call and accept salvation, are saved; those who do not, have themselves to blame.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

MRS. STEAD'S FUNERAL.

LAST SAD OBSEQUIES IN THE PASSING OF A CETENARIAN.

Services Held in the First Baptist Church—Dr. Yerkes Officiates—Interment in Plainfield Avenue Cemetery.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Thomas J. Stead, who died last week in the 101st year of her age, where held last Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the First Baptist church. The services were in charge of the pastor of the church, Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes. During the services Charles L. Lewis sang "Rock of Ages," and "One Sweetly Solemn Thought."

Dr. Yerkes spoke comforting and tender words of the departed and among other things he said:

"It is many years since our dead sister and her husband joined this church. It was during the first pastorate, that of Rev. Mr. Randolph. Those first days are not familiar to me, but from what I know of our sister's husband he was a steadfast man. Our sister was known to me, and I knew of her faith and hope. One day when calling on her I asked if she could remember certain persons. She said she could not. I then asked her if she remembered Christ, whereupon she replied 'I can never forget Him.' She lived quietly and peacefully with God and her life was hid in Christ. There is not one present who doubts our sister's estate, or her simple faith during the long years of her life. In one hundred years how much has transpired, what changes.

"One thing we know that whether we live to be one hundred years or not, we can all die like our sister in the faith. We all want that faith. We are to feel that there is an untimeliness about the death of a young person, but this life was finished and completed, the Lord had completed His work in her. These children left feel a sorrow, for she was a good true mother. Her heart beat true to the interests of those she loved. Our mother is our best friend.

"Our sister's memory still lives though she be dead. She needs no human sympathy now, and I believe that if she could speak today she would say, 'Seek first the Kingdom of God.' God is very choice of His company and He loves His children, and is especially near to those who are of a broken heart."

Interment took place in the Plainfield avenue cemetery, and those who acted as bearers were Harrison Coddington, Harry Coddington, Allan Coddington and Andrew Wilson.

IV.

As they saw Cecil's well-aimed blow about to descend, both Mrs. Armytage and her niece involuntarily closed their eyes, and when they ventured to reopen them the tall form of their defender was no longer in sight, but the boat was so full that they felt no uneasiness about him, supposing him to have found a place nearer the bow.

Slowly the overladen tug crawled along on her shoreward way. Even the Arabs were perfectly quiet now, for they could see the danger in which a single reckless movement would place the lives of all. The ladies held their breath in terror. They dared not so much as withdraw their garments from the close contact of their rough neighbors.

"Don't look so dreadfully frightened, Miss Thornton! So long as you all keep still, you will be all right. And even if an accident were to happen, why I am all ready for it!"

Where did the voice come from? Grace looked up and down, and round the boat, and everywhere but the right place, till a little chuckling laugh guided her eyes to where Cecil's dripping head was rising and falling on a slight windborn swell."

"Why, now you look more frightened than ever! Pray don't! It isn't a quarter of a mile to the shore, and I could do it 'on my head,' I assure you!"

The sentences reached Miss Thornton's ears in detachments, as the swimmer shouted a few words at a time between the slow, powerful strokes which kept him easily abreast of the boat. A master of all swimmer's "dodges," he had already rid himself of coat and shoes, and was, to all appearance, thoroughly enjoying his involuntary bath.

Still, Grace would have tried to screen the dripping head from her aunt's view had she dared to move an inch from her place. When Mrs. Armytage, however, at last discovered whence came the shouted words, she seemed to be more puzzled than alarmed.

"Why? What? It can't be. But, yes, it really is Mr. Hartley! Dear me, and do you really prefer going ashore in that—that very uncomfortable fashion?"

"Very much so, since the only alternative would be to go to the bottom of the harbor."

"One never knows what young men will do next!" said Mrs. Armytage, resignedly.

A few minutes more, and the trio stood together on the broad marble steps of the quay. Cecil turned to his waiting companions.

"Now, Mrs. Armytage, I am again at your service. Where do wish to go?"

"Never mind about us," broke in Miss Thornton, with unusual impetuosity. "You must take care of yourself now."

"Yes, certainly, Mr. Hartley. It is is our turn to think of you now. Which is your hotel?"

There was a graciousness in Mrs. Armytage's tone which emboldened Cecil, and he took his courage in both hands.

"May I venture to say—the same as your own?" Dripping, dishevelled hero that he was, Cecil's smile had still its old charm—it had been as good as a fairy gift to him from the hour he first smiled up into his mother's face. It won the pardon of his audacity now. For a moment Mrs. Armytage seemed to be taken aback by this fulfilment of her own recently uttered prophecy, then she met the honest, smiling eyes, and her heart reproached her for her cruelty.

"Well—perhaps—under the circumstances. Yes, I think it would really be as well. Then I shall be able to see that you take proper precautions against a chill."

Five minutes later the three were safely ensconced in the omnibus of their hotel, Mr. Hartley completely enveloped by a great traveling-wrap and seated at a respectful distance from his dryer companions. Presently the equipage entered the Via Garibaldi!—the famous "Street of Palaces"—and, after clattering under a lofty archway, drew up within the courtyard of a grand old palazzo.

* * * * *

How artful Love can make the simplest of us! Cecil Hartley was by nature an entirely honorable and straightforward young Englishman, yet on the first day at Genoa his conduct displayed a depth of duplicity of which his most intimate friend would have declared him incapable. What was a swim in a summer sea—the Mediterranean in June!—and the subsequent dampness, to a healthy young fellow of eight-and-twenty! A hot bath and a change of raiment, and he stood in no more danger of taking cold than a water-spaniel.

Yet now he listened as carefully to Mrs. Armytage's varied precautions against "taking a chill" as if he had been already in the first stages of consumption.

So he retired to his bed without a protest—he would have stayed there for a week to please her—and submitted meekly to a great many more coverings than were at all comfortable, and drank—with thanks—a hot, medicinal concoction, which the kind-hearted woman prepared and brought him with her own hands. And then he fell asleep—to dream such pleasant dreams. For good or for ill, the fates had decreed that he was not yet to be separated from Grace Thornton.

V.

A long, wide-sweeping stretch of gleaming sand incloses a crescent-shaped bay of clear, blue water. On the right a high and rugged promontory runs far out to sea, tapering to a narrow point which bears a tall white signal-station. On the left a lower and gentler headland, covered to its summit with verdure, and crowned by the beautiful ruins of an ancient church. To seaward the view has but one break, a small, oddly shaped island rising high above the water some two miles from the shore.

Nestling close to the water's edge lies a little old Italian town, with quaint pink, blue and yellow houses, tottering gray walls and churches marked by tall, slender campaniles and Moorish tiled cupolas. On the narrow space between the town and the sea a score of weather-beaten fishing-boats are drawn up, and a line of muddy nets are laid out to dry in the sun, that glorious southern sun which does indeed seem a giant rejoicing in his strength.

The picture has a noble background. An amphitheatre of terraced and olive clad hills rises high into the cloudless sky, the lovely curves of their summits clearly defined against the brilliant azure. Here and there a few white villas peep out from among the gray olives, a few scattered farmhouses, and two or three small mountain villages, little clumps of close-huddled houses, each with its church and campanile, clinging like wasp nests to the hillside.

Over all, to-day, peace reigns undisturbed. Another few weeks and the now silent shore will resound with the laughter and voices of merry crowds of bagnante from Turin and Milan, and the now deserted sands be the playground of troops of dark-eyed Piedmontese children. But it is, as yet, only early in June; the "Inglese," who in winter seek refuge here from the fogs of their native land, have all returned to their English homes; the Piedmontese summer visitors have not yet arrived. For one brief month in the year Alassio really belongs to the Alassians.

Certainly their ancient city is so left to them in all the fullest glory of the year's changing aspects. It is not yet too hot for comfort, though the delicious warmth penetrates every recess of your being, and you may live out of doors from early morn to dewy eve, and far on into the soft, sweet night.

The main street of Alassio—long, narrow, arched overhead with buttresses to guard against the shock of possible earthquakes—runs parallel with the shore, and as you traverse its shady length, every fifty yards or so you may look down still narrower crossways and feast your eyes on the bewildering blueness of sea and sky, for there, framed by the narrow, high-arched opening, lies the tideless sea.

* * * * *

Under the brief black shadow cast by a fishing boat drawn up high and dry on the sand Mrs. Armytage sat reading.

A little nearer the sea, in the full, pitiless glare of the June sunshine, Miss Thornton had pitched her camp-stood and easel with the laudable intention of recording on canvas some memento of the long, irregular line of ancient buildings which turned its picturesque back so confidingly to the sea, reserving for the main street the dull monotony of the front view.

Perhaps it was despair at the difficulties of her task, the impossibility of doing justice to those opalescent gleams on the shimmering sand that prevented Miss Thornton from making any satisfactory progress with her sketch that morning. Every few minutes her eyes wandered widely from their legitimate point of view and turned to scan the far-reaching curve of the bay with a furtive, half expectant glance.

After all, she was taken unawares for Cecil Hartley, looking delightfully cool in his fresh white suit, strolled down behind her from a contrary direction. That it was not the first time the little comedy had been rehearsed was evident from the half-guilty start and slowly rising color with which Grace recognized the fact that a shadow had fallen upon her canvas. Only a few scarcely coherent remarks, doing little credit to the intellectual powers of either, had passed between the two, before Cecil, with a sudden return to the realms of common sense, discovered that it was really dangerous for Miss Thornton to sit any longer in that blazing sun. She had the grace to hesitate, or to pretend to do so.

"Do you really think so? I don't think it is any hotter than yesterday."

"I am sure it is. Why, today the thermometer stands at—at—well, it's that horrid centigrade in my room. Nobody can make head or tail of that, you know—and I know it stands at something really alarming. Do come and let me find you a shady corner somewhere. You are looking quite—quite"——

"Quite red in the face, you mean."

"Yes—red as a lobster," returned the young man coolly. "If you have no regard for your own complexion, somebody else must take care of it for you. You'll get a sunstroke if you sit there longer. And I spotted such a capital bit of shade just now. Do come and try it!"

The eager hopefulness of Cecil's eyes was not to be resisted. Miss Thornton rose meekly and abandoned her sketching paraphernalia to the mercy of the intruder.

"I am just going to sit in the shade for a little while, Aunt Anne!"

Mrs. Armytage gave a little acquiescent nod, without lifting her eyes from the absorbing pages of her novel. The two young people strolled leisurely toward the artfully chosen shady nook, and there Grace sat down on the warm dry sand, while her attendant knight stretched himself humbly at her feet.

For a while the two chatted on in friendly fashion about art and literature, poetry, science, religion and all the other trifling matters which stand apart from the one great fact of life—as life appeared to their eyes on that fair June day.

But presently there came a long, dangerous pause, broken at length by Cecil, with a remark quite foreign to the previous conversation.

"It was just awfully good of you—and Mrs. Armytage—to let me come on here!" he exclaimed in a sudden burst of gratitude which somewhat startled his companion. But she only laughed, and answered with careless lightness:

"I do not see how we could have prevented it. We certainly have not acquired any monopoly of Alassio—nor even of all the hotel!"

"That's all very well. But how could I have inflicted myself upon you like this if you hadn't given me permission? And I say again, it was awfully good of you. If only you knew what it meant to me"—he broke off suddenly. His companion gave him no help, and presently he resumed in a calmer tone.

"I wonder what I should have done if you had shunted me for good and all at Genoa? You might so easily have done it, as soon as I had been dried and dosed!"

"Probably you would have continued the even tenor of your way, and seen all you intended to see when you started. As it is, you have spent more than half your holiday already here, seeing nothing and doing nothing except waiting upon and amusing—two strangers!"

The young man's face flushed hotly.

"That is not kind of you, Miss Thornton! Why do you remind me so coldly and cuttingly how slight a claim I have upon your kindness?"

"A slight claim do you call it, Mr. Hartley? Did you not risk, if not your life, at least a very bad cold, in our service and defence, that day at Genoa? And have you not, day after day, carried my easel about for me under a sun hot enough to entitle you to say you have been 'through fire and water' for us?"

Cecil changed his position, so that as he lay resting on his elbows, I could look up into the girl's laughing face.

Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Aus der Rheinpfalz.

Speyer. Hier ist die Gründung einer Gesellschaft beabsichtigt, die mittelst sogenannter Daimler'scher Motorwagen regelmäßige Verbindungen zwischen Speyer und den Nachbarorten herstellen und damit auf die Hebung des Verkehrs einwirken will. Auf Anttag des Bezirksgremiums für Handel und Gewerbe beschloß der Stadtrath, zunächst auf die Dauer von zehn Jahren zu Gunsten der Gesellschaft die Zinsengarantie für ein Kapital von 50,000 Mark zu übernehmen.

Ottersheim. Kürzlich ist hier ein Mordanschlag gegen den katholischen Kaplan Löffel verübt worden. Als der Geistliche Abends gegen ½10 Uhr sein Zimmer betrat und Licht anzuzünden versuchte, wurde auf ihn ein scharfer Schuß abgegeben. Die Kugel durchschlug das Fensterkreuz und fuhr jedenfalls in die Decke, denn diese ist stark beschädigt. Wenn der Mordbube um nur eine Hand breit tiefer gezielt hätte, würde der Seelsorger eine Leiche gewesen sein. Von dem Thäter fehlt jede Spur.

Württemberg.

Stuttgart. Ueber den „Zug nach der Stadt" in Württemberg veröffentlicht das statistische Landesamt einen interessanten Artikel, in welchem konstatirt wird, daß in den kleineren Gemeinden von weniger als 2000 Einwohnern in den fünf Jahren 1890 bis 1895 eine stete Abnahme der Bevölkerung stattfand. Die Abnahme vollzog sich um so rascher, je kleiner die Gemeinde war; im Gegensatz hiezu nahmen die größeren Gemeinden um so rascher zu, je größer sie waren. Die Landfläche des Königreichs Württemberg fängt also an zu veröden; die früher gleichmäßigere Vertheilung der Menschen auf die Bodenfläche ist im Schwinden begriffen.

Gmünd. Die Bauarbeiten an der städtischen Turn- und Festhalle, die vorigen Sommer begonnen und den ganzen Winter hindurch fortgesetzt wurden, waren so weit gediehen, daß die Eindeckung des Gebäudes hätte demnächst erfolgen können. Zum Schrecken aller Betheiligten ist aber die nordöstliche Ecke des Gebäudes eingefallen. Ein Glück, daß der Einsturz zu einer Zeit erfolgte, da die Arbeiten ruhten. Durch dieses Unglück wird sich nun wohl die Fertigstellung des Baues in den Sommer hinein erstrecken.

Gossenzugen. Auf dem steilen Bergabhang an der Ostseite unseres Ortes fand ein großer Erdrutsch statt, wodurch der ganze Vorsehr auf der Hauptstraße Zwiefalten-Münsingen gehemmt war.

Kreilsheim. In großer Lebensgefahr schwebte die Familie des Uhrmachers August Reuß. Durch Bruch eines Gasrohrs der Hauptleitung drang das Gas unter der Erde in das Schlafzimmer genannter Familie ein; nur durch rechtzeitige Entdeckung konnten die Kinder, welche schon bewußtlos waren, dem Tode entrissen werden.

Ulm. Der Küchenchef eines hiesigen Hotels feuerte auf seine Geliebte, ein dort bedienstetes Zimmermädchen, mehrere Revolverschüsse ab; er wurde verhaftet. Motiv der That ist Eifersucht.

Untertürkheim. Hier starb Frau Elise Dulk, die Wittwe des bekannten sozialdemokratischen Schriftstellers Dr. Albert Dulk.

Baden.

Karlsruhe. Eine merkwürdige Entdeckung machte die Polizei bei der Körperuntersuchung einer wegen Diebstahls verhafteten Frau. Die Dame trug nicht weniger als 52 Pfund Reine auf dem bloßen Leibe, von denen 47 auf verletztes Weißzeug im Gesammtwerth von 1045 Mark lauteten. Die Frau war vom 1. Juli 1897 bis 4. Januar 1898 in einem Weißwarengeschäft beschäftigt und hatte sich mit einem falschen Schlüssel Zutritt in's Magazin zu verschaffen gewußt. Nach und nach entwendete sie Waaren in dem angegebenen Betrage und versetzte sie im Leihhaus. Sie gibt vor, die Waaren von dem bekannten Unbekannten erhalten zu haben.

Konstanz. In Folge einer Benzinexplosion wurden die Eheleute Herzog dahier so schwer verletzt, daß sie nach 12tägigem Schmerzenslager fast zur selben Stunde verschieden.

Mannheim. Wiederum ist hier ein alter Achtundvierziger gestorben. Es ist dies der im 88. Lebensjahre stehende Privatmann Leonhard Taubenell. Der Verstorbene betheiligte sich an dem 1848er März-Aufstande und nahm später auch regen Antheil an der deutsch-katholischen Bewegung Herbert Rau's. Längere Jahre hindurch war er Vorstand der Mannheimer Freireligiösen Gemeinde.

THEIR LAST STAND.

The two horses at the long stretch of picket line took rest from the labors of the "day herd," but the knowledge of flovering, ghastly death was in the heart of every trooper of M of the —th.

The dread war chant of the Chirichua Apaches rose higher and higher, the death chant of the gallant handful of white men camped under the hills that should be their destruction—a monotonous horror of sound.

Just another instance of bureaucratic ignorance and blindness and of Indian treachery, that is all. "Farm camp" and escort—the one made for savages whose last intention it was to farm, the latter entirely inadequate in case of outbreak. And so Troop M of the —th, armed and silent, was awaiting the oncome of Geronimo's malcontents, the last chance of retreat gone, and the chance of any rider making his way out and to Fort Apache for reinforcements precluded.

Sanford W. Calhoun, First Lieutenant and Troop Commander—tall, lithe, the handsomest man of his regiment, the leader of ball and of social wherever he might be quartered—had been deeply thinking, and had sought relief in low converse with his cosmopolitan First Sergeant, a man of infinite possibilities and—a past.

"It's all up with M of the —th this time, Majendie," Calhoun said, and Majendie answered with a short laugh "Yes."

Calhoun shuddered. The man's blase recklessness had jarred him before. "And you've nothing to regret, nothing to hold you to the life we shall quit—no fear?"

Majendie laughed again, with a sneer on his cynical face. "No, Lieutenant, neither regret nor fear. I've drained life's cup of nectar, also her cup of gall, to the dregs. I've had my good time and my bad time, and, if the end is here, I'm ready."

Calhoun sighed. "I wish I was, Sergeant, but I am not. Life's sweet, Sergeant. It's never seemed so sweet as now, when it's going. You see, I've only tasted the cup as yet."

The Sergeant only smiled inscrutably. He knew why life held so much for his commander, pictured to himself the girl-wife with her first-born back there at Fort Grant, and pitied the man at his side more than her.

"I understand, Lieutenant," he said; then he indicated a young trooper close by—a fair, boyish recruit on his first "field" duty.

"You see young Wilson there, Lieutenant?" he went on. "Well, you and he and I represent three distinct types of manhood. Wilson is one of the most innocent pure-minded, kindly lads I've ever come in contact with—a mother's boy. Will he fight for the life that was never yet his, but hers? According to all that has been written in fiction, yes. Lieutenant, that boy will die with horror and fear in his eyes.

Calhoun shuddered again, but asked the question, "And I?"

Majendie smiled, looking at the fine, clear cut features of the American aristocrat. "The Lieutenant," he said, "will die like the man I know him to be, bravely, but the bitterness of it all will seize him and hold him. There will be resentment in his eyes—a grudge against fate."

"And you?"

"And I—Hark! By God, sir, they're opening the ball."

It was dawn. The Apaches had been waiting for it. A bullet clipped Majendie's ear, another spattered dirt in Calhoun's face. The Sergeant laughed.

Cynical and sneering, a man whose only popularity la in his acknowledged smartness. The moment transformed him. One leap landed him beside the boy recruit behind a huge pine tree, and through it all, through the crashing and yelling, the horror and despair of the last fight, as man after man went down, the long-legged "citizen of the world" cheered the remnant by word and deed.

He saw the lieutenant leap and fall, saw the boy recruit with the horror of it in his despair-stricken eyes, sink at his feet, and then—

When the squaws of Geronimo's band swooped down on the dead of martyred "M," they came across three men whom they left untouched of mutilating knife—the first, the boy farm instructor, because she who claimed him loved him; the second, because through some strange cause, none desired to touch the young white chief; the third and last, because he came to the end, was in their sight the bravest of the dead. And in the eyes of the first lurked dread, in those of the second bitterness, but in the eyes of the third there dwelt a wondrous—peace.

And lo! when men came to search the three untouched bodies after a time, over the heart of him in peace they found the stained photographs of his one comrade's mother and of his other comrade's wife.—Gifford Hall in The Sketch.

Teasing Friend—"What makes that new baby at your house cry so much, Tommy?"

Tommy (indignantly)—"It don't cry so very much; and, anyway, if all your teeth were out, and your hair off, and your legs so weak you couldn't stand on them, I fancy you'd feel like crying yourself."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

ON CHAMBERMAIDS.

An Humble Opinion of Them by Mark Twain.

Against all chambermaids, of whatsoever age or nationality, I launch the curse of bachelordom!

Because:

They always put the pillows at the opposite end of the bed from the gas burner, so that while you read and smoke before sleeping (as is the ancient and honored custom of bachelors) you have to hold your book aloft, in an uncomfortable position, to keep the light from dazzling your eyes.

If they can't get the light in an inconvenient position any other way, they move the bed.

If you pull your trunk out six inches from the wall, so that the lid will stay up when you open it, they always shove that trunk back again. They do it on purpose.

They always put your other boots into inaccessible places. They chiefly enjoy depositing them as far under the bed as the wall will permit. It is because this compels you to get down in an undignified attitude, and make wild sweeps for them in the dark with the bootjack, and swear.

They always put the match-box in some other place. They hunt up a new place for it every day, and put a bottle, or other perishable glass thing, where the box stood before. This is to cause you to break that glass, groping about in the dark, and get yourself into trouble.

They are forever moving the furniture. When you come in, in the night, you can calculate on finding the bureau where the wardrobe was in the morning. And when you come in at midnight over the rocking chair and will pronight, or thereabouts, you will pull over the rocking chair and you proceed towards the window and sit down in the slop tub. This will disgust you. They like that.

No matter where you put any thing, they won't let it stay there. They will take it and move it the first chance they get.

They always save up the old scraps of printed rubbish you throw on the floor, and stick them carefully on the table, and then start the fire with your valuable manuscripts.

And they use more hair oil than any six men.

They keep always coming to make your bed before you get up, thus destroying your rest and inflicting agony upon you, but after you get up, they don't come any more till the next day.

Comforting.

Passenger—"Isn't it dangerous to smoke?"

Aeronaut—"Dangerous? Ah, me! Since my Eulalia died I care not for life."

Astor's Economy.

Although John Jacob Astor had led a life mainly devoted to business interests, he found great pleasure in the society of literary men, says Mrs. Julia Ward Howe in the Atlantic. Mr. Cogswell made his home with us for some years after the closing of his famous school, but finally went to reside with Mr. Astor, attracted partly by the latter's promise to endow a public library in the city of New York. This was accomplished after some delay, and the doctor was for many years director of the Astor library. He used to relate some interesting humorous anecdotes of excursions which he made with Mr. Astor. In the course of one of these the two gentlemen took supper together at a hotel recently opened. Mr. Astor remarked: "This man will never succeed."

"Why not?" inquired the other.

"Don't you see," replied the financier, "What large lumps of sugar he puts in the sugar bowl?"

Once, as they were walking slowly to a pilot-boat which the old gentleman had chartered for a trip down the harbor, Dr. Cogswell said: "Mr. Astor, I have just been calculating that this boat costs you 25 cents a minute."

Mr. Astor at once hastened his pace, reluctant to waste so much money.

The Needed Man.

"Sir, there is a man downstairs who wishes to see you," said the office boy.

The editor of the up-to-date magazine looked over his spectacles a moment.

"What sort of a man is he?" he inquired.

"I don't know," said the boy. "He appears to act very strangely."

"Ah!" said the editor, becoming interested.

"His head appears to slope immediately from the eyebrows to the crown."

"Very good," said the editor.

"And there appears to be no sense in his remarks."

"Excellent!"

"To be brief, sir, I believe him to be a driveling idiot."

"Splendid! Show him up at once. We can never have too much of such talent."

KENTUCKY LYNCHING

Squire Williams Furnished the Rope to the Posse.

"I happened to be stopping over in a little Kentucky town one day last summer," said a Columbus travelling man to me yesterday, "when a posse of men brought in a negro who had killed a white man during a quarrel the day before. He had been captured that morning in the woods near town after a hard fight. They were massed together in front of my hotel, with their cowering prisoner in the center.

"What are they going to do with him?" I inquired of a native.

"The man was evidently surprised that I should ask such a question.

"'Take him up the road a piece and lynch him, of course,' he replied.

"'What are they waiting for now?' I ventured.

"'They're a-waitin' on Squire Williams. That's him just cummin' now,' and he nodded in the direction of a man hurrying down the street.

"'Squire Williams,' I requested in surprise, wondering what need there was for an official of the law in a case of this kind.

"'Yes,' was the cool reply, 'he went up to the house after the rope.'"

Fooled in a Horse Trade.

A prominent English landlord was one day riding across a common adjacent to his preserves when he overtook one of his tenants, who was also mounted. After the usual salutations they rode on in silence for some minutes, when the tenant slightly spurred his horse, a balky animal, whereupon it dropped to its knees.

"What's the matter with your horse?" asked his lordship. The embarrassed tenant remarked by way of explanation that his steed always acted that way when there was game to be found.

A moment later, to the tenant's satisfaction and surprise, a frightened hare jumped out of some bushes near by.

This so impressed the landlord that he at once drove a bargain by which he secured the tenant's bare-backed beast in exchange for his own fine mount, perfectly saddled. With much agility the tenant leaped to his new horse, and all went well until they came to a small stream, whereat the landlord's new nag immediately balked. A drive home with the spurs brought it again to its knees.

"Hello! What's up now? There's no game here," said his lordship.

"True, my lord," was the ready reply; "but I forgot to tell you 'ee's as good for fish as 'ee is for game."

Her Deductions.

"I believe that you used to know Mrs. Brown, did you not?" asked the new woman.

"Brown? Brown?" returned the old-fashioned woman thoughtfully. "I don't seem to place her. What Mrs Brown was it?"

"Mrs. Mary Mehitabel Brown," answered the new woman. "Oh, you must have met her."

"Mrs. Mary Mehitabel Brown," repeated the old-fashioned woman. "No I don't recall her. But I'm sorry for her just the same."

"Sorry for her!" exclaimed the new woman. "Why are you sorry for her?"

"A widow always has my sympathy," replied the old-fashioned woman.

"A widow!" cried the new woman. "Why, she isn't a widow."

"Then more than ever am I sorry for her," returned the old-fashioned woman. "I don't think there is anything more pitiful than a woman who is ashamed of her husband."

"But she isn't ashamed of her husband."

"Then why does she insist upon being known as Mrs. Mary Mehitabel Brown?"

He Laughs Best, Etc.

He—"I hear Mamie Watkins is going to be married."

She—"Yes, and not a great while ago she told me she had decided never to marry."

He—"Oh, that goes for nothing. You women can't keep a vow any better than you can keep a secret. And you, my dear, you have no room to talk about Minnie. I remember you said to me once you would not marry the best man living."

She—"Did I?"

He—"Of course you did, and in less than six months you had married me—ha, ha, ha. There is something amusing about the make-up of a woman."

She—"I don't see where the laugh comes in. I can't see that I broke my vow. I said I wouldn't marry the best man living—and I didn't, not by long odds."

Easy for the Professor.

"And now," said the professor, as the regular class exercises were finished, "is there any question any of the young ladies would like to ask?"

"How is it, sir," inquired the auburn-haired girl at the pedal extremity of the class, "that Father Time is always represented as being bald-headed?"

"That is easily accounted for," replied the professor. "So many people during their school days grasped Time by the forelock in trying to get away from the foot of the class that his hair has all been pulled out. See?"

And Nothing Else.

"How can you endure that man?" asked one member of the club of another, "there's nothing in him."

"You never made a greater mistake in your life," came the quick reply, "he's full of himself."

THE TWO FRIENDS.

"The Groundhog," was what the people of Roundstone called the first rude machine which came to supersede their time-honored flails. The cylinder, with wicked looking teeth, was revolved by four horses, going round and round, and the thresher was depressed in a whole in the earth, where it toiled about and growled as it did its work. How the good people watched the marvel, and how they envied the prosperity of the partners, Larkin Sawyer and Ephraim Whitley, who were growing rich threshing for a toll of one bushel in eight.

Bosom friends they had been since the day Ephraim pulled the latch and entered Larkin's house of anguish for two bright children just taken by scarlet fever—of benumbing fear for others hovering between life and death,—of exhaustion from long and nearly hopeless watching.

"I've kim fer help nuss," said Ephraim, briefly.

"Oh, don't Yer mussent come hyur. You've got young 'uns of yer owa." said Larkin and Jane together.

"I've kim fer stay an' see ye through," persisted Ephraim. "Marthy an' I thought it all over, an' she sed, 'Eph, I reckin you'd orter go.' So git off ter bed, both on ye, an' git rested!"

Strong of heart and of arm, the very embodiment of hope and of tenderness he saved little Jim after a long, hard fight. But for Cynthia, the struggle was such as Michael had with Satan for the body of Moses.

She lived day after day at the very point of death, but at length the little spirit that had seemed pluming itself for flight folded its wings and sank back to rest in the home nest.

Then Ephraim went home, but only to take to his bed with the fever; although he was not very sick, nor was his son Leander, nor, seemingly, Shoog, but when she should have grown larger as the months and years went by, it was seen that she had come to anchor, and was really rocking at her moorings in her own little bay, unmoved by the winds and tides of common life. She became stouter with the lapse of time, and stronger, but no taller, and no less a child. She learned A, B, and C but was never sure of any other, not even of round O. But somehow she delighted in the society of "Uncle Larkin Sawyer," as she called him, although they were not related, as much as did Cynthia Sawyer in that of Ephraim Whitley, who had saved her life.

Of course, Larkin and Ephraim were more than partners, more than brothers, even, it seemed; but somehow neither was sure which forgot to bring the crowbar one hot day when an ugly thunder cloud was rising; and when they had to wait for a boy to go two miles for it on a mule, and were thus delayed so that the furious shower came down upon them, spoiling a whole stack of grain they had about half threshed, and leaving the "Groundhog" in a mud-puddle, they began to blame each other, aided by partisan neighbors, and finally became so estranged that they were as strangers, and almost enemies.

A year passed, and Ephraim cleaned the rust from the cylinder teeth and went to threshing on his account, charging one bushel in sixteen for toll. Larkin followed him from place to place, a day or two behind, with the fan and cleaned the grain for the other half of the old toll. They did not meet, even when Larkin heard that Ephraim had broken his leg and sustained other severe injuries. Three days later, a messenger told that Ephraim was dying, and in delirium would call for "Lark, Lark!" and add, "I keer jes' as much fur ye as ever I did!"

The line storm was raging, and a flood poured through the valley, but through the driving rain the conscience-stricken Larkin ran to see his old friend once more. He stepped on the footlog across the creek, but it was so unsafe that he hesitated.

"Oh, Uncle Lark!" shouted Shoog, as she ran toward the opposite end, "come to pa! Pa wants you!"

"'Tain't safe," said Larkin. "Shoog go to the house an' tell yer pa I'm comin'."

"No, Uncle Lark, don't go 'way! Pa wants you!" urged Shoog, as she started to cross the log, just as a slight rise in the water floated the end under her. Larkin saw the danger, and sprang forward, but too late; for, even as he shouted for help, the wild torrent swept log and child and man wildly down the valley. Help came, with ropes, but all to no purpose, until a youth lassoed Larkin just as he was disappearing in the huge whirlpool called "The Sinks." They pulled him ashore, unconscious, but still clutching the dead body of Shoog.

Ephraim's fever had turned favorably, and Larkin, though weak, was convalescent, when neighbors laid the two men in beds placed side by side.

"Howdy, Lark?" asked Eph, reaching his hand across and grasping that of his old friend; "How d'ye come on?"

"Tol'able, thank ye, Eph. We've both been fools, hain't we?"

"That's a plumb fact, Lark. I'll be hanged ef it ain't."

A little white coffin was set on two chairs between the beds, and the men raised themselves on their elbows and mingled their tears that dropped upon the sweet face within, and clasped their hands above it, while Brother Manus prayed.

"We thank Alice for the ministry of peace to these two misguided households, and that her life of peace as it passes away brings in the peace of God that passeth understandin', where there has been strife and bitterness."

ABOUT THE BLIZZARD.

supply company are well supplied, some of them having enough coal on hand to last for months.

As for meat, unless some is sent before the week is out, the supply will run short. The Union Beef Company have enough on hand to last all this week, as they received a car load Monday, but the Plainfield Beef Company are almost out of provision, and unless they can get a car through by Thursday will be unable to supply the retail dealers.

Grocers, too, are anticipating a dearth of green vegetables and such provisions as they buy fresh every day or two.

LOOK OUT FOR HYDRANTS.

Fire Department Makes Special Preparation to Encounter Deep Snow.

The Plainfield fire department prepared to meet the situation as soon as Chief T. O. Doane realized that a blizzard was at hand. Teams were put to the Alert and No. 2 hose wagons which were equipped with ladders, crowbars, axes and extinguishers. They were instructed to answer all alarms. The Gazelle hose wagon, the chemical engine and the truck were to answer alarms in the centre of the city.

Chief Doane has gone out this morning requesting property owners to clean about the hydrants in front of their property. He makes the same request through The Daily Press.

GOOD TELEPHONE SERVICE.

Only Two Lines Got Out of Order and These Were Soon Repaired.

The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company suffered the least of any in the storm and they been exceedingly fortunate in this respect. In all about five local wires were out of order, but these will be repaired by noon. Two trunk lines were out of order, the New Brunswick and Newark and the New Brunswick and New York. These lines have been temporarily fixed so that they are now being used.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS CLOSED.

Superintendent Maxson Snow Bound and Principal Travell Dismissed Those Who Come.

Yesterday being a legal holiday, there was no session at the public schools in the city and borough. Superintendent H. M. Maxson, of the Plainfield schools, is storm bound at New Haven. Out of an average attendance of two hundred, there were thirty out at the Stillman High School this morning. A number were girls Principal Travell dismissed them and and telephoned to the other principals to do the same. It is expected that school will be regularly resumed tomorrow.

No sessions were held at the Borough Public School today as the children were unable to reach the school. The sessions will probaby be resumed tomorrow when the walks will be cleaned off.

DIGGING OUT.

Big Force of Men Clearing Away Drifts in the Business Centre of the City.

The business section of the city has taken a very wintry aspect. Great banks of snow, partly drifts and partly the snow from the sidewalks, are on every street to the height of five, six and seven feet. Some enterprising dealers have placed advertisements on top of them.

Patsy Christmas has a gang of thirty men at work shoveling the snow off the car tracks on West Front street.

Wm. Hand & Son have been given the contract by the city of cleaning Park avenue from Front street to North avenue. This morning they had three carts and six men at work, but the force will be increased this afternoon.

A Foolhardy Trip.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, February 14—Walter Titus, of Washingtonville, started to drive from Newark to Plainfield yesterday. When he reached here last night he was overcome by the cold and became unconscious. Several men noticed his condition and stopped the horse and carried Titus in Grogan's Hotel, where two doctors attended him. He was sufficiently recovered today to come to Plainfield on a train.

Hurt by an Icycle.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellon, Feb. 14—Michael Moynihan, of Bound Brook, driver of engine No. 94, of the Central Railroad, met with a painful accident at the round-house yesterday morning while getting his engine out of the house. An immense icycle hanging at the entrance broke and struck him on the head and shoulders, inflicting two deep cuts, one in the scalp. His injuries were not so serious but that he was able to remain at work and do what he could.

In the Suburbs.

The suburban places that surround Plainfield are temporarily dead to the world. Where the railroad does not connect them with the outer world, communication is shut off. Up in the Washington valley the roads are all blocked with hugh drifts. Scotch Plains has managed to dig its way out to a limited extent.

Too Stormy for Masqueraders.

An attempt was made last evening to hold the thirteenth annual masquerade ball under the auspices of the Gesang and Turn Verein, but not a great many people responded. Those who came were given the privilege of dancing until 12 o'clock, at which time it was decided to postpone the affair till next Thursday evening. Those who braved the storm to attend last evening were given their tickets back and they will be good for Thursday evening, as will all the tickets that have been sold.

Illiolli Captured

(From Union Associated Press.)

Manila, Feb. 14—The gunboat Petrel has returned with details of taking Illiolli Saturday.

Gen. Miller occupied it without loss to American soldiers or sailors. The Filipinos at first offered slight resistance, but bombardment from cruiser Boston and gunboat Petrel routed the Filipinos with considerable loss.

The American, British and German consulates were slightly damaged by fire. In disembarking the American troops encountered slight assistance.

Fire in Mr. Gilbert's Home.

An alarm of fire was sent in by telephone from the residence of Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, of Central avenue and Eighth street, at 8 o'clock this morning. Chief Doane and the No 2 hose wagon responded. They found the smoke pouring from the registers. The cause of the smoke was found to be a bit of wood and a candle left inside the heating dome of the furnace by workman who repaired it. The great heat set fire to the candle. It was allowed to burn out.

Scholars Needn't Stay in Cold Room.

A meeting of the Plainfield Board of Education was held last evening. The Board authorized the printing of slips for parents to sign, stating their wish that their children should be vaccinated. It was also decided that if the temperature in any class room fell to 60 degrees or below that the class should be dismissed.

TURNED OVER BY A MACHINE.

A Contrivance Which Enables One Man to Pass the Nights in Comfort.

The San Francisco Examiner tells about a man who has invented an apparatus to turn him over in bed. The man is Walter Hyde. Mr. Hyde is quite old and is troubled with an incomplete circulation of the blood, causing sleeplessness. If he remains in one position long a mild form of paralysis follows and he cannot sleep at all. Mr. Hyde concluded that if he had some mechanical means to turn himself over hourly at night he could go to sleep and not be under the necessity of awakening.

Being somewhat of a mechanical turn of mind, Mr. Hyde concluded to experiment. The result of his tinkering and thinking is the mechanical contrivance which hourly turns him over without awakening him from his slumbers, and which he says works so charmingly that his paralysis with accompanying sleeplessness is a thing of the past. The frame on which the mattress rests hangs from the bedstead by means of pinions, one at the head and the other at the foot. The frame is kept in position by being secured at the sides to a clock-like apparatus with cogs and levers to tilt the mattress frame, the motion of the rocking being governed by the clock and spring apparatus. The tilting of the frame is so nicely graduated that the sleeper is unconscious of the change, but continues undisturbed in his night's sleep, as the mechanism attached to the frame automatically changes his position during the hour to the right or to the left side as the case may be.

MONEY IN APPLE CORES.

A market for cores and skins of apples has been opened in South Water street, Chicago.

In the large hotels the apple cores accumulate in goodly quantity each day and the collection of a month would have a selling value of several dollars. In most of the restaurants and hotels this fruit refuse is thrown away with the garbage. If it were collected and desiccated it could be turned into delicious jelly and syrup. This is the use to which the apple cores and skins are put in Chicago and this is the reason there is a market for them. Confectioners purchase them occasionally in large quantities and pay as high as one cent a pound. The average price is about one-quarter cent a pound.

It matters not what kind of an apple core it is. Nor is it important whether the core has been cut with a silver knife or gnawed by the teeth—everything goes, for when these dried cores and skins are used to make jelly, syrup or gelatine they pass through a process of cleansing and filteration.—New York Journal.

FIRE DROVE THEM OUT.

TERRIBLE PLIGHT OF BOROUGH FAMILY LAST NIGHT.

Their Home Totally Destroyed by Flames That Caught From Chimney—The Firemen Responded But to No Avail.

While the storm was at its height last night about 11 o'clock an alarm of fire was sent in from Box No. 143, corner of Somerret street and Greenbrook road, for a fire that had broken out in the house on Duer street, near Howard street, occupied by Vincent Kuldshes, his wife and three children. The house caught fire from the chimney on the second floor and by the time the alarm went in the flames had good control of the dwelling and it was with great difficulty that the family escaped with their lives.

Warren Engine Company boys responded in a highly commendable manner. They did not take the engine out, as the hose carriage was thought to be sufficient. The fact that the trolley cars were kept running on Somerset street during the day made it possible for them to roll the hose carriage on that street.

By the time the firemen reached the burning house there was very little left of the dwelling to save. Nothing is now left standing except the porch. The firemen did great work, however, and suffered intensely from the bitter cold. Walter Bennett had both hands frozen, and most all of the firemen suffered more or less in this respect.

The blaze illuminated the sky to a great distance, and a number of people were attracted to the fire. The house was owned by G. W. Benson, and, it is said, was insured. The loss altogether will be between $3,000 and $4,000.

Mr. Kuldeshes is a carpenter and is employed by Wyman & Haberle. He and his family are now stopping with friends. All they were able to save was the clothing on their backs with which they escaped.

About 2,000 feet of hose was laid from the hydrant to the house, but the water was of little use. After the firemen returned to the engine house a second alarm came in from Box No. 152, sent in by Chief Wilson, who did know that the firemen had been out. Chief Fairchild together with a few of the firemen went out with the hose carriage, but before they reached their destination they were informed that there was no fire. In all sixteen men responded to the first alarm.

MILLER TAKEN HOME.

Victim of the Cold Had Threatened to Kill Himself.

Frederick W. Miller, the stranger who was picked up in a comatose state by the police Thursday evening and supposed to be a victim of the terrible cold, was identified Saturday afternoon as Frederick W. Miller, of 258 South Orange avenue, Newark, who disappeared from his home February 3rd.

Miller, who is twenty-four years old, is a spring-maker and has been in the employ of Mr. Cook, 166 Elm street, New York. A few weeks ago he had a fall in the shop. His head was cut on a sharp piece of iron and he complained of great pain in his head. Shortly after he left his home his wife received a letter in which Miller said that he had determined to end his own life as he was sure that he would never get any better and would only be a burden to her. He begged her to take good care of their child.

A telegram, unsigned, was received from Newark Saturday stating that Miller would be sent for. In the afternoon the brother of the man at the Muhlenberg Hospital arrived and took charge of Miller. He was still in a comatose state. He was taken to his home in Newark late in the afternoon.

THE PRIZE WINNERS.

Warren Engine Company's Fair Came to a Successful End.

The Warren Engine Company fair came to an end Saturday evening when the various contests were decided. The Wolf American cycle was presented to John Schenck, who turned in $232.55. Miss Ella Long won the gold watch, while Miss Ada Tunison secured the diamond ring. The pair of gavels were presented to Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., who secured 437 votes. The Saengerbunds were second with 436 votes. Morris VanArsdale secured the sofa pillow and Miss Carrie Mehl the handsome rocking chair. The parlor suit was won by Mrs. D. C. Allen, and F. M. Lunger was the winner of the second ton of coal.

The barrel of flour was won by a Westfield man. The contest on the Ramble wheel will be decided on the evening of February 22d.

As far as the committee is able to tell at present the total receipts for the week were $1,150 and the profits about $800.

—Next Thursday evening a meeting of special importance will be held at the Reform Club.

Wind to Aid the Bicycle.

A new bicycle improvement makes the cyclist join hands with the wind. The combination, it is claimed, develops exceedingly high speed. The inventor, M. Demenge, of Commercy, France, declares that by his plan the cyclist may ride at a speed of from twelve to fifteen miles an hour with no exertion at all, except that required in guiding the machine.

The contrivance is in form a part of a turbine arrangement, something like a gourd hollowed out, cut in gores, and the gores turned a little on their axes. This turbine is placed on deal rods, vertically attached to the forward wheel of the bicycle. A bar projects from the centre of the handle bars outward, and to this is attached the top of the turbine.

The turbine revolves on its axle and catches enough wind to give the forward wheel an added impetus. No matter from what direction the wind blows the turbine catches it, and by attachment with the hub of the front wheel communicates some of the force of the wind to the wheel. The turbine practically neutralizes the effect of a beam wind.

The twisting of the turbine in its rotary motion works on the rods that attach it to a rachet wheel, which revolves about the hub of the front wheel. These rods work up and down like the pistons of an engine, and in that way accelerate the motion in great degree.—New York Journal.

RECOVERING FROM THE BLIZZARD.

All Jersey is Struggling to Get Back to Regular Ways.

BIG JOB TO CLEAN THE SNOW FROM CITY STREETS.

IMMENSE DRIFTS BEING CARTED AWAY FROM BUSINESS SECTION.

Country Roads Were Utterly Impassable Yesterday to Anything But Men Who Were Venturesome—Central is Gradually Getting Back to Running Regular Trains—Street Railway Doing Fairly Well—Snow Shoes Came in Handy.

Plainfield and vicinity is beginning to recover from the blighting effects of the worst blizzard since the memorable one in 1888. The damage that the storm has caused is irreparable in some cases, in others the loss will be great in finnancial ways and in hundreds of instances it has caused great inconvenience and worriment that even a philosophical view of the situation will not drive away. It will be fully a week, however, before conditions in this vicinity resume their ordinary course.

CLEANING THE STREETS.

The Big Drifts of Snow Being Carted Away From Business Section.

Yesterday morning, with the results of the recent blizzard on the ground, there was little attraction to go out of doors. As the day warmed up and some of the more enterprising residents began to dig themselves and their sidewalks out, and the people began to turn out. In the afternoon the more thickly populated parts of the city assumed quite a live appearance. Along the line of the street railway this was added to by the efforts of the traction company to open up its lines. In the business section the removal of the snow from the streets and trolley tracks made plenty of activity. In the streets where there was plenty of traffic, the sleighing was excellent, and a host of sleighs were out in consequence.

On Front street, Park and North avenues and the other principal thoroughfares in the business section of the city the sidewalks were cleaned by yesterday noon and progression in that section, at least, was not difficult. The snow that was removed from the sidewalks was piled in great heaps on the side of the streets. Some of the heaps were eight and ten feet in height. Openings were cut at the crossings.

Some brilliant minded persons placed signs on top of these large heaps of snow. "Syracuse Plows" remarked a large sign in front of Griffen's hardware store. Another advertisement of mowers lifted its head on top of another heap. An ulster, with a large price tag attached, decorated a neighboring bank.

One wag, who evidently had remembrances of the summer resort on the Watchung Mountains above Bound Brook, placed a sign on one snow mountain in front of Shaw's pharmacy. It read "MIZ-erable Peak."

There wasn't much chance for any decoration of these snowbanks, however. The employes of Wm. Hand & Son, who were working for the city, attacked the great drifts and heaps on Park avenue. Five teams and twelve men soon leveled the heaps between Front street and North avenue. Part of the snow was carted off and dumped along the brook near Watchung avenue. The rest was spread over the surface of the roadway.

Berckman street, between North avenue and the railroad bridge, was rendered impassable by the deep drifts. A gang of Street Commissioner Gavett's men were set at work there to open a way for traffic. The road is now passable.

Another gang went to work on East Front street, near Cole's hill, where the snow was so drifted that sleighs and wagons were unable to get through. It was necessary to dig away the snow and make a cut through the drifts, which were over eight feet high.

Superintendent Adelmann attacked the work of the blizzard with very commendable vigor. Neither expense nor trouble was spared in handling the obstacles to the running of the cars. Ten carts and sixty-two men were kept busy all yesterday afternoon on the snow heaps along West Front street, beginning at Madison avenue and working east. Especially on the north side of the street the banks were high and thick and it took considerable time to remove them.

The scrapers cleaned the tracks well and the greater part of the snow-banks were carted away and dumped along Green brook behind the Babcock building. Where the snow had been removed the sleighing was good.

In the business section the street railway company will remove all the banks of snow along the lines of its tracks. On the other streets the banks made by the scrapers will be leveled off so as not to interfere with the sleighing.

The work of opening up the trolley lines was pushed forward yesterday afternoon, the five scrapers being kept constantly busy. On the Netherwood branch, the line was opened up Putnam avenue to Kensington avenue. Toward Dunellen the cars were successfully run to Grant avenue, the line of the latter thoroughfare also being opened up. Out Somerset street the cars reached Coddington avenue during the afternoon. Just beyond, a huge drift six feet deep stretched right across the road. On the West Fourth street branch the line was open as far west as the car house.

COUNTRY ROADS LOST.

Blizzard Was in Its Glory Up in the Washington Valley

On snowshoes and afoot a few of the most determined of the residents of Warrenville and vicinity made their way through the huge drifts that blocked the Washington Valley roads yesterday afternoon and opened up communication with the rest of the world. Sleighing is impossible at present, and it is likely to be several days before the roads are in condition for travel.

The blizzard was in its glory up in that region. It snowed and blew so that the farmers were shut up in their homes, and many found great difficulty in even reaching the barns and stables to care for their cattle and horses. The snow obliterated the fences. Only by the rows of trees and and telegraph poles was it possible to follow the line of the road.

The country looked like a great open sea of white, undulating and wave like, broken only by the trees and here and there a solitary farm house. The drifts stretched across the place where the road used to be, sometimes to the depth of ten feet. Some of the houses were half hidden by the great banks of snow.

FLOUNDERING IN DRIFTS

Tough Experience of Rev. George Bowers in Coming to Plainfield.

Rev. George Bowers and his son, of Warrenville, started out yesterday. Mr. Bowers is overseer of the poor in Warren township and felt that his duty compelling him to go to the assistance of several needy families under his juriediction. The found it impossible to get the horse and sleigh out of the barn and so started forth on foot. They ploughed through drifts up to their necks, dodging the larger ones and wandering along across fields and through the woods without any regard for the road.

After carrying the necessities of life to the helpless ones and risking their lives thereby in the deep drifts, the two men started for Plainfield, five miles away. The trip took three hours and the men were completely exhausted when they reached civilization once more.

Rev. Mr. Bowers was in Warrenville at the time of the memorable blizzard of '88 and says that the drifts on that occasion did not equal those of the present great storm. The snow is deeper now, he says, than ever before and the drifts higher.

A short distance east of Pettifious' Hotel on the valley road he found the proprietor stranded in a snow bank with a large basket which he was taking to Plainfield. He had fallen into a drift and was unable to extricate himself. The Bowers dug him out and assisted him the remainder of the journey. The traveling afoot was very ardous and the three men often sank down in the snow for a brief rest. They finally reached Somerset street and better walking.

3 MILES ON SNOW SHOES.

L. B. Colby Found No Trouble in Going Over the Big Snow Drifts.

S. B. Colby, manager of the farm of the Plainfield Poultry Company, left his home on the Washington valley road, a mile east of Warrenville and made the remaining four miles to Plainfield in forty minutes. Thanks to his snowshoes, he was able to remain on top of the snow and encountered no serious obstacles en route. He says that the roads are very badly drifted, the drifts in some places measuring as high as ten feet. The road will have to be dug out before there is any travel that way. Mr. Colby was an inspector of lumber in northern Canada in 1884 and became quite an expert on snowshoes. He has not used them since that time until yesterday when the shops and the knowledge of how to use them was very valuable.

BURSTED PIPES.

Private Residences Put in a Serious Plight by the Cold Snap.

As a result of the cold snap almost all of the homes in Plainfield have in some degree suffered, and in almost every case pipes have been frozen, but among the worst cases are those at the homes of Mrs. Corlies, Road Ending, and Mrs. Rodman, of Hillside avenue. In both cases the occupants left the city for a few days, and while they were away the cold got in its fine work. Mrs. Rodman turned the water off from the house but failed to drain the pipes inside. In consequence the pipes burst, as did also the boiler, and the plumbing work is a wreck. This is the case at Mrs. Corlies. Here a large tank is used to supply the house with water. The tank of water froze, as well as the water in the pipes, leaving matters in very bad shape.

THE CENTRAL RECOVERING.

Railroad Passenger Traffic Is Being Resumed With Considerable Regularity.

As fast as possible the regular schedule of running trains is being resumed on the Central Railroad. At intervals of every two hours yesterday trains were run from Dunellen and Somerville to New York and back, but no attempt was made to follow the regular schedule.

Up to 9 o'clock this morning only one track was in use between Somerville and Easton. The two engines which were derailed near Somerville Monday morning, were still there yesterday, but last night one of them was removed, and now both tracks will soon be open.

This morning the usual schedule was resumed, and local trains are running again as before the storm, only they are all late. The trouble still seems to be in the yards which were piled full of snow, and the switches which were frozen tight.

Between New York and Philadelphia huge snow drifts and cuts filled with snow successfully obstruct the passage of anything. Last night one train did struggle through and reached New York in safety, but it was a train which had become stalled in a drift. No attempts have been made to send trains out of Philadelphia for New York, and it is not likely that any trains will leave New York for Philadelphia until towards night.

One passenger, a Plainfielder, purchased a ticket for Washington this morning. He was told that he couldn't get through for some time, but took his ticket, and will run the chances.

ALL THE WAY TO DUNELLEN

City Street Car Lines are Now in Good Working Order.

The excellent campaign conducted by Superintendent John Adlemann, of the Plainfield Street Railway, against the snow has been effective. This morning at 10 o'clock the first car was run through to Dunellen. A gang of shovellers and scrapers cleared the tracks beyond Grant avenue so that the cars are running at fairly regular intervals. The line has been opened to Netherwood station. The deepest

DEATH OF DR FRENCH

GREAT ENDEAVOR WORKER HAS PASSED AWAY.

He Was Well Known in Plainfield and Held in High Esteem for His Work Among Young People—His Life.

Rev. Dr. J. Clement French, of Newark, formerly president of the State C. E. Union, and well known in Plainfield, died yesterday morning at his home in Newark. Dr. French was pastor of the Park Presbyterian church in Newark.

He had been ill since Dec. 12th, when the church began a three days' celebration of its fiftieth anniversary. He had contracted a cold, but insisted on carrying out his part in the celebration, and he delivered a long historical address.

Dr. French was born at Barre, Vt., May 3, 1832.

His first charge was the Central Congregational church, in Brooklyn, and he was pastor for fourteen years. At the close of the war, in the company of Henry Ward Beecher and others, he made a pilgrimage to Fort Sumter and raised the Stars and Stripes over the old fort. After a year spent in California for his health Dr. French accepted a call to the West-minister Presbyterian church, in Brooklyn, and occupied the pulpit for nearly six years, when he was compelled to seek rest on account of throat trouble, and lived in Orange, N. J., for a year. He afterward supplied the pulpits of several churches in Brooklyn. January 15, 1879, Dr. French accepted a call to the Park Presbyterian church of Newark, which was then in West Park street, and he was installed October 16th.

He did much to build up the Park church, and was held in affectionate esteem by a large and influential congregation. Although of delicate physique, he was fond of outdoor sports, and was a charter member of the Hollywood Club, which owns extensive game preserves in the North Woods, and was president of the club. For thirty years he spent his summer vacation in a cottage on the tract, and was a good shot and an expert angler.

When the State convention of the Christian Endeavorers was held in Plainfield two years ago Dr. French was then president of the society. His splendid address and magnetic, sympathetic words with the young christians made him very popular. Last fall Dr. French delivered an address in Trinity Reformed church in this city. His death will cause profound sorrow in the Plainfield churches.

Public Endeavor Conference.

The Plainfield Local Union, Christian Endeavor, will hold a public conference in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church next Tuesday evening, Feb. 28th, at which time there will be two discussions or open parliaments. Rev. A. I. Martine will lead the first one on the subject of mission work and Rev. J. W. Richardson will have charge of the other subject, which will be a practical Endeavor topic. Everybody is welcome.

VOORHEES' BED OF ROSES

JERSEY'S NEW GOVERNOR HAVING GOOD LUCK OVER APPOINTMENTS.

Happy Solution in Essex County—Proposed Appointment of Major Lentz Had Threatened Serious Trouble
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, February 15.—Governor Voorhees is meeting with rare good luck at the beginning of his administration over the distribution of the public patronage. The announcement that he will nominate Chandler W. Riker to the office of Prosecutor of the Pleas of Essex county meets with general approval. Major Carl Lentz had been an active candidate for the place. As his candidacy progressed it was found that he had almost as many enemies as friends.

While the former did everything possible to impress the Governor that the appointment of the Major would bring about severe criticism, the latter became more zealous in his behalf. The Major was the choice of the practical politicians. He had done a great deal for his party during the last five or six years, while serving as chairman of the Essex county Republican committee, and, consequently, his friends believed that he had merited the recognition he sought. Several members of the bar favored him, too. And, then, again, other lawyers of high standing insisted that the office should be filled by a man whose legal ability was without question and public reputation without blemish. They alleged that Major Lentz did not meet these requirements.

The Lawyers' Club of Newark was called upon to investigate charges made against him, and that fact in itself was considered a blight on the Mayor's prospects. He thereupon withdrew his candidacy, and by common consent, Mr. Riker was selected for the office. Thus the Governor was relieved from a very unpleasant dilemma. Had he appointed the Major much fault would have been found. And still, on the other hand, the politicians would have lavished praise on him for the act. Mr. Riker is in every way qualified for the place. He is an eminent lawyer, and a man of high reputation. Of course, he is not as active in politics as the Major, but still his loyalty to party has never been doubted.

It is not anticipated that this disappointment will in the least dampen the ardor of Major Lentz. He will continue to be the same aggressive and uncompromising politician his record has shown him to be, and the Essex County Republican organization will remain under the discipline of his master hand. Until another opportunity arises to push the Major forward to a position commensurate with his services as a political leader he must content himself with being a member of the State Board of Taxation at a salary of $2,500 a year.

Caught in the Car Tracks.

Yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock Milkman B. R. Waldron, of Coddington avenue, met with a mishap in front of the trolley carhouse on West Fourth street, and he was obliged to temporarily abandon his route. He was delivering milk in a sleigh and in some way the runners were dished in the car tracks.

Elected Officers for the Year—Chairmen of Committees Appointed—To Thank Mr. Newman Retiring Treasurer.

The officers for the year were elected as follows: President, Stephen Cahoone; vice-president E. L. Bonney; recording secretary, A. B. Beers; treasurer, Curtis M. Thorpe. Recognition of the excellent work done by H. O. Newman as treasurer was referred to the executive committee for special action. Harry Gee was elected a director in place of J. R. Joy, resigned.

The following chairmen of committees were announced: Executive committee, E. R. Ackerman; religious work, G. M. Rittenhouse; social work, J. W. Gavett; rooms, Nelson Runyon; membership, A. B. Beers; entertainment, H. M. Maxson; vacancies, R. H Radford; educational work, H. C. Munger; finance, W. D. Murray; boys' work, O. S. Rogers; literary, George S. Clay; physical work, John Valiant.

It was decided by unanimous vote not to grant the request of the basket basket ball team and allow them to play the Yale team at the Crescent Rink. While it was too late to pull the game off, the decision of the Board showed their sentiments on the matter and will prevent any large games under Y. M. C. A. auspices.

AN EXCITING PERIOD.

CIVIL WAR HISTORY SPOKEN OF BY PROF. MACE.

Last Lecture in the Course on the Development of the Nation—Interesting Historical Facts Related by Him.

Professor W. H. Mace, of Syracuse, finished his course of lectures upon the development of the nation last night at the Y. M. C. A. and treated of the history of the United States between the year 1855 to just after the civil war. With the year 1855 the contest for Kansas was begun. The prospects of both parties, slavery and anti-slavery were good. At the first election Governor Reeder was elected, and a legislature favoring slavery.

Laws against aiding fugitive slaves were passed. The campaign of 1860 opened as soon as that of 1856 closed. The fugitive slave laws still existed, and there was the same resistance to them on every side. Filibustering expeditions were numerous when in the midst of this came the Dred Scott decision in '57.

Following fast upon this important event came John Brown's first raid and the famous debates between Douglass and Lincoln. There were seven joint debates besides several outside ones. This contest gave to Douglass the Senatorship, but to Lincoln the Presidency.

Prof. Mace briefly outlined the events leading up to and following the election of Lincoln. He spoke of the secession of South Carolina and the beginning of the Civil War, where the lectures closed

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN A SHOE STORE.

Started at 8 o'Clock in the Evening.

HEAVY LOSS BY WATER.

GROCERY OF J. A. SMITH & BROTHER WAS FLOODED.

The Smoke and Heat Prevented Location of the Fire at First—Smith's Store was Threatened—Firemen Gained Control After Two Hours Fighting—Were Nearly Frozen—Loss About $20,000

A disastrous fire occurred in the Pruden building, 119-125 West Front street, last evening. It started in the rear of the basement to Abram Schloss' shoe store, No. 119. That store was gutted and the grocery of J. A. Smith & Brother suffered greatly from the smoke and water. The losses on property and contents will reach $20,000 nearly, all of which is covered by insurance.

Abram Schloss and the young woman he employs as clerk left the store last evening at 7:15 o'clock. Mr. Schloss says that he left one gas light burning in the back part of the store and fire in the stove near the centre of the room.

Shortly before 8 o'clock, the attention of Patrolman Meyers was called to smoke issuing from the upper windows of the Pruden building. He sent in an alarm from box 12, corner Front and Somerset streets, at 7:59.

The Alert and No. 2 hose wagons, drawn by two horses each, responded to the first alarm. Then Chief Doane sent back after the truck. The team was drawn by the regular horses with the grey team from the chemical engine as leaders.

Three minutes after the first alarm, Chief Doane instructed Driver Feiring to send in a second alarm. The Gazelle hose wagon was stuck in the drifts three times going to the fire and had to be rescued by the passerby. The steamer also responded but was not used.

The black smoke rolled out of the upper windows in great clouds but no flames could be seen. Owing to the smoke, the firemen were unable to locate the fire but supposed it to be on the second floor where most of the smoke was. Eight lines of hose were laid in, four on each side. Assistant Chief Jennings was in command at the rear. Chief Doane and Assistant Chief Murray were in front.

The fire evidently started in the basement under the rear of Schloss' store. The building is a four-story brick structure, with a frame addition in the rear of Schloss' place. The flames made their way into the first rooms of the addition and up into the store. The fire followed a series of closets between the two stores and reached the second story. It was stopped before anything but the closet on the second floor was burned. The thin partition next to Smith's grocery caught and the latter store had to be flooded. The flames also made their way into Smith's basement.

After two hours of hard fighting the flames were gotten under control. As soon as the firemen were able to locate the heart of the fire they flooded it.

The principal loss by fire was in Schloss' store, the back part of which was completely gutted and the rest badly burned. Part of the floor collapsed.

George W. Bilyeu, painter, lived on the second floor over Schloss. His loss, principally by water and smoke, will reach $1,000. He had no insurance. On the third floor, John P. Sutton, driver, lived. His loss will be $25. No insurance.

George Smith, a foreman at the Potter Press Works, occupied the third floor over Smith's store. His loss by water and smoke will be $10. No insurance. On the second floor there were a suite of clubrooms which were damaged to the extent of $40. No insurance.

Chief Fairchild and several men of the North Plainfield Fire Department gave valuable assistance during the fire. While Chief Fairchilds was carrying a settee out of the burning store, a man fell against him and slipping on the ice he was thrown on the sidewalk, cutting his forehead. George Mehl, of the Zephyr Truck Company, had his hand badly cut with an axe.

The origin of the fire is a mystery that no one has yet been able to solve. The firemen believe that it had been burning an hour before they were

PECULIAR POISONS.

GENARATED IN THE HUMAN BODY.

The Result of Imperfect Digestion of Food.

Every living thing, plant or animal, contains within itself the germs of certain decay and death.

In the human body these germs of death (called by scientists Ptomaines), are usually the result of imperfect digestion of food; the result of indigestion or dyspepsia.

The stomach, from abuse, weakens, does not promptly and thoroughly digest the food. The result is a heavy, sodden mass which ferments (the first process of decay) poisoning the blood, making it thin, weak and lacking in red corpuscles; poisoning the brain causing headaches, pains in the eyes.

Bad digestion weakens the heart, causing palpitation and finally bringing on disease of this very important organ.

And this is so because every organ, every nerve depends upon the stomach alone for nourishment and renewal; and weak digestion shows itself not only in loss of appetite and flesh, but in weak nerves and muddy complexion.

The great English scientist, Huxley, said the best start in life is a sound stomach. Weak stomachs fail to digest food properly, because they lack the proper quantity of digestive acids (lactic and hydrochloric) and peptogenic products; the most sensible remedies in all cases of indigestion, is to take after each meal one or two of Stuarts Dyspepsia Tablets, because they supply in a pleasant, harmless form all the elements that weak stomachs lack.

They increase flesh, insure pure blood, strong nerves, bright eye and clear complexion, because all these result only from wholesome food well digested.

Nearly all druggists sell Stuarts Dyspepsia Tablets at 50 cents full-sized package or by mail by enclosing price to Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., but ask your druggist first. A little book on stomach diseases mailed free. Address Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

THE BAD BEEF INQUIRY

Army Board's Findings Against Miles Likely to be Used.

COMMISSION MEETS TO-DAY

The Report of the Army Investigating Commission Seems to Reflect Rather Seriously on Gen. Miles and His Charges—The General Failed to Make a Case and There Was a Volume of Evidence Against Him.

Washington, Feb. 15.—From the report of the War Investigation Commission, a synopsis of which was given in this paper last week, it looks as if Secretary of War Alger will receive much satisfaction in the finding of the special commission appointed to investigate General Miles' charges regarding embalmed beef furnished the army by Chicago packers. From the language employed by the present commission in the report, it would appear that the allegations of Miles were baseless. The following is that portion relating to the charges:

"On the 21st day of December last Major General Nelson A. Miles, upon the written request of the president of this Commission, appeared before it. He refused to be sworn as all other witnesses had been except one, who affirmed, stating that he would make his statements without being sworn and was responsible for what he said.

"He proceeded, and for the first time in the history of this investigation the allegation was made that refrigerated beef issued to the troops had been chemically treated.

"In the statement, revised by himself General Miles said:

"'There was sent to Porto Rico 337 tons of what is known as so-called refrigerated beef, which you might call embalmed beef.'"

"He proceeded to read a communication from Dr. W. H. Daly, Major and Chief Surgeon, United States volunteers, on his staff, bearing date of September 21, 1898, wherein Mr. Daly stated that 'in the several inspections I made in the various camps and troopships at Tampa, Jacksonville, Chickamauga and Porto Rico I found the fresh beef to be apparently preserved with secret chemicals, which destroy its natural flavor and which I also believe to be detrimental to the health of the troops.'

Miles Was Lax.

"Although Dr. Daly swears that he informed General Miles about the first of August, 1898, that he suspected that the refrigerated beef was chemically treated, it does not appear that the General informed you or the War Department that an officer of his staff had made this discovery, nor does it appear that he at any time ordered any of the officers under his command to probe to the bottom an allegation which, if true, concerned the health of 275,000 soldiers of the United States. It appears from the report of Dr. Daly, which he handed to General Miles Oct. 21 last, that he then specifically stated that the refrigerated beef furnished to the troops was 'apparently chemically treated.' It does not appear that when this charge was made Oct. 21, it having been already made to him in August, 1898, that General Miles communicated to you or the Secretary of War, or to the Commissary General, the belief or suspicion entertained by him that refrigerated meat dangerous to health was issued every day to the troops, in failure to do which there was dereliction of duty.

"It is true that on Sept. 20 he had directed that an order should be issued asking for reports relative to meats issued, but the order specifically mentions 'canned fresh roast beef,' and nothing else, and it was the reports received in answer to this that were presented in abstract by the General at the time of his appearance before the commission and since.

"In his report Dr. Daly does not make the all-important statement that he had already chemically analyzed any meat, although he suggests that such analysis should be made. He does state that an several inspections made by him at Tampa, Jacksonville, Chickamauga and Porto Rico he found the fresh beef to be apparently preserved injection of chemicals.'

"He says that at Ponce the beef he examined 'was also of he same character, being apparently preserved by injectiin of chemicals.'

Hard on Daly.

"For months, as it appears, Dr. Daly concealed the knowledge of the commission of a crime affecting men under his charge, whom, as an officer and a physician he was bound to protect." The report then, after quoting from the regulations of the Agricultural Department prescribing the manner in which inspections are made (and no packing house in the country is allowed to do business without governmental inspection), after detailing the processes pursued by our officials, and showing the practical impossibility of putting impure meat upon the market, goes on to say:

"The commission has not confined itself to merely verbal or written proof. Immediately upon hearing the testimony of Dr. Daly on the 20th of January, telegrams were sent to all issuing commissaries in Cuba, Porto Rico and at the various home camps occupied by the troops, asking that samples of refrigerated beef be at once taken, placed in glass jars, securely sealed and forwarded to the commission.

"In response to this request many samples have been received and later sent to chemists of the Agricultural and Interior departments for chemical examination. The result of the analysis has been reported to us in twenty-nine cases.

"In no specimens examined have either boric or salicylic acid or other deleterious chemicals been found. In view of the facts above set forth the Commission is of the opinion that no refrigerated beef furnished by contractors and issued to the troops during the war with Spain was subjected to or treated with any chemicals by the contractors or those in their employ.

"In considering questions concerning canned meats it is not the duty of the Commission to inquire into the character, kind or condition of all the canned meats that may be used in this country. Our specific duty is to give an opinion as to the quality of those furnished the soldiers during the recent war with Spain. There has been neither allegation nor proof before us that boric or salicylic or any other acid has been used in the canned meats furnished to the troops; but such meats have been analyzed under our direction, and we have taken a great deal of testimony as to the mode of their preparation. The canned meat is ordinarily taken from he forequarters of beeves.

"The commissioner's report shows that a number of officers testified that the canned beef was unpalatable. It is also elicited that in a tropical country, where it is subjected to intense heat, the meat presents a repulsive appearance at first. Furthermore it transpires that occasionally an inferior article is found. But the records of the army prove that canned beef has been used for many years."

SECRETARY GAGE ON FINANCE.

Reform Not Dead and He Has Hopes of Action by the Next Congress.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Secretary of the Treasury Gage and Mrs. Gage were in Chicago to attend the funral of Dr. J. H. Etheridge. Before leaving for Washington to-day Mr. Gage said:

"Financial reform is neither dead nor asleep. The extraordinary prosperity of the government finances, and of the business of the country, has combined with the glut of important business in Congress to delay it. But the delay only adds to the sense of its importance, and makes it clearer every day what legislation is needed.

"I don't look for action at the present session of Congress, but I have no doubt that the next session will give effect to the recommendations of the President and the Secretary of the Treasury in regard to the retiremnt of the greenback. Will there be an extra session of Congress? That depends on the fate of the army bill. If Congress does not pass that bill at the present session there will certainly be an extra session.

"The situation in the Philippines does not give us any uneasiness. The opposition to the American occupation is entirely the effect of manipulation. The leaders have temporarily misled the people. But the strife will soon be over, and as soon as the natives have become quiet, so as to listen to reason, we have no fear that they will not acquiesce in all that we propose to do there. As to the islands being a heavy tax on this country, that is all moonshine. The revenues of the Philippines will at all times be ample to defray all possible expenses of government.

"I now feel more hopeful in regard to Cuba. Industries are reviving, there is a growing spirit of co-operation, and the island will in the near future be more prosperous than its people ever expected it could be.

"Our trade relations with Canada seem to be difficult to adjust to the satisfaction of both countries. Mr. Charlton would sweep away the national frontier, and make business intercourse as untrameled between the two countries as it is now between two of our states. But I think the day is a good way off when such reciprocity as that will be regarded with favor in this country."

TO HONOR MAINE'S DEAD

Programme of the Ceremonies in Havana To-day.

Havana, Feb. 15.—The ceremonies attending the anniversary of the destruction of the battleship Maine, while not as gorgeous as first planned, will be rather augmented in stability and character by the simple, yet impressive services that are to be held over the maytrys' graves in the Cristobal Colon Cemetery this afternoon. The refusal of a Roman Catholic bishop, made last March, to permit a Protestant clergyman to say prayers at the cemetery and repeated last week, when a similar request was made, upset a great portion of the original plans.

Independent of this drawback, which is not likely to be satisfactorily corrected, the arrangements for the day are perfect in every way. Early as possible marines will be landed from the flagship Resolute, the battleship Texas and gunboat Nashville. With them will come a naval band. After decorations have been placed on the wreck of the battleship Maine, lying in the harbor near Regia, the marines and naval band will proceed to the Prado, where they will be met by regulars and the members of several Cuban societies, which, with their bands, will proceed to the cemetery. The latter is situated on a hill three miles outside the city in the direction of Vedado. Governor Brooke, General Ludlow, General Lee, Commodore Cromwell, Captain Sigsbee and other distinguished army and naval officers, with the members of the civic committee who have had charge of the preparations, will follow the marines and troops in carriages to the Cristobal Colon cemetery.

Chicago Tractions Consolidated.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—A consolidation of all the outlying street car companies connected with the Yerkes system in Chicago has been quietly formed and articles of incorporation of the Chicago Consolidation Traction Company, with a capital stock of $15,000,000, filed at Springfield. The nominal incorporators include Clarence Knight and Paul Brown, of the law firm of Knight and Brown, who do much of the legal work for Charles T. Yerkes. It is said the consolidation was simply in the interests of economy and better public service.

To Abolish Palo Alto Farm.

San Francisco, Feb. 15.—It is announced that the thoroughbred department of the great Stanford stock farm at Palo Alto is soon to be abolished. Its abolition means the passing of one of the most famous stables in the world, that will become only a memory of the one-time supremacy of California as a producer of kings and queens of the turf—of racers that have won princely fortunes in sensational events. The thoroughbred department of the Palo Alto stock farm as it stands to-day—lands, buildings and stock—represents close to a million dollars. It was established in 1880.

An Important Suit Settled.

Pittsburg, Feb. 15.—The long-pending suit against John Duss, a trustee of the famous Society of Economies, brought by heirs of former members to secure the disolution of the society and in accounting and distribution of the funds, was decided in favor of Trustee Duss by Judge M. W. Acheson, of the United States Circuit Court. The suit involved many millions of dollars.

THE STORM GOES TO SEA.

It Left the United States Direct For Nova Scotia.

New York, Feb. 15.—The storm of wind and snow passed out to sea early yesterday, and its departure was marked by a rise in temperature from 8 degrees at midnight to 16 degrees at sunrise. A bright sky and a marked decrease in wind velocity sent the temperature to 20 degrees at 10 o'clock, and there was a general opening up of travel. The official weather report shows that New York City was kindly treated by the big storm. Washington was snow-bound and wind-blown in much worse fashion than this big city. At Jacksonville they can boast of weather that was only 10 degrees above zero, and at New Orleans 6 above.

Vicksburg is proud of a record of 1 degree below and a high rate of wind. The story of Chicago and other Western cities shows that the blizzard swept its way clear over the entire country. A rising temperature and a promise from the Weather Bureau that it will continue, will bring normal conditions in all the big cities within a few days, and permit the moving of freight and rapid transit for passengers.

The Weather Bureau has officially dismissed the storm, has now placed it in Nova Scotia and promises warmer weather. Forecaster Emery says:

"The weather will continue appreciably warmer. The Atlantic coast storm has advanced to Nova Scotia, accompanied by high winds, winds of hurricane force, and heavy snow. The weather is clear in New York State and New England, and in the rest of the Coast States.

"The snow area extended from South Carolina to New England. During the past twenty-four hours Washington reports 7½ inches of snow, Philadelphia 7 and Baltimore 6. Boston has 7½ and Portland 18 inches. Albany got 13 inches. There has been a rise of 8 to 12 degrees in New England and 6 to 14 degrees in New York. In the West it has gone up 10 to 25 degrees. The coldest place in the country is Knoxville, Tenn., where it is —6!

"The South is getting a cold wave that it never before experienced. Freezing temperatures are recorded south of Tampa, where it was 24 degrees to-day. On the other hand Helena, Mont., now has 36 and Chicago 8 above. The cold in the South covers South Carolina, the Tennessee Valley, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana and northern and central Florida and Georgia. The wind reached 60 miles an hour here at two o'clock Tuesday morning. It was forty-two miles at Atlantic City, seventy-two at Woodsholl and 68 at Eastport, Me.

Ocean Liners Fought Gales Constantly

New York, Feb. 15.—The changing tide and the driving wind opened the upper bay toward noon yesterday and made it easier for the ocean liners coming into port to get to North river. There trouble began all over, for the ice was jammed into the slips on the Manhattan side as though some giant had taken a mammoth maul and hammered it between piers.

Docking was a matter of delay that wore upon the spirits of the passengers, who were already nervous and irritable because of the prolonged voyage through such trying weather. They fretted and chafed and seethed with satisfaction when the boats were finally warped in.

Among the boats to come up were the Paris of the American line, Etruria of the Cunard line, Anchoria of the Anchor line, Algonquin of the Clyde line, and Macedonia of the Ward line.

Every captain had a tale of woe and bluster to tell. From the time the liners left the other side until they reached this shore, the ocean did nothing but rage and threaten the destruction of the ships that were upon its surface.

Three Adrift on Ice and Given Up.

Greenport, L. I., Feb. 15.—There much excitement in this and surrounding villages over the supposed drowning of Daniel Brown, Ed. Tuthill and Herman King.

The three are young men of from 17 to 21 years of age, and all belong in East Marion. Monday they were out duck hunting, and went far on the ice field in search of sport. Toward the close of the afternoon an immense ice floe on which the three were separated from the shore, and then split out from the surrounding pack and, propelled by wind and wave, drifted rapidly to sea.

The occurrence was witnessed by a number of baymen, but with the wind blowing a gale of fifty miles an hour, the tide running strongly out, the day waning, and an ice-jam fringing the shore, it was deemed unsafe to venture on an attempt at rescue.

From the time darkness set in until far into the night cries for help were heard from the direction in which the last glimpse of the peopled floe had been seen.

Many Cattle Tests in New York.

Albany, Feb. 15.—Tuberculosis forms an important chapter of the annual report of the State Board of Health which was submittd to the legislature to-day.

Since January, 1898, the committee have reported the examination and tuberculin tests of 1874 cattle, of which 192 have been condemned and sixty-four destroyed. The rest were ordered quarantined.

In sixteen herds examined in which one or more animals were known to be badly diseased, over 40 per cent were found affected. In seventeen herds examined for the Syracuse Milk Supply and where no disease was apparent by physical inspection, 4 per cent were diseased.

In connection with the subject of diphtheria, it is said a great decrease in mortality during the past three years is noted. Our records are 6,640 in 1896, 4,117 in 1897 and 2,612 in 1898.

There were 121,000 deaths reported during the year, making a death rate of 18.30 per 1,000 of the reported population. In 1897 the death rate was 18.00 and in 1896 18.50.

Vice Gen. Finnen Dead.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 15.—The Very Rev. John Finnen, pastor of St. John's Catholic Church, Pittston, and vicar general of the Scranton diocese, died yesterday of diabetes. He was seventy-one years old.

A gentleman living at Rome, N. Y., relates that he had recently noticed that the wife of one of the local merchants, who had long been in poor health, seemed to have recovered entirely. On speaking of it to her husband he learned that she attributed her improved condition to Ripans Tabules. The lady's own account of the matter was as follows: "I had suffered for years from indigestion, sour stomach, heartburn and distress in my stomach after eating. For a long time I had been interested in the advertisements of Ripans Tabules. They seemed honest and I grew to believe them. I procured a supply and began by taking one Tabule after my breakfast and supper and experienced immediate relief, and in a few days the distressing symptoms had entirely disappeared. Now when I eat anything that usually disagrees with me I take one Tabule and avoid unpleasant consequences. I have also found in them a very agreeable relief for constipation."

A new style packet containing THE RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (72 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (SIX TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

CONTINUOUS VICTORIES

The Downfall of Iloilo Weakens The Rebellion.

THE DEPARTMENT'S IDEA.

The Rebels Set Fire to Iloilo Before They Left It—Flames Extinguished by Our Sailors Swiss Consul's Residence Burned—None an American Hurt.

Manila, Feb. 15.—Particulars of the capture of Iloilo by the United States forces under Brigadier General Miller, have been received here.

On the morning of Friday, February 10, General Miller sent an ultimatum to the commander of the rebels on the shore, notifying him that it was his intention to take Iloilo by force if necessary. Non-combatants were warned to leave the town within twenty-four hours. The rebels were also warned that they must make no further belligerent preparations.

The gunboat Petrel was then moved to a position close inshore and near the rebel fort, while the cruiser Boston took up her station at the other end of the town.

Friday passed quietly. During the day many refugees left the town of Iloilo, the majority of whom were taken on board foreign ships lying in the harbor.

Searchlights from the United States warships illuminated the town and its defenses all night. The rebels, so far as the lookouts on the ships could discover, remained quiescent throughout the night.

At 8 o'clock on the morning of Saturday, February 11, the gunboat Petrel signalled to the cruiser Boston that the rebels were working in their trenches. In return the Petrel was ordered to fire warning shots on the town from her three-pounders. That was done, and the rebels replied with a harmless fusillade. The Boston and the Petrel then bombarded the rebels' trenches, which were cleared of their occupants in a short space of time.

Soon after the bombardment had been begun flames broke out simultaneously in various parts of the town. Thereupon, forty-eight marines, acting as infantry and artillery, were landed from the cruiser Boston, and a company was sent ashore from the gunboat Petrel. Those detachments marched into the town of Iloilo, and hoisting the Stars and Stripes over the fort, took possession of the place in the name of the United States.

The capture of the town and its defences having been accomplished, the marines and soldiers who had been sent ashore, proceeded to the task of saving the American, English and German consulates from destruction by the fire which was raging among the frail and inflammable buildings of the town. The Swiss consul's residence, which was in the same row as the consulates named, was burned. The entire Chinese and native sections of the town were destroyed, but foreign mercantile property escaped with slight damage.

There was some desultory firing by the enemy on the outskirts of Iloilo, but not a single American was injured.

Cable from Dewey.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—The navy department has received the following cablegram:

Secretary Navy, Washington:

Petrel just arrived from Iloilo. That place taken by our force Saturday and now occupied. No prisoners. No casualties on our side. Insurgent loss not known, but believed to be slight. They attempted to burn town, but foreign property generally saved by our force.

DEWEY.

Skirmish Near Manila.

Manila, Feb. 15.—The insurgents at Pateros, ten miles southeast of Manila, surrendered on Wednesday, but the place was not occupied by our troops. Since their surrender the Filipinos have flown flags of truce indicating their submission, but yesterday afternoon they opened fire upon some detached troops of the First California Infantry stationed nearly north of the town. The Californians replied with a hot fire, driving the rebels out of the town.

They moved to the south, where they made a stand, and an engagement followed, continuing until dark. The Californians in the meantime were re-enforced by companies from the First Washington and First Idaho Infantry, and the Utah Light Artillery. The former Spanish river gunboat, Laguna de Bay, is now on her way to shell the enemy's rear.

It is supposed that the insurgents who evacuated the town upon its surrender have been secretly gathering at Pateros under cover of flags of truce for several days with the object of making the attack which they made yesterday afternoon.

Filipinos Want Peace.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 15.—General Riego de Dios and M. Rivera, the Filipinos who arrived last week from Manila, intending to join their associates in Washington, have decided to leave for Montreal.

M. Rivera expresses himself astounded at the kind treatment he received here. The envoys will endeavor to persuade Agoncillo to return to Washington and join with his associates in pleading for an honorable peace.

London Hears from Iloilo.

London, Feb. 15.—A dispatch received at Lloyd's from Manila reports that there was serious fighting at Iloilo on Saturday, February 11, and that much property was destroyed.

The insurgents were driven out of the town. The correspondent expresses the opinion that there is not likely to be any further trouble. Foreign property, the dispatch says, is safe.

To Make Dewey Admiral.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The Senate passed the bill reviving the grade of Admiral of the Navy. The text of the bill is as follows: "The President is hereby authorized to appoint, by selection and promotion, an Admiral of the Navy, who shall not be placed upon the retired list except upon his own application; and whenever such office shall be vacated by death or otherwise, the office shall cease to exist."

THE FILIPINO CAUSE LOST.

Washington, Feb. 15.—It is believed at the War Department that the capture of Iloilo put an end, practically, to the outbreak in the Philippines for the rebels now have no base of any consequence either in Luzon or on the Island of Panay, and the insurrection is confined to bands which, while of considerable size, are not in a position to do any great damage to American forces or to make any stand against them. The capture of Aguinaldo is the only important work remaining for Gen. Otis to do, and department officers believe that news will be received soon that it has been accomplished.

Aguinaldo is at a little place about five miles north of Calooclan. The latest advices were to the effect that he was surrounded and that his escape into the interior was not possible. He has a force with him, but nobody seems to know how large it is. With his capture, the insurgents will disperse, and the administration hopes that after that it will be possible to convince the inhabitants of the islands, who can be readily reached, that the American purpose is beneficent.

The most difficult work which has come before the administration is that of disabusing the minds of the Filipinos of the impression which has been conveyed by the intemperate utterances of opponents of the treaty of peace in the United States Senate and elsewhere. It was said at the State Department that those utterances had gone far to embarrass President McKinley.

It has been assumed by Senator Hoar and his Democratic associates that the only control contemplated by the United States was a control by force of arms, and that our dominion of the Philippines was to be little better than that of Spain, which it succeeds. At least, that is the impression which has been conveyed by their speeches to minds unacquainted with Americans.

The Filipinos appear to desire some form of self-government, but their idea of self-government is different from that of Senator Hoar.

It is said at the State Department that there is little likelihood of the United States attempting to interfere with the customs or the comforts of any Filipino tribe, and that to all intents and purposes the natives of the islands will be free, save so far as is necessary for their own protection at the hands of the United States.

ANTHRACITE COAL DEAL.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 15.—The move which is on foot for combining under one head the most prominent individual coal operators of Lackawanna and Luzerne counties has already been joined by the following collieries: Forty Fort Coal Company, capital $200,000; Babylon Coal Company, capital $150,000; Egerton Coal Company, capital $200,000; Mt. Lookout Coal Company, capital $120,000; Northwest Coal Company, capital, $100,000; Sterreck Creek Coal Company, capital $100,000; Summit Coal Company, capital $150,000.

These companies will form the nucleus of the combine, and others will be added as soon as the arrangements are completed.

C. P. O'Malley of Willard, Warren & Knapp, attorneys for Simon & Watkins, who are engineering the move, is now in this city looking up the titles of properties that the syndicate has its eye on.

There is a rumor that the Morgan syndicate is behind the new movement, but the men interested deny this positively. Thomas H. Watkins of Simpson & Watkins, when asked about the movement, said he was not yet prepared to talk, but soon would be in a position to make all the facts known. The object of the combination is to inaugurate more direct and decisive competition against the coal carrying roads which now control the coal output.

Breaking World's Records.

San Francisco, Feb. 15.—After riding all night in the six-day bicycle race, maintaining his lead during all the early hours of the contest, Tom Barnaby was compelled to dismount and change wheels, losing his lead and allowing Miller, Stevens, Gimm, Waller, Pierce and Nawn to gain three laps and Lawson two laps over him. Chapman, who had paired with Barnaby, sustained a severe fall, and his managers decided to let him have a short nap. World's records continued to fall during the night and the early morning hours. At the ninth hour Miller led—one mile and three-quarters ahead of his own record, with Aronson, Pierce, Waller, Gimm, Stevens, Frederick and Nawn tied. In the next hour Frederick and Aronson dismounted, and at the tenth hour Miller, Stevens, Gimm, Waller, Pierce and Nawn went over the tape in the order named, with 202 miles, 550 yards to their credit, lowering Miller's New York record of 201 miles, 30 yards, made in 1897.

Fatal Fire in Chicago.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Frozen water plugs prevented the fire department getting a stream on the flames that started in the seven-story brick warehouse at Nos. 10 to 24 West Water street and resulted in $250,000 damage.

Owing to the heroic efforts of Eddie Lowe, an office boy, several people were saved from being burned to death. The lad spread the alarm from floor to floor and not until he thought that every one had made good his escape did he leave the structure.

A Powder Explosion Kills One.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 15.—One man was killed and five seriously injured in a powder explosion at the powder works near Moss Grove. The name of the man killed is not known.

All will recover except Juan Ferrio, whose injuries are fatal.

Well Known Clergyman Dead.

The McEnery Resolution Passes The Senate, 26 to 22.

SENATOR HOAR VOTES "NO"

Senator Stewart Says We Should Hold the Philippines and Render the United States Independent in Securing Tropical Products and Save $250,000,000.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—In accordance with agreement the Senate met at 11 o'clock a. m. yesterday. There were only nine senators present, and the absence of the chaplain made it necessary to proceed without formal prayer. By the time the reading of the journal had been concluded the original number present had been doubled, and Mr. Stewart took the floor to make a speech in opposition to the McEnery resolution declaratory of the policy of this country toward the inhabitants of the Philippines.

The resolution introduced by Senator McEnery on Monday, February 6, the day on which the peace treaty was ratified, declares that "by the ratification of the peace treaty it is not intended to incorporate the inhabitants of the Philippine Islands into United States citizenship, nor to annex permanently the islands as part of the territory of the United States, but to establish a government suitable to the wants and conditions of the inhabitants to prepare them for local self-government, and in due time to make such disposition of the islands as will best promote the interests of the United States and of the inhabitants."

He expressed the opinion that whatever the United States might do it would not follow the policy indicated by the resolution. This country was under no obligation to go to the expense of establishing a government for the islands; the United States was not in the business of capturing countries, educating their people and then selling them.

On the contrary, he thought we should hold the Philippines, and thus render the United States independent of other countries in the production of tropical products, which must otherwise be a source of great expense. Now it costs $250,000,000 to secure these products, and why should we not hold those islands and produce our own fruits and sugars?

Mr. Lindsay said the time was inauspicious to adopt resolutions bearing upon the subject of the government of the Philippines, but said if any expression was to be given it should be unmistakable in terms.

Mr. Lindsay offered a substitute reciting that the acquisition of territory carried with it no constitutional obligation to admit it to the Union as states. Mr. Lindsay gave notice that he would ask the Senate to vote upon his resolution as soon as the Senate had acted on the McEnery resolution.

Mr. Bacon spoke in opposition to the McEnery resolution.

Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts was opposed to the McEnery resolution. It was, he held, an infamous declaration—a declaration simply that the Louisiana sugar planters should never be afraid of the competition of the Philippine islands. Mr. Hoar made a defense of Aguinaldo.

"I do not see," said Mr. Hoar, with feeling, "how any American heart, not of tone, could fail to recognize the force of his appeal."

Mr. Mason said that he voted for the treaty with the understanding that there should be no further war in the Philippines.

The Senate passed the McEnery resolution 26 to 22.

President's Trip.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—It was said at the White House that the storm probably would not interfere with the president's trip to Boston as guest of the Home Market Club, at its banquet next Thursday.

The president and party will leave here this evening if the trains are running. Secretary Gage, who is in Chicago, has been asked by the president to meet the party in Boston without first coming to Washington.

Relief of Washington's Poor.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—The price of the necessities of life has risen greatly and much suffering is reported among the poor in this city. The charitable organizations are doing all they can.

The president sent a check for $100 to one of the relief organizations; the British members of the high joint commission contributed liberally, and the husband of Julia Arthur, the actress, who is playing here, sent a check for $1,000 for relief of the poor.

Poisoned Uncle in Plot to Kill.

Uniontown, Pa., Feb. 15.—Karl Norcross, a prominent young man of this place, was arrested last night on a charge of hiring men to poison his little brother, Allen, 10 years old, who lives with his uncle, Mr. Jarrett, at West Newton.

Norcross last night took poison in his cell and was discovered unconscious by the guard. Physicians despair of saving him.

The motive for the alleged attempt at murder is said to be Norcross's desire to get possession of his brother's estate, which amounts to about $12,000.

The arrest of Norcross was made on the confessions of John Devlin and Sylvester Hetterman, who say they were hired to poison the boy. Devlin and Norcross went to West Newton last November with poisoned candy, which Devlin had been hired to deliver to the boy, but backed out after Norcross left him.

National Monument to Lincoln.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—The Lincoln Club of Chicago has adopted resolutions favoring the organization of a National Lincoln Memorial Association, and a committee, which includes Senator Mason and Congressman Lorimer has been appointed to secure funds.

The resolutions call attention to the condition of the Lincoln monument at Springfield, Ill., and say "it is a disgrace to this nation that the great war president has no recognition in a national monument to his memory."

Is Consumption Disappearing From the World?

An authoritative statement is made by a British medical journal that science within 50 years has made such an advance in the prevention and cure of pulmonary consumption that it is not at all chimerical to hope that the disease will be ultimately stamped out. This is a remarkable announcement, but the writer of it, evidently an expert, offers ample statistics in corroboration of his views and shows that the death rate is steadily declining under higher and more rational conditions of living and more intelligent methods of treatment. He gives, however, altogether more importance to the preventive and modifying influences than he does to the specific professional attempts at cure and points out that the important factors in the progress that is being made are (1) the greater enjoyment of pure air and outdoor exercise, (2) the improvement in ventilation and the laws against overcrowding, (3) the rigid inspection of beef and milk, (4) the relaxation in the intellectual strain put upon children, (5) the improved facilities of travel, by means of which persons of weak lungs can escape from a trying climate, and finally (6) the enormous gain that has been made in the growth of a stronger mental resisting power in the patient, who no longer looks upon himself as necessarily doomed because he has the consumptive diathesis.

To all this must be added the vast knowledge which science has gained of the genesis of the disease and its propagation, the valuable bacteriological discoveries and the application of entirely new remedial agencies. Altogether this medical expert would have us believe that the final extinction of tuberculosis, which has so long ravaged the human race, is not at all a speculative dream, but may confidently be expected as an assured fact of the future toward which we are slowly approaching.

What it Costs to Run a Newspaper.

The optimists who think that it is the easiest thing in the world to run a newspaper and live like bloated bondholders should ponder on the cost of running a great newspaper in New York, the various expenditures figuring up to about $2,000,000 a year.

There is spent for editorial and literary matter $220,000, for local news $290,000; illustrations, $18,000; correspondents, $125,000; telegraph, $65,000; cable, $27,000; mechanical department, $410,000; paper $617,000; business office, in rent, light, etc., $219,000, and 337,550 miles of paper are during an run.

Of course, it doesn't cost that much to run The Daily Press, but considering the revenues and the other details incident to publishing a newspaper in a small city the job of managing the finances is even more difficult than the figures quoted above indicate.

THE PHILADELPHIA AND REAR ADMIRAL KAUTZ.
The United States cruiser Philadelphia, ordered to Samoa because of the unsettled condition of affairs in that island, is armed with twelve 6-inch guns and seventeen guns of smaller calibre. She has a speed of 19 knots. Her complement is 326 men, including officers. Rear Admiral Kautz, commander of the Pacific station, sails on the Philadelphia.

The Rahway Reformatory seems to be a white elephant on the hands of the Republican administration, says a Trenton correspondent. The legislative appropriation committee paid a visit to that place last Thursday to see what had been done and to speculate as to future action. About $200,000 has already been expended on the work, and it is estimated that a million dollars will be required to complete it. Nothing has been done on the building for two or three years. There is much discussion going on over the surplus in the State Treasury and its future accumulation, and many schemes are proposed to get rid of it. About the easiest way to solve the difficulty, it seems, would be to use the money on the Reformatory. Then it could be expended pretty fast.

Speaking of civil service, it may not be generally known that Russia has established a college at Vladivostok for the training of consular agents. In some respects Russia must astonish her own conservatives. But, on the other hand, Russia is not exempt from the political corruption which, both in China and the United States, has so often excited the Muscovite contempt. A recent governmental investigation brought to life a state of affairs in Siberia for which China would find it difficult to furnish a parallel. The government, having appropriated several millions to make reforms in the prison system of Siberia, now finds that her officials put the money into their own pocket. The steal amounts to 28,000,000 rubles. Had this occurred in China the government would have added the men's heads to the general loss.

The attempt to stir up public opposition to the bill making Summit a city of the third-class is not meeting with any great degree of popularity, the committee of ten, whose object to defeat the bill does not seem to have been able to gather enough opposition signatures to make a respectable showing to the legislative committee having the matter in charge.

That prop sition to form a new county out of sections of Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties has not been received with great enthusiasm in Trenton.—New York Tribune.

Won't some one please say a good word for the proposed new county, with Plainfield for the county seat?

The politicians of Plainfield are discussing the question of appealing for a new county, to be carved out of Union and Somerset counties. If any new county were possible, this section would furnish a far more desirable site by forming it from several townships in Essex and Morris counties and along the Passaic and Delaware Railroad, with Summit for a county seat.—Summit Record.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 15—Scotch Plains for thirty six hours was practically cut off from communication with the outside world by the blizzard of Sunday and Monday, which the older residents of the town say was more severe than the blizzard of 1888. The Town Committee made heroic attempts to keep the sidewalks open Monday morning by the use of the snowplow, but it was useless as the paths filled again immediately. Those who were not enjoying the day, because of it being a legal holiday, were obliged to remain at home by compulsion as business was practically at a standstill.

Miss Sadie Buger who has been visiting her parents at Succassanna, this State, has become snow bound and may be several days before she will be able to reach the villiage.

The new lights recently placed on Union avenue are in operation, and the residents in that part of town are enjoying the benefits of modern improvement.

Horace Hand, of Plainfield, has been spending a few days with his grandmother, Mrs. Jacob V. Coles.

Miss Lulu Robison has been entertaining friends from out of town.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Feb. 15—The annual election of officers of Westfield Hook and Ladder Company took place Monday night. The following officers were elected: E. R. Pearsall, foreman; E. W. Chamberlain, first assistant foreman; J. R. Patterson, second assistant foreman; E. J. Wilcox, secretary, and David E. Miller, treasurer. After the election supper was served at Ward's Hotel.

James McCarthy, of Westfield, and Miss Gussie Bowers, of Bayonne, were married at Cranford by Rev. Father Miller at 4 o'clock Monday. The best man was Timothy McCarthy, brother of groom, and the bridemaid was Nellie McCarthy, sister of groom. Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy will reside on Rahway avenue, this place.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Eyebrows and Eyelashes.

The eyebrows and eyelashes form a most attractive feature in a face, and should be taken care of. The ideal eyebrow is one that is slightly arched, and the hair of which is smooth and silky. Rather thick eyebrows are becoming to the eyes, but bushy eyebrows give a fierce expression to a face, whether of a man or woman.

Scanty and ill-formed eyebrows, which leave a red line visible over the eye, are a very great defect to the face. Vaseline applied at night will help to make them grow. Another method of promoting growth of the eyebrows is to apply a little petroleum to them every morning, after a washing in cold water. The eyebrows should not be rubbed or brushed the wrong way. It is a very bad habit, that of rubbing the brows, and is fatal to their beauty, for the hairs will not lie flat afterwards, but bristle up and look most unbecoming.

Scurf on the eyebrows should be treated as follows: Bathe every day with hot water and a little pure soap, and apply vaseline to the spot at night. On no account rub them when they are inclined to be scurfy.

Our heroines in novels are always depicted as having long, thick and curling eyelashes, which impart a softness to the eyes. It is quite true that such eyelashes do lend a certain beauty to the eye, but very few women possess such lashes. If we have short lashes we must bear with them, for it is a defect impossible to cure. Stroking the eyelashes in an upward direction is said to give them a tendency to curl up. Children's eyelashes may be very slightly clipped at the ends occasionally, and will grow longer in consequence; but a grown-up person should on no account tamper in this way with the lashes, as it only makes them grow coarse and stubbly. Even when cutting children's eyelashes the very greatest care should be exercised, and only the very tips should be clipped.

Dollmakers of Germany.

In the forests of Saxony, Germany, are thousands of thatched huts in which dwell the makers of the celebrated "French" dolls. Not many years ago a traveler riding through these noble forests might have seen drying in the sun before the queer houses, thousands upon thousands—whole acres of doll heads. That was in the day of "composition" heads, but now the doll heads are manufactured of bisque, in the factories in Dresden and other cities, whither the peasant doll-makers trudge each Saturday with big baskets piled full of beautiful new dolls, taking back to their pitifully poor homes the blank heads, wigs, kid for the bodies, hands and feet, and other parts to be used in the next week's work.

The father works daily in the forests and all the rest of the family engage heartily in the work of doll-making; the good wife tints the cheeks, paints the eyebrows, adjusts the wig and makes the tiny shoes. The boys fasten the jointed limbs together, stuff and cover the body, and get it ready for dressing, while little Gretchen makes the wee stockings and the prim muslin shirt in which the lady dolls cross the great ocean to the shops in the big cities of America.—Gentlewoman.

—A meeting will be held this week to organize a Scottish society in this city.

Mother Fastidious.

A French lady, learning the English language, had made very good progress, she thought, and one day accepted an invitation to dine with some English friends. As the dinner went on, she was offered a dish that was new to her. Not fancying its appearance, she declined it, saying:

"Thanks, no. I eat only acquaintances."

Highly Considerate.

"If it wasn't for me my class in school wouldn't have any standing at all," said Hubert.

"Nonsense!" said his aunt. "Your mother says you are the foot of it."

"I am," said Hubert. "How could it stand if it didn't have a foot?"—Harper's Round Table.

The Farmer's Correct Idea.

Tennyson used to tell a story of a farmer, who, after hearing a red-hot sermon of never-ending fire and brimstone, consoled his wife quite sincerely with the naive remark:

"Never mind, Sally; that must be wrong; no constitooshun could stand it."—Tid-Bits.

THE SHAWLS OF KASHMIR.

The Finest Kind Take Three Years to Manufacture.

The beautiful arts and manaufactures of Kashmir ought to be, and, in fact, are, a source of wealth. But this wealth does not for the most part fill the pockets of the artisans.

The delicate shawls that used to be so fashionable are made almost in the open air, and mostly by boys of twelve or thirteen. The looms are set up in rough wooden sheds, open on three sides, and the boys sit close together. In front of each boy are pinned his instructions on a dirty little scrap of paper. These are most laconic—"Three red, five white, one blue"—that is all. The looms might have come out of the Ark, so antiquated and clumsy are they. Everything is done by hand, and I could not discover a single contrivance for saving labor. A fortune awaits him who can introduce machinery into Kasmir.

The more elaborate patterns take an extraordinary time to make—three years is not thought too long for a good shawl, and one day's work is practically invisible. Another odd arrangement is that the best shawls are made in a great number of small pieces, and these are then so skillfully sewed together that the joins are imperceptible on the right side, though quite visible on the wrong. In some shawls the pattern is worked in on the loom, in others a plain piece of material is taken and embroidered by hand so lavishly that the material itself completely disappears.—Cornhill Magazine.

CUTENESS OF THE COYOTE.

"About 9 o'clock one night," says the Forest and Stream, "one of the coyotes came to the kitchen door and howled aggravatingly at a dog, which, thereupon set after the coyote full tilt." The coyote fled around the house, down to the corral and around the blacksmith shanty, the dog yelping after. Behind the shanty were other coyotes, six or seven of them, and all of them made for the dog in a way that made it feel lonely. The ranchman heard the fight and the dog's howls of pain; and grasping a rifle started that way on the run, yelling as he went. The coyotes, each took a farewell nip and fled, leaving a sore dog behind.

The coyote likes badger flesh very much, but one coyote is not equal to a badger in a fight; consequently the coyote, when it meets a badger has to resort to strategem till aid arrives. The manner in which it does this, according to the sportsman's paper, is interesting.

"A few weeks ago," the writer says, "as I was riding along I saw a coyote and a badger. The coyote seemed to be playing with the badger. He would prance around it, first as if to bite it, then run off a little way, the badger following, evidently very angry. The coyote's device was evidently to tease and so keep the badger interested till another coyote happened along, when the badger would have been killed."

The Average Life of a Wheel.

"What is the average 'life' of a wheel?" is a question often asked. The bicycle, although an extremely delicate piece of mechanism, will last for many years, even though its first owner may keep it only a season, if it receives but ordinary care. But long life for a wheel can only be assured by careful attention. The cyclist who wipes his or her bicycle on returning from every spin, and cleans it, or has it cleaned thoroughly, say once a month, and lubricates it properly at stated intervals, will find that the machine will not only last longer, but the rider will derive more benefit from its use and experience fewer mishaps than would be the case if the machine be left to take care of itself.

Grippe Cured.

"Last winter I had a bad cold and severe cough. I was lame in every joint and muscle. I was sick and felt as though I was coming down with typhoid fever. It was no doubt a bad case of grippe. Mr. E. P. Budge gave me a bottle of Brazilian Balm, saying he was sure it would help me. The relief was almost instantaneous. It quickly stopped my cough and took the grippe with all the pains and soreness out of my system. I gave the balance of the 50-cent bottle to Mrs. Bishop Wiley for her daughter. It proved so beneficial she says she never intends to be without it."—Edwin Fitz Jones, Cincinnati, Ohio.

AT THE PALACE.

Breaking the News to Alfonso, King of Spain.

"Say to her remarked Senor Sagasta, as he entered the royal palace at Madrid yesterday, "say to Her Majesty that I desire an audience."

"He's an actor," said the court jester, whose salary voucher was always indorsed "to wit," and who was doubling up as a footman in this emergency.

"I suppose it is all over," said the queen regent, as she wearily ascended the step-ladder leading to the throne and prepared to extract the crown and sceptre from their wash-leather cases.

"Don't worry about those things, your majesty," began Sagasta. "The treaty is signed and we are shy on colonies. The Philippines, Porto Rico and Cuba are all gone, not to speak of many other things. We are also shy on money."

"I know that, senor," said the queen regent, sarcastically. "Wasn't I refused credit at the bargain sale of mantillas at the Madrid department store to-day, and haven't I had to countermand the order I gave for Alfonso's spring trousers? I guess I know we're short of money. No more state dinners, senor, for if I can save enough to buy a cow I shall share Alfonso's frugal meal of bread and milk from now on. Tell me, senor, what has become of all our money?"

Sagasta led the queen regent to a palace window overlooking Madrid. Pointing to the many palaces in view, the premier said:

"That mansion belongs to the minister of marine; we were defeated on the sea. That superb residence is the property of the minister of war; we were defeated on land. The next edifice is the home of the head of our diplomatic corps, and we were defeated at Paris."

"Madre de Dios," exclaimed the queen regent. "Have they then been bribed?"

Senor Sagasta smiled a cold, wintry smile as he responded: "It is impossible. But we must break the news to the king. Where is he?"

"We shall see," and the queen regent impulsively pushed the messenger call.

"Buenos dias, mama; same to you, Sagasta," chirruped Alfonso, innocently, as he entered the throne room and tried to drive the "tees" of the tessellated floor with his golf sticks. "What's up, and why don't I get my supper?"

"Alfonso, ruler of Spain," began Sagasta, seeking and receiving an approving glance from the regent, "Spain has lost her colonies. Hereafter your kingdom is restricted. No longer do you rule over the Philippines, Porto Rico and—"

"Marrons," answered the king, speaking in French, and meaning "chesnuts." "Then I won't have to sign so many papers, and I will have all the time I want to ride my polo ponies. If I don't kick, you ought not to."

The queen regent and Senor Sagasta looked at each other as the king tumultuously disappeared.

"What luck!" said the queen regent.

"What luck!" said Senor Sagasta.

Satisfaction Through Grief.

The gray old mountaineer asked me down to take dinner with him. He lived in a well kept cabin with his daughter. After dinner we sat in the shade of a tree and he told me about himself. "Air you married?" he asked, after he had told me he was a widower. "No, but I hope to be some day," I answered, quite sincerely. "You ought to be; every man ought to be; a man that ain't ain't showin' a right feelin' to'rds what the Lord's done fer him; ther ain't nothin' on the face uv God's green earth that is a patchin' to a woman, I don't keer what kind she is." "You're hale and hearty yet," I said, "and I don't see why you don't take some of your own advice." "Don't crowd it, mister," he said, waving his hand as if warding off my attack. "I'm figgerin' on several this very minute, and I ain't quite shore yet which one to pick. I've been married four times, and every time my notions uv women has got so much higher that I'll be darned ef I don't kinder look forrerd to losin' a wife jist for the satisfaction uv gittin' another one."

Her Bet

Some one had told Alice's father that his little daughter sometimes said naughty words. So he took her on his lap to talk to her about it. "Who told 'oo I said naughty words?" she asked, her big brown eyes full of wonder. He was smitten to the heart and reproved himself for his credulity. "A little bird," he answered. Her face expressed great disgust. "I bet it was one of 'ose dam 'ittle sparrows!" she replied.

TEACHING BIRDS TO SING.

How Cobblers In Germany Train Canaries to Warble Sweetly.

Germany's fame in music extends even to the feathered tribe—those soft, pearly, mellow notes that you hear emanate from the throat of the German canary. All our best canaries come from that country, but they degenerate very rapidly over here, so that after a few generations they sing in that high, shrill, piercing voice with which we are all too familiar. That charming quality which seems to surprise you is the result of centuries of cultivation, and the story of how it is accomplished is really very interesting to one familiar with it.

The little town of Andresberg, in the Hartz mountains, is the great canary center of the world, and all of our best songsters are imported from that region. For generations the obscure cobblers thereabouts have inherited the business of raising canaries along with the trade of repairing boots and shoes, and they all have curious rude devices for training their little fledglings into the various notes for which they are distinguished. Every autumn a large fair is held, and premiums of considerable value given the man who can produce the best singers, or who has in any way achieved a new variety of note.

The stock notes are called the roller, water, flute, and bell. To effect the first, a large wooden wheel is kept constantly revolving in the vicinity of the birds by means of a pulley and weights, and against the surface a quill is made to press. This, as you may imagine, does not give rise to a very beautiful sound, but the birds' effort to imitate it produces a very pleasing note, indeed.

The water note is not unlike a trill. The birds are initiated into this by means of a tin pan nailed to a post firmly planted in the ground. Through a pipe from above water is made to drop, drop into the pan, and the vibrations thus caused, rendered into bird language, has quite a Patti-like effect.

To gain the flute note, though I do not see why they should not rather call it the violin, they rub together two bits of waxed end held taut by a sort of rude framework.

The bell note explains itself, and as the various cobblers have different bells, it naturally follows that this variety of note should vary with their respective birds. This is, indeed, the case, and the connoisseurs of that country can tell by which particular dealer a bird was raised by the quality of its bell note. These birds that you hear will doubtless always retain their beautiful voices and method. The next generation, removed from their parents' cultivated environment, will not sing so well, and in three or four generations the descendants will screech and whistle with the best American canary going.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

At the Inquest.

"You knew the deceased, I believe you said?" asked the coroner of the witness.

"Yes, sir. Our desks stood side by side for six years."

"Had you ever heard him intimate a wish to die or declare that life was insupportable?"

"No, sir."

"Can you suggest any reason for his suicide?"

"I can only suggest what may possibly prove to be the reason, sir."

"What is it?"

"When he came in yesterday morning he seemed very much depressed. I asked him the cause and he replied that on his way to the office he had seen a wheelman wearing a red waist coat and a pair of bright green golf stockings. He must have swallowed the poison within five minutes after that, sir."

"That is all. You may step down. Gentlemen of the jury, under the circumstances, the only verdict you can render is justifiable suicide."—Art in Dress.

Running an Express Engine.

The general public has no idea what the engine of an express train means. It is no exaggeration to say that, while the train is running, the engineer's whole soul is in his work, and that he has no time to think of anything else but his engine and the signals ahead.

An express train often travels at the rate of sixty miles an hour, and then signals will be passed every four minutes, and it can readily be understood that an engine travelling at that high rate of speed will require constant attention.

The strain on a man's mind, working an engine a long distace without stopping, is very great, and could not be endured for many hours together; besides, it would not be safe for an engine to travel more than 180 miles without being examined, and that distance is about the maximum any engine runs on one journey

The Best Dipliatory.

It was stated not long ago that the Roentgen rays had been taken up quite actively in the practice of dermatologists for the removal of skin blemishes. This employment of the rays has now been extended to the removal of hair from the human skin. The use of a current not exceeding two amperes at not more than 11-1-2 volts is necessary to avoid inflaming the flesh. The tube should be kept from 20 to 25 centimetres from the place operated on, and each operation should last about ten minutes. From seventeen to thirty operations usually suffice.—Exchange.

"The Irish Cyclist" says that an old farmer quietly watched a wheelman lose control of his mount and go over a wall, machine and all, and then remarked: "Well, well! And so they can make them leap now!"

AN INTERVENTURE.

It was a cruel thing that Harry Burton should have been called upon to fight a duel during the first six months of his residence at the University of Bonn. He was just an English public school boy, who might have made some show with the singlestick, but had no knowledge of the use of any deadly weapon. Least of all was he acquainted with the peculiar system of fence with which the German students slash and scar each other's faces.

The quarrel, too, was, as usual, about nothing in particular—the upshot of a foolish drunken row in a beer garden.

"What do you mean by staring at me you fellow?" said Karl Muller, who had had too much beer for breakfast.

"I didn't stare at you. You're not good looking enough to stare at," Harry Burton answered.

"Here is my card," said Karl Muller. "I take the liberty of calling you an ass."

"I don't want your card," said Harry Burton; and tore it into little pieces and flung it in the other's face.

Here was the quarrel, and Karl Muller had sent his seconds demanding an apology or reparation, and was walking about the University of Bonn boasting of his intention to disfigure the Englishman for life. For he knew that, whereas in Germany a scar got in a duel is almost as good as a patent of nobility, a slit nose is likely to prove a thorn in the flesh of an Englishman for ever.

"He won't fight," Karl Muller confidently asserted to his second. But the other was not so sure.

"He'll probably refuse the schlaper," he said, "but he'll probably offer to go out with pistols."

"If the young man preferred to be shot, we will oblige him."

Karl Muller was very deadly with the pistol, and Harry Burton's record at the shooting galleries was poor. So that it seemed likely that the young Englishman would find himself in a bad way, in any case.

"But he was a brave boy," said Gottfried enthusiastically, when telling me the story.

The confession pleased me. The tribute of a dueling nation to the courage of our peaceful countrymen is always grateful to the ear.

Then he was willing to go out with pistols?" I inquired.

"Certainly. He was willing, and even anxious. But that is not what made me say that he was brave. I said that because of the conditions that he made. At first I thought he was only playing—what do you say?—playing a game of——'

'A game of bluff," I interposed.

"Just so. I thought that at first. But when he found that Karl would not be——"

"Bluffed."

"He went on with the duel all the same."

"Tell me about it."

"Well, of course, as the quarrel was so foolish, I didn't want the duel to be too serious, and at the same time I didn't want it to be ridiculous. So I proposed one shot each at twenty paces. Then I thought if they liked to miss each other, nobody could say that it was done on purpose. That was a god idea, wasn't it?"

I nodded.

"Well, this young Englishman wouldn't hear of that. 'That isn't good enough for me,' he said. 'Your man is a good shot and I am a bad one. At twenty paces he might hit me, and I should certainly miss him. That isn't fair. So I offer you an alternative. I'm willing to fight at fifty paces, where we should both probably miss; or I'm willing to fight at four paces, when we should both have an equal chance of hitting."

"Quite so," I interposed. "That certainly sounds like what the Americans call a big game of bluff. What did you do?"

"What did I do? Well, I thought that it was now my turn to play this game of—"

"Bluff."

"Thank you. Yes, I thought it was my turn to play this game of bluff. So I told him that to fight at fifty paces was ridiculous. I said that Karl would not hear of it. If he did he would be the laughing-stock of Bonn. It must be four paces, then, if your countryman insisted. In this way I thought to frighten him, and so make him apologise.

"You failed, I take it."

"I failed entirely. He just said 'Very well' in your quiet English way, and never turned a hair, but he went out at four o'clock in the morning and stood up to Karl's pistol at four paces."

"And then?"

"Well, the end of it wasn't so serious, because the other second and I put our heads together, and loaded with blank cartridges. It was the only way, because the German law would have said that that was not duelling, but murder, and we should have got sent to prison. But your young countryman knew nothing about that, and when he started out that morning he never expected to come home alive. Oh! yes, he was a—what is the word?"

"A plucked 'un," I answered, and felt very proud of Harry Burton and the respect with which he had inspired the fire-eating students of the University of Bonn.—Golden Penny.

LOVE OR MONEY?

BY JESSE LEETE.

"I wish you would be serious. There is something I want to tell you; something I can't be with you another day without telling you. Miss Thornton, you must listen to me. You must know"—

Grace Thornton's face was grave enough now, as she hurriedly interrupted the impetuous words.

"I know, Mr. Hartly, that we are after all only strangers in all essential points. What do you know about us today more than you knew after the first day or two on board the Cameroon?"

"I know this much, at least, Miss Thornton. I know that to me you are the one woman in the world, and that I love you as a man only loves once in his life."

Cecil had risen to his feet. The boyish hesitation had vanished now. His answer to the challenge had an earnest ring in it that would not be gainsaid if it were possible.

Then there was a long silence. Miss Thornton sat motionless, gazing fixedly out to sea, outwardly calm but for the telltale color which came and went with startling rapidity. The little waves lapped gently along the shore, and the voices of some bare-legged urchins at play far along the sands smote with almost painful distinctness on the ears of both.

Cecil waited patiently for a long time. Then he spoke again, very gently and calmly.

"Have I startled you?" I know you might well be offended at my presumption in daring to tell you this; but love is daring, you know. And you have been very good to me. Don't think I mean you have ever given me the right to expect anything beyond the kindness you have already shown me—just such kindness as your own sweet heart might prompt you to show any lonely stranger you met. Only I could not go away without telling you how I loved you. Nor could I stay beside you any longer in silence. I don't ask you any question—I dare not. Only tell me you are not angry with me for speaking so soon!"

For a moment a smile hovered faintly around the girl's pale lips.

"I am not angry," she said gently; "but I am very much surprised."

"Surprised? Why surprised? Isn't it the most natural thing in the world that any man who gets the chance should tell you he loves you and wants to marry you?"

Something in the words seemed to startle the girl strangely. She lifted her head with a sudden, quick movement, and looked full up into the bright blue eyes above her. There was scrutiny in her gaze, almost suspicion. Then slowly her eyes sank again, and a smile once more crept back to the tremulous mouth.

"You talk like a boy," she said, softly. "Have you ever thought what it means—this that you are doing—this placing your whole future at the mercy of a woman of whose antecedents and belongings you know absolutely nothing? How do you know that I do not come of people whom you would not willingly claim as acquaintances, much more as your wife's relations?"

"If the relations were unlucky enough to be objectionable people, why, all the more reason you should be taken away from them. As for myself, I don't want to marry a family circle, or to 'contract an advantageous alliance.' It is you I want—you, your own sweet self! You only!"

"A woman's 'self' has been made and moulded by her past surroundings. What do you know of mine? So far as you know, my aunt and I might have dropped from the clouds that day we met at Southampton. You have told me a hundred things about yourself and your people, your schooldays, your home, your work, your hopes. What have we told you in return? Nothing; you cannot deny it! How can you explain such silence to yourself? People are not so reticent without a reason. What reason have you assigned to us yourself?"

Cecil did not reply immediately. The present had been so sweet to him of late that all else had been forgotten, and he had troubled himself little about the silence in question. But now he was directly challenged to give a reason for the faith that was in him, and he had to dive down into his own thoughts awhile before he could answer. Then he spoke slowly and gravely:

"You must not be angry with me if I tell you the plain truth—I'm not good at hiding things. Of course, I have sometimes wondered that you never spoke of yourself as people naturally do when they are much together. But it was no business of mine, and I have tried not to let my thoughts dwell on it. Only, since you wish it, I will tell you what I have sometimes fancied. I think there must be some great sorrow in your past life—something which you want to forget, perhaps some burden which time has lifted from your shoulders, and which you hope never to carry again."

He paused, but Grace made no sign. He looked down at her half-averted face, and wondered whether it were possible that she had ever passed through one of those tragedies which from time to time crop up in families of hitherto stainless name, leaving their indelible brand of shame on a whole generation of women and children? A great wave of love and pity swept into the young man's heart at the bare supposition. He spoke again and more boldly:

"If I am right—if there is some good reason why your thoughts should turn more willingly to the future than to the past, then let me help you to forget that past. Let the dead past bury its dead, and let us begin a new and living present from today onward. My love should fence so closely that no ghost from the buried days should ever come near to haunt you. Can't it be so? Can't you care for me enough to let me care for you now and as long as we both shall live?"

Grace looked at him a minute with glistening eyes.

"But suppose—just suppose that instead of a sorrow it—the burden you spoke of—were a crime?"

"If it were a crime, it is certain you had no share in it. Were you to swear the contrary, I would never believe you."

Miss Thornton's eyes fell suddenly, and when she lifted them again they were full of tears.

"Your trust in me is foolish," she said softly, "but it is very beautiful. Now let me think quietly for a minute. I must think for you as well as for myself."

For what seemed to Cecil hours she sat in silence. Her eyes had again travelled seaward, and only the slow rise and fall of her bosom broke the absolute quiet of her attitude. When she turned again to her companion some subtle change had come over her manner. Cecil could have fancied her some fairy princess, who, after a brief masquerade, had resumed her long-accustomed rights.

"You must have patience for a time, Mr. Hartley," she said, with gentle dignity. "There are reasons why I may not answer you yet. Let all be as if you had never spoken to me of—this. For the short time we shall still be together, we will be friends as before. When you leave us, you shall give me an address where a letter will always find you. Then—when we return to England—you shall have my answer. This I promise you; do not ask me for more."

"You ask a hard thing," said Cecil slowly. "But you shall be obeyed."

"And you will trust me still?"

"I will trust you while I have my being!"

VI.

Cecil Hartly had always been a favorite of fortune. From childhood onward "things had gone well" with him. At school he had carried off, almost as a matter of course, every scholarship for which he chose to compete; at college it would be difficult to say whether he had distinguished himself more in the schools or in the cricket-field. After being called to the bar, he obtained his first brief in the very first year by the most improbable accident in the world, and so distinguished himself that the certainty of a great future lay before him. In short, Cecil's "luck" was proverbial.

If such a run of "luck" had spoiled him a little, it would have been difficult to blame him severely. But his natural sunny and unselfish nature had carried him through the ordeal, and his ever ready sympathy with everybody less fortunate than himself was as proverbial now as in his childish days.

Sometimes, as he thought of the troubles of others, Cecil had almost trembled at his uninterrupted good fortune. What was the trouble in store for him? The sorrow which should counterbalance, perhaps outweigh these long years of plenty and content? It could not be that he alone should escape the common lot. His very successes had made him walk the more warily. At least he would give no offence to the unseen powers by pride and presumption.

And then, at last, there came to him, as to others, a time of perplexity and trial.

* * * * *

Cecil Hartley was sitting hard at work in his chambers one dreary December afternoon. The Christmas holidays were close at hand, and he had a large accumulation of unavoidable arrears to clear off before he could leave town. There was little time to spare for idle musing, yet every now and again the young man paused for a few minutes and gazed wearily out of the dusty windows at the black and leafless skeletons in the garden of the old-fashioned square.

He had been both brave and patient all through the long, dreary months which had gone by since under the glowing Italian sunshine he had said goodby to Grace Thornton. The autumn had come and gone, winter had laid his grip on the land, and still there came neither word nor token. Those few brief weeks of summer happiness seemed remote as were the sunny southern shores from this smoke-begrimed and sordid London outlook.

When—after having stretched his holiday to the last possible hour—Cecil had at last started in hot haste for England, he had left Miss Thornton and her aunt still travelling in Italy. Before they parted Grace had renewed her promise of communicating with him on their return to England. Beyond that he could obtain no smallest concession; no photograph, no promise of a single letter, no clew to their future movements. Since then—silence.

We have said that Cecil was gifted with more than the usual share of imagination. What tricks it had played him since that parting! In the long, restless nights what visions it had conjured up of every conceivable ill which could happen to two unprotected women traveling in a foreign land!

Even in his sober waking moments he was haunted by a terrible dread that the woman who had come so suddenly into his life might simply vanish out of it with equal suddenness. Then, as he realized how great a blank would be left in his life, he cried almost aloud to the Powers of Life and Death for some certain tidings of the woman he loved.

But there was no answer to the cry. Week after week went by—the weeks grew to months, and still—silence. As each post arrived Cecil scanned with eager hope the cover of every letter, in search of the well-remembered writing, but always in vain. And now Christmas was at hand; the year which had taught him what love meant was all but dead, and he must enter on the new year in ignorance whether that love was to be the crown of his life or its bitterest grief.

This particular afternoon was an especially dreary one, even for London in December. The weather outside was atrocious—the work on which he was engaged was tedious and uninteresting; his head was aching badly—his fire was alternately smoking and sulking—and his favorite clerk was at home with la grippe.

Another batch of letters by the afternoon mail. With renewed hope Cecil glanced at their covers; then he pushed them aside impatiently—all official, therefore just at that minute all uninteresting.

Presently, however, a convenient season having arrived, he proceeded somewhat languidly to inspect their contents. One among them, as he read it, awakened a little curiosity.

"Dear Sir, The Lord Chancellor desires me to request that you will, if possible, favor him with an interview at his private residence tomorrow at 5 o'clock. Should you be unable to do so, kindly mention when you would be free, as the Lord Chancellor is anxious to see you without delay."

The letter was signed by the great man's private secretary. Cecil was puzzled. He passed in mental review the principal matters then engaging his attention, but without finding a clew to the meaning of this unexpected mandate. He looked again at the envelope, and noticed that it was marked "Private." This was still more perplexing. But Cecil was too tired just then for useless speculation, and the morrow would make the matter clear. So after dispatching a note to accept the appointment he returned once more to his tedious work, though it was with aching head and weary heart that he did so. Had his "luck" really deserted him at last?

VII.

"Will you kindly take that chair, Mr. Hartley? And will you kindly excuse my finishing this letter? It is of importance. In a few minutes I shall be at your service. You will find the evening papers on that table beside you."

As he glanced over the papers a suspicion, soon amounting to certainty, arose in Cecil's mind, that the Lord Chancellor's letter was not receiving the undivided attention its importance demanded. More than once in the course of the next few minutes he felt the eyes of his distinguished host fixed upon his face with a look of the keenest scrutiny. Fortunately for him his conscience was void of offence, and he could afford to bear the scrutiny without flinching.

Presently, however, the important letter was signed, folded and dispatched. Then the great man rose from his writing-table, settled himself comfortably in an armchair, and began the conversation with an interrogation.

"You were abroad for some time last summer, I think, Mr. Hartley?"

In much surprise Cecil assented.

"Ah? Just so. Travelling in Northern Italy, I believe?"

"Your Lordship has been correctly informed."

"And I am also correct in stating that you there became intimately acquainted with some ladies who were previously unknown to you."

"These ladies, My Lord, were good enough to permit me their acquaintance, but it would be presumption on my part to lay claim to intimacy."

His Lordship cleared his throat significantly.

"A dangerous practice that, Mr. Hartley—I mean the practice of making casual acquaintanceships with unknown travelling companions—especially ladies; as in this case you may chance to find it to your cost."

Cecil's pulses were beating fast and furiously, but outwardly he remained calm.

"If Your Lordship would kindly explain"——

"Certainly I will do so, Mr. Hartley. You are surprised—and naturally so—at my knowledge of your movements; but the matter will soon be clear to you—clearer, perhaps, than will be altogether pleasant. I regret to tell you that your suit has brought you within the jurisdiction of the court over which I have the honor to preside."

His Lordship had now assumed his judicial voice and frown—both of them awful in their solemnity.

"You, sir, being a man of law, are of course aware that the attempt to persuade a female minor who has been committed to the wardship of that court into contracting a matrimonial alliance, without the knowledge and permission of the court, constitutes a grave legal offence, and one to which severe penalties are attached?"

Here was something tangible at last, and Cecil knew where he stood.

"Certainly I know it, My Lord. But you will permit me to say that if I have committed such an offence it was done unwittingly."

"Then you do not intend to deny that during the month of June last you endeavored to extract a promise of marriage from my ward, Miss Grace Thornton?"

"I have no wish to deny it. I only state that I had not the smallest grounds for supposing that young lady to be a ward of your court, My Lord."

"And you were also in ignorance, I suppose, Mr. Hartley, that that ward is one of the richest heiresses in England?"

The tone was markedly cold and significant. On the point of honor Cecil was sensitive to a fault, and he had to pause for a moment ere replying, to regain command of his temper. When he spoke there was a quiet dignity in his bearing which well became him.

"I have only my own unsupported word to offer in answer to that question, My Lord, but my word has never yet been doubted. When I asked Miss Thornton to become my wife I knew nothing either of her family or of her circumstances. It was the knowledge of her personal worth which alone induced me to try and win her."

The Lord Chancellor's eyes had not left the visitor's face for a moment.

"And, of course, had you known that you were addressing the only child and sole heiress of Sir Abel Thornton—whose extraordinary success as a financier must be well known to you—you would not have presumed to urge your suit upon that young lady?"

Cecil answered quickly and firmly.

"Pardon me, My Lord, I cannot assent to that proposition. Heiress or no heiress, Miss Thornton is the one woman in the world I desire for my wife, and no external circumstances should have stood between us had she responded to my affection. Naturally, if the propositions had been reversed it would have been pleasanter for my pride, but it could have made no difference to my regard for her—only, had I known the truth, I should naturally have sought Your Lordship's permission before addressing Miss Thornton."

"And supposing that permission refused?"

"Then I must have waited as patiently as might be for your ward to attain her majority."

"Which her father's will fixes at twenty-four, and the young lady is now barely twenty-one. You would have had to wait some time, Mr. Hartley."

"Not longer, My Lord, than the prize deserves."

There was a short silence. Then the great man spoke again, and his frown was less awful and his voice less solemn.

"Now, Mr. Hartley, will you be good enough to give me some brief account of your past career, your present position, and your future prospects? Mind, I hold out no hopes. Still, for your own sake, I advise you to speak frankly."

In as few words as might be Cecil complied with the request. It was an honorable record. His listener heard him in silence, following every word with closest attention, and eying him keenly meanwhile. When the tale was ended, the Lord Chancellor remained for some minutes in silent deliberation.

"Come and see me again here, at the same hour, this day week, Mr. Hartley," he said at last. "You have at least made it clear to me that you are not an adventurer, and that you acted in good faith. I need scarcely warn you not to attempt any communication with Miss Thornton, who is not only a ward of my court, but also the daughter of my oldest and dearest personal friend. Her happiness is as much my care as that of my own daughters. Possess your soul in patience yet a little longer. And now, goodby."

Mr. Smith is unable to estimate his loss as yet. He had $3,600 in the Retail Merchants Mutual Co., of New Jersey, and $2,000 in the Sun Insurance Co., through E. M. French & Co. He believes that the insurance will cover the loss.

All the firemen were thoroughly wet during the fire, and their garments soon stiffened and froze. They were considerably handicapped by the snow and cold.

William Schloss, manager of the shoe store, was seen by a Press reporter last evening after the fire. He was unable to give any estimate as to the loss or the insurance carried on the stock.

It was not until 2 o'clock this morning that the department left the scene of the fire. Then some of the hose was frozen solid and had to be left until morning.

Made a Lot of Smoke.

The water boiled off of two hams cooking in Scheuer & Company's store last night near midnight, and caused a thick smoke which penetrated through the front doors. Roundsman Flynn notified the firemen who were still at the Schloss fire, and Second Assistant Chief Jennings responded. The front doors were broken open, andisome water poured on the hams which immediately stopped the smoking.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

The management of the new farce comedy, "Bimbo of Bombay," which was booked for Music Hall Saturday night, telegraphed Manager Edwards yesterday, that in consequence of inability to get the scenery which had specially been prepared for this city, he would be obliged to defer the presentation to later date. The scenery was ordered shipped from Hartford Monday morning, but the late storm tied up all kinds of freight on all railroads east.

The next attraction at Music Hall will be the "Jefferson Boys" next Monday night. No better endorsement of their performance is needed than the following from the Syracuse, N. Y., Telegram of Saturday last. "It was quite a family party that engaged in the performance of 'Rip Van Winkle' at the New Wieting last evening. The four sons of Joseph Jefferson and Edna Carey, the wife of Charles B. Jefferson, and Blanche Bender, the wife of Josepn Jefferson, Jr., assumed the principal roles. By their satisfying and interesting efforts, they gave further proof of the talent contained in this noted dramatic family. The chief interest in the performance naturally centred in the portrayal of 'Rip' by Thomas Jefferson. If the memory of his father's remarkable embodiment of the role would not obtrude occasionally, while one is contemplating the son's performance, the latter's delineation of the character would be most satisfying. In some respects, especially in the earlier scenes, it is a finer achievement than his distinguised father is now capable of accomplishing, since it is invested with greater bouyancy and youthful spirit. He has the command of pathos also, as was agreeably evidenced in 'Rip's' parting with his irate wife. The entire portrayal was unexpectedly satisfying and proved beyond question that the younger Jefferson is perfectly capable of winning distinction as an actor on his own merits." Reserved seats for the Jefferson engagement will be on sale at box office Thursday.

WIFE FOLLOWS HUSBAND

Husband Passed Away Monday Night and This Morning His Wife Also Died—A Double Funeral Tomorrow.

A. J. Clarkson, of Union street, died Monday night as a result of an attack of pneumonia, and yesterday his wife, Mary E., also passed away with the same malady. The former, who is sixty-four years of age, was taken ill with the pneumonia two weeks ago. He gradually grew worse, but his wife, who was seventy-four years of age, nursed him with tender care. She devoted her whole time to his care, and as a result exhausted her vitality, and last Friday she fell a victim to the sickness which her husband was suffering with.

When Mrs. Clarkson was taken sick her husband grew worse rapidly until his death came Monday. In the meantime Mrs. Clarkson's condition also became critical. Sunday she became unconscious and did not revive before her death. Consequently she knew nothing of her husband's death.

A double funeral has been arranged for the dead couple for tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from their late home on Union avenue, near Stelle avenue.

Mr. Clarkson has resided in Plainfield and vicinity for about forty years, coming here from Rahway to work for the late Manning Stelle. He was regarded with great respect by all of his acquaintances. For nearly twenty years he has been a deacon in the Congregational church. Mr. and Mrs. Clarkson leave two children—Thomas J. Clarkson, janitor of the High School, and Mrs. Charles Bilyeu, of Somerset street.

Past Three Score and Ten.

The death of Mrs. Meriam Mason, aged seventy three years, of 54 Elm place died at 3 o'clock this morning after a long illness with pneumonia. She had been a resident of this city for several years, having moved here from New York State. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Mary A. Walley and Mrs. Josephine Kelso, both residents of this city. The funeral services will be held from the house on Elm place Friday evening, and interment will take place in New York State.

The absence of a quorum accounted for the fact that there was no meeting of the Plainfield Sanitary Company last evening at the Casino. The meeting was adjourned for two weeks.

ALL GOT THEIR PRESS.

Good Work in Delivering Plainfield's Favorite Paper Yesterday.

The carrier boys of The Daily Press circulation department found the deep snow a serious obstacle in the distribution of The Press yesterterday afternoon. The routes in the outskirts of the city were practically impassible. Manager of Circulation Stout and two carriers started out shortly after 2 o'clock in one of Uncle Dan Roberts' sleighs and were kept busy until 6 o'clock. But not a subscriber was missed. In some cases they had to break the roads and if the horse had not been a good one, they wouldn't have been through yet.

MAIL COMING IN NOW.

One Delivery Yesterday—Heavy Receipt of Mail This Morning.

Not until this morning did the mails begin to be carried with their usual regularity, but by night it is expected that everything will be in running order. The mail train which came in yesterday morning did not bring the amount of mail expected so Postmaster Bird made only one delivery and that in the afternoon. Mails were sent out yesterday on whatever trains came along. None were sent further west than Somerville, the rest all went to New York and were distributed from there.

This morning the mails that have been accumulating for two days were poured in on the carriers all at once and they started out well laden. No Philadelphia mails went direct, but were sent to Elizabeth and transferred there. The registered mail still lies in the postoffice awaiting the running of the regular mail trains on which this class of mail matter has to be carried.

STORM NOTES.

William Ilsley, of the West End, had the misfortune to freeze both his ears while coming from New York last Monday afternoon. He left New York at 4 o'clock and reached home at 9 o'clock in the evening.

H. W. Marshall's laundry was shut down at noon Monday owing to the lack of coal for the furnace and boiler.

Upset in a Snow Drift.

George Thatcher, Louis Stover and Walter Place had an unpleasant experience yesterday afternoon at the corner of North and Watchung avenues, when they were upset from a sleigh in which they were riding. The cause of the accident was a huge snow bank, and at first it was thought that all three men were injured. Friends assisted them into Mallison's drug store, where an examination proved that they were all right. The horse, although quite fractious, did not get away and no damage resulted.

—Edward White attended the great sale of embroideries, white goods and laces in New York last week and secured some great bargains. The goods were part of an importer's spring importation and in coming over some of the cases got slightly wet. The entire lot will go on sale tomorrow.

BAD STORM AFFECTS ARE DISAPPEARING

Plainfield Recovering From the Big Blizzard.

MADE LOTS OF HARD WORK.

BUSINESS STREETS ARE DEVOID OF DRIFTS NOW.

Street Railway System Has Recovered Itself and Cars are Running Regularly—Trains Through to Philadelphia—Sidewalks are Well Cleaned in the City—Too Much Snow for Good Sleighing.

The period of isolation that followed immediately after the blizzard of Monday is over. Such of the outlying hamlets as were temporarily shut off from the world have now recovered sufficiently to dig themselves out and communication has been once more established. There are still many high drifts to be encountered on the cross roads, but the main thoroughfares have been broken, and a passage shovelled through the deeper drifts that first interferred with all traffic.

Plainfield itself has gradually recovered from the immediate effects of the blizzard and business has resumed its wonted activity. Steam and trolley roads are running again nearly on schedule time. The Brunswick Traction Company's lines are still blocked. The Plainfield Street Railway has returned to regular schedule and the cars are running on the usual headway of twelve minutes.

The sidewalks are cleaned, with a very few exceptions, throughout the city, and pedestrians find very little trouble in getting about. There is still plenty of snow on the outskirts.

The sleighing is not yet good even in the city limits, but there is a prospect of great improvement if the weather moderates and the snow gets into a condition to pack. Outside of the city, the main roads, while passable, are too deep with snow for good sleighing. A drive of any distance necessitates two horses.

The Central Railroad began this morning running its trains again on schedule time, and the trouble and irregularity caused by the storm is about over. A few of the east bound trains coming from Easton and parts of the mountainous regions are late today, and much trouble is still experienced in crossing the ferry between New York and Jersey City.

The Reading road is open as far as Philadelphia. Beyond that the officials can give no information, and will not promise passengers that they can get to Baltimore and Washington. Councilman F. H. Ball, of the borough, undertook to go to Baltimore yesterday, but only succeeded in getting as far as Philadelphia. He tried it once more today, and hopes to get through.

Councilman Ball says that from Bound Brook to Trenton there is only one track open, the east bound track, and trains going both ways have to run on this track, turning out into siding to wait for the passing of other trains. The east bound track is the one on which the last snow fell, and it was quite easy to clear. The north bound track, he says, is drifted nigh with snow which is eight and ten feet deep in some places. He says that if the workmen do their best, they can cannot clear the north bound track until tomorrow.

Beyond Philadelphia the storm seems to have been more severe than here, and no regular communication has been opened with southern cities. But it is expected that by tonight everything will be running again.

Street Commissioner Gavett's men have about finished with Park avenue, and by night will have cleaned North avenue. By a city ordinance the Plainfield Street Railway Co. is obliged to level off the snow thrown by them from their tracks into the gutters, and this they have done with the best speed possible. But they are not obliged to remove the snow thrown into the gutters from the sidewalks, and the city's men will have to do this.

The street railway men are about through with their part of the work, and the city's men will finish it. Two more gangs of men are out again today cleaning sidewalks, and opening up the Cushing road and Bellview avenue, which latter street leads up to Hillside Cemetery.

A message from South Plainfield this morning announces that the Lehigh Valley Railroad has resumed its regular time table after the effects of the effects of the big storm.

Ladies' Night.

This evening will be ladies' night at the Plainfield Catholic Clubhouse and an entertainihg programme will be presented.

HIS WORK IS FINISHED.

COMMISSIONER CARROLL TO ENJOY HIMSELF IN PORTO RICO NOW.

Mrs. Carroll Sailed Today to Join Her Husband at San Juan—They Will Return to Plainfield Sometime Next April.

Mrs. Carroll, of Westervelt avenue, wife of Commissioner H. K. Carroll, who is now in Porto Rico, making an investigation of the affairs of the islands for President McKinley, sailed today for Porto Rico to join her husband.

Dr. Carroll has about completed his work connected with the commission and he and Mrs. Carroll will spend two months in having a good time. The climate is ideal and they will no doubt enjoy it in contrast to the cold weather now experienced in this country.

Dr. Carroll is now stopping at San Juan, and he will remain there until Mrs. Carroll arrives. They will then visit different parts of Porto Rico for pleasure purposes and about the first of April will return to Plainfield, after which Dr. Carroll will submit his report to the President.

Mr. Buell is still with Dr. Carroll and he will return with the Commissioner and his wife.

FOURTH IN HIS CLASS.

LEWIS H. RAND GRADUATED FROM U. S. MILITARY ACADEMY.

Received High Honors—Assigned to the Engineer Corps of the Regular Army—Two of the Class Formerly Lived Here.

High honors were conferred on a Plainfield boy at the United States Military Academy yesterday morning, when the graduation exercises took place. Lewis H. Rand, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Rand, of West Front street, was graduated fourth in his class of seventy-two, and, as one of the first five in his class, will be assigned to the Engineer Corps, which is considered the highest in the service.

Rand attended the Plainfield High School and was president and a member of the class of '96 there. He left after his Junior year having won the competitive examination, held at Elizabeth, for the appointment that year to the Military Academy. While at the High School Rand won several prizes and was considered a very bright student.

The graduating exercises were held at the Academy yesterbay morning. Gen. Wesley Merritt was expected to be present and address the cadets but was delayed by the snow blockade. The graduates left for their respective homes yesterday afternoon on a short leave. Rand is expected to arrive in Plainfield today to spend a few days at home.

Everybody is welcome to hear this very entertaining speaker.

FINANCIAL REWARD FOR THE VOLUNTEERS

Members of the N. J. Regiments Want $125 a Piece.

APPEAL TO LEGISLATURE.

GENERAL SEWELL IS NOW AT THE HEAD OF THE NATIONAL GUARD.

Legislature Did Not Obtain a Quorum in Either House Yesterday Until the Afternoon Session—Richard A. Donnelly Made a Major-General by Brevet for Long Service — Other Business.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, February 16. — Success finally crowned the efforts of the Legislature's leaders to get a quorum yesterday afternoon, and both Houses had a session, at which considerable business was transacted.

When Speaker Watkins called the Assembly to order at 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning twenty-six members answered to their names. This not being a quorum an adjournment was taken until afternoon. Only six Senators answered the roll call, and as it takes eleven to make a quorum it was necessary to adjourn the Upper Chamber as well.

Soon after noon the trains began running very close to schedule time, and both Houses had good working quorums present when called to order for the afternoon sessions.

Mr. McKee offered a long resolution, which created considerable surprise, as it reflected somewhat on Governor Voorhees. It began with a whereas setting forth that when President McKinley called for volunteer for the war with Spain more than five thousand Jerseymen responded, and although, through no fault of theirs, they failed to see active service, "yet they suffered untold hardships in camps totally unfitted for human habitation, being without proper food and shelter, until sickness and death decimated their ranks far worse than Spanish bullets could have done."

The resolution following then commends the King bill, now in the House, which provides for the payment by the State of $125 to each volunteer in the late war; thanks Mr. King for introducing the bill, asks the chairman of the committee on appropriations to report the same favorably at the earliest possible moment, and urges the House to pass the bill after giving the volunteers a public hearing.

In the Senate Mr. Ketcham introduced a bill providing that State pay be allowed to each non commissioned officer, musician, artificer, wagoner and private for the term of his enlistment in the New Jersey regiments or naval reserve during the Spanish war—$6 per month to those who were married and $4 per month to the unmarried men. These were the allowances made to Jersey militiamen who were mustered into the United States service during the civil war.

Mr. McKee afterwards explained that the resolutions were introduced by him by request. They were adopted at a meeting of the Second Regiment boys, of Paterson, who enlisted, and given to him to be laid before the Legislature. Speaker Watkins promptly referred them to the committee on federal relations.

A knockout blow was administered to Mr. Hall's bill providing for the incorporation of clubs where boxing matches with five-ounce gloves would be allowed. The committee on judiciary reported the bill adversely, and the House sustained the report.

The House passed the bills making eight hours a day's work on all public works, providing that any person interested in any street or public improvement shall be ineligible to be come a member of a board to assess for such improvements; authorizing Paterson's Park Commissioners to acquire additional lands for park purpose, and authorizing cities, towns, townships, boroughs and villages to borrow money in anticipation of the collection of taxes and assessments.

Governor Voorhees sent to the Senate these nominations: Chandler W. Riker, for prosecutor of the pleas, Essex county; Charles J. Baxter, for State superintendent of public instruction; for Major General, vice, Joseph W. Plume, resigned, William J. Sewall; for Major General by brevet, Richard A. Donnelly, for long and meritorious services.

General Sewell being a former Senator his nomination was confirmed at once, and the others were referred. The Senate also confirmed the Governor's appointments of a week or two ago for managers of the home for soldiers, sailors and their wives, and

TOUGH TRIO OF TRAMPS.

THEY PUT UP A HOT FIGHT WHEN ARRESTED IN THE BOROUGH.

They Were Begging From House to House and When They Were Refused Became Abusive—Given Ten Days

Chief Marshal Wilson and the marshals of the borough had an exciting time yesterday afternoon in arresting three tramps who were about the borough begging and mending umbrellas. The party consisted of John Hart, of Newark; Joseph Donnelly residence nowhere; John Thomas, of Elizabeth. The latter was arrested early in the afternoon and the others were caught later. The men had been about the borough most of the day annoying people and trying to secure money and food. Chief Wilson chased the trio over into the city, and then informed Chief Grant to look after them and chase them out of town. It was not long afterwards that the men came wandering back into the local Canada, and then the fun began.

Chief Wilson followed them and learned what they were doing. He told them to leave the borough, and they immediately began to jibe the officer. By this time Marshal Campbell put in an appearance and before he fully realized what was going on Hart grabbed him by the neck and was trying to choke him. Then Chief Wilson took a hand and gave Hart a good sound thrashing. He was landed in the lockup.

The greatest difficulty was experienced with Donnelley, who told the police that he would go when he got ready. The officers thought he had better go along right away, but it required the efforts of Butcher Kilfoil, James Trewin and Marshal Campbell to place him behind the bars.

Thomas was arrested near Zeller's bottling establishment. He had been inside trying to see if he could get something to drink, and not succeeding, became abusive. He walked out of the place and meeting two small boys carrying a bundle made a grab for the bundle and at the same time slapped them in the face. Mr Zeller took a hand at this time and gave Thomas a lively thrashing. Chief Wilson soon appeared and after some trouble landed him behind the bars.

This morning all three men were arraigned before Recorder Long and each one, as a result, will spend the next ten days at Somerville at the expense of the county.

GREAT MASONIC AFFAIR

GOVERNOR VOORHEES TO TAKE HIS THIRD DEGREE.

Star Theatre to be Turned Into a Temporary Lodge Room Where 1,500 Masons Can Witness the Degree Work.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 16—Governor Foster M. Voorhees and Representative Charles N. Fowler will be initiated into the third degree of Masonry at the Star Theatre tomorrow evening. Worshipful Master McEwan, of Mount Holly, assisted by the Grand Lodge of the State, will officiate. It is expected that fully fifteen hundred Masons, from all parts of the State, and invited brethren from different States will be present.

The theatre will be staged over the auditorium, and all parts of the house thoroughly tiled and guarded so that interlopers will not gain entrance.

Governor Voorhees took his first degree in Washington Lodge, Elizabeth, a few weeks ago. Mr. Fowler was initiated in the first degree in a western town about the same time. The initiation of the two distinguished candidates will be followed by a reception and supper on the raised floor of the theatre. The late Governor Robert S Green was initiated into Masonry by Washington Lodge many years ago in Elizabeth.

TRAIN KILLS FIVE MEN IN SNOWDRIFT.

Creeps Upon Them While They Are Clearing Tracks.

LEG FOUND ON COWCATCHER

DRIFTING SNOW PREVENTED VICTIMS FROM SEEING TRAIN.

Fatality Occurred on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Near Belle Meade—Engineer Did Not Know of Accident Till He Arrived at Bound Brook and Found Leg on Cowcatcher.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, February 16.—Five men were instantly killed by an eastbound train on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad at Belle Meade, near here, Tuesday night. The bodies are now in Belle Meade pending the action of the coroner.

The men were killed at 7:30 o'clock. The cut through which the railroad passes near Belle Meade is one of the narrowest and deepest in the State, and even in ordinary snow storms the place becomes almost impassable to trains. This is particularly true when the snow drifts.

Yesterday a gang of twenty men was sent out to clear the tracks of snow, which had piled up to depths of varying from twelve to twenty feet. The men reached the place on a work train at 2 p. m. As the day wore on a breeze came up which sent great clouds of snow scurrying and whirling through the cut. Owing to a freak of the storm the east bound tracks were comparatively clear and a few trains had passed through. None of them ran on a regular schedule, and for this reason the section foreman could not tell when a train might be expected.

One came along at 7:30. The drifting snow obscured the headlight and the rumble of the train was deadened by the snow on the tracks. The men were at work when the train, which was drawn by two engines, dashed in among them.

Neither of the engineers knew that anything unusual had happened until the train pulled in the station here, when they left their cabs to examine the engines. A human leg was found on the cowcatcher of the first engine and blood was spattered everywhere. Men were sent back to make an investigation and found the bodies.

The train proceeded to Jersey City and the bodies were taken to the Morgue. It is said that all of the dead men lived in Trenton.

POKER CAUSED RUMPUS

MEMBER OF SWELL WESTFIELD CLUB HAD TO RESIGN.

Edward Baker Alleged to Have Set in a Big Game, and Accused of Conduct Unbecoming to a Gentleman.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Feb. 16—The board of governors of the Westfield Club have accepted the resignation of Edward Baker as a member of the club and thus closed an incident that promised to develop unpleasant features. Baker has been a prominent member of the club almost from its organization. He was captain of the bowling team and took part in the public functions of the organization.

A few weeks ago one of the members in the poolroom of the club charged Baker with being implicated in a poker game in which several Westfield players ran up against hard luck, to say the least. Hot words followed the accusation, and it resulted in charges of conduct unbecoming a gentleman being preferred against Baker. He decided to contest the matter, but friends of all concerned prevailed upon him to offer his resignation, which was accepted, and the affair closed.

BRIDAL PARTY WAS LATE

MURRAY-MARSHALL NUPTIALS DELAYED IN BROOKLYN CHURCH.

James Edward Murray, of Plainfield, Was the Groom—A Belated Train on the Central Caused the Wait.

Miss Alice Elizabeth Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Denton Marshall, of Brooklyn, was married to James Edward Murray, son of J. W. Murray, Sr., of Central avenue, at the Fleet Street M. E. church, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. B. Stockdale, pastor of the church.

The ceremony was to have taken place at noon. The party from Plainfield that included several of the bridal party and important guests, left here shortly after 9 o'clock. Their train was delayed and so they telegraphed ahead that they would be late. They arrived at the church just before 1 o'clock when the ceremony took place.

Walter Murray, of this city, a brother of the groom, was the best man. Roger Erickson and City Judge William N. Runyon, of Plainfield, acted as ushers. The other two ushers were friends from Brooklyn. The bride's sister was the maid of honor.

The ceremony was a pretty one and was witnessed by a number of relatives and friends from Plainfield and Brooklyn. Mr. and Mrs. Murray left yesterday afternoon for the south where they will spend several weeks. They will then take up their residence on South Elliott place, Brooklyn.

PITIABLE CASE OF DESTITUTION.

Borough Family in Dire Need of Simple Necessities of Life.

A sad case of destitution has been brought to the attention of Mayor Wilson, of the borough. The family is that of Charles VanBergen, of Hudson's lane. He and his family have been in want for a number of days, and have had to depend on neighbors and acquaintances for the necessaries of life. Among those who have helped this family is Mrs. E. E. Winckler, of Westervelt avenue. Mrs. Winckler's attention was directed to the family owing to the fact that Mrs. VanBergen does washing for her. She has been supplying the family two or three times a week. She is now of the opinion that the borough ought to do something. A few weeks ago the family received a quarter of a ton of coal from the Overseer of the Poor, but that was consumed sometime ago.

What makes the case a particularly sad one is the fact that Mr. VanBergen, the head of the family, is crippled with rheumatism, and Mrs. Jane VanBergen, his mother, aged eighty years, is suffering from the lack of proper food and nourishment.

Now that Mayor Wilson's attention has been secured there is no doubt but what the family will be looked after properly. Mrs. Winckler called at the Mayor's office yesterday, but he was not in. She made known her errand to W. W. Rowley, delinquent tax collector, who imparted the desired information to His Honor, and the case has been attended to.

Fire May Keep Him Out of Work.

Charles VanMiddlesworth and wife, of Brooklyn, are visiting Plainfield relatives. Last night Mr. VanMiddlesworth received a telegram informing him that the machine shops in the Brooklyn Navy Yard were destroyed by fire. This is the place where he has been employed for sometime past, and he is not sure whether the fire will keep him out of work or not.

MURRAY AND COOPER ON NEGATIVE SIDE.

They Will Oppose the Passage of Double Bar Bill.

TO BE CONSIDERED TODAY.

IF NECESSARY ASSEMBLYMAN MURRAY WILL TALK AGAINST IT.

Billy Thompson Depends on the Democratic Votes, With a Number of Republicans, to Pass the Bill Designed for His Benefit—Temperance Societies Opposed—Brewers Against It.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Feb 16—The action of the State Senate in passing the Thompson bill and the probable action of the Assembly when the bill comes before them, have been largely discussed in State House circles here for the last few days. The bill provides for the running of several bars under one license on public picnic grounds, and is intended to affect Thompson's resort, Washington Park, near Camden. The bill is expected to go before the Assembly at today's session.

There is considerable opposition to the bill. It has come from the clergymen's associations, W. C. T. U. and other temperance societies and from a number of the brewers. The Democrats are supposed to stand by Thompson and the latter is counting on a certain amount of Republican support in the Assembly.

Assemblyman Roger F. Murray, of Plainfield, was seen by your correspondent this morning and stated very emphatically that he was strongly opposed to the Thompson bill and would fight its passage in the Assembly. He declared his intention of talking as well as voting against it.

Assemblyman Edward Cooper, of Warrenville, was also interviewed regarding his attitude toward the bill. He said that he did not favor it and was going to vote against it.

Great pressure will be brought to bear on the Republican Assemblymen who do not favor the bill, but there is no doubt but that Assemblymen Murray and Cooper will stand out against all such influence and will remain solid in the opposition.

A PATRIOTIC OCCASION.

Washington's Birthday to be Celebrated by Historical Society.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Bound Brook, February 16.—The Washington Camp Ground Association, of this place, will celebrate the anniversary of the birth of Washington as usual by holding exercises of a patriotic nature in Bound Brook Hall, at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday, February 22d. Rev. T. E. Davis, the historian of the association, will read a paper on "Bound Brook's Losses in the Revolution." Rev. J. W. Dally, of Englewood, this State, a well-known historical writer, will speak on "Washington, the Exemplar of American Patriotism." Howard McSherry, New Brunswick's favorite orator, will also deliver an address.

Special invitations have been extended to the several patriotic societies of the vicinity including the General Frelinghuysen, Jersey Blue and Continental Chapters, Daughters of the American Revolution, of Somerville, New Brunswick and Plainfield, respectively, the Raritan Valley Historical Society, and the Revolutionary Memorial Society. Any persons other than members of these organizations will be heartily welcomed.

This association owns a tract of land at the base of the mountain, near Bound Brook, where Washington's army was encamped during the spring of 1777 and again throughout the winter of 1778-9. At the latter time the commander himself lived in the Wallace House at Somerville. The association will convert its historic tract into a beautiful park.

A Big Field for Mr. Smith.

Seymour G. Smith, of this city, who is the patentee of the system of garbage disposal now being used here, stands a most excellent chance of having his system introduced into Porto Rico and Cuba. Efforts are now being made to secure for those places such a system of disposal, and it is stated on good authority that Mr. Smith's system will be used.

Public Endeavor Conference.

A public conference of the Plainfield Local Union Christian Endeavor will be held in the Trinity Reformed church Tuesday, February 28th. There will be two open discussions, one of them to be conducted by Rev. J. W. Richardson, one of the vice-presidents of the N. J. State Union, and the other by Rev. A. I. Martine, of Dunellen.

Doan's Kidney Pills are endorsed by citizens.

Here is one case from the many we have:

Mr. S. J. Conklin, traveling salesman for a New York Confectionery house, living at 134 West Front street, says: "I was subject to kidney complaint for seven years. My symptoms were pains in the back and hips which at times I felt in my side. The latter trouble annoyed me very much at night and caused more or less loss of sleep. I tried different kinds of kidney cures but received little or no relief. I read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills and I went to L. W. Randolph's drug store and got a box. I took three altogether and was wonderfully improved. Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy and accomplish all that is claimed for them."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers; price 50 cents a box. Mailed on receipt of price by Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

GEN. MILLER TO BE ADVANCED.

To be Made a Brigadier-General in the Regular Army.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—Colonel Marcus P. Miller of the Third Regiment of Artillery will be nominated to be brigadier general in the regular army.

Colonel Miller, who is a brigadier general of volunteers, commands the military forces which captured the city of Iloilo without the loss of a man, and his promotion is in recognition of his services on that occasion. He will only hold this rank a short time, as he will reach the retiring age, sixty-four years, in March, and will then be transferred to the retired list.

The new brigadier general is a native of Massachusetts, and was graduated from West Point in 1858. He served throughout the civil war with conspicuous gallantry, and was brevetted three times. Later he was brevetted for gallantry on the frontier in fighting Indians.

MONEY FOR POSTAL TUBES.

Post Office Committee Favors House Appropriation for Pneumatic Service.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—The post office appropriation bill was reported to the Senate from the appropriations committee. The committee has restored the items for fast mail service from New York to New Orleans via Washington, and from Kansas City to Newton, Kan., which were omitted from the bill by the House; for the former service $171,238 is appropriated, and for the latter $25,000.

The appropriation for the pneumatic tube service was finally retained at the amount fixed by the House, $225,000, and the proviso in the present law forbidding the extension of the service without authority of law was again inserted.

If this proviso is adopted it will prevent the extension of the service to Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans and San Francisco, as provided by the appropriation recommended by the post-office committee.

Storm Didn't Affect It.

New York, Feb. 16.—First Assistant Postmaster Morgan said yesterday that during the entire cold spell, about the only department of the local delivery system that has not suffered is the compressed air service.

"I don't know what we should have done without the pneumatic tubes," he said, "for the weather has knocked out the horses and their drivers in such bad way that it has been next to impossible for the wagon delivery service to perform its work. On the other hand, the pneumatic tubes have done everything required of them, and they could have done much more. Mails from out of town were blocked to such a degree that we couldn't use the tubes to their full capacity, but their service has been perfect."

Our Difference With Canada.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—The information published yesterday morning that the supreme question now is that of granting to Canada a port on the Lynn canal, in Alaska, was not denied, however, and there is additional evidence that the report is correct. The impression still prevails that, although the British and Canadian members have delivered something like an ultimatum in the matter of the Lynn canal, the question, if decided adversely by the American commissioners will not be allowed to disrupt the negotiations for a treaty between the two nations.

Senator Fairbanks, president of the American commission, said after the meeting yesterday:

"I do not anticipate a breaking off of negotiations, and a failure of the results which we are striving for is not to be mentioned now. We continue our meetings to-morrow. More than this I cannot say."

Representatives of the lumber trade are here again from all points in the United States and will make a determined attempt to have the question of the lumber tariff definitely settled before the final adjournment of the commission.

Scheme to Make Silk from Gelatine.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16. A very curious report comes to the state department from Consul Frankenthal at Berne, Switzerland, on the manufacture of artificial silk from gelatine. The consul says his information is from Professor Hummel of Berkshire College, in Leeds, England, who is the inventor of the process, and who has submitted specimens of his product to Swiss silk manufacturers.

Truesdale Succeeds Sloan.

New York, Feb. 16.—W. H. Truesdale, third vice president of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad, has decided to accept the presidency of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, and it only remains for the stockholders formally to elect him at the annual meeting on February 23. Samuel Sloan, who retires as president, will be elected chairman of the board of directors.

Beef Court of Inquiry.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—The court of inquiry appointed to examine General Miles's charges affecting the character of the army's meat was unable to assemble owing to the fact that some of the members were prevented by the snow blockade from reaching the city. It will probably meet some time this week.

Coal Scarce in Scranton.

Scranton, Pa., Feb. 16.—On account of the effects of the recent storm the retail dealers are unable to fill but few orders, and there is a coal famine in this city, right in the heart of the anthracite region. As high as six dollars a ton has been offered for pea coal, which ordinarily sells for $1.75 a ton, delivered.

A SKIRMISH AT MANILA

DRIVEN INTO OPEN FIELDS.

The Rebels Severely Punished for Indulging That Kind of Pleasantry—Were Evidently Short of Powder and so Withheld Fire.

Manila, Feb. 16.—Several Filipino insurgents yesterday afternoon, having fired from houses bearing white flags on the American outposts, Col. Smith, with Companies L, D and M of the California volunteers, proceeded to clean out the enemy along his front. The insurgents opposed him from the brush, and several skirmishes occurred, during which nine of the Californians were slightly wounded before the natives were driven out.

The work proceeded yesterday in a systematic manner, a gunboat shelling the villages and working her rapid fire guns very effectively on the jungle. The entire California regiment, with the exception of two companies; four companies of the Washington regiment, two companies of the Idaho regiment, and a battery of the Sixth artillery were engaged.

The insurgents were driven towards Laguna de Bayo. They withheld their fire, apparently being short of ammunition, but otherwise fought desperately.

The American outposts in this direction are now fully twevle miles out. All is quiet along the rest of the line, with the exception of an occasional exchange of shots between the sharpshooters.

Aguinaldo Will Ignore Us.

London, Feb. 16.—The Filipinos' London agent has given out the following cable dispatch from the Filipino junta at Hong Kong:

"Before the expiration of General Miller's notice that he would occupy Iloilo, he bombarded the town. The junta considers this a great indignity. Moreover, it being the second breach of the rules of warfare by the Americans, Aguinaldo has decided in future to ignore all American communications."

More Denials by Agoncillo.

London, Feb. 16.—The Filipino agents here have received a cablegram from Agoncillo, the agent of Aguinaldo, saying:

"The statement of General Otis that he has a copy of a telegram from me advising Aguinaldo to attack the Americans, is an absolute fabrication. I challenge General Otis to produce the telegram."

Agoncillo adds that the Americans threatened to exterminate the Filipinos. The European junta announces that it has received a message from Manila saying the Filipinos have made all the arrangements necessary for guerilla warfare around Manila, that fighting has been in progress without intermission since February 4, and that the Americans have lost heavily in killed and wounded.

Aguinaldo's headquarters, it is pointed out, are now at Marilao, near Caloocan, out of range of the warships in the bay.

The Sherman at Gibraltar.

Gibraltar, Feb. 16.—The United States army transport Sherman, formerly the Atlantic transport liner Mobile, which sailed from New York on February 3 for Manila having on board one battalion of the Seventeenth regular infantry and the entire Third regiment of infantry, commanded by Col. Page, arrived here yesterday

The Sherman is on her way to Manila with the Third United States infantry and four companies of the Seventeenth United States infantry on board.

Our Italian Immigration.

New York Feb. 16.—Sixty thousand Italian immigrants were brought to this country from January 1, 1898, to January 1, 1899, according to the reports of the various steamship companies. The North German Lloyds carried 21,000, the Prince line 16,000, the Fabre line 12,000, and the Anchor line 11,000.

It is evident from these figures that there is a good field for steamship companies making a specialty of steerage passengers from Italy, and it is, therefore, not surprising that a new line has been organized under the direct supervision of the Italian government.

Coal Wholesale Prices Put Up.

New York, Feb. 16.—The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Company has advanced the price of anthracite coal at tidewater, free on board vessels, to the following basis: Stove, $3.75 a ton; egg, $3.35; chestnut, $3.65; grate, $3.15.

These prices are from twenty to forty cents above the recently fuling figures and up to the actual figures obtained at this time a year ago.

The other large anthracite railroad companies are understood to have made similar advances.

The advances reflect the increased demand because of the cold weather.

No Quorum at Harrisburg.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 16.—The joint ballot of the legislature in the United States senatorial contest yesterday resulted as follows: Quay 50, Jenks 4, Daizell 1, no election.

The absence of the Philadelphia and other members made it unsafe for the anti-Quay forces to risk remaining in the joint convention, and thus constituting a quorum with the danger of electing Senator Quay. They therefore retired until after the joint ballot.

Diplomas Given at West Point.

West Point, Feb. 16.—The graduating exercises of the Military Academy took place at 10.30 o'clock yesterday. Seventy-two young men received their diplomas from the hand of Colonel A. L. Mills, the superintendent. General Wesley Merritt was to have been present to address the graduating class, but on account of the storm could not be here. Colonel Mills welcomed the young men into the ranks of the army. The ceremonies took place in the Cullem Memorial Hall.

GOMEZ FAILS TO SHOW UP.

The Unexplained Delay in His Coming to Havana.

Havana, Feb. 16.—Governor General Brooke and General Maximo Gomes have had no communication with each other since the invitation to come to Havana and its acceptance. Twelve days have elapsed since Robert P. Porter's agreement with Gomez to bring about the disbandment of the Cuban army on payment to the troops of three million dollars, but no step has been taken to pay the Cubans or disband them.

From day to day it is said, "Gomez will be here in a couple of days," but he is not yet here. General Brooke yesterday asked Senor Jose Lanuza, head of the department of justice and public instruction in the cabinet of advisers of the American administration, and Senor Domingo Capote, head of the department of government in the same cabinet, if they knew when General Gomez would come here. They said they did not know the exact date, but supposed it would be "the day after tomorrow."

Remedios, Feb. 5.

Senor Eugenio Hostos, Porto Rico:

Yours of January 21 received. I know already that you were heroetically working to save Porto Rico from an awful situation. It fell by diplomatic trickery from a Spanish colony to a territory conquered by the Americans. Your sorrow is ours. We Antillians are brothers, and the love of our lands unites us of those three islands in the Caribbean sea, which, united, are so great, if their sons know how to act rightly. I offer you all my support. I am near you. I will strive for the liberty of your people. My word is at your disposal, as it is always ready in the defence of just and noble causes."

La Discussion makes the statement that the conflict between General Brooke and the Cuban assembly is ended. General Brooke having apologized to the members of the assembly. This statement General Brooke brands as a lie. He said that he had not seen any of the members of the assembly and, consequently, had offered them no apology. On the contrary, he said to Secretaries Lanuza and Capote and Desverine at the cabinet council yesterday that the assembly had assumed a childish attitude and was alone responsible for the whole trouble.

News from Santiago.

Santiago de Cuba, Feb. 16.—Archbishop Chapelle, the apostolic delegate of the Roman Catholic church to the West Indies, visited Major General Leonard Wood, in command of the Department of Santiago, yesterday morning and had an interview of over an hour with the American commander. Their conversation referred to the future of the Roman Catholic church in Santiago de Cuba. The archbishop said he would endeavor to place it on the same footing as in America, namely, making it self-supporting.

A heavy norther began blowing Tuesday, rain ceased falling, the thermometer registered fifty-five degrees, and overcoats were worn on the streets during the early morning an unusual sight in Santiago.

No More Grog for Tars.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—Within a very few days every jackie aboard of Uncle Sam's war vessels must smuggle his grog or beer aboard if he wants to drink at sea. Secretary Long has issued an order to all commanders of vessels to stop the practice at once.

The selling of malt or spirituous liquor to seamen aboard ship has never taken a very large foothold in the navy. On two vessels, the New York and Indiana, it has never been countenanced.

This will do away with it altogether.

Damage to Fruit in Florida.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 16.—The snow has covered all of Florida as far south as Tampa on the west coast and St. Augustine on the east. Most vegetables were killed. It is difficult at this time to estimate the damage done to orange groves, but where protective measures were not taken it is considerable. The trees were in bloom and the blossoms were killed, and the prospects for a crop next fall are destroyed to a large part of the orange belt.

War Beard Runs Mile.

Cincinnati, Feb. 16.—At a banquet tendered by friends of Dr. S. E. Connor, of the war investigating commission, the doctor made an address on the work of the commission. He created a sensation by saying:

"If the board of inquiry reach the same conclusion as the war investigation committee, then the commanding general will be dismissed from the army of the United States."

Private P. O. Box Test.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Postmaster Hicks of Philadelphia has reported to the postmaster general on his test crusade against the private letter boxes in his city. He selected two boxes and allowed the mail addressed to the proprietor to be delivered. All other mail he withheld, giving notice that addressees might call for it. Very few called. Much of the matter retained is of a highly immoral character.

Prudery, She Says is Crippling Art.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—Lillian Bell, a writer in the Ladies' Home Journal, created something of a sensation here at a meeting of the Baptist Union Tuesday night. She declared that American art is being crippled by the prudery of Anthony Comstock and the American girl.

Five Killed by a Flyer.

Bound Brook, N. J., Feb. 16.—At Hamilton, N. J., four miles west of here, five shovelers were killed yesterday by a Philadelphia and Reading flyer. The bodies of two were found in the snow.

TRIAL OF PROF. STEVENS.

The Teacher Who Burned Pardee Hall and Did Other Things at Easton.

Easton, Pa., Feb. 16.—The court room was crowded yesterday to hear the evidence in the trial for burning Pardee Hall, of George H. Stephens, formerly a professor in Lafayette College. Chas. Zimmerman, the former student at Lafayette College, who was a friend of Stephens, was recalled to the stand to testify regarding the confessions to him by Stephens, who had said: "Zim, I burned Pardee Hall." This was before Stephens confessed to the detective.

Zimmerman testified that he had urged Stephens to confess to his act of malicious mischief but he did not think that it would lead to the confession of arson.

"Some time after Stephens confessed to me," Zimmerman testified, "he said it would mean a term of imprisonment for him if I told the story of events which led up to his confession when he admitted burning Pardee Hall."

Continuing, the witness said: "After I left the stand last night Stephens said to me that what I said he had told me about burning Pardee Hall was all right, but he objected to the way I told the story which led up to the confession."

Frances A. Marsh, Jr., professor of English literature at Lafayette College, was the next witness. He was called to testify in regard to various acts of malicious mischief which it is alleged Stephens committed at the college, such as spoiling the organ, tarring the chapel, throwing the Bible and hymn books into the cistern, and destroying the ivy. The lawyers for the defence objected, but the court allowed this testimony to go in, as it bore on Stephens's confession in private.

In answer to questions, Prof. Marsh testified: "Stephens wanted to know whether the faculty would prosecute him or not, and I said that I did not think it was so disposed. 'How about that devil at the head of the faculty?' asked Stephens. I told him that Dr. Warfield certainly had no intention of prosecuting him. Stephens wanted to know what promises I would hold out and I told him I only represented myself and was not authorized to speak for anyone. Stephens wanted promises and had the Rev. Mr Schall and Prof. Owen sent for. He said that there was no evidence against him and I reminded him that the key to the chapel was found in the door after the intruder of the Saturday night before Baccalaureate Sunday had been driven out by the watchman, and that there was tar in his satchel. I told him that if he was innocent he should fight it and should not think of telling anything but the truth. He uttered a groan and turned away. It was after this that Stephens confessed to Zimmerman."

Big New Chemical Concern.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 16.—The general Chemical Company, with its principal office in Phillinstown, Putnam county, was incorporated yesterday by its secretary, with a capital stock of $25,000,000, to manufacture all kinds of chemicals in New York state and elsewhere. The capital stock is divided into $12,500,000 preferred and $12,500,000 common stock. The preferred stock is to be entitled to six per cent. cumulative dividends, payable out of net earnings or surplus before any dividends shall be paid on the common stock.

The company will begin business with $25,000 capital. The directors are William H. Nichols, Sanford F. Steele, George W. Kenyon, Charles Robinson Smith, James L. Morgan, Jr., Louis S. Wolf and J. Herbert Bagg of New York city; Eugene Waugh of Highland Station, Putnam county, Frederick Phillips of Philadelphia, C. P. Tiers of Pittsburg, F. H. Rising of Cleveland, and H. F. Chappell and H. W. Chappell of Chicago.

Tricking the Albany Legislature.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 16.—An interesting discovery has just been made in connection with a bill introduced in the Senate by Mr. La Roche, Democrat of Kings, and in the assembly by Mr. McEwan, Democrat of Kings. This bill which was prepared by the New York city law department, has for its ostensible purpose the abolition of various township commissions in the towns that became a part of New York city by the consolidation act.

It was reported favorably by the judiciary committee and a vote would have been taken on it if Senator Marshall, Republican of Kings, had not objected.

Afterwards, Mr. Marshall told of the discovery. He said that a close examination of the bill showed that it abolished not only the township commissions, but the New York rapid transit commission, and nearly every other city commission.

Oppose Roosevelt's Appointment.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 16.—It is known that some opposition will be made to the confirmation of George Lewis Heins of New York city, who was nominated a week ago by Governor Roosevelt for Capitol commissioner, to succeed Isaac G. Perry.

Senators on both sides of the House will vote against the nomination, it is said, on the ground that they cannot afford to ignore Mr. Perry, because he has given them so much patronage in the past.

Mr. Perry is, perhaps, more than any one man, responsible for the extravagant cost of the $23,000,000 Capitol building. Governor Roosevelt will fight to have his way in the matter.

Surrogate Appointed for New York.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 16.—Gov. Roosevelt has announced the appointment of General James M. Varnum as surrogate to succeed J. H. V. Arnold. The governor had a talk with General Varnum in New York about the surrogate's office, and told him what he expected him to do. In speaking of the appointment the governor said that he advised General Varnum thoroughly to probe the office, and to cut out corruption wherever he found it, no matter who was affected by the cutting process.

Barrows Appointed Librarian.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—The president has sent to the Senate the nomination of Samuel J. Barrows of Massachusetts to be librarian of Congress, to succeed John Russell Young, who died recently.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

Mr. Bailey of Texas Talks on the Nicaragua Canal Bill.

THE McENERY RESOLUTION

Helen Gould Further Honored—Our Differences With Canada—The Administration Expects Army Bill to Pass This Session.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—After the House met yesterday, Messrs. Hepburn and Grosvenor, representing the Republican support of the Nicaragua canal amendment to the sundry civil bill, proposed to Mr. Henderson of the committee on rules that the amendment would be withdrawn if the committee on rules would assure them that a day would be given for the consideration of the canal bill.

Mr. Henderson replied that the gentlemen could introduce their resolution for a rule, and the committee would carefully consider it.

That was not at all what Messrs. Hepburn and Grosvenor desired, and after the conference it was stated that the amendment would be prosecuted to the bitter end.

Mr. Bailey of Texas addressed the House. He said that the gentleman from Illinois, Mr. Cannon, was unfortunate in selecting for an illustration of the evil effects of ill-considered and improperly enacted legislation, the Pacific Railroad legislation. In that case the vice was not that the legislation was improper or ill-considered, but that it arose from or followed the fact that the government went into partnership with a private corporation, occasioning much scandal.

The amendment proposed by Mr. Hepburn avoided that very vice, by providing that the canal shall be constructed, owned and operated by the government. That was offered as a substitute for the other proposition which had been before Congress ever since he had been a member. For himself he preferred the substitute, and hoped that without a palpable violation of the rules, the House would have an opportunity to pass upon it.

His purpose, Mr. Bailey said, was to call attention to the fact that the rule which Mr. Cannon held to be so sacred in this particular instance, had been violated by the committee on appropriations in every bill it reported.

Mr. Bailey said that in violating the rule the committee was more reprehensible, if at all, than in reporting unauthorized appropriations. In the latter case no permanent injury could be done the people; in the former great and lasting damage might ensue. As to the rules themselves, Mr. Bailey said that he was not at all sure that they were advisable or desirable if literally enforced. Some of the greatest reforms achieved in England had been secured by amendment to the great money bills of the British parliament, and he was not sure that it was wise to deprive the legislative branch of the government of the power thus to bring the executive into harmony with it.

Mr. McEnery Makes Explanations.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—For the first time this week the session of the Senate was opened by prayer yesterday, the chaplain's attendance having been prevented by the storm of the last two days. The storm was the topic of his prayer.

A bill authorizing the president to appoint as cadet at the Naval Academy Osborn W. Deignan, in recognition of "his conspicuously gallant service as a sailor of the United States in the sinking of the Merrimac in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba," was reported and passed.

Mr. McEnery, Democrat of Louisiana, rose to a privileged question on the subject of suggestions made in the debate Tuesday implying that his resolution which was passed Tuesday was different from that which he had originally introduced. He made a detailed explanation of the alterations made and said that no material change had been made in the resolution. As to Mr. Hoar's intimation that the resolution had been introduced in the interests of the sugar planters of Louisiana, Mr. McEnery said that it was an entire misapprehension; that the sugar planters of Louisiana concurred with the sentiment of the senator from Massachusetts in opposition to the peace treaty. As a body, he said, the sugar planters were opposed to it, and expected that he (Mr. McEnery) would vote against ratification. He had voted without any consultation with them for he did not represent sugar planters in the state, but came from the northern portion of Louisiana, which was devoted exclusively to the cultivation of cotton. The people of that region, he said, were to a man in favor of the ratification of the treaty.

The Senate went into executive session at 12.30 o'clock.

To Honor Miss Gould.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—A bill was reported from the military affairs committee of the Senate extending the appreciation of Congress to Miss Helen Miller Gould for patriotic services during the late war and providing that a solid gold medal be presented to her by the president.

Mr. Hoar objected to its present consideration. He held that some general policy ought to be adopted with respect to the conferring of such favors by Congress. Every citizen who was desirous of such an honor and did not receive it, would, he thought, suffer some disparagement by reason of the selection of some one person for the honor. Subsequently Mr. Hoar, having examined the bill, withdrew his objection and it was passed.

The President Confident.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—It is denied in the most emphatic terms that the administration has abandoned hope of passing the army reorganization bill this session, and is willing to accept a compromise.

There was an important conference at the White House on this bill late yesterday afternoon and the president received fresh assurances from Democratic sources of support for the bill, and gave orders to continue the fight for its adoption this session.

CONNECTICUT WELL TELEPHONED.

All but Four Towns Have a Station—A Fight on.

New Haven, Feb. 16.—A bill which came into the state legislature on the last day open for new business may cause one of the sharpest contests of the session. It provides for the incorporation of a new telephone company with substantially the powers of the Southern New England Company to maintain a telephone service in the state.

Its incorporators include several prominent Boston men, and of its counsel is ex-Governor Waller, who has been of late years closely identified with trolley enterprises in Connecticut. The projected company agrees to make a considerable reduction in telephone rates. The old company, the Southern New England, about a third of the stock of which is held by the Bell Company, is expected to make a vigorous resistance to the new company, at least as regards the grant of any special privileges.

The old company, which has been in existence many years, now has more than ten thousand stations in the state and has given a good service, although there has been some complaint as to rates. It reaches all but fourteen of the 168 towns in the state, and has been for years charging a considerable amount of construction to operating expenses, and burying wires with a view to meeting possible competition, and forcing any competitor to bury its wires also. In only some half a dozen towns of consequence are there now local competitors with the Southern New England.

PARKHURSTING IN PHILADELPHIA.

Thirty-nine Preachers Went Slumming and Saw the Vice of Quakertown.

Philadelphia, Feb. 16.—Thirty-nine clergymen of this city, including Archdeacon Brady, have been Parkhursting and have witnessed in low resorts indescribable scenes of vice. This each of them avows in a letter addressed by them to each candidate for mayor.

In this letter the clergymen ask each candidate to declare himself on the subject of the enforcement of laws relative to the social evil, gambling, illegal liquor selling, etc.

The ministers say they visited with agents of the Law and Order Society low resorts in every part of the city. They found the gown wide open, witnessed "indescribable bestiality," and found immoral plays at low theatres, witnessed by little boys.

Drunken revelries at balls are described, and the results of the patronage of saloons by well dressed women who freely commingled with the men, are commented upon.

President's Boston Trip.

The president was accompanied by Secretary Alger, Secretary Long, Secretary Bliss, Postmaster General Smith and Private Secretary Porter and Mr. Cortelyou. Secretary Gage, who was called to Chicago by the death of his brother-in-law, will probably not be able to attend the Home Market Club dinner in Boston with the president owing to the storm blockade.

The president and party will leave Boston on the return trip on Friday night, arriving here early on Saturday morning. The president has not yet decided whether or not to address the Massachusetts legislature on Friday.

Fire in Brooklyn Navy Yard.

New York, Feb. 16.—Fire broke out shortly after six o'clock last night in the boiler and machine shops at the Brooklyn navy yard, and within an hour they were destroyed. The boiler and machine shops are in separate, although connected buildings. From these the fire spread to the foundry, where it was confined.

Nothing remains of the battleship Maine in the United States now but scattered relics and an imperishable memory. The original plans and patterns of the American man of war which was destroyed by a Spanish mine just one year ago to the day, were burned in the Brooklyn navy yard fire last night.

But they were mere assets of sentiment. Other property, the most valuable of its kind in the country, was lost when building No. 28, the largest in the yard, and called the machine shop, with all that it contained, was burned to ashes or licked by flames into charred and twisted masses of junk. The loss reaches to nearly $2,000,000.

Boys Saved From the Ice.

Greenport, Feb. 16.—The three boys who went duck hunting and were supposed to have perished, have been rescued. With flags streaming and whistles screaming, the tug Alert, which started from Greenport, steamed up the bay at 2 o'clock yesterday with the boys on board and in good condition. Nearly 500 friends of the boys gathered on the wharf to greet them.

Mr. Tuthill, father of one of the boys, who had personally conducted the search, broke down and wept before the crowd at finding his son alive and well.

New York, Feb. 16.—Lying off Tompkinsville, S. I., awaiting orders to proceed south for the winter manoeuvres, are the New York, the Marblehead and the Massachusetts. They will shortly be joined by other warships.

Repairs on the Massachusetts, which was badly damaged by running on Diamond Reef, off Governor's island, several weeks ago, have just been completed, and the battleship left the navy yard and dropped down to the anchorage off Tompkinsville.

She owes salaries to her company, amounting to about $9,000, and says she only has $100 worth of wearing apparel.

Rapacity of a Water Company.

Newark is confronted with a problem now that shows the rapacity of capitalists who think only of mulcting a community for all it is worth. The corporation that is demonstrating these grasping prospensities is the East Jersey Water Company.

Within the last few days Newark has been threatened with a water famine unless the usual supply of God's fluid, intended for free use of mankind, that is furnished the city under contract by the East Jersey Water Company, could be augmented by the addition of a few million gallons each day. It seems that the East Jersey Water Company is under contract to furnish the city with 27,500,000 gallons a day. The company is not obliged to furnish another gallon to the city unless it wants to, and its only desire to do so is guaged under circumstances that are as mean and as extortionate as one can possibly imagine.

On the Street and Water Commissioners devolves the duty of furnishing the city with an ample supply of water. These officials have endeavored to prevail upon the East Jersey Water Company to furnish the extra amount of water needed, but it has been steadily refused. It is tacitly understood, however, that if the Street and Water Commissioners would agree to alter their contract with the company, allowing the latter to enter into agreement that would extend to it far-reaching and undeserved concessions, then the water would be supplied as desired and needed. In other words, the limit of 27,500,000 gallons, which is totally inadequate, is used as a club to compel the city to bow to the water company.

Thus far the city officials have been firm in their attitude not to allow the purposes of the water company to prevail, but in doing so they have been obliged to take recourse to a method which has subjected to much severe criticism from people who do not understand the situation That is, they have drawn on the Passaic river water, which is considered to be impure and unsuited for household purposes. Result, a great hue and cry against the contamination of the usual supply of city water by the Passic river flow.

The necessities of the situation, however, precludes any other recourse, and Newark citizens are now in deadly fear of the evil effects of the contaminated water which the present arrangement brings about.

This deplorable condition of affairs is due to the avariciousness of the East Jersey Water Company, which has gained a practical monopoly of the pure water supply for Newark and holds the city at its mercy. Such instances as this cause little wonder that there is an increasing demand for the curtailment of the privileges granted great corporations who deal in public commodities.

The Hunterdon Democrat, in considering the proposed change in the manner of publishing the laws, says: "The present system has had a fair trial and from a point of publicity has proven a flat failure, and we believe that Governor Voorhees will sign a bill passed by the Legislature that is reasonable in its demands and that will accomplish the end of giving publicity to the acts of the Legislature. Every newspaper man we have heard talk says that the old law was abused; that being the case, Senator Voorhees did right in attacking it We believe in publicity in all public matters. We believe that the greatest publicity for the least cost is had through the columns of the newspapers of the State, and we believe that if the present Legislature and the Governor can be sure that a plan is presented whereby the acts of the Legislature may be made known to all the peole of the State without the method being made a reward or punishment to newspapers by the politician, the present Legislature will pass and the Governor will sign such a bill."

James VanHise, who is somewhat well-known in this vicinity for the dexterity and cool manner in which he caused two Somerset county murderers to expiate their crimes on the gallows in the county jail at Somerville, declares that the business of hanging people is getting very poor. Consequently, he is an applicant for the position of Fish and Game Commissioner in Essex county. Hangman VanHise says that there is only one more job in his line in New Jersey in prospect, and he has got to do something to turn an honest penny and earn a living. We suspect that Hangman VanHise's plight is brought about by the slick practices of the criminal lawyers, for certainly there seems to be no diminution of murders in these parts. Having destroyed his professional prospects, the lawyers ought to be considerate enough to see that he gets some sort of a job. It is "up" to the lawyers. Now let's see how quick they get VanHise a job.

If the G. O. P. leaders can help it Democratic intermeddling with the things that the Legislature shall be held accountable for, will be not tolerated. The Republican powers that be will have a hard time, however, to keep their own rank and file in the straight and narrow path.

It is stated that four other States are going into competition with New Jersey in the business of incorporating corporations and trusts at a low rate of fees. The honest-minded people of New Jersey won't complain if some of this disreputable business goes elsewhere.

Yesterday was the first anniversary of the destruction of the battleship Maine. That occurrence marked the beginning of one of most wonderful years in our National life. And there is no telling where the trend of events growing out of the tragedy will end.

The Paterson Press, one of the most conservative and sensible papers in New Jersey, remarks that "municipal franchise should extend for a longer period than twenty-five years." That's right.

A $10,000,000 trust for the control of radiators has been formed under the New Jersey State laws. The next thing in line, we suppose, will be a refrigerator trust.

Elizabeth is earnestly agitating the question of securing better streets. Elizabeth needs them.

We observe that century bicycle runs are at a discount now.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

It is said that the State association of justices of the peace have decided to postpone action to secure legislation in their behalf until next winter, when they think their organization will be strong. They think wrong. The antipathy among the people at large to the present justice of the peace system in New Jersey grows more pronounced every day.—Plainfield Press.

Don't tell the poor fellows that. Let them be happy while they may in the delusion that they are popular to the verge of unanimity.—New York Tribune.

* * * * *

The Legislature ought to ascertain, as a first step, what advantage to the State in maintaining more than a single regiment of efficient soldiers; then whether there are enough Guardsmen left in the State to make up one complete regiment. If so, the National Guard ought to be organized on that basis, under a competent colonel and so divided among the cities of the State that a suitable force could be mustered at any point to quell ady local disturbance.—Trenton True American.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Many prominent women in Plainfield who are supposed to take frequent trips to New York, were somewhat puzzled last week at the receipt of a letter beginning "Dear Eleanor" and suggesting in the most friendly and confidential manner that the person addressed join the writer at a new luncheon and tea room on Broadway. The place of rendezvous is described as "the cutest place in New York," adding "they have the daintiest cooking and loveliest service I ever saw." The letter concluded with this sentence: "I am writing this on a sheet of their own paper, so you can cut the monogram off for your collection. Isn't it pretty? Sincerely, Helen." Many a woman thought "somebody has blundered" and returned the letter to the postman, who exclaimed "Oh! I have had dozens of them returned and they are making us a lot of bother. It's only an advertisement."

—See fish car add on page 8.

—William G. Carr, of Brooklyn, will speak, and G. Morgan Stricklett, will sing, at the Y. M. C. A. meeting Sunday at 4:15 p. m. Mr. Carr is a powerful speaker, and Mr. Stricklett is the tenor soloist of the Crescent Avenue church choir, and a member of the celebrated Lotus Club.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors ordered it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, Feb. 16—Joseph Maier, proprietor of the Park Hotel, and Miss Annie Doyle, of Cranford, were quietly married Tuesday afternoon at the Roman Catholic church of that place. Rev. Father Smyth, of Plainfield, officiated. Miss Lena Maier, sister to the groom, was bridemaid, and Terrence Doyle, the bride's brother, was best man. After the ceremony the couple left for a wedding journey, after which they will reside at the hotel here.

The trolley track between Bound Brook and here remains unopened, and there are no prospects of cars being run to New Brunswick for some time to come. There is much satisfaction expressed at the rapidity with which the Plainfield company opened communications.

William H. Cole, who has insisted that there will be 17 snow storms this year, seems to be right. Altogether now there have been 14, and Mr. Cole is sure of getting in three more before the cold weather ends.

Mrs. Samuel Vermule, who was formerly a resident of the borough, died last week at the home of a relative in Somerville. Mr. Vermule formerly kept a tailor shop here.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bennett who have been spending the past few days with friends on church street, have returned to their home in Boston.

The young ladies of the Presbyterian church, are getting up an entertainment to be given in the church next Thursday evening.

Lud Frazee was the only man in Greenbrook yesterday to fling a flag at half mast to the breeze for the loss of the Maine.

The monthly meeting of the local clergymen was held Tuesday in the study of the Presbyterian church.

Irving Martine, of New York, spent Sunday and Monday with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. A. I. Martine.

George Schenck has recovered from an attack of the grip, and yesterday was back at his store again.

Rev. Mr. Andrews, of Westfield, will preach in the Methodist church the first Sunday in March.

Randolph Runyon, who has been quite ill, was able to be out yesterday for the first time.

Mrs. M. L. Rarrick has returned from a visit with friends in Freehold.

Mrs. R. J. Swackhamer has recovered from an attack of the pleurisy.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press)

New Market, Feb. 16—A quiet wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Day when Miss Elizabeth Day, their oldest daughter, was married to Franklin VanNuis, a well-known resident of Piscataway township. The ceremony was performed at 5:30 o'clock by Rev. William T Dorward, of the Stelton Baptist church.

The bride was dressed in white organdie, with pearl and satin trimmings, and carried a bunch of bridal roses. The couple walked up to face the clergyman to the music of the wedding march played by Miss Irene Day, the bride's sister. After the ceremony a short reception was held, after which the couple left to take up their residence on a large farm which the groom owns.

The bride is well-known here, having been postmistress for nearly two years. The couple were well-remembered with presents of all kinds, useful and ornamental.

Among the invited guests were: Lieut. Morris, Mrs. E. Symons, Mrs. Edith Stebbins, Miss Jane and Miss Julia Melhardo, Mr. and Mrs. S. E Leith, Mrs. Bessie McKenzie, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Sandford, J. D. F. Randolp, Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Abrens, Mrs. Mary VanNuis, Miss VanNuis, Miss Laura VanNuis, Miss Mamie, Miss Frankie and James Phillips, George Viele, Mr. and Mrs. Charles VanNuis, Alfred and William VanNuis, Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Nelson, Miss Emma Nelson, Miss Alice Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. James Day, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Day, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Labow, Dr. Frank Adair, Mr. and Mrs. George Harris, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Dayton, Miss Mary and Sarah Phillips, Herbert Benward and Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Mosher.

You are making a great mistake in not sending for a 10 cent trial size of Ely's Cream Balm. It is a specific for catarrh and cold in the head. We mail it, or the 50 cent size. Druggists all keep it. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

Catarrh caused difficulty in speaking and to a great extent loss of hearing. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm dropping of mucus has ceased, voice and hearing have greatly improved.—J. W. Davidson, Att'y at Law, Monmouth, Ill.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. STORY OF A STAMP.

The night our story opens, the river was covered with a thin sheet of ice. The men in the little room were having a hot argument. On a small table stood an iron box, a small affair, the lid of which was open, showing it to be filled with documents of various kinds. Besides this bock lay a large package with many seals, addressed and stamped. The stamp on it was—the twelve pence black.

This package was evidently the bone of contention between the two men. They were strangely contrasted. One, an elderly man with a firm, resolute look, his hair streaked with gray, and the other a dissipated looking fellow of about thirty or so. It was he who was walking angrily up and down, while the other was standing by the table, his hand resting on the package.

"No, Clement," he said, "I cannot let you have any of this money. It does not even belong to me. I was entrusted by Francois Rochette, of Quebec, to collect his accounts here, which, I have done. To-morrow, the money will be mailed to him. No man shall ever say that Charles Goodwin betrayed his trust."

"But," here broke in Clement, "I must have money," and under his breath he added, "I will have it, too."

"You are always wanting money, Clement Hanson," retorted Goodwin. "Ever since I helped you up, you have been drawing money out of me, and it has got to stop. When your father, who was my best friend, died, his last words to me were, 'Charles, take care of my boy.' I promised him to do so, and have done so. I gave you a good position, gave you money whenever you wanted it, and now, because I have no money on hand, you demand me to rob those who trust me."

He had got excited while he spoke, and without knowing it, had taken his hand from the package on the table. Clement saw this, with a sudden spring he reached the table, seized the precious package. Quick as he was, however, Goodwin was nearer to the door and reached it first. He faced round and cried,—

"Thief, would you make me a ruined man? I, who have done so much for you? Give me back that package, or I shall take it from you."

"Ha!" laughed Hanson, "I have it now and I am going to keep it."

Goodwin made a spring at him, grasping him by the neck, and wrenched the package from him. Struggling to and fro, they upset the lamp, which fell on the floor with a crash, the burning oil quickly setting fire to the wooden partitions. Goodwin, seeing the place on fire, released his hold on Hanson, and throwing the package into the iron box, he slammed the cover, and grasping it in his arms, made for the window. Hanson who had reached the door suddenly pulled out a pistol, and leveling it, fired and saw Goodwin fall. Then he turned and fled down the stairs, for the fire was spreading rapidly, muttering to himself,—

"In the morning when they search the ruins, the box will be uninjured and will pass into my possession."

But Charles Goodwin was not dead, although badly wounded. With a superhuman effort he reached the window, and lifting the precious box, put all his remaining strength into a last effort and threw it far out of the window into the river. It crashed through the thin ice and immediately sank.

In those days the fire department was different from what it now is. The company reaching the scene first received a bonus from the insurance companies, consequently there was a great rivalry between the various stations. The man who brought the alarm to the station received a shilling. When the first hose company arrived at the fire, the house was almost destroyed and all that could be done was to save neighboring property. Next morning, the ruins were diligently searched by Hanson and others, but all to no purpose, but although Goodwin's remains were found, no trace of the iron box was discovered. Goodwin's death was put down to accident. Hanson was killed soon after in a drunken brawl.

Now let us skip forty-one years. All this time the iron box had lain on the bottom of the St. Lawrence covered with an ever-increasing layer of mud. In 1892 Dredge Number Four of the Montreal Harbor Commissioners, was dredging the channel opposite Jacques Cartier Square. The depth of the channel was being increased from twenty to thirty-wo feet. Suddenly one of the men on the mud scow on to which the earth, et cetera, taken up by the dredge was dumped, noticed a rusty iron box. Nobody was looking, so, securing it, he stowed it away inside the locker where he kept his clothes. That night he took it home, and on top lay the package with a stamp on it, such as he had never seen before.

This man was honest, he was not going to keep the money and papers if the heirs of the rightfully owner could be found after these many years. He went to his lawyer who after a long search found the heirs. In his gratitude at recovering the papers, which really were valuable title deeds, he presented the man with the package on which was the rare twelve pence, and with a handsome cheque besides. Through his lawyer, the man sold the twelve pence to a Montreal philatelist, for three hundred and fifty dollars, and it now rests as the gem "par excellence" in a superb B. N. A. collection. And its present owner has good reason to be proud of it, for few stamps have such a history.

ADVICE FOR PRIESTS.

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND COUNSELS SEMINARIANS ON THE LOVE OF STUDY.

He Says a Priest May Be Judged by His Library—Advises the Cultivation of Judicious Reading and Personal, Individual Thought.

Archbishop Ireland recently addressed the students of Kenrick seminary, St. Louis, on the subject "After the Love of God, the Love of Books." The eloquent archbishop earnestly counseled the seminarians to prepare by wide reading and serious thought, so that they might be always ready to defend the truth.

"I think," said he, "a priest may be judged by his library. When I go into a priest's study and see many books and when he can talk about them, I say there is something in him. By taking in knowledge he is able to give it out. When you meet a man who talks little of books, people may say it is humility, but I say it is vacuity. So my advice is, cultivate a passion for books. It will give you arms for the conflict. Men love learning, they love ideas, they love thoughts. If you have a message to convey to the world, the American people want to hear it. In no city, village or town in America will the people refuse to listen to the truth. If you cultivate a love of study and of books, your library will be a happiness to you. In the many hours of solitude and loneliness which every priest may experience we may find company and comfort in our books. I pity the priest who has not a love for books. I pity him from my heart. A love of books drives away the devil; it prevents idleness. Study brings down upon the mind the perennial freshness of eternal truth. It illumines the mind with the light which is not of earth. Then love study, love it today, love it tomorrow, love it always.

"If you go forth into the world with a love of study, the seminary shall have done its duty. Since you desire to enter the ranks of Christ's priesthood, aim high. A noble ambition is praiseworthy. There is enough of mediocrity. There is too much of it. We want men who are ambitious—men who may impress and win the attention of the world. We want men who with enthusiastic earnestness carry the banner of Christ's truth into the world. In other days the church had the pomp of court and the arms of kings to assist her. Today she stands divested of all these, with nothing but the power of truth to win the souls of men. You are called to give this truth. You must make this truth the very substantial form of your mind. Reading judiciously will assist you in this. Among priests and students there is a good deal of reading—a vast amount of it—without any practical result. This is superficial reading. Whatever you read endeavor to profit thereby. Think over what you read, make it your own. Let the fruit of your reading be changed into the very substance of your intellectual life, just as the food of your body becomes part of your flesh and blood.

"There are many young men who pass through the seminary without any personal thought. Personal, individual thought is what we must cultivate and strive for. Your years spent in the seminary are not entirely for the accumulation of knowledge, but to think. Thinking is education. When a subject is presented to you, examine it for yourself. Do not dismiss it from your mind until you are able to say you understand it. Do not think a certain statement or proposition is true merely because your professor says so. Know the reason of it in your own mind. When the subject is presented, revolve it in your own intellect, analyze it, create objections, make it your own. Don't pass over any matter with only a half knowledge of it. Better do one subject well than pass over 20 in a slipshod manner. After this process use your pen and ink. Write down your thoughts. This will serve to preserve them in your memory. I lately came across a passage in St. Augustine which struck me very much. It was this, 'Whatever I learned I have learned by writing.' I really believe that it would be a good thing if every student or priest were for awhile the editor of a newspaper. It would make you ready men. The priest must be a ready man. Not that I would not encourage careful preparation on all occasions, but in the life of every priest there will come times when he is compelled to speak without the opportunity of preparation, and on these occasions our habits of reading and writing will serve us well.

"Remember that the mission is yours to give truth to the world. If you would give out that truth in all its vigor you must know the language in which you are to convey that truth. This does not mean a mere grammatical knowledge; it means a knowledge of the literature; it means the cultivation of a style. We must have a style for our thoughts. We must present the truth with all the beauty of diction and elegance of thought of which we are capable. Why is it that in the world today error is rampant? It is because the propagators of these errors have dressed their thoughts in beautiful language. In conclusion, my dear young men, I would say I hope my few words to you have not been cast upon the air, but that they will assist you just a little to form in your hearts a more passionate love of study and help you to become true seminarians."—London Catholic Times and Opinion.

Royal Gift For Mgr. Stonor.

The queen has sent a splendid ring to Mgr. Stonor in recognition of his services to the British Catholics at Rome. The ring was presented to Mgr. Stonor by Sir Philip Currie, who gave a reception at the embassy in honor of the occasion, which was attended by a number of members of the papal court.—London Catholic Times and Opinion.

A PROTESTANT TRIBUTE.

Catholic Women of Mexico Are Invariably Sweet, Good and True.

An able Protestant journalist, F. R. Guernsey, the Mexican correspondent of the Boston Herald, in a recent letter speaks as follows of the women of the neighboring republic:

"There are strongly radical people in these Latin lands, but they are in a great minority. The Catholic church sways the hearts of the people, and one may even note that in these latter days of a great and scientific century there is a revival of Catholicism going on.

"The women folk are earnest believers, and they are almost invariably sweet and good and all that true women should be. If the Catholic church is that defiler of all things pure that the harsh critics of her faith and practice say, why are not the women of Latin America vile at heart, corrupt and degraded? Put all that sort of talk—and I have heard it from men who should be better informed—put it down to ignorance. Let Catholicism be what you will in the way of an overdecorated form of Christianity, seek for all the pagan rites carefully concealed about her premises, if you care to, but admit that the essentials of the Christian faith are hers and that she communicates them to her daughters. If there is one thing above all others that the Catholic church may boast of, if boasting be the proper word, it is the lovable woman character it produces. If the men of Latin America get into heaven by a scratch, it will be because their women folk, pure and noble, have opened to them the gates of paradise."

NOT ENOUGH MARRIAGES.

Father Carroll of Jersey City Stirs Up His Young Parishioners.

The Rev. Lawrence C. M. Carroll, rector of St. Patrick's church, Jersey City, after complimenting the congregation at all the masses on Sunday for their liberality during the past year, made some remarks about the falling off in the number of marriages. The contributions, he said, amounted to $26,210.10, which is considerably in excess of the contributions in any other parish in the diocese. The number of deaths was 250, baptisms, 260, and marriages only 53.

"I cannot account for the small number of marriages," said Father Carroll, "except by the fact that the war took away from us many of our young men. I am afraid that our young women are altogether too stylish, and expect too much. They want a house and lot and the house furnished before they will consent to marry. Their parents did not have all these things. I have been told that some of the young men and young women in this parish have been keeping company for from six to ten years. That is altogether too long. I hope the young men will take more courage on this question of marriage, and I also hope that the young people will not try to be too well off before making up their minds to get married."—New York Sun.

Some Things Catholics Have Done.

Catholic monks were the first to put floating bells over the sunken rocks as a warning to mariners in fog and darkness. Cardinal Stephen Langton was the first to found a society for putting fixed lights on dangerous headlands to guide ships safely on their way. He called it the guild of St. Clement and the Most Blessed Trinity, and Trinity House at the present day, which rules all lighthouses in England, is its successor. Cardinal Simon Lugham was the first to establish schools in England for painting, architecture and the cultivation of orchards, gardens and fishponds. William of Wykeham, the great bishop of Winchester, was the first to introduce the system of making good roads. The daily date so familiar to us on the top of every newspaper is due to the labors of the Jesuit Father Clavius, performed at the order of Pope Gregory XIII. The life of Leonardo da Vinci is a wonderful lesson in architecture, engineering, art and science. Modern physiology is based on the work performed by Fustachius, Fallopius, Vesalivs and Malpighi, and Bishop Steno was the first to write a systematic treatise on anatomy.—Father Mathew Herald.

Monument to Bossuet.

A monument is about to be erected, after over two centuries, to the memory of Bossuet, in the cathedral of Meaux, in which he preached some of his most famous sermons. The committee which has been formed to raise the necessary money for the memorial includes the name of almost every illustrious French man of letters of the present day, M. Brunetiere, the editor of the Revue des Deux Mondes, being one of the most active promoters of the scheme.—London Catholic Times and Opinion.

Cardinal Satolli to Visit Us.

A dispatch from Rome says: It is stated that Cardinal Satolli will visit the United States early in the new year. At the Vatican it is admitted that his eminence contemplates such a trip, but all inquirers are gravely assured that it is due entirely to urgent calls on private business.—New York Sun.

"The Virgin's Shrine."

Who kneels in silent rapture on the sod,
In open sky or on the marble floor
Of some dark church, his soul's true prayers says o'er,
Adores the holy motherhood of God.

The shrine of Mary is not reverenced less
By men whose feet are swift, whose arms are strong,
Than by sweet woman souls to whom belong
By right maternity and gentleness.

All lofty things in our conception meet
In the divine, all beautiful and good.
The sterner attributes of fatherhood
Alone make not for man a God complete.

If we at Mary's altars best may feel
God's true maternity, there should we kneel.

—Arthur Wentworth Hamilton Eaton in "Arcadian Legends and Lyrics," 1889.

LOVE OR MONEY?

BY JESSE LEETE.

VIII.

A week had passed by, a week so full of hopes and fears that it seemed a year, and again Cecil Hartley stood in the presence of the first lawyer in the land. The whirl of conflicting emotions through which he had passed had ended in the calm that follows a storm, and now his steady, self-possessed bearing was all that the most phlegmatic of Englishmen could desire. Whatever the gift Fate had in store—golden apple or coals of fire—he would take it with unshrinking hand.

And so Fate, seeing she was powerless to frighten, smiled graciously upon him once again. His Lordship's first words put heart of grace into him immediately, so cordial and kindly were the tones of that sometimes awful voice.

"Well, Mr. Hartley, have you come to-day to tell me that, after mature reflection, you wish to withdraw that rash proposal to which you unfortunately committed yourself last June?"

His Lordship's piercing eyes twinkled as he spoke, quite like those of an ordinary mortal.

"Because it is perfectly obvious that you cannot in common fairness be held bound by an offer made under such a misunderstanding as yours seems to have been, according to what I can gather from the lady's somewhat confused account. It is one thing to assume the charge of an insignificant wanderer, with an unfortunate family history, and quite another to undertake the management of a spoilt young heiress and her estates. What do you say, Mr. Hartley?"

Cecil laughed aloud in the gladness of his heart.

"I say, My Lord, that had the matter been left to my own choice, I should certainly have preferred the insignificant wanderer. But, the Fates having willed that I should bestow my heart blindfolded, it is not for me to question or reverse their decision."

"So you won't accept a friendly warning? Well, well, if you will have your own way you must put up with the consequences. Excuse me a moment, Mr. Hartley."

With a step almost boyish in its quick, light energy, the Lord Chancellor left the room. Before Cecil had recovered from the surprise of this interruption he heard a rustle of silken garments behind him. He rose to his feet and turned sharply. With rose cheeks and softly smiling lips Grace Thornton stood motionless in the middle of the room. The heavy silken curtain hiding the door by which she had entered was still swaying slowly into its accustomed folds.

Cecil sprang eagerly toward her. She did not stir, and something in the gentle submissiveness of her attitude put sudden daring into his heart. He drew her quickly to him and laid a lover's kiss upon her lips.

Laughing, blushing and frowning, all in a moment, Grace disengaged herself as soon as might be.

"Still rash and impetuous as ever! How could you dare to take things for granted in such a fashion?"

For immediate answer the culprit took her hand and placed her beside him on a comfortable divan. Then he answered, with at least an outward show of due penitence:

"It was abominable of me! Don't ask how I dared do it, for I don't know myself. You just took me so by surprise—and you looked so sweet—I—I couldn't help it!"

Miss Thornton laughed.

"And yet you expect me to hand over myself and all my future life to the care of such a—such a creature of impulse!"

"So long as the impulses are so entirely praiseworthy, what matter?"

"You are not afraid, then," she said, softly, after a long, sweet silence, "of the responsibility of all that horrid money? I used to think of it as a great wall of gold, shutting me out from every hope of ever being loved for myself alone."

"Was that why you kept me in ignorance so long? And let me blunder as I did?"

"Yes. If only you knew how many a mortification my money had brought upon me before I resolved to fly from it all a little while with Aunt Annie! Of course, I am still a minor; but my allowance is a very large one, and every form of fortune-hunter, male and female, seemed already to have marked me down as lawful prey. Again and again I hoped that I had won a little disinterested affection; but something always came to open my eyes!"

"Eyes so sweet and true! They might well have won a world of love had you been a beggar-maid!"

"Flattering King Cophetua! Well, I was heart-sick of it all. I got my guardian's leave to travel for six months with Mrs. Armytage. You know the rest. We left our maids at home—bought the plainest clothes we could find—and went forth in search of a little peace. It was lovely to go just where we pleased, and do just as we liked, for once!"

"And how could you feel sure that I had not penetrated your artful disguise? How came you to trust me more than others?"

Miss Thornton hesitated.

"I don't quite know—perhaps it was instinct. Or perhaps it was just—your honest eyes!" She drooped her own for a moment, then looked up laughing again. "And, besides, you know—from the very first day you contradicted and corrected me as I had never been contradicted and corrected in my life!"

Cecil looked at her in bewilderment.

"I? Contradict and correct you? I"—

"Of course you did. A hundred times!"

"Tell me one! I can't believe it!"

"Well, didn't you tell me that my Italian 'had a decidedly British flavor,' when I asked you about my accent?"

"Oh! Well, you know, you really did speak Italian very badly then!"

"Of course I did; but no one else ever told me so. Then there was my favorite hat—how you reviled it!"

"And wasn't it an absurd headgear to wear on board ship in a stiff breeze?"

"No doubt it was. But no man had ever before found fault with a hat of mine. If I had worn a coal-scuttle they would have vowed it was charming."

"You must have thought me a perfect bear!"

"Not at all. It was infinitely refreshing to be treated as a reasonable human being, instead of as the heiress to so many thousands a year. But it made me more and more careful not to destroy the charm by giving you any clew which might have identified me. Fortunately, my name alone is not so uncommon as to attract attention."

"And you let me fancy you"—

"Under a cloud!' But I did not know that till—till that day at Alassio." Amusement and shyness were struggling for possession of her rosy face. "It was too comical an idea! I didn't laugh, because you were so much in earnest, and I was too—too happy! And then you are rash and impetuous—you know it! And I wanted to make sure that a few months' absence would not make you forget me. And then there were my guardians"——

Just then a door handle rattled ominously.

"So, Mr. Hartley, in spite of my express injunction, I find you again in communication with my ward! How are you going to purge yourself, sir, of this contempt of court?"

"My Lord, this, my fair temptation, is also my justification. Will you not relieve your court of an onerous charge by giving her into my safe keeping? So far as human love and care can make her happy, she shall be happy."

"So half-a-score of others have told me already!" said His Lordship grimly. "What claim can you advance to the prize, Mr. Hartley, that they could not as plausibly bring forward?"

"That question, My Lord, the lady can better answer for me than I for myself."

Cecil took his sweetheart's unresisting hand and led her to where her guardian sat. There he released her, and stepped back a pace or two. A brave, blushing beauty illuminated Grace Thornton's delicate face as she held out both her hands to him again and drew her suitor forward.

"He loved me for myself alone," she said, with a little tremble in her usually clear tones. She could say no more but it sufficed.—The Argosy.

A DUTCHESS' ROMANCE.

The most striking figure in the Socialist Congress in Breslau was a tall woman about forty years old, wearing a black silk skirt, a fiery red silk blouse and a huntress's hat. She was in attendance daily, and watched the debates with the eagerness of a zealous partisan. She has a curious and interesting history. She was born Duchess of Wurtemberg, and christened Pauline Mathilde Ida, and is a sister of Duke William, of Wurtemberg, a near successor to the throne. In 1880 a member of the royal family of Wurtemberg was taken seriously ill at Carlsruh, and Professor Biermer, of Berlin, was summoned to attend the patient. Professor Biermer transferred the case to his assistant, Dr. Willim. The young and handsome Duchess Pauline fell violently in love with Dr. Willim while he was attending the sick man, and insisted on marrying him. Prolonged family opposition ensued, which ended in her relatives giving their assent, finding they could not overcome the determination of the Duchess to become the doctor's wife. Pauline thereupon resigned all her dynastic rights and titles, and by royal decree assumed the name of Von Kirchlach, under which she married Dr. Willim. The clergyman while performing the marriage ceremony was indiscreet enough to venture a remark on the difference of the social positions of the bride and bridegroom, whereupon the bride interrupted him and declared that she did not share the views expressed by the minister. On the contrary, she said, she looked up to her husband, whose social standing she regarded as equal to her own. Dr. Willim settled in Breslau, where he practises his profession. His wife is noted for her benevolence, and spends the greater part of the income from her handsome fortune in relieving the sick poor. Of late years she has been an ardent Socialist.

THE CROWN PRINCE OF GERMANY.

Among the numerous guests at Schaffhausen Hotel were two remarkably intelligent and well-behaved lads about twelve and thirteen years old, with their tutor, who seemed delighted with the grandeur of the waterfalls and the beauties of the surrounding country. On the morning of their departure for Constanz the elder of the two boys asked his tutor whether he might be permitted to himself give the usual gratuity to the nice-looking young woman who, in her picturesque national costume, had waited upon them, and the request was granted.

The young waitress thanked him very politely, and told him, with a shake of her pretty head, that she could not accept it. But the lad was not to be beaten so easily; he took his younger brother quickly on one side, and after a consultation they went out to a small bazaar in the park, and a few minutes later the elder brother called for the waitress and handed her a beautiful gold brooch, saying: "This is not money, and you must take it from me." The young daughter of the house, for such she was, gratefully accepted the present, and some day, when the donor wears the German imperial crown, she will perhaps show it proudly to her grandchildren as a souvenir of their Emperor's childhood.—Woman.

Big Spiders in Sumatra.

Professor J. E. Atwell, of Beaver Falls, Pa., has, says the Washington Times, just returned from the Island of Sumatra, where he has been pursuing some entomological investigations, paying particular attention to the spiders which abound on the island.

In conversation he grew eloquent on this subject. The Sumatra spiders, he explained, embrace some of the rarest spiders that exist.

The largest, as well as the most peculiar in the world, are found there. They are of all conceivable forms and colors, and some of them spin threads as thick and strong as grocer's twine. Some have square bodies set on long, red legs. Others have curiously intertwined green and yellow legs, supporting pear-shaped bodies.

One has a shell which looks like that of a snapping turtle with egg-shaped projections all over. This last grows to a prodigious size and preys on the largest of insects. It has been known to kill and devour small humming birds, which abound on the island.

Woolly Hair No More.

It is now the fashion among Afro-American belles to have the kinkiness in their hair ironed out. This peculiar mark of their race is a thing of which they are no longer proud.

St. Louis boasts at least two experts in the art of straightening colored hair. They charge high prices and do a flourishing business. Among their wealthy customers are the wives and daughters of Pullman car porters. It is a weary process, and results are slow in coming.

"A woman bicyclist was arrested on Fourteenth street a few minutes ago."

"What for?"

"Pedaling without a license."

JUDGE DAILEY'S CONVERSION.

He Interestingly Relates the Incident that Led Him to Investigate Spiritualism.

The subjects of spiritualism and spiritual manifestation never fails to interest, for those who believe are continually on the outlook for new evidence and new supporters of their belief, while even those who scoff are forced to admit that many manifestations actually occur which seemingly are unexplainable otherwise than by accepting the theory of a supernatural force unrecognized by science. One of the best known exponents of spiritualism is Judge Abram H. Dailey of Brooklyn, whose high position and intelligence gives peculiar emphasis to his opinions and beliefs. Interested in learning what influence has been brought to bear upon a mind naturally so practical and discriminating, strong enough to turn it in such a direction, a press representative sought an interview with Judge Dailey and was rewarded with a very interesting talk upon the subject.

"The son of New England parents, holding orthodox views, I was naturally religiously inclined," he began, "but there was so much that was mysterious and inconsistent in the Scriptures as expounded to me—so much that seemed unjust—that from early childhood I was continually searching and reaching out for myself. If it was true, I argued, that God had revealed himself to man in the early ages of the world, why were no such manifestations given in these days? We of to-day were His children just as truly as the men of old; we had the same trials and temptations and sorrows and longings; the same need of guidance and comfort; of present proof, however slight, of His existence and nearness. Why, then, should it be withheld from us? The great injustice of it smote me. Where is the earthly father that would thus desert His children and devote them to eternal punishment if they transgressed his laws, I asked.

"Search and reason as I would I could find no convincing proof of a personal God, no proof of a being who had the interest of every living creature at heart and only stood aloof because we refused to accept Him, and I came to believe that only through the study of nature and its inexorable laws could the solution of creation, life and eternity be solved.

"By this time I had finished my law studies, had begun to practise, and had a wife and little child, a frail little thing, who we were puzzled to note slept with her head and feet bent back and her body almost in a bow. Furthermore, her ankles were cold and lifeless to the touch.

"We were living in Barrington, Mass., and at the other end of the town was a Mrs. Clark, a poor, uneducated, but respectable and kind hearted woman whose powers as a medium had begun to make quite a stir in the community. My law partner, an impetuous young man, but straightforward and honest as the day, became intensely interested in the rumors concerning Mrs. Clark, and at length prevailed upon me against my will to accompany him to her house. She received us politely, conversed for a time on general topics, then after a while paused, her eyes closed, and when in a few moments she began to talk again it was as if an entirely different woman was in the room. Her voice and manner, and even her face, were changed.

"'I see a little child,' she began. 'See how far back she bends her head. It is because the light hurts her eyes and she tries to get away from it. It will injure her if they are not careful. And her ankles! See how deadly cold they are! The circulation is very bad. She must be treated,' and she mentioned in her trance certain remedies that should be administered.

"I was greatly impressed, for we had spoken of the child's condition to no one, and even if we had the woman's position was so removed from ours the matter could not have reached her ears. Furthermore, we found that what she said was true, for when we put the child to sleep in the dark her position remained natural and her circulation was greatly improved by the medicines advised. Still I was not drawn toward spiritualism; indeed, I was bitter against it, and there the matter rested.

About a year later this same little child became violently ill. Her temperature was very high, and her throat swollen shut. I waited until the physician told us we would have to lose her—that there was nothing more to be done—and then I said to him: 'Then, Doctor, I am going for Mrs. Clark.' 'Go, by all means,' he answered, 'and God speed you, for I can do no more.' We had removed to another town, some fifteen miles from our old home. It was a bitter winter night. The wind blew fiercely and the roads were deep with snow, but I got out my sleigh and drove all the way. It was midnight when I reached the house, but I succeeded in waking Mr. Clark, who put his head out of the window and spoke to me. When he heard my errand he flatly refused to let his wife come. 'You must be crazy,' he said, 'to ask a woman to ride fifteen miles on such a night as this. She can't go, and that's all there is about it,' and he was closing the window when I heard a call. 'Yes, I am going—wait for me,' and in a few moments she appeared, bundled in shawls and wraps from head to foot. When we reached home she warmed her clothing at the fire so as not to chill her, took the child on her lap and in a few moments went into a trance.

"'This case is dark—so dark!' she murmured. 'Still, there is a ray of light. It is the brain; you must bind wet cloths on the brain and wait till morning.' We bound the child's head as directed and in the morning she seemed a trifle better. Then Mrs. Clark went into a second trance.

"'The darkness is breaking away a little, still it is very black,' she said, 'but I can see a little cabin, a black man's cottage, and in it on a shelf herbs and barks. Brew these. The trouble is with the brain!' She then described minutely the cabin of a negro called Black Sam, which I was positive she had no knowledge of when in a normal condition. I procured the herbs, which our physician prepared and administered, and to-day the child is married and living in this city.

"Many claimed that the spirit of some great physician spoke through Mrs. Clark. Others claimed that it was the work of the devil, or that the woman was an impostor. As for myself I claimed no insight into the matter; only I said, if this be the devil's work, let us have more of it, or if this be the work of the sons of Belial, then they are angels. But even this apparent miracle did not convert me to spiritualism, and it was many years after I had left Massachusetts and settled in New York that in an endeavor to expose what I believed to be impostures I became convinced that in the air about us are innumerable intelligence, which at times, by the aid of certain sensitive and responsive organisms, such as are possessed by those known as mediums, are able to communicate with the material world."

Housecleaning by Wholesale

A professional housecleaner made her appearance in Washington several years ago, although the rise of the professional housecleaner in New York and other cities has only recently been heralded. This professional housecleaner of Washington came here from Dayton, Ohio, to visit some relatives after the death of her husband. In their Ohio household establishment the couple had always lived up to the husband's ample income, and when he died he left nothing. The Dayton woman arrived in Washington at the beginning of summer, and she noted the great number of houses in Washington that were closed up for the summer or about to be closed up. She was a born housekeeper, and she wondered if she couldn't make something by getting the contracts to give some of the houses about to be closed up a thorough overhauling from cellar to garret before the doors were locked and the residences turned over to the supervision of the night watchman. Her suggestion at the first residence at which she applied—that of a famous patentee of this city—was received with approval, and she persevered and got permission to overhaul the homes of nearly a hundred prominent Washington families about to leave the city for the hot weather. Then she hired a couple of colored women, assembled her cleaning gear and began work as the houses were closed. She put in the summer at the work, and when the occupants of the homes returned in the fall they found their residences as bright and clean as a gold dollar from cellar to basement. The Dayton woman charged varying fees for her work, and made a good bit of money at it during the first summer's work. She has since trebled her clientele, and now supervises the semi-annual housecleaning of many of the most wealthy residents in the district.—Washington Star.

A Well-Timed Rebuke.

The habit—for it is often nothing more—of deteriorating speech is so common that it would be well for all of us to stop and think about it, says Harper's Bazar.

This sort of thing is so often heard. "I don't think she is so very pretty as people say," or "I don't think he (or she) is so very clever"—or economical, or stylish, or bright, cheerful, or a thousand other things. We do not stop to think, that, while, perhaps, we do not think her so very pretty as we have heard, we do not think her pretty, and, again, if not very clever, surely interesting, and all the others in like measure. It is merely a habit with many people, not skin-deep, but just the cruel and unfortunate habit of depreciating speech. A woman with a sharp tongue, but with the tenderest of hearts, the most generous of natures, but with a keenly critical mind and a rare intuition as to character, was brought up "all standing," as she expressed it, after she had been talking one day with a friend about several people, and before a young girl who was visiting the friend.

In a sudden lull in the talk the girl said, as if by uncontrollable impulse, "Don't you like anybody?" "What do you mean?" said the startled woman. The girl blushed and hesitated, and then said, "Please pardon me, but it seemed so." Little more was said; it was passed off and passed by, as in the polite world things that are unpleasant are passed over; but into the heart of that woman the criticism sank deeply, and from that hour she watched and guarded her tongue. Now she does not depreciate in speech, and, if she cannot appreciate, is silent. It is well to remember the wise words of Emerson: "Omit the negative propositions. Don't waste yourself in rejection nor bark against the bad, but chant the beauty of the good." What a changed and better world we should all live in if we only followed that advice!

Farmer Oatbin (sadly)—Children are jest like a brood of young quail. As soon as they get old enough, away they go from the old nest in every direction.

Farmer Cornerib (more sadly)—Ya-as; jest like quail. As soon as they mate, away they come back to the old feeding ground again.—Judge.

Defendant Non-Suited

The appeal case of Anna Gwynette against Ismatiza Lepensky, was tried yesterday before Judge Vail, of the Common Pleas Court, and the defendant was non-suited. Several months ago Lepensky, who had been employed by Mrs. Gwynette as a hired man, sued Mrs. Gwynette for $34 which he claimed she owed him for wages. The suit was brought in Justice Mosher's court. Mrs. Gwynette made no appearance, but appealed the case to Elizabeth, and now has won it.

A horse belonging to the Electric Light Co., and driven by one of the linemen, ran away on West Fourth street last night and upset its driver. French after he had run a short distance.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

In a review of "Rip Van Winkle," to be presented by the Jeffersons at Music Hall Friday night of next week, The Pittsburg Despatch says:

The portrayal at the Alvin of the title role in America's classic drama, "Rip Van Winkle," by Thomas Jefferson, a son of that beloved actor whose name and self have been fused into the character for years, was distinctly pleasing. At both matinee and night yesterday the date will suggest the size of the audience. It was not demonstrative, nor was it disappointed. It manifestly enjoyed the delineation. But there are so many new points from which the play and players could be considered—so many peculiar circumstances that surround the engagement—that one prefers to avoid the strictly critical, and apply merely that test which is involved in the very term, amusement.

That the son could be the consummate artist his father is before he passed the hard curriculum of patient study would be to reverse the doctrine of the vintage. But that the rendition of the graceless Rip by the younger Jefferson attests the fact that genius is persistent, and that the immortal character is not to be lost to the stage is a satisfying reflection.

Manager Edwards is very proud of the fact that he has been able to secure Charles Frohman's production of "The Little Minister." When he heard of its enormous success in New York, where it was seen for over 300 performances and to crowded houses, he immediately took steps to secure it, and after a great deal of trouble and expense he has finally done so. Its presentation here next Monday will mean the largest and most fashionable audience of the season.

Washington's Birthday will be honored by one of the greatest bills of vaudeville ever witnessed in this city, when Jolly Nelly McHenry and her great company appear at Music Hall. There will be two performances, one in the afternoon for the especial accommodation of ladies and the other at night. Intending patrons would do well to secure seats in advance. The management promises improvement, if possible, on the Christmas bill, which gave so much pleasure.

* * * * *

James A. Herne's new play, "Rev. Griffith Davenport," at the Herald Square, New York, introduces a new stage character to the playhouse, and is one of the most serious pieces that has been produced in New York city in a number of years. Besides affording its author exceptional opportunity to appear to the best advantage in his most peculiar style of acting, it serves to develop an atmosphere associated with the Herald Square—when Chas. F. Evans gave us "Arms and the Man," "Napoleon," "The Heart of Maryland," and "Puddin' Head Wilson"—that is most pleasant to the lovers of good drama. Mr. Herne has interpreted many parts in his day, several of his own creation a few from other sources, and he has an odd set of admirers, each claiming that he is only at his best when portraying the character they appear to most enjoy. No worthy player of modern times has assumed the parts of such radical contrast as those of James A. Herne.

Want a Partition of Estate.

Pope & Runyon have filed a bill in chancery for John Schroppe and George Schroppe praying for a partition of the estate of the late George Adams Shuck, located on the corner of Arlington avenue and West Sixth street. The heirs to the estate are George A., Michael, Elizabeth, Mary and Sally Shuck, and the heirs of Mrs. Anna S. Schroppe, another child, who is dead.

Ten Railroad Victims Still at Hospital.

There are now ten patients at Muhlenberg Hospital who were in the Lehigh Valley Railroad wreck at West Dunellen sometime ago. Engineers Pendegast and Rick are still detained, but all of the patients are doing well. Some of them will be able to leave for their homes in the course of a few weeks.

Fun in a Sleigh.

Charles Kennett, of Liberty street, gave a sleighing party last evening to a number of his friends. The objective point was Elizabeth, where the young people enjoyed a dance and had supper, after which there was a cake walk which was won by B. C. Firstbrook. The party arrived home early this morning.

Miss Mary E. Berg, the oldest daughter of Dr. J. F. Berg, of East Fifth street, and Louis D. Pfender, of East Sixth street, were quietly married Saturday evening at the residence of Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D. The couple have gone to housekeeping at Cranford.

BLIZZARD INTERFERED.

But The Press Subscription Contest is Resuming Activity.

The blizzard and its accompanying drifts put something of a damper on the work of securing new subscribers for The Daily Press, and so The Press subscription contest languished accordingly during the first two days of the week. The young people in the contest are out again now and are continuing the work in which they have been so successful already.

The splendid service given by The Daily Press to all its subscribers when the streets were blocked with drifts, has attracted the attention of many who were not already taking The Press. They have expressed a desire to take a paper that doesn't forget its subscribers just when the newspapers are read with the greatest interest. As a result there are a number of new subscribers this week from the outlying disiricts.

When The Press stated last Saturday that the week would not quite come up to the marvelous work of two weeks before, it did not count on any flood of new subscriptions being turned in that night. As it turned out, however, last week broke all records in the number of new subscribers added to the list in an equal length of time. There was such a host of new ones turned in Saturday night that it kept Circulation Manager C. F. Stout up until nearly midnight in straightening them out.

Privileges at the Library.

A special meeting of the board of directors of the Public Library was held last night. There were present M. W. Tyler, J. B. Dumont, Rowland Cox, J. Evarts Tracy and W. M. Stillman. The library committee reported that they had determined to allow the public access to the books in the new stock when arrangements are completed, and that the privileges of the library are extended to all North Plainfield residents who pay taxes in Plainfield, and to the members of their families as well.

—Justice V. W. Nash has filed the pension papers in the case of Mas. Jennings, widow of the late Jacob Jennings.

—Court Watchung, No. 3871, Independent Order of Foresters, will meet this evening at 8 o'clock in Red Men's Hall, Stillman building.

Place for the Piano.

Every musician realizes the fact that placing an instrument directly against the wall gives a heaviness of tones that should otherwise be possessed of resonance and brilliancy, and causes much of the sound to be deadened and lost. To prevent this necessity, many of the finest pianos are now sent out by the manufacturers more or less ornamented on the back and side panels.

In a drawing room seen recently a small upholstered seat heaped with cushions ran the entire length of the back of the piano, which stood, for acoustic reasons, with its back turned toward the main part of the room. Over the back of the piano was flung a drapery of the Japanese Habutai silk in old blue. A small table bearing a palm in a Japanese jardiniere stood at the head of the couch, while at the foot was an open music holder. On the top of the piano was a bust of Wagner, flanked by bowls of fresh flowers.—Washington Star.

Your hats must be taken into consideration, so that when you have bought a dress your hats will look well with it, instead of having to purchase more.

Above all, never allow yourself to be tempted into purchasing things because they are cheap and nice. You do not know when you will use them, as they will only lie hidden away until you have either forgotten them entirely, or else, when the time comes that you could wear them you will see dozens of other things which you like far better, and wish you had never purchased those you already have. Then you see they are dear at any price, as the wearing of them is no pleasure to you.

PARKS KNOCKED DOWN.

BUT THEY ARE STILL IN THE RING FOR CHAMPIONSHIP.

Ridgewood Defeated Parks at Whist by Score of 16 to 6—Final Round in State Championship Will be Played Over.

The "pony" whist team of the Park Club met with reverses last night in their chase after the championship trophy of the New Jersey Whist Association. They were not fatal, however, and the Parks have still another chance to redeem themselves. The first match in the final round for the trophy was won by the Roseville A. A., defeating the Ridgewood Club. Then the Parks knocked out the Roseville team. And now the Ridgewood team defeated the Parks by a score of 16 to 6.

The game last evening was played in the rooms of the New Jersey Whist Club, of Newark. At first, it looked well for the Park's, who won the first round 4 to 3. Then came the remarkable round, the second, when the Ridgewood combination came out ahead 10 to 0. Everybody thought there was some mistake but there wasn't. Ridgewood also led in the third round by a score of 3 to 2. The final score was 16 to 6, in favor of Ridgewood.

While the Parks were fairly beaten, all the luck there was ran in favor of the Ridgewood team which accounted for their high score.

The final round for the championship will now have to be played over and the Parks still have hopes of coming out first in the contest.

LITTLE SUFFERING FOLLOWED BLIZZARD.

Organized Aid Association Had But Few Applicants.

WANTED COAL AND WOOD.

AMPLE PROVISION WAS MADE FOR ANTICIPATED DEMAND.

Twenty Applications Made Since Last Friday—All Were Well Cared for—Six Tons of Coal Distributed to Needy Ones—No Very Bad Cases of Destitution Reported to Association.

Throughout the country the severe cold wave and the succeeding blizzard brought suffering into many homes. The supplies of coal and provisions ran short and many nearly froze or starved. In this city, however, there has not, as far as can be learned, any importunate cases of destitution. Suffering there was, of course, and always is but in no unusual amount as was reported in other cities.

The Organized Aid Association, while it distributes no aid or relief to those in need, is really the head quarters. All cases that come to the attention of that organization are looked into and then turned over to the proper source of relief. All cases are first referred to it.

As the centre of the work of relief, a Daily Press reporter interviewed the Association's agent, Mrs. W. A. Woodruff, yesterday afternoon, regarding the extra demands made upon the Association as a result of the cold and snow storm. He found that there had been but a little increase in the aid rendered although ample provision had been made for such a contingency.

From last Saturday up to yesterday there were some twenty applications for aid made. They were for food and coal, principally the latter. Yesterday there were none. At the first of the cold wave there were several citizens who contributed both coal and cash to the Relief Association to be dealt out at the direction of the Organized Aid Association in such cases of destitution as might come to its notice. All the applications were granted.

Some six tons of coal, in lots of a quarter of a ton each, was distributed during that time, partly to the new applicants and the remainder to those who are already under the care of the Relief Association.

Mrs. Woodruff expected that she would be overrun with appeals for aid after the storm, but the number was small, and yesterday there was none at all. Since the time she first started her duties as agent for the Organized Aid, Mrs. Woodruff says that she believes that the deserving poor of the city were never better off than they are today.

The work done by the Organized Aid and Relief Association does not represent all the charitable work done in Plainfield by any means. There is lots of it going on privately and unostentatiously every day, and during the cold wave and blizzard many needy ones were relieved from imminent privation in this way.

CHURCH MADE NO DEFENSE.

C. H. Hand Secures a Judgment Against Calvary Baptist Church.

In Justice Moffett's court yesterday afternoon Chas. H. Hand secured judgment against the Calvary Baptist church for $23.75. The church put in no defense. Murphy & Blatz, their lawyers, asked for an adjournment, but this was not granted.

Architect Clum sold a claim for $30 against the church to Mr. Hand, and when the latter presented the order it was not honored. It is said that the church will meet the order as soon as their finances will permit.

The Dorcas Circle Entertain.

The Dorcas Circle of The King's Daughters entertained their members and friends at an enjoyable Musical Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Crane on West Eighth street. After the musical part of the programme the guests were invited to the dining room where light refreshments were served by the young ladies of the circle. The musical part of the programme consisted of selections by Mrs. Harry Johnson, piano; Mrs. Udelle Smith, violin. They were also favored by solos from Miss Jessie Stewart, one of the founders of the circle in 1888, and recitations by Miss Bertha Whitney.

Snow Broke Skylight.

A skylight in the roof of Patrick Casey's workshop on Park avenue was broken this morning by a snow slide from the roof above, and Mr. Casey came near being buried by the falling snow.

A METHODIST REVIVAL.

EVANGELIST BELKNAP TO BEGIN AN ENGAGEMENT HERE.

He Will Conduct a Series of Gospel Meetings in the First Methodist Church, Commencing Next Sunday Night.

Begining with Sunday night and continuing for one week, and perhaps two, Rev. J. D. Belknap, A. M. Ph. D., an evangelist, will conduct a series of gospel meetings in the First Methodist church. These services are free to all and the public is cordially invited. Mr. Belknap is a singer as well as a preacher and personally conducts the services.

REV. J. D. BELKNAP.

taught school, conducted musical conventions and lectured. He was then appointed principal of Arkansas M. E. Conference Seminary by Bishop Harris. Later he attended Yale Theological Seminary during which time he was instructor of vocal music for the Y. M. C. A. of New Haven, Conn.

Later Mr. Belknap joined the Wyoming M. E. Conference traveling for five years, then supernumerated for sickness. Then he became supply of the First Congregational church of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and subsequently entered into evangelistic work all over the United States.

STRUGGLE IN THE DRIFTS.

Milkman Kellogg Had a Tough Time of It Near Mt. Pleasant.

E. P. Kellogg, of Mt. Pleasant, a local milkman, had quite an experience Monday morning in the storm, and had it not been for aid rendered him from a farm house, he would have perished in the snow.

Mr. Kellogg had a hard time to get around and serve his customers Monday, and about noon started for home again. When fairly cut in the country the horse struck a drift and sank in snow up to his breast. He couldn't go any further, and Mr. Kellogg, fearing he would freeze, got out of the wagon and ran across the fields to a farm house for aid. The farmer got out his team and going ahead of the stranded horse, broke a path for him and Mr. Kellogg was able to get home.

Application for Prize Money.

L. A. Miller, of this city, a son of Sebastian Miller, has applied to the Government, through Justice Mosher, for prize money. He served on the United States steamship Hornet, during the late war, as chief carpenter's mate, and when he made the application he was ill in the United States Naval Hospital in Brooklyn. He says that the Hornet made several captures during the war, and claims that he is entitled to some of the prize money.

Soldiers Going to Manila.

Two trains of Baltimore and Ohio cars went through here this morning for New York loaded with a regiment of Missouri soldiers bound for Manila. They were from yesterday morning until this morning getting from Baltimore to Bound Brook, but in spite of the tiresome trip the boys were bright and gay when they passed through, and sang, cheered and waved their handkerchiefs.

Ice in the River.

Today the ice in the East river is interfering very much with travel over the Central Railroad, and many of the westbound trains are delayed on that account. There is so much ice in the river that the ferryboats are driven far up or down the stream and require half or three-quarters of an hour to make the trip.

MANY MASKED FACES AT SAENGERBUND HALL

Annual Masquerade Ball Was a Great Success.

MANY PRETTY COSTUMES.

OPENED WITH EFFECTIVE GRAND ENTREE OF BURGHERS AND INDIANS.

Over Four Hundred Were Present—Most of Them Wore Fancy Costumes—Those Who Led the Grand March—Miantonomo Tribe Assisted in Full Regalia—Dancing Continued Until 5 o'Clock

A little thing like a rain storm had no effect on the masqueraders bound for the eleventh annual masquerade ball of the Gesang and Turn Verein last evening. The staid old Dutch burghers stepped down several centuries, the wild and ferocious Indians came out of the trackless wilderness and some hundred of various other kinds of characters showed up in the Saengerbund Hall last evening at the appointed time. The ball was to have been held last Monday night but was called off on account of the blizzard and postponed until last night. With an attendance of over four hundred, most of whom wore fancy costumes, the ball proved to be a decided success.

While there was some desultory dancing early in the evening, the ball really opened with the "grand entree." Charles F. Meyer, the floor manager, appeared in a court costume of the time of Louis XIV, of France, a magnificent red silk coat, embroidered with flowers; knickerbockers, cocked hat and powdered wig. His insignia of rank consisted of a magnificent silk sash of the National colors. He led the grand march with Sachem G. W. Houseman, of Miantonomo Tribe of Red Men.

Then followed Mr. Meyer's assistants, W. Ricketts and Emil Vick strom; the floor committee, Herman Klinsman, G. Peterson and H. Hansen; and three of the reception committee, F. White, L. Fahn and G. Weida, in costumes similar to that of the leader. Eight wild and desperate Indians in their war paint, right from the wigwams of the Miantonomo Tribe, came next in line. They were Andrew Stiglitz, Lawrence Scheelein, E. I. Vroom, Fulmer Johnson, Chas. Keller, L. Rosenthiel, Thomas Kane and P. Collins.

Some seventy-five couples in all variety of costumes, from that of a returned veteran from the war to a fairy queen, fell in line behind them. After they were cleverly led through a variety of evolutions the dancing began again and continued until nearly 5 o'clock this morning.

Charles Feller and August Wolff, the other members of the reception committee, were on hand at the door. Supper was served at midnight. Prof. Wallander's orchestra furnished the music.

ONE FUNERAL FOR TWO.

OBSEQUIES HELD OVER REMAINS OF MR. AND MRS. A. J. CLARKSON.

The Husband Interred in Plainfield Avenue Cemetery and the Wife in North Plainfield—Services Were Simple.

The double funeral of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Clarkson was held yesterday afternoon from the late home on Union street, and Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, where the decedents attended, officiated. He spoke words of comfort and consolation to the bereaved ones, and dwelt upon the exemplary Christian lives of those who had gone. The services were quite largely attended by relatives and friends who had known Mr. and Mrs. Clarkson so long. There was a beautiful, yet simple display of floral tributes. The burials were separate, the husband being interred beside the grave of his first wife, while the wife was placed beside the grave of her first husband. The husband was buried in the Plainfield avenue cemetery and the wife in the North Plainfield cemetery. This arrangement was according to a dying request.

Those who served as pallbearers were Randolph Stelle, Smith Garretson, A. J. Winckler and L. H. Morgan, all intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Clarkson.

TO REDUCE STATE GUARD

THE CAVALRY COMPANIES WILL BE ABANDONED PROBABLY.

Intended to Have Four Infantry Regiments in National Guard Instead of Six, All to Be on Regular Army Basis.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Feb. 17—Governor Voorhees has lately been devoting considerable time to the contemplated reorganization of the National Guard.

The contemplated reorganization means a material reduction in the number of organizations and the possible abandonment of the two cavalry companies known as the First and Second Troops.

Instead of six regiments, as now, the intention is to reduce the number to four, all constituted on the Regular Army basis. Each regiment will have twelve companies of 106 officers and men, and the Regular Army code will be followed in every particular.

"It is our intention," said the Governor, "to have our citizen soldiers a part of the National Guard, with all that the term implies. Today we have in the field what is known as the Fourth New Jersey Volunteers, a regiment which I am told by those competent to judge, will in a short time prove at least the equal to any regular regiment in the service. To acquire that state of perfection much work has been entailed that might have been avoided had our standing regiments been organized on the Regular Army basis. The latter plan will mean not only increased efficiency, but economy, and we will be ready to put it into practice as soon as the 'Hull Army bill' is a law. The latter bill, by the way, means a material increase in the number of our Regular Army officers, and I propose to secure some of these positions for New Jersey volunteers who have demonstrated their ability to fill them, or know the reason why."

It is understood in military circles that the contemplated plan of reorganization meets with general favor, because it will mean not only a general improvement of the service, but a material decrease in the cost of maintenance. This will leave more funds available for the better equipment and care of the guard, and that is said to be an object sought even by certain officers who might lose an existing command.

BIG HOME PROPOSED FOR AGED WORKMAN.

Land as a Site for the Institution Already Donoted.

LINCOLN IS THE PLACE.

THE PROJECT IS MEETING WITH FAVOR AMONG LABOR UNIONS.

Will be Modeled After the Childs-Drexel Home for Union Printers in Colorado Springs—Henry G. Gottlob, the Projector, Believes in Having Lincoln Home Open to All Aged and Infirm Union Men.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Lincoln, Feb. 17—The project of building a State home for aged and infirm workmen in Lincoln will be considered at the next meeting of the Federation of Trades and Labor Unions of New Jersey. The basis of the idea, which originated with Henry G. Gottlob, of Newark, chairman of the Federation, is the Childs-Drexel Home for union printers in Colorado Springs. This institution is conducted by the International Typographical Union, and was founded through the generosity of the philanthropists whose name it bears. They donated $10,000 as the foundation of a fund for building the home.

It is Mr. Gottlob's idea to have the home open to the aged and infirm of every sect and every craft, good character and membership in a labor union to be the only requirements. For the sight of such a home a tract of land has already been offered by the New Jersey Realty Company in Lincoln.

"I believe," says Mr. Gottlob, "that the grant of one hundred building lots will enable us to raise $20,000 for a building with a hospital annex. The market value of these lots is about $2,000. We could doubtless dispose of half of them in exchange for labor and material on the building, and the other half to buyers on easy terms. The home will probably be three stories high, with a mansard roof, and will be fitted up with the most approved sanitary appliances.

"Boilers, electric light plant and kitchen will occupy the basement. The second floor will be divided into a library, assembly room, amusement room and chapel. The upper floors will be used for sleeping and living rooms. By working on the farm of 160 acres the institution can be made self supporting.

An Afternoon Tea.

Given by Mrs. Tremaine in Honor of a Washington Friend.

In spite of yesterday's severe storm a very delightful afternoon tea was given by Mrs. Morris Sawyer Tremaine, of Buffalo, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Middledith, of Mercer avenue. The tea was given in honor of Mrs. Tremaine's friend, Miss Michner, of Washington. Pink roses and shaded candles were the decorations of the dining room, producing a charming effect. Mrs. Tremaine and Miss Michner were assisted in receiving by Mrs. James Middledith, Mrs. Howard Beebe, Mrs. Harry Johnson, the Misses Helen Clark, Mabel VanDeventer, May Waring, Mary Bushnell and Belle Patterson, while Mrs. Eugene Moore and Mrs. Gribbon, of Brooklyn, presided at the table.

WEDDED FORTY YEARS.

MR. AND MRS. M. C. DOBBINS CELEBRATE MARRIAGE ANNIVERSARY.

The Visititation of Friends was a Complete Surprise to Them—Violin and Piano Music Rendered—Many Handsome Gifts

Last evening at their home, No. 117 Elmwood place, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Dobbins celebrated in a pleasant manner the fortieth anniversary of their marriage. A happy feature of the celebration was the fact that it was a complete surprise to the celebrants, and it was not until several of the guests arrived that they began to realize what was going on. Early in the evening two of the invited guests called at the home. They had been present only a few minutes when a host of guests arrived and then the intent of the visit became known, and all joined heartily in the celebration.

The celebration was arranged by Mrs. Walter C. Dobbins and Miss May E. Howlett. Sociability was the feature of the evening, while a pleasant part of the programme was the violin and piano music rendered by Mrs. Walter C. Dobbins, M. C. Dobbins and Miss May E. Howlett, which interspersed the social features.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Dobbins received the congratulations of their friends. They also received a number of beautiful gifts as pleasant reminders of the event. At a late hour supper was served after which the guests departed.

Mrs. Dobbins was born in Newark, while Mr. Dobbins is a native of Caldwell, Essex county. They were married at the latter place February 16, 1859, by Rev. Isaac Sprague, who for twenty-five years was pastor of the Presbyterian church at that place. Two years later Mr. Dobbins enlisted in the Civil War as Captain of Co. D, 26th N. J. Vols. After the war the family moved to Danville, Ill., where they resided for some time. They afterward moved to this city, where they have lived, excepting a few years, ever since.

NEW CONSOLIDATION IDEA.

A Correspondent Who Would Like to See Borough and Township One.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The question of consolidating North Plainfield with Plainfield is now before the people of North Plainfield in the form of a preliminary vote for or against, or for the forming of a new county. Would it not be far better for the beautiful North Plainfield section to consolidate the North Plainfield township to the borough?

It seems to be that the growing part of Plainfield is going north, and there are openings and prospects under way which will help a great deal the growing, and North Plainfield would never feel sorry for taking in the township. The beautiful hills are worth a great deal to a place, and the main thing, there is water enough coming from the springs on the mountains to supply the town with a pure and excellent article. The latest improvements are always the best, and so it would be with the water supply and sewer system whenever built.

The well known Spencer Farm in the valley, adjoining Somerset street, will in course of a very short time be divided into building sites with a main street 100 feet wide, called Empire avenue, another 75 feet wide, called Columbus avenue, and a number of cross streets.

Twenty-eight hundred feet of sidewalks to be made and ornamental trees planted to make a fine boulevard. As soon as the weather permits work will be started with great force, and the borough will be proud of the new section, if taken in.

In case the people should be against the consolidation of North Plainfield township, the owners of the said property will have the chance to regulate the affairs on the property the same as Asbury Park is regulated and ruled. The owner of the Spencer property also is the owner of the Kenney farm and the Allen farm and about 200 acres will be quite a place when ready. P. Rochricht, 5155 Seventh avenue, New York.

Congregational Church Sociable.

The sociable which was to have been held in the parlors of the Congregational church last Tuesday evening, and was postponed on account of the death of Deacon Clarkson, will be held next Tuesday evening in the parlors of the church.

TWO ITALIANS WANTED TO SLEEP IN GUTTER.

Noisily Objected to Assistance From Police.

WERE JUST PAID OFF.

SCREAMED AND HOWLED WHEN OFFICERS TRIED TO LEAD THEM.

After an Interview With the Nippers, One Italian Decided he Wanted to go to Jail—His Companion Took Same View—After Hearing Written Charges Judge Runyon Suspended Sentence.

Howls and screams disturbed the midnight quietness of the vicinity of Park avenue and Front street last night. Two Italians, overcome by the fumes of a too liberal indulgence in Jersey lightning, had laid down in slush and snow of one of the gutters and attempted to spend the night there. Two policemen tried to start them for a more suitable lodging with a noisy result.

Patrolmen McCarty and Myers found them and attempted to put one of the Italians on his feet. The drunken man screamed and swore, calling upon all the saints to carry away the officers to a warmer land and leave him in peace. At last one of the policemen put the hand-cuffs on the man gave them a twist which brought fourth a voluble protest of Italian profanity.

At last McCarty loosened the cuff and inquired if his prisoner felt any better.

'Sure," responded the Italian. Whereupon he rose up and went to the station house without further resistance. His companion followed and both were locked up.

This morning the two were haled before City Judge Runyon. The only complaint was the written charge left by the officers, saying the men were drunk and unable to take care of themselves. The Judge said it was impossible to do anything with the prisoners if the complainants didn't show up.

Then he gave a severe lecture to the prisoners through Patsy Christmas, who acted as official interpreter, and suspended sentence on them. They were employes of Christmas' gang, and had just been paid, which accounted for their spree.

All Night Getting Home.

Thursday Evening Euchre Club Were Victims of Belated Train.

Sixteen members of the Thursday Evening Euchre Club went to Rahway last evening and were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. LaForge. They had a delightful time while at Rahway, but the trouble in reaching home made the trip an interesting one. The party went to the station at Rahway to take the 11:46 train for Elizabeth, but were informed that the train was two hours late. It happened, however, that they did not leave Rahway until 2:30 o'clock. When they reached Elizabeth they learned that the next train to Plainfield left at 4:45 o'clock. The time was pleasantly passed about the railroad station, but before the train arrived there were many heavy eyes. The party arrived in Plainfield before daylight and succeeded in reaching their several homes before they were discovered. As Benjamin LaVere arranged the trip, the members of the club are inclined to think that he is the hoodoo.

The first and second prizes for the women were won by Miss Mabelle Force and Miss Bertha Wheeler, while William N. Tier and Benjamin LaVere were the winners of the gentlemen's prizes. Miss Etta Neumann and George Neumann secured the prizes awarded to visitors.

A Hackman's High Price.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Yesterday afternoon I asked a colored hackman at the North Avenue station to take me to my home in the borough, (near the High School), and he demanded 50 cents, claiming that that was the price now that the roads were so heavy. I declined to be thus swindled, borrowed an umbrella and took the trolley. I am only sorry that I did not engage him and pay the price demanded and then have him fined for excessive charges. X.

Will Wait for License.

The Hotel Kensington, of North avenue, will not open for business until the licenses are granted by the City Council.

Awaiting Developments.

It is rumored that there are several aspirants for the position of Borough Clerk, providing the cat jumps the right way.

—This evening there will be an adjourned meeting of the Borough Council, when business of importance will be considered.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is setting scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

PECULIAR POISONS.

GENARATED IN THE HUMAN BODY.

The Result of Imperfect Digestion of Food.

Every living thing, plant or animal, contains within itself the germs of certain decay and death.

In the human body these germs of death (called by scientists Ptomaines), are usually the result of imperfect digestion of food; the result of indigestion or dyspepsia.

The stomach, from abuse, weakens, does not promptly and thoroughly digest the food. The result is a heavy, sodden mass which ferments (the first process of decay) poisoning the blood, making it thin, weak and lacking in red corpuscles; poisoning the brain causing headaches, pains in the eyes.

Bad digestion weakens the heart, causing palpitation and finally bringing on disease of this very important organ.

And this is so because every organ, every nerve depends upon the stomach alone for nourishment and renewal, and weak digestion shows itself not only in loss of appetite and flesh, but in weak nerves and muddy complexion

The great English scientist, Huxley, said the best start in life is a sound stomach. Weak stomachs fail to digest food properly, because they lack the proper quantity of digestive acids (lactic and hydrochloric) and peptogenic products; the most sensible remedies in all cases of indigestion, is to take after each meal one or two of Stuarts Dyspepsia Tablets, because they supply in a pleasant, harmless form all the elements that weak stomachs lack.

They increase flesh, insure pure blood, strong nerves, bright eye and clear complexion, because all these result only from wholesome food well digested.

Nearly all druggists sell Stuarts Dyspepsia Tablets at 50 cents full-sized package or by mail by enclosing price to Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., but ask your druggist first. A little book on stomach diseases mailed free. Address Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

PRESIDENT IN BOSTON

McKinley and His Cabinet Given A Royal Welcome.

SECRETARY ALGER HISSED.

Largest Spread in the History of the Hub —2,000 Covers Laid at the Feast—The Distinguished Visitors to See the Legislature at Work.

Boston, Feb. 17.—William McKinley, president of the United States, with four members of his cabinet and other associates, are in Boston as guests of the Home Market Club, a national organization of Republicans.

It seemed as if all Boston turned out to bid the president and his cabinet welcome. Great crowds covered the streets around the station, where the carriages which were to bear the party to their hotel, were stationed Secretary Gage and Governor Wolcott, with Brigadier General Rockwood Hoar, General James L. Carter, Colonel William C. Capelle, Colonel Roger Morgan, Colonel J. Payson Bradley, Colonel John D. Billings and Colonel William D. Schier, of his personal staff, were at the station to meet the president, and when the greetings were concluded the carriages were entered and, under the escort of the First Battalion of cavalry, Major William A. Ferris commanding, the visitors started for their hotel.

As the procession passed cheer upon cheer was given by the crowd, and on all sides the manifestations of cordial welcome were without restraint.

Hisses for Alger.

Several times during the parade and amid the general cheering, yells of derision and hisses were heard for Secretary of War Alger. This was particularly noticeable at the corner of Park and Beacon streets, where the carriage carrying the secretary passed. A large number joined in the demonstration.

President McKinley was escorted to the state suite of apartments on the first floor of the hotel. The members of the cabinet and other guests occupy the two floors immediately above.

The members of the cabinet with the president were Hon. John D. Long, secretary of the navy; General Russell A. Alger, secretary of war; Hon. Cornelius N. Bliss, secretary of the interior, and Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith.

The President's Address.

"I do not know why in the year 1899 this republic has unexpectedly had placed before it mighty problems which it must face and meet. They have come and are here and they could not be kept away. Many who were impatient for the conflict a year ago, apparently heedless of its larger results, are the first to cry out against the far reaching consequences of their own act. Those of us who dreaded war most and whose every effort was directed to prevent it, had fears of new and grave problems which might follow its inauguration. The evolution of events which no man could control has brought these problems upon us Certain it is that they have not come through any fault on our own part, but as a high obligation, and we meet them with clear conscience and unselfish purpose, and with good heart resolve to undertake their solution.

"The Philippines, like Cuba and Porto Rico, were intrusted to our hands by the war, and to that great trust, under the providence of God, and in the name of human progress and civilization, we are committed. It is a trust we have not sought; it is a trust from which we will not flinch. The American people will hold up the hands of their servants at home to whom they commit its execution, while Dewey and Otis and the brave men they command will have the support of the country in upholding our flag where it now floats, the symbol and assurance of liberty and justice.

"We hear no complaint of the relations created by the war between this government and the islands of Cuba and Porto Rico. There are some, however, who regard the Philippines as in a different relation; but whatever variety of views there may be on this phase of the question there is universal agreement that the Philippines shall not be turned back to Spain. No true American consents to that. Even if unwilling to accept them ourselves, it would have been a weak evasion of manly duty to require Spain to transfer them to some other power or powers, and thus shrink our own responsibility. Even if we had had, as we did not have, the power to compel such a transfer, it could not have been made without the most serious international complications. Had we refused to accept the cession of them we should have had no power over them, even for their own good We could not discharge the responsibilities upon us.

"There was but one alternative, and that was, either Spain or the United States in the Philippines. The other suggestions—first, that they should be tossed into the arena of contention for the strife of nations; or, second, be left to the anarchy and chaos of no protectorate at all—were too shameful to be considered. The treaty gave them to the United States. Could we have required less and done our duty? Could we, after freeing the Filipinos from the domination of Spain, have left them without government and without power to protect life or property or to perform the international obligations essential to an independent state? Could we have left them in a state of anarchy and justified ourselves in our own consciences or before the tribunal of mankind? Could we have done that in the sight of God and man?

"Our concern was not for territory or trade or empire, but for the people whose interests and destiny, without our willing it, had been put in our hands. It was with this feeling that from the first day to the last not one word or line went from the executive in Washington to our military and naval commanders at Manila, or to our peace commissioners at Paris that did not put as the sole purpose to be kept in mind first after the success of our arms and the maintenance of our own honor the welfare and happiness and the rights of the inhabitants of the Philippine Islands Did we need their consent to perform a great act for humanity? We had it in every aspiration of their minds, in every hope of their hearts. Was it necessary to ask their consent to capture Manila, the capital of their islands? Did we ask their consent to liberate them from Spanish sovereignty or to enter Manila bay and destroy the Spanish sea power there?

"I have no light or knowledge not common to my countrymen. I do not prophesy. The present is all-absorbing to me, but I cannot blind my vision by the blood stained trenches around Manila, where every red drop, whether from the veins of an American soldier or a misguided Filipino, is anguish to my heart; but the broad range of future years, when that group of islands, under the impulse of the year just past, shall have become the gems and glories of those tropical seas; a land of plenty and of increasing possibilities; a people redeemed from savage indolence and habits, devoted to the arts of peace, in touch with the commerce and trade of all nations, enjoying the blessings of freedom, of civil and religious liberty, of education and of homes, and whose children and children's children shall for ages hence bless the American republic because it emancipated and redeemed their fatherland and set them in the pathway of the world's best civilization.

The president was followed by Postmaster General Smith, who spoke as follows:

"Four days ago we celebrated the birthday of Lincoln. Six days hence we shall celebrate the birthday of Washington. Neither Washington nor Lincoln started for what became the ultimate necessity and object, but neither hesitated to accept the obligations and consequences of their glorious deeds.

"Lincoln emancipated four million of beings; McKinley has lifted ten million into new light and freedom, and the devoted president, who, of all American leaders, is most like Lincoln in his moral attributes and his popular sympathy, is keeping touch with the popular heart as he fulfills his lofty mission of taking the flag of American liberty where Lincoln has left it pure and stainless and carrying it forward to wider sway and influence in the world."

The secretary of the navy, Mr. Long, was the last speaker of the president's party. In the course of his remarks Mr. Long said:

"You have now heard the president and the postmaster general utter their statement of our relations to our new foreign possessions. What can I add? The treaty of peace with Spain, thank heaven, has been ratified. And while, unfortunately, the delay in its ratification may be accountable for the recent bloodshed at Manila, the discussions which preceded it have not been without their value in an honest presentation of all phases of the situation and in holding the country to the highest ideals of national duty and honor.

"It is certainly cause for congratulation that the extreme imperialists who resisted the treaty have been signally overthrown. By resisting its ratification they have been insisting upon the extremest imperialism and have out-Heroded Herod. They not only would have prolonged the war with Spain, but would have taken out of the hands of the people and put into the hands of one man, the president, absolute authority over the Philippines, limited only to the indefinite scope of what is called the war power, wielded by a purely military arm holding a naked sword. Think of that for imperialism! It is a great credit to the president that like those two other modest candidates, Julius Cæsar and George Washington he has refused this offer of a kingly crown."

F. E. Taft of Newburyport died suddenly while sitting at a table at the banquet last night. Hisl eath caused considerable excitement at the time, but it was soon over.

Chicago Telephone Rates.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—The ordinance of the Illinois Telephone and Telegraph Company, after being amended to meet some requirements of the mayor, has been passed by the city council by a vote of 53 to 4. It provides for a franchise for thirty years, dovering the entire city. The company pays no tax for the first ten years, three per cent. of the gross receipts for the second ten years, five per cent. for the next five years and seven per cent. for the remaining five years. In all conduits one duct shall be given to the city and the city can use all the company's poles.

The cost of telephones shall not be more than $35 a year for business instruments, $30 for residences and $120 for public telephones. The city is given a number of telephones free and can rent instruments for fire and police use for $5 a year.

An option is given the city to purchase the plant at the expiration of the franchise.

Spain Likes Our Wheat.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—The lack of a commercial treaty with Spain, the former treaty having been terminated by the war, is not preventing trade between the two countries, although American products are handicapped by an additional twenty per cent. duty in the Spanish ports.

United States Consular Agent Mertens, at Valencia, who remained there during the war, reports to the state department that there is a great demand for American wheat. A cargo of four thousand tons of red winter wheat which just arrived there proved entirely satisfactory and importers are willing to receive more.

Sultan of Oman in Trouble.

Bombay, Feb. 17.—The Persian Gulf mail steamer, which has just arrived here, brings news that a British ultimatum was presented to the Sultan of Oman on Saturday, owing to his having leased to France a coaling station on the coast of Oman, which is a semi-independent state in southeastern Arabia.

Oman is considered to be under British protection, as the Sultan has been receiving a subsidy from Great Britain.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 17.—A fire which was discovered at 9:30 o'clock last night destroyed the five story brick buildings, 1224 to 1228 Market street, owned by John Wanamaker causing a damage that will easily reach $700,000

DISCONTENT IN THE CITY.

Our Only Loss Twenty-two Men Overcome by the Heat—Outbreak in the City Planned, but Averted by the Arrest of 150 Natives by the American Military.

Manila, Feb. 17.—The ineffectiveness of Mauser rifles in the hands of the Filipinos has not been better illustrated since the fighting here began than it was yesterday, when for five hours a large force of insurgents, which had advanced in the night from Paternos upon the position of General King's brigade, kept peppering away without hitting a single American.

The enemy had evidently mistaken the withdrawal of our troops to their former position for a retreat.

When the insurgents appeared they came over the open fields with shouts of "Viva Republica Filipina!" and made three vigorous attacks upon our lines, but were each time repulsed. The last time they were seen to be carrying off their dead and wounded.

Our troops were under orders not to pursue the enemy, but simply to hold their own ground. The troops engaged were nine companies of the First California infantry, six companies of the First Washington infantry, two companies of the First Idaho infantry and a battery of four light mountain guns, with two troops of the Fourth cavalry in reserve.

For the second time since February 4 an uprising of the natives was expected in the city Wednesday night, but during the afternoon the troops of the First Oregon and Thirteenth Minnesota infantry arrested one hundred and fifty natives whom they found in one house, and this, together with the fact that the city guards were doubled evidently disheartened the ringleaders. Information derived from authentic sources leaves no doubt, however, that an outbreak was really planned. Among the natives arrested in the house a number were in the act of making Filipino uniforms when the troops broke in upon them.

The warships are using their searchlights constantly every night to prevent the approach of natives in small boats.

Powder and Shot for Otis.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—The transport Sheridan, soon to leave New York for the Philippines, will carry to the command under General Otis 2,500 additional rounds of field ammunition. It is believed that General Otis is fairly well supplied with ammunition, but that he may have a large reserve supply it is proposed to send him about 7,500 pounds more. The shipment on the Sheridan is the first instalment of this supply. Orders were given yesterday for the transportation to San Francisco of five thousand rounds, which will leave that place in about two weeks for Manila.

The bureau of ordnance is also providing for a large equipment supply depot at Havana. To this end orders were issued yesterday for the shipment to Havana of nearly four thousand sets of equipment and two thousand stands of arms, which is estimated to be the proper reserve supply for a command of 40,000 men.

Otis Wants a Signal Company.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—Major General Otis several days ago requested the war department to furnish him an additional signal company for service in the Philippines. The request was referred to General A. W. Greely, chief of the signal service, who explained that it was impossible to get ready in time a company to go from this country.

General Greely recommended, however, that General Otis be authorized to organize another company from the volunteers in his command. This met with the approval of the secretary of war, and General Otis has been advised to select enough telegraph operators and electricians from the volunteer forces to meet the demand.

QUAY BALLOTING FURILE.

A Change in the Situation Not Looked for Before Tuesday.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 17.—The twenty-sixth joint ballot for the election of a United States senator yesterday resulted as follows:

Quay, 67; Jenks, 74; Dalzell, 15; Irvin, 6; Stewart, 6; Tubbs, 2; Huff, 5; Stone, 5; Rice, 2; Grow, 1; Markle, 1; Wagener, 2; Riter, 2. Total, 218. Necessary to a choice, 110. No election.

Congressman-elect Joseph C. Sibley infused some life into the fight by issuing a statement in the form of an address to the Democrats of Pennsylvania, in which he discussed at length what he calls "Democracy's opportunity." He suggested that the Democrats offer the anti-Quay Republicans one or more candidates, and if these were rejected to refuse to participate further in the joint sessions.

He thinks that there is a chance to elect a Democrat as Senator Quay's successor.

It was hinted in anti-Quay quarters that after the spring elections next Tuesday there would be some defections from the ranks of Senator Quay's supporters. There were all sorts of rumors of impending changes yesterday, but the leaders do not expect anything important to happen this week. There will not be a quorum again in the joint session until next Thursday.

Sloan Will Ride for the Prince.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Tod Sloane is here, and after a short visit to his Indiana home will return to New York. In an interview yesterday he said:

"I shall go back to England March 1, and shall ride for Lord Beresford beginning March 21. On March 22 I shall ride in the Lincolnshire handicap, which will be one of the big events of the year. The Prince of Wales has technically the second call on my services, but in reality he has the first. Lord Beresford will not stand in the way any time his royal highness desires my services."

A cigar maker who worked in Girard Avenue, Philadelphia, had dyspepsia for two years, and began to think his heart was affected. He went to a doctor, but the doctor told him he ate too much. Ripans Tabules came to his notice shortly after and from them he found relief. He continues to take them three or four times every week as a safeguard and recommends them to everybody now.

A new style packet containing THE RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. ATTITUDE OF GOMEZ.

Havana, Feb. 17.—The letter published by La Discusion, purporting to have been written by General Gomez to Senor Eugenio Hostos, a Porto Rican, under date of February 5, in which the writer is represented as expressing his sorrow for Porto Rico, and placing his sword at the disposal of Porto Ricans is regarded here as a "fake." Only last Friday Senor de Quesada, who has just come from Gomez, described him as friendly to the Americans, and his delay in reaching Havana is naturally explained by the unwillingness of the people along his route to let him pass without ovations.

In answering an address of welcome tendered him by Spaniards at Santa Clara, Gomez said: "I realize that the Spaniards of this city, like those of other cities which I have visited, understand me and have full confidence in the policy of peace, unity and concord which I am advocating. The common weal, and our mutual interests demand that we should forget the past. Cubans, knowing the need of the policy of independence, will gratefully accept your co-operation."

At Cienfuegos Gomez was welcomed by the whole population, as well as by the American authorities, and the American troops there saluted Gomez and the Cuban flag.

The Washington Cafe, in Central Park, which was closed Tuesday by Senor Frederico Mora, civil governor of Havana, because its proprietor, Mr. Holman, refused to write a letter of apology to the Cuban general, Ducasse, a mulatto, for declining to serve him refreshments, still remains closed. A number of colored men visited the prominent cafes yesterday and assert that the proprietors refused to serve them. Several will make formal complaint to the civil governor and demand action similar to that taken against Mr. Holman.

Senator Proctor sailed for the United States yesterday.

All Quiet at Santiago

Santiago, Feb. 17.—Colonel Hood reports that the Baracoa, the former Spanish gunboat which the Americans found sunken in the Mayari river, and have raised, will be ready in ten days to proceed under her own steam to any port designated by the government. He says also that his regiment is in first class condition, both in health and spirits.

Lieutenant Colonel Pettit makes virtually the same report as to the condition of his regiment, the Fourth Immunes. Manzanillo, where he is in command, is peaceful, the sugar estates in the district are grinding, the families of the planters have returned and there is no trouble whatever with the insurgents.

The local papers congratulate General Demetrius Castillo upon his appointment as civil governor of Santiago, which they describe as "well earned and due to the exceedingly valuable services he has rendered General Wood in the capacity of Cuban adviser."

Cyclists Far Ahead of Record.

San Francisco, Feb. 17.—The score of the six-day bicycle race at the end of the fifty-second hour shows that there has been little diminution in the speed of the contestants. The previous record for the same time is 856 miles, 740 yards, made by Pierce at Madison Square Garden, New York.

Hardy Downing of San Jose, and Frank Cotter of Tacoma defeated Jay Eaton of Elizabeth, N. J., and Teddy Goodman of Harlem in a one-mile pursuit race, in 1.59 1-5.

The score at the end of the fifty third hour was as follows: Gimm 963, Miller 947, Fredericks 900.6, Aaronson 889.2 Nawn 888.5, Hale 886.5, Barnaby 874.7, Pierce 870.1, Albert 856.3, Pilkington 817.6, Lawson 813.2, Julius 753.5, Ashinger 729.4.

Warships Sail for Havana.

New York, Feb. 17.—The cruiser New York, flagship of the North Atlantic squadron, accompanied by the battleship Indiana, have sailed from the anchorage off Tompkinsville for Havana, where Rear Admiral Sampson will gather his squadron together and carry out the programme of manoeuvres that has been planned.

The cruiser Marblehead was to have sailed with the New York and Indiana, but could not, owing to injuries which she received in the storm. She will go to the navy yard at Brooklyn for repairs, which will require a few days.

Sharkey Puts Up a Forfeit.

New York, Feb. 17.—Tom O'Rourke has posted $10,000 as a forfeit to match Sharkey against the winner of the Fitzsimmons-Jeffries fight, the fight to be decided in November before the club offering the largest purse.

While O'Rourke's action in posting this forfeit tends to show Sharkey is not afraid to fight Fitzsimmons, Mr. O'Rourke is certainly wasting time by putting up money, for Fitzsimmons has already stated he will never give the sailor another chance to make a match with him, and it is doubtful if he will change his mind.

Booth-Tucker Very Ill.

New York, Feb. 17.—Commander Booth Tucker of the Salvation Army has had a relapse, and his illness is now causing his wife and friends much anxiety.

Against the order of his physician, the commander arranged for the immense relief work now being carried on by the army. The work overtaxed him and he contracted a cold.

Hearing for Mrs. Place.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 17.—Governor Roosevelt will give a hearing on February 20 to the persons interested in the application for executive clemency for Mrs. Martha Place, of Brooklyn, who is awaiting execution at Sing Sing prison for the murder of her stepdaughter.

The hearing is given on the application of the Rev. Daniel Cole, her spiritual adviser.

Montero Rios Resigns.

Madrid, Feb. 17.—Senor Montero Rios, president of the Senate, has resigned that office for the purpose of putting himself in a position to defend his action as president of the Spanish peace commission at Paris.

ARMY BILL REPORTED

Senator Hawley Strongly Urges Its Passage.

A DEMOCRATIC SUBSTITUTE

Presented by Senator Cockrell Who Criticises Hull Measure—Canal Bill Offered as Rider to River and Harbor Bill, but Not Likely to Pass.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—Mr. Hawley of Connecticut yesterday reported the army reorganization bill to the Senate and urged its early passage.

Mr. Cockrell of Missouri replied for the Democrats of the military affairs committee criticising the bill and presenting a counter proposition.

This was to continue the present standing army of the United States to a maximum of sixty-two thousand men for two years, and to enlist natives of the several islands to the number of 35,000 men.

Mr. Hawley of Connecticut said that the committee was evenly divided, so that an agreement had been reached to report two measures. He pointed out that the peace treaty which already had been ratified by the Senate would be ratified, perhaps by March 15, by the Spanish Cortes and the two countries would then be ready to exchange ratifications.

"The situation then," he said, "would be serious, as existing law gave the president no alternative, but required him to discharge the volunteers from the service and to reduce the regular army from about fifty thousand to twenty-seven thousand men

"Such discharge and reduction would be theimperative duty of the president. He regarded this as one of the greatest crises in the history of the country, and in pressing the bill to passage he was actuatedonly by what he regarded as the imperative demands of the present situation.

The Canal Bill.

Mr. Morgan offered the Nicaragua canal bill as an amendment to the river and harbor bill and had it referred to the committee on commerce now considering that measure. It was substantially the Hepburn bill offered in the House, with some modifications.

The modifications of the bill relate to themetho d of acquirement of right of way. The provision in the Hepburn bill requiring purchase of Costa Rica and Nicaragua is stricken out, and the first section is changed to read as follows:

"That the president of the United States be, and is hereby authorized to acquire for and in behalf of the United States such portion of territory now belonging to Costa Rica and Nicaragua, or such rights, easements or privileges therein or connected therewith, as may be desirable and necessary to excavate, construct, control and defend a canal of such depth and capacity as will be sufficient for the movements of ships, etc."

The remaining language of the amendment is substantially that of the Hepburn bill.

Senator Morgan's action in offering the Nicaragua canal bill as an amendment to the river and harbor bill is one of two plans to force the canal bill through the House and beat Speaker Reed.

If the amendment fails in the Senate or in the House, Senator Morgan will offer it as an amendment to the sundry civil bill. The chances for its adoption as a rider to either bill are very slim, as there remain but two weeks of this session, and any filibuster may kill it.

The administration senators are determined to make the fight of the session on the army bill and will let all other bills fail to get the reorganization bill through.

Republicans say that the Cockrell compromise will never be accepted and that if the Hull bill is not passed they will force an extra session.

Senator Allison said yesterday that if the president insists upon passing the army bill it can be done, but several of the appropriation bills will fail.

Promotion for Gen. Corbin.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—The House military affairs committee has reported favorably the Senate bill to make Adjutant General H. C. Corbin a major general.

The House bill for the same purpose has been reported already. Chairman Hull intends to move its passage under suspension of the rules during the last six days of the session.

The same committee reported favorably yesterday the bill to give Surgeon General W. A. Hammond (retired), the pay of his rank.

When Dr. Hammond was retired in 1878 he was a rich man and at his own request was retired without pay. Recently he has suffered business reverses, and now asks that he be given his pay as a retired officer. The bill carries no arrearages of pay.

Joint High Commission's Work.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—The American members of the Anglo-American joint high commission had a meeting yesterday which was immediately followed by a joint session of the United States and Canadian commissioners. The Canadian members remained only half an hour, and the meeting of the American commissioners was continued.

The question still under discussion is the cession of privileges on the Lynn canal, in Alaska, to the Canadian government, and the subject is perhaps the most perplexing with which the commissioners have to deal.

Comment in London.

London, Feb. 17.—The St. James Gazette yesterday afternoon, commenting upon the report that the work of the joint American-British-Canadian high commission may have no practical result, thinks it is not altogether a bad thing that he deliberations of the Anglo-American commission at Washington have reached a highly critical stage or even that there is talk of danger that they will be broken off for a time, and says:

"We wish for the friendship of the United States, but we cannot have it at the price of the sacrifice of the interests of Canada. Experience of over a century has taught us that surrender and backing out is not the way to win friendship, or even respect."

PRESIDENT FAURE DEAD.

He Was a Man of the People and a Tanner by Trade.

Paris, Feb. 17.—M. Felix Faure president of the Republic of France, died at ten o'clock last night, after an illness of three hours.

President Faure died from apoplexy.

M. Felix Faure was the first president of the French Republic who had engaged in a commercial career. For many years he was one of the leading leather and hide merchants of Havre, a business from which he retired when he undertook the duties of the presidency.

M. FELIX FAURE.

M. Faure was born in Paris on January 30, 1841. He was named Francois Felix, and he was baptized in the Church of St. Vincent de Paul on February 1. His father was a cabinet maker.

Besides his attractive personal qualities, M. Faure had a perfectly clean record. Although he had filled many important public offices in the midst of almost general corruption he passed unscathed, and none of the many commissions of inquiry had been able to score a black mark against him.

M. Faure's election to the presidency was quite unexpected, and it aroused the anger of the Socialist Deputies, who declared at the time that he would be obliged to resign within six months. He was a moderate republican and a free trader.

INQUIRY INTO NAVY YARD FIRE.

The Maine's Model Not Burned—Regular Work Much Hampered.

New York, Feb. 17.—Chief Engineer Windsor, when seen at the navy yard yesterday morning, estimated at $700,000 the loss sustained through the fire there Wednesday night. He will recommend that the building be rebuilt as soon as possible. Meanwhile the workmen who were employed there, about four hundred, have been assigned to other buildings, where they are continuing the work they had in hand. They are handicapped, however, to such an extent that the repairs on several vessels now at the yard will be considerably delayed.

Captain Sumner, the commandant, announced that the following would constitute a board to inquire into the cause of the fire: Captain Miller of the Vermont, Captain Ludlow of the Massachusetts, Chief Engineer Bird of the Vermont, and Lieutenant H. K. Hines of the Ordnance department. They will begin their sessions this afternoon in building No. 7.

The top floor of the burned building was filled with working models and patterns of nearly every vessel which has been constructed in the yard or docked there for any considerable time. These were all lost. They included the machinery models of the Cincinnati, Raleigh and Chicago. The machinery model of the Maine was not in the building, as was reported, but is in the office of the Quintard Iron Works of this city, where the machinery of the ill-fated vessel was built.

The original plans of all these vessels are, of course, in possession of the navy department, and can be duplicated.

Small repairs to the machinery of the torpedo boats Rogers, Foote, Porter and McKee were being made, and while they will necessarily be delayed, it will not prove to be much of an embarrassment to the department at this time. The repairs to the hull of the Massachusetts will probably be continued at the Brooklyn yard, although there is some talk of taking the vessel to the Norfolk or Boston yard.

The best equipped machine shop of the United States navy was destroyed in the fire. Many valuable patterns, dies, plans and implements were ruined; and, in addition, the engines of the cruisers Cincinnati and New Orleans and the bottom plates of the battleship Massachusetts were injured beyond repair. The building, totally destroyed was valued at $350,000, machinery and tools at $400,000 and plans, models and parts of vessels at about the same figure.

Prof. Owen Was Stephens' Confessor.

Easton, Pa., Feb. 17.—Professor W. B. Owen of Lafayette College was the first witness called yesterday in former Professor George H. Stephens's trial for burning Pardee Hall. His evidence made a profound impression. It was to him that Stephens first confessed to burning Pardee Hall. Professor Owen had been sent for by Stephens to come to the district attorney's office.

"Stephens was very much affected," Professor Owen testified. "He dropped his head on my shoulder and sobbed. He spoke at intervals, and said there was much more to tell, something more terrible. He suggested Pardee Hall. I asked him: 'What about Pardee Hall?' and he replied: 'I fired the hall that night.' Then he sobbed again. He declared that he had no animosity against Professor Davison, in whose room he started the fire, but he did it there because President Warfield was so much interested in that department."

Heins to Be Confirmed.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 17.—Gov. Roosevelt seems to have overcome the opposition in the senate to the ousting of Capitol Commissioner Isaac G. Perry and the appointment of George L. Heins of New York.

Yesterday the governor was not confident, but to-day he said the appointment of Heins would be confirmed, and there would be no trouble.

Senators Coggeshall and Malby, who led the opposition to Heins, declared yesterday that so far as they were concerned the nomination could be confirmed.

General Sewell's New Honor.

The retirement of Major-General Plume and the nomination and confirmation by the Senate of General Sewell to be his successor puts the latter in complete command of the National Guard of New Jersey. All Jerseymen know of the generalship of Sewell in political ranks, and how well he commands, but it will not be his political experience that will serve him in good stead in his new military position. As a matter of fact, General Sewell has a military record back of him that convinces those who are acquainted with it that he will undoubtedly make a worthy successor to General Plume.

General Sewell was mustered into army service at the beginning of the Civil War, being Colonel of the Fifth New Jersey Regiment. During the battle of Chancellorville General Mott was severely wounded, and Sewell led his brigade in a resistless charge and achieved one of the most brilliant successes of the war. He captured eight colors from the Confederates and recaptured the regimental colors of a New York regiment. April 9, 1866, he was made Brevet Brigadier General of Volunteers for gallant and meritorious conduct in the battle of Chancellorsville. At the beginning of the Spanish War President McKinley appointed him a Major-General of Volunteers, but he declined the honor.

Dunellen's Early Stand.

In discussing the proposed suit for damages to be instituted against the city of Plainfield by the borough of Dunellen by reason of operation of the sewage beds, and the alleged ills they heap upon the latter community, the Elizabeth Journal makes the following interesting observations:

Whether Dunellen has good ground for damages is a question for the courts to decide, but a little of the history of the case is of interest just at this time. When Plainfield decided that sewer beds were about the only effective means of disposing of the city sewage, within the limits of reasonable expense, a committee of engineers was appointed to select a site for such beds. This committee did not, at the first, recommend the beds which Plainfield finally purchhased, but a large tract of land far to the west of Dunellen and admirably located for the purpose. Then Plainfield made a proposition to Dunellen to the effect that if the latter would allow a main trunk sewer to be built through its limits, and thus on to the tract of land far to

THE PRESIDENT'S COLONIAL COMMISSION.

The commission which is to counsel the president as to the course of the government in dealing with colonial problems is here presented: Gen. Robert P. Kennedy, a veteran of the Civil War, of Bellefontaine, O.; Charles W. Watkins, of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Lieut. Col. Curtis Guild, Jr., of Boston, who has served as inspector general of Cuba.

west, Plainfield would, in consideration of the privilege, agree to permit Dunellen to make use of this sewer without expense. But Dunellen flatly refused, and Plainfield was compelled to buy land for sewer beds much nearer to either place than was originally intended. Now Dunellen and the extreme northwestern part of Plainfield are sorry that the beds are located so near to the boundaries of the city and the borough.

News From Hackensack.

That one has to go away from home to hear the news of home is a truism so manifest at times that it would be useless to dispute its worth. And so it proves in much of the discussion concerning the Greater Plainfield project. Over in Hackensack, which is considered by Plainfielders as the jumping off place in New Jersey, The Record has been looking into the subject and here is some of the startling information it offers:

Indications point to a conclusion on the part of the people of Plainfield to do something that shows horse sense. At first the scheme was to resolve itself into a mutual admiration society, scoop in a slice of Union, Middlesex and Somerset, and become the fountain head of a new county. That would have been a real good thing for Plainfield and no one can blame that wideawake Jersey municipality for aspirations. Now, however, a wave of common sense has crossed the breast of the powers that be, in which their lives, moves and 'bee' the President of the Senate. Plainfield will probably annex itself to Somerset county, and though there may be a little tussle to wrest the county seat from Somerville it ought not to be done, although no one can throw very much blame on Plainfield if that end is sought.

Commenting on the statement made in The Daily Press sometime ago that Plainfield Republicans would try to capture the appointment of a member of the State Board of Taxation and thus prevent Charles Codding, of Westfield, gaining the office and its emolument of $2,500 a year, the Westfield Leader rises in wrath and proclaims: "That is rich. Is there anything in the way of an office held in or from Union county that is not filled by a man from Plainfield, Elizabeth or Rahway? What is the rest of the county good for?"

An opinion filed in the New Jersey Supreme Court holds a railroad company responsible for injuries inflicted upon a station platform on the company's property, even though the injuries were inflicted by a person not in the company's employ. This principle of law as laid down by the court is limited, however, to apply to cases where the conditions which led to the injury were notorious, and could have been prevented by the company through the exercise of proper caution.

Assemblyman Squire has introduced the bill which has been so earnestly desired by the objectors to the proposed widened county boulevard, that of allowing them a jury trial in the appeals from the findings of the commissioners appointed to condemn the lands needed for the improvement.

Five State Legislatures are still deadlocked over the election of a United States Senator. All this unseemly business would be avoided if the right system prevailed for the selection of a United States Senator; and the right system is by popular vote.

Assemblyman Murray has introduced a bill in the Legislature with reference to making conveyances of property in graveyards. That is rather a grewsome subject for such a lively legislator to deal with.

We have no doubt but that Street Commissioner Gavett feels that small rain storms will be thankfully received until the huge piles of snow are depleted from the streets.

If the average New Jersey Legislature does no more work than the one of 1899, it would seem that sessions held once every ten years would be about right.

There is a rumored combination of of all the big baking powder companies. Such a project ought to have no trouble in rising to success.

It would take more than a poet's imagination to designate the accumulation of snow in the business streets of this city as "beautiful."

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The town of Elizabeth has heretofore taken no interest in meadow reclamation although 2,459 acres lie within the corporate limits of that city, which is nearly 40 per cent. of the city's area. This waste land, if redeemed, would be of the utmost value to the city. It would be quickly occupied for manufacturing and other purposes and the assessed valuations of Elizabeth would go up by leaps and bounds. Nothing can be done independently by the municipality, nor should the reclamation be treated as a local one. Engineer Vermuele has indicated the right method of procedure in his proposition for a commission to deal with the whole 27,000 acres comprised in the Newark and Hackensack meadows.—Newark Advertiser.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

What a wonderful world this is. Tuesday everyone was wondering if the troubles incident to the blizzard would ever end, and last night the subject was changed to conjecturing how long before Bound Brook would be washed off the face of the map if the storm kept up.

* * * * *

The new city ordinance compelling the Plainfield Stteet Railway Company to remove snow from the streets through which their tracks are laid worked to the satisfaction of all during the recent storm. The city was the great gainer thereby. Of course, the trolley company did not like the new move, but then the city was able to see some benefits from the franchise granted. The company is deserving of credit for the able manner in which they removed the snow, thus making travel easy.

H. H. Honnan, a Missouri man who is now in the "teaming" business in Dawson City, says in a letter to his relatives: "Business of all kinds is very dull here now. In the summer and fall I charged $10 an hour for a team and man, and was kept very busy. But expenses are very high. I paid drivers $10 a day and gave them their dinner. Board, without room, is $25 per week; this is the cheapest. Bread is 25 cents a loaf, pies 75 cents each. I pay $50 a month for a cabin. Hay and oats are $55 a ton. Twenty dollars to get horse shod. Flour is $8 a sack, and sugar is 75 cents a pound. There is a scarcity of sugar now; the standard price is 30 cents."

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15 and 25c.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, Feb. 17—Early this month a young man and woman, who claimed to be man and wife, came to the borough and secured board and lodging at the home of Peter Sutphen. The couple gave their names as Mr. and Mrs. Winter, and claimed to be pen and pencil artists. They advertised for pupils and secured a few. Mr. Sutphen saw no money coming in for the board and lodging he was furnishing the couple, although Winter claimed to have a check for $70 in his pocket, which he was waiting to have cashed. After a week of it Mr. Sutphen gave the couple to understand that their room was more to be desired than their company, and they have left town leaving behind them an unpaid board bill of $10.

One of the long arms across the road at the Washington avenue crossing of the Central Railroad had to be thawed out yesterday afternoon so that it could be move. It is strange that the gates were not rendered useless during the blizzard, but as the snow must melt and run down into the machinery underneath, the storm caused no trouble.

The Plainfield Street Railway Company had a force of men and two scrapers out yesterday afternoon leveling off the heaps of snow thrown in the gutters from their trucks. The snow-banks were pretty high in some places, and needed leveling badly.

A sleigh containing two women and a man was upset on the corner of Washington avenue and North avenue yesterday morning. None of them were hurt, but brushed off the snow and drove on. There are several upsets here every day.

John Fisher, of Co. H, Third N. J. V., has returned from Athens, Ga., with the members of his company. Miss Enoch Giles, with whom he boards, is planning an entertainment for him tomorrow night as a welcome home.

Tickets for the Monroe Avenue church, Plainfield, concert, February 28th, are on sale at Dealaman's grocery store. Secure your tickets early as the number is limited to 500.

The men about the Central Railroad station finished up their task of cleaning away the last of the snow from around the switches and the station platform yesterday.

The young people of the Methodist church are preparing to give an exhibition of "Mrs. Jolly's Wax Works" in the church during the first week in March.

Miss Sarah Ace, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. George Craig, has returned to her home in East Stroudburg, Pa.

Jesse Dalrymple, who has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. J. B. Sprowl, of Jersey City, has returned home.

Miss Maud VanPelt, of Newark, are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Henry.

Mrs. Lewis T. Titsworth is confined to her home by illness.

Patrick McMann is very ill with the dropsy.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 17—Several of the young people of the village, together with a number from Netherwood, enjoyed a straw ride Wednesday evening, after which refreshments were served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith, of Netherwood.

Wm. Reilly, of the United States army, is spending a few days with his parents Mr. and Mrs. James Reilly, of Washington Valley. Mr. Reilly has been stationed in the west for a number of years but is now on his way to report for duty at Havana.

A lecture on "Colonial Virginia," together with stereopticon views of southern scenes, was given in the Fanwood fire house last evening. The entertainment was followed by dancing and a very pleasant evening was spent by all attending.

The public school reopened Wednesday morning after a four days' vacation, one of which was a forced one on account of the blizzard. Only about one-third of the usual attendance was out.

The work of opening the roads through the village was finished yesterday and Scotch Plains is gradually recovering from the blizzard.

Goodwill Lodge, K. of P., were unable to hold their regular weekly meeting last evening owing to there being no quorum present.

Misses Reignette and Ivy Marsh entertained one of the library fair committe at their home yesterday afternoon.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. INTERNATIONAL SERIES WITH COMMENTARY BY DR. STEARNS.

Golden Text—I am the bread of life.—John vi: 35. Feb. 19.

1, 2. "A great multitude followed Him because they saw His miracles which He did on them that were diseased." The true disciples followed the Messiah, Israel's deliverer and King, but the majority of people saw wonder-working man who could heal them when they were sick or feed them when they were hungry. He had crossed the sea, perhaps to be more alone with His Father, for He was so misunderstood by men, even by His Disciples, but His Father understood Him perfectly. The multitudes, however, would not let Him alone, their needs were so many and He was so able to meet them.

3, 4. "And Jesus went up into a mountain, and there He sat with His disciples, and the Passover, a feast of the Jews, was nigh." The Passover was a feast of the Lord, but it had become a mere feast of the Jews, anything but an honor to God. To Him all was very real; the animals slain by His own hand to provide coats of skins for Adam and Eve (Gen. iii, 21); the lambs by whose blood the first born were saved in Egypt; the sacrifice He was soon to offer of Himself—all were to Him very, very real, but to them a religious ceremony, a weary form.

5. "When Jesus then lifted up His eyes and saw a great company come unto Him, He saith unto Philip, Whence shall we buy bread, that these may eat?" He was full of compassion for the multitudes, who were as sheep without a shepherd. As to their spiritual condition, their teachers, the scribes and Pharisees, would neither enter the kingdom themselves nor suffer others to enter. Whatever religious rites they performed the object was to be seen of men (Math. xxiii, 5, 13).

6. "And this He said to prove him, for He Himself knew what He would do." Man's thoughts and ways are very earthly. The Lord needs none of them. His are as far above ours as heaven is higher than the earth (Isa. lv, 9). He intends to fill this earth with His glory, and He knows just how He will do it. It was all plain to Him from the beginning. He will complete His body, the church, He will make Israel all righteous, He will subdue all things unto Himself, and He will let us be partners with Him in His kingdom and in all things tending to it, but He needs no suggestions from us as to how it shall be done.

7. "Philip answered Him, Two hundred pennyworth of bread is not sufficient for them that every one of them may take a little." Therefore the matter of feeding them was wholly out of the question, the money necessary was not to be had, and if they had the money where was the bread to be found? So to Philip's mind the idea was simply preposterous. He did not know His Lord, nor did he know Him even up to the night before He was crucified (John xiv, 9).

8, 9. "One of His disciples, Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, saith unto Him, There is a lad here which hath five barley loaves and two small fishes: but what are they among so many?" We look around and find that we have just so much, just the veriest trifle of what is necessary for the work, so little that it is not worth considering, and so we, like Andrew, feel that it is folly to think of it. These things are written for our instruction. May we learn from them and from other scriptures to have faith in God, to dwell with the King for His work (I Chron. iv, 23), sure that what the King purposes He is able to carry out. All power in heaven and in earth is His.

10. "And Jesus said, Make the men sit down. Now, there was much grass in the place. So the men sat down, in number about 5,000." All suggestions, encouraging or discouraging, are now ended. The Lord, who knew just what He would do, takes the matter in hand and begins to work. He is the author and finisher of every good work. He is the only Creator, the only Redeemer, there is none but He, and none like Him. He says, I will work, and who shall let it or turn it back? (Isa. xliii, 13). All the disciples have now to do is simply to watch Him and obey His orders. He fed millions for 40 years. He gave them flesh to the full without killing a single ox or sheep.

11. "And Jesus took the loaves, and when He had given thanks He distributed to the disciples, and the disciples to them that were set down, and likewise of the fishes, as much as they would." He might have rained bread from heaven as He did in the wilderness, but He took what was at hand, and looking to His Father that He might work He multiplied it, as He did the oil meal for the prophet and those with whom He lodged, and the oil for the widow that her debt might be paid (I Kings, xi, 14; II Kings iv, 7).

12. "When they were filled, He said unto His disciples, Gather up the fragments that remains that nothing be lost." While He provides abundantly He will have nothing wasted. Filled and overflowing but all to His glory, and that many may be benefited. An abundance of wine at the feast in Cana and much over, an abundance to eat on this occasion and much to spare, but nothing wasted, nothing lost. Whatever He gives us is that He may be glorified. How sad when He has to say "the God in whose hand thy breath is and whose are all thy ways hast thou not glorified" (Dan. v, 23). When He perceives in us a real desire to glorify Him, we shall be abundantly filled.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic.—A missionary church.—Acts xiii, 1-12. (A missionary meeting.)

The church at Antioch was the most illustrious church of apostolic days. It surpassed in its achievements even the church at Jerusalem. It was founded as a result of missionary effort, it was nourished and built up by missionaries, and in the providence of God it became the starting point from which proceeded the great missionary movements by which the heathen world was brought to the foot of the cross, by which we ourselves know of God and salvation through Christ.

This church may therefore be looked upon, in a peculiar sense, as a missionary church, and by studying it we may learn what a missionary church should be. Every church should be a missionary church, and every Christian Endeavorer should strive to make his church one. Let us, therefore, study the characteristics of this world renowned missionary church and try to make our churches like it.

1. The church at Antioch was a well informed church. It had "prophets and teachers." The prophets "were under the ecstatic influence of the Holy Ghost. The teachers were expounders of Christian truth under the teaching of the Spirit." By such eminent prophets and teachers as Antioch possessed it is easy for us to believe that they were not only informed as to their personal and local needs, but also of the need of the world for the gospel. We cannot imagine Barnabas and Paul neglecting the cause of heathendom. A church that aspires to be a missionary church must be well informed along missionary lines. Knowledge creates an interest and inspires with a desire to help in the work of evangelizing the world. It is the lack of information that causes many churches to be indifferent to missions.

2. The church at Antioch was a spiritual church. They fasted and prayed. They kept as far as possible from the world and as close as possible to God. They were on intimate terms with the Holy Ghost. He spoke to them and revealed His will to them. More devotion, more praying and self denial, more of the Holy Ghost would make many a church more of a missionary church than it is.

3. The church at Antioch was an obedient church. It obeyed the Holy Ghost without hesitation and without complaint. The Holy Ghost requested that Paul and Barnabas be separated for a special work. They fasted and prayed and laid their hands upon them "and sent them away." The task assigned to the missionaries was tremendous. The difficulties must have seemed insurmountable, yet they obeyed at once; yet they went, poor, unpracticed and unarmed, and in spite of all obstacles succeeded. An obedient church must be a missionary church. The command of the Master is to send the gospel to every creature in the world. The church that fails to do its share of the work is a disobedient church.

4. The church at Antioch was a self denying church. Some people may think it gave nothing to missions. How mistaken they are! They gave a gift that must have been a great sacrifice, that must have cost much self denial on their part. They gave Paul and Barnabas! What church would want to deny itself of such workers as these? It would certainly cost more than to give money to the cause of missions.

Bible Readings.—Ps. ii, 1-9; Isa. xlii, 6, 7; lii, 7; Nah. i, 15; Math. xiii, 31-33; xxviii, 19, 20; Luke ii, 25-32; John iii, 16; xv, 16; Acts i, 8; viii, 26-40; Rom. i, 14-16; x, 14, 15; Rev. xxii, 17.

The Church and the Poor.

We do not need to deplore the supposed decadence of the church. If the influence of the church is declining, it is in part because we are neglecting our plain duty to the lowest of the people. The church that can and does reach down to the very substratum of society and rescue the perishing ones who are there hovering over the mouth of the pit will deserve and receive the Master's approbation. Let us turn aside a little from our elaborate rituals, our elegant social functions, our denominational rivalry, our higher criticism and our worship of creed and devise and execute ways and means for carrying the word of God to our poorest and most needy neighbors.—Evangelist.

Work In India.

In addition to Tamil, Telugu and Kanarese, the Model Christian Endeavor constitution is to be put into Malayalam, another language of southern India. It is now found in at least ten different languages of India.

Different Viewpoints.

Not only does it make a difference from what standpoint a subject be viewed, but it makes even a greater difference who stands at that point to take the view.—Lutheran Observer.

No Night There.

In heaven above there is no night
To shroud the day in gloom,
For God is there, and He is light,
And He doth heaven illume.

No night of sorrow spreads a shade
To pall the sunny hours,
For joys are there that never fade
And never lose their flowers.

There is no night of weeping there
To dim the bending skies,
For tears have ceased and every care
And with them grieving sighs.

No night of trial there descends
To cast its shadows dun,
For there the Christian's battle ends,
And victory is won.

And there no night of death e'er falls
To breathe its noisome breath,
For over heaven's crystal walls
Ne'er leaps the form of death.

No darkness there, no waning light!
Oh, what a heaven this—
A heaven with radiance ever bright
And with unclouded bliss!

Philadelphia Ledger.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 19. "A Missionary Church." Text, Acts xiii, 1-3.

"When they had fasted and prayed and laid their hands on them, they sent them away."

It was in a great city, filled with wealth and luxury and moral corruption. An obscure company of religiously enthusiastic people had banded together. It was a strangely mixed band. They were worthy Jews, but from many lands, drawn to the great city by their business. The strictness of their religious prejudices had been somewhat relaxed and new notions added. They were followers of Jesus the Nazarene. They allowed gentiles to meet with them on equal terms. A strange innovation for the exclusive Jews.

Now occurs a still stranger thing. The impression gains currency that of the considerable number of religious teachers among them two should be sent together to the islands and neighboring provinces to teach the people the new views which they had themselves received and call the people to share in their religious experiences.

This was indeed a new spirit for those who had for ages been known as most intolerant toward all other religions and people. This was the beginning of Christian missions. All previous work had been unpremeditated, the result of an exigency or a special occasion. This was planned with deliberation. Other efforts had been individual and spasmodic. This was a movement of the whole church, and was to be a sustained and continued labor.

The preparation for the work is noticeable. "They fasted;" not those alone who were to be sent out, but the whole company. It was not as a form, but as a religious preparation of body and spirit to more clearly discern the will of God. "They prayed." After the mind was clear and active, freed from all sluggishness of sleep and eating, they directed the powers of soul to learning the divine pleasure. "They laid their hands on them." Assurance of fraternal regard was in it, but more than that—authority to represent the church and carry the knowledge and practices of the church to others was imparted. Alone, no one of them possessed the right to bring others into this fellowship. The whole company united in the act of sending these messengers with the gospel message to the people in the regions beyond.

So should it be now. The whole church should send out the missionaries and sustain the work as its own.

Growth of Brotherhood.

Our recent war with Spain has opened eyes and hearts in wondrous ways and to wonderful extent in unexpected places. We entered the conflict with an avowal such as no nation ever before made as the basis of battle. We sought no conquest of lands for ourselves, no vindication of wounded honor or righting of wrongs of our own, but we could no longer tolerate the evils and wrongs under which our neighbors were suffering.

Though of different race and speech, with customs and traditions unlike our own, of a religion which made small appeal to many of us, they were our neighbors, oppressed, struggling, almost helpless and well nigh hopeless.

The most hopeful sign of all the conflict is the evident growth of human brotherhood. In the third of a century past we as a people have accumulated wealth beyond all historical precedent. It was a grave question if we were not growing avaricious in spirit and losing all the nobler qualities of heroic manhood. This war has shown the spiritual as well as material and physical fiber of the young republic. We have the spirit of brotherhood. This is the impulse of all missionary effort. In a broader and deeper sense than he intended the "cry of kinship" is caught by us from the lips of Tennyson's successor and rung around the globe. We are brothers not only to those of Anglo-Saxon birth and breeding, but to all men everywhere.

In many public schools the pupils are required to furnish lists of current events and explain them. It would be a good plan in the League to have once a month a review of the important events in the church at large. Affairs in Methodism and in other denominations are as important to us as the doings of congress or crowned heads.

Cry of Kinship.

What is the voice I hear
On the wind of the western sea?
Sentinel, listen from out Cape Clear
And say what the voice may be!
'Tis a proud, free people calling loud to a people proud and free.

And it says to them: "Kinsmen, hail!
We severed have been too long.
Now let us have done with a wornout tale—
The tale of an ancient wrong—
And our friendship last long as love doth last and be stronger than death is strong."

Answer them, sons of the selfsame race
And blood of the selfsame clan.
Let us speak with each other face to face
And answer as man to man
And loyally love and trust each other as none but freemen can.

Now fling them out to the breeze—
Shamrock, thistle and rose—
And the star spangled banner unfurl with these,
A message to friends and foes
Wherever the sails of peace are seen and wherever the war wind blows,

A message to bond and thrall to wake,
For wherever we come, we twain,
The throne of the tyrant shall rock and quake
And his menace be void and vain,
For you are lords of a strong young land and we are lords of the main.

Yes, this is the voice on the bluff March gale:
We severed have been too long,
But now we have done with a wornout tale—
The tale of an ancient wrong—
And our friendship last long as love doth last and be stronger than death is strong.

Nordhausen. Ein Plan, welcher schon öfter auftauchte, aber stets an dem Widerstreben der Klosterkammer in Hannover, als der Grundbesitzerin, scheiterte, wird voraussichtlich demnächst zur Ausführung gelangen, nämlich die Umgestaltung der im Ilfelder Thale, zwei Stunden von Nordhausen, belegenen umfangreichen Netzweiche zu einem Sammelbecken, sowie die Anlegung einer großen elektrischen Centrale daselbst, welche Nordhausen und die gesammte Umgegend mit Kraft versehen soll.

TUMBLING CYCLE RECORDS.

It is a curious fact that the week the horse was monarch in New York, its silent steel frame contemporary, the wheel, was monarch in Philadelphia, and succeeded in establishing some records for time which throw all past performances of trotters and runners into total eclipse. Indeed, the surprising exhibitions of "Major" Taylor, a crack colored bicyclist, at the Wooodside track in Philadelphia, have opened the eyes of wheelmen as well as of horsemen. Taylor lowered the paced records for quarter of a mile, one-third of a mile, half a mile, three-quarters of a mile and one mile respectively, and some of his feats were accomplished under circumstances which probably would have discouraged many other riders with a reputation for high speed.

Taylor, paced by quintuplet machines, clipped three-fifths of a second from the one-mile paced record of Taylore, a Frenchman, making the new record 1:32. On the same day the best time for half a mile, 48 seconds, made some time ago by Windle, was reduced by Taylor to 45 4-5 seconds, and later to 45 3-5. Taylor brought down the record for one-third of a mile from 30 1-5 seconds to 29 4-5 seconds, the slower time having been made by Windel three years ago.

On the day following, Taylor surter-mile, one-third mile, half-mile, three-quarters and one-mile records passed all previous trials for the quarIn his first attempt he reached the half-mile mark in 45 2-5 seconds, one-fifth of a second under the best former time; and the record for three-quarters, which he had previously been unable to lower, he reduced 1-5 seconds, making the new time 1:08 4-5. The mile was finished in 1:32, exactly the same time for that distance as the same rider had made three days before. On the second trial that day Taylor covered the first quarter one-fifth of a second under the record; at one third he maintained the same advantage; at one-half he was tied with his former record of 45 2-5 seconds; at two-thirds he was two-fifths of a second under his own record, and at three-quarters he had occupied 1 minute and 8 3-5 seconds, or one-fifth of a second under the record.

But Taylor's remarkable performances equalled his effort when, compelled to exert himself to the utmost because of faulty pacing, he smashed his own one-mile record of 1:32, shortening the time for that distance by one-fifth of a second and thus establishing as his new time 1:31 4-5. Soon after his new one-mile victory he sought to lower the figures for three-quarters of a mile and was able to clip one-fifth of a second from his own fast time of the day before, making the new figures 1:08 2-5. In the same trial the half-mile stretch was covered in 45 1-5 seconds, one-fifth of a second ahead of his best previous time, and 2 4-5 seconds ahead of the record held by Windle.

It is worthy of notice that Taylor's achievements were made in almost continuous riding, very little time having been devoted to rest. In that respect, as in respect to the number of excellent records established, his performance will arouse the admiration of the racing men all over the world. What will doubtless startle the cycling fraternity, however, more than anything else is the fact that four-fifths of a second has been struck from the old record for one mile, and further evidence has been given that ere long 1:30 will be easily within the wheel's possibilities. It can scarcely be expected that the one-mile figures will show so great a drop correspondingly as has been shown since September, 1897. In that month J. W. Stocks rode a mile at the Crystal Palace, London, in 1 minute 35 2-5 seconds. It was that performance which exhibited the wheel as speedier by one-tenth of a second than the horse.

When, two or three years ago, W. W. Hamilton rode a mile at Coronado, Cal., in 1:39 1-5, it was thought that the bicycle had attained an astonishing speed. A little over a year afterward Hamilton's record was lowered almost a second by McDuffee, and in about a week after the latter's ride J. Platt Betts, an English scorcher, made the time 1:37 2-5. It was thought by some when Stocks knocked two seconds from the best previous time that the one-mile paced bicycle championship might remain for some time on the other side of the water. Fortune decreed otherwise, however, and now our English flyers will have to bestir themselves if they hope to regain past honors.

A little more than a year ago 1:35 was the mark for ambitious cyclists. Now it is 1:30. In the race against time the poor horse appears to be further behind than ever.

Longest Hair in the World.

The woman who possesses the longest head of hair in the world is said to be Mercedes Lopez, a Mexican. Her height is five feet and when she stands erect her hair trails on the ground four feet eight inches. The hair is so thick that she can completely hide herself in it. She has it cut very frequently, as it grows so quickly, enabling her to sell large tresses to hair dealers every month. She is the wife of a poor sheep herder.

Yet We Talk of Our Production.

Of the entire human race it is estimated that 500,000,000 are well clothed—that is, they wear garments of some kind; 250,000,000 habitually go naked, and 700,000,000 only cover parts of their body; 500,000,000 live in houses, 700,000,000 in huts and caves, and 250,000,000 have virtually no shelter at all.

A SWELLED HEAD.

Is asked who is the greatest bore,
By truth we are compelled,
If we make answer, this to say—
The man whose head is swelled.

His own ideas and weighty thoughts
So fill his little mind,
In others no good trait he sees,
To his own faults he's blind.

So great is his own self esteem,
So mighty is his worth,
He thinks all things would cease to move,
If he'd step off the earth.

He sees much that he'd criticise.
And much that makes him frown,
Not only this, he has the gall,
To "call his betters down."

These swell-head people we all know,
Can to themselves give thanks,
If some fine morning they awake
And find they're only cranks.

S. G. C.

THE HUSBAND'S JEALOUSY.

She was only eighteen when Gilbert Amydon married her—a bright-eyed little thing, with hair like gold, and a complexion like the pink-and-white of a conch shell.

"Gil, you're a fool!" said his plain-spoken uncle, who had money to leave, and comported himself in a proportionately uncivil manner. "You're like all the rest of the world—infatuated by a pretty face."

"I confess, dear Gilbert, I am surprised at your choice," said his elderly maiden sister, "after having told you that Sylvia Simmerton was inclined to look favorably upon your attentions—why, Sylvia has three hundred a year of her own."

"I'm really afraid, Gilbert," said his mother, "that Florence is rather young and inexperienced."

"She'll grow older, mother," said the bridegroom cheerily; "and there is plenty of experience to be had in this world, if one only lives long enough."

And Gilbert Amydon and his pretty little wife were as happy as the day was long.

Florence cried a little when her husband was obliged to go away on important business connected with the firm in which he was a partner. They had been married only a few months.

"I wish I were going with you, Gilbert," said she; and Gilbert Amydon laughed and patted her rose-leaf cheek.

"Why, what should I do with a little sephyr of a creature like you?" said he. "How would you endure traveling all night and running about all day? No, no; you must stay at home and keep house till I come back."

So Gilbert Amydon went away.

He had not been gone many weeks before a long and acrid letter from his maiden sister, Drusilla, infused a bitter element into the current of his reflections.

"Florence is very well," wrote Miss Drusilla, who, although by no means either fat or fair, was forty at least, "and apparently very happy. She had friends to tea last night. Of course, I was not invited, although most inopportunely I called in, about the Dorcas Sewing Club, just as they were sitting down to tea. The Misses Myrtle were there, with their cousin, Major Darrock is very handsome"—these words were underscored with two vicious dashes of the pen—"and, judging from their conversation, Florence and he were old friends before she met you. I dare say it is all right—indeed, Florence told me that when she invited the three Myrtle girls she didn't know that Major Darrock had just arrived on a visit to them. But, nevertheless, I hardly believe it is well to re-ignite the ashes of an old flirtation on the altar of an absent husband's hearthstone. However, as I said before, Florence is very young, and can hardly be expected to comprehend these things."

Gilbert Amydon felt a sharp sting of latent jealousy go through his heart as he read his sister's words, but presently he broke into a smile, and tore up Miss Drusilla's letter unceremoniously into cigar-lighters.

"They would shut her up in a nunnery if they had their way, said he to himself. "Poor, dear little girl! she must have some amusement."

But Uncle Crawley's next letter was more vaguely annoying still.

"I suppose you have heard from your wife about the fancy masquerade ball," said he. "The young folks are all wild about it. Your wife is to go as Rowena to Major Darrock's Ivanhoe. The costumes are to cost no end of money, I am told. When I was a young man people didn't squander their incomes in that sort of way. But I suppose if you are willing, it's not my business to object."

Gilbert Amydon knit his brows and bit his lip, as he read the words that his Uncle Crawley had penned with such malicious pleasure. This was quite a different affair from the tea party to which Drusilla Amydon had taken exception. And for the first time in his life Gilbert felt in his heart a strong, surging tide of anger toward the beautiful young wife whom he had promised at the altar to love and cherish.

"If she is really going to this ball," he said to himself, "I don't know what the consequences will be. She knows I hate bal-masques, and she knows, too, that she has no business to go with that major fellow when I am away. Drusilla was right—she is too young for a wife. I should have thought twice before I gave up into her hands such unbounded power to sting and torture me. At all events, I wont stay here to be made a fool of. I'll go back home, and judge for myself whether she is losing all her common sense and discretion.

He glanced at his watch.

"If I start at once," he thought, "I can be at Dedlington on the evening of the ball. And I'll do it!"

What a long, dreary ride that was—midnight joltings through endless stretches of woods and meadow-lands and tunnels of echoing rock—days when sleep and waking seemed oddly jumbled together! And the one pervading idea that filled his brain was Florence, robed in pale blue silk with her golden hair dressed as in an old picture he had once seen of the beautiful Saxon Princess Rowena. And all the time his heart was as heavy as lead within him.

Florence, whom he had loved and trusted—Florence, who had grown into his heart as the clinging ivy makes its way into the crevices of the granite rock—Florence, whose pure innocence and singleness of nature he had worshipped—what would life be worth to him if she should prove untrue? Not that he feared any such misery—no, he knew Florence too well for that—but a plum with the bloom brushed off was no plum for him, he had told himself, with a hot, fevered anger throbbing through his brain; of what value were the smiles whose sweetness was lavished liberally on all alike?

And as he rode along, with folded arms and traveling cap drawn sullenly over his eyes, Gilbert Amydon felt like one who was already bereaved.

The house was dark as he ascended the steps and opened the door with his latchkey.

"Gone!" he said to himself, with a bitter smile. "Gone! Well, I knew it. What else could I have expected? She is no longer my sweet, home-loving Florence, but—Rowena, the Saxon Princess!"

With these thoughts in his mind, he strode up the passage, and opened the drawing-room door. To his surprise, it was neither dark nor deserted. A cheerful fire burned in the grate—the shaded lamp threw its circlet of light on the red-covered centre-table—and there, all alone, sat Florence, her cheek resting on her hand, her soft eyes fixed intently on something in her lap—his photograph!

It was the prettiest little tableau in the world. Amydon stood for a second, scarcely willing to disturb it.

"Florence!"

"O, Gilbert, Gilbert!"

And with a low, sobbing cry of joy she sprang to his breast.

"So you haven't gone to the fancy ball, after all," said he, as he sat down beside her, passing his hand fondly over her golden hair.

"To the fancy ball? I never thought of going, Gilbert. I knew you did not like balls; and, besides, where would be the pleasure of going, with you away?"

"They wrote to me that you were going as Rowena, the Saxon Princess," said Amydon, half ashamed of the words he uttered.

"O, I know!" said Florence, laughing. "Fanny Myrtle did want me to go. She was to be Rebecca, the Jewess, you know, and Major Darrock, her cousin, was to be Ivanhoe; and she thought it would be a nice party. She even ordered a costume for me, but I told her all along I shouldn't go; so Clara Myrtle is wearing it to-night."

"While you are sitting here all alone, and studying my photograph?" he interrogated fondly.

"I—I'm afraid I was crying a little," confessed Florence, "for I was so lonely, and I wanted to see you so much."

"My own darling little wife!"

This was the last of Gilbert Amydon's brief madness of jealousy. Drusilla's spite and Uncle Crawley's quiet malice had all fallen short of their mark.

And Florence reigns undisputed queen at last over her husband's heart.

Holland and Her Colonies.

It is not the fiercest nations that have been the greatest successes at colonizing and getting rich out of gentle toil. Next to England, little phlegmatic Holland has the most valuable colonies in the world. She still holds Java, containing 25,000,000 people, and although the natives are Malays they are very loyal. She also has other rich possessions in the east, the island of Sumatra being four times as large as Cuba, and the island of Celebes being larger than all New England, to say nothing of her six islands in the West Indies and her possessions in South America. The good-natured Netherlands, like the British, have held on to their profitable territory by keeping the spirit of trade alive rather than the spirit of autocracy, and avoiding the levy of murderous taxes, with nothing in return to compensate.

About Mosquitoes.

Mosquitoes, it is to be presumed, exist for some useful service, but what it is known only to etomologists. To the majority of people there is no information regarding them so welcome as the fact that they are gradually being exterminated by the advance of civilization. This being so, it should be additionally interesting to those who live in districts where mosquitoes abound to know how their departure can be expedited. Permanganate of potash, says a medical paper, can be used against them with deadly effect. Minute parts of the crystal are sufficient for the purpose. The same authority informs us that only two and a half hours are required for a mosquito to develop from its first stage, a speck resembling cholera bacteria, to its active and venomous maturity.

GOV. ROOSEVELT, UNIFIER.

All Shades of Republicans in New York Are Falling Together.

Col. Roosevelt is doing just what he said he would do. When asked during the campaign whether, if elected, he would consult with Senator Platt as to his course in executive office, he replied that he certainly would consult the Senator, and he would also consult other wise counsellors both in the Republican party and out of it. He proposed to derive all the benefit he possibly could from these conferences, after which he would make up his mind and act on his own judgment.

The same sage prophets who predicted that the impulsive Rough Rider would certainly Burchardize himself during the campaign, were quite certain that after election he would take the bit in his teeth and rampage through the political garden like an Arizona mustang. All these prophecies have come to naught. Roosevelt saved the ticket by his flying trips through the State, impressing hundreds of thousands of voters by his personality, his promises and his sincerity. He recognizes the fact, as do all Republicans, that it was a narrow—a very narrow victory. He realizes, perhaps better than any one else, that only by united, harmonious, effective action on the part of the Republican party can the high standards he has set for his administration be attained, and the public confidence be fully regained.

Mr. Roosevelt naturally wants to bring together hitherto discordant and warring elements in the party. He has manifested his desire and purpose to confer with all whose experience in special training qualifies them to give good advice. His first conference, after election, was with Joseph H. Choate, Elihu Root and Seth Low, at the house of the college president. He next consulted with Mr. Odell, chairman of the State Committee, and Senator Platt, the organization leader.

The fact that Theodore Roosevelt and the party machine are in politics for entirely different purposes, and with widely differing ideals, does not necessarily argue a rupture. Nor is there an essential insincerity in the mutual confession that each has need of the other. Had the machine believed it could have elected any other man than Roosevelt, almost any other man would have been taken. Had Roosevelt been confident of election without the zealous support of the machine, he would have accepted the Citizens' nomination. This reciprocal inter-dependence is as essential now as before election. The executive and legislative departments must work in harmony, if good legislation is to be enacted, good men put into office and a record made on which the party can go before the people next time with more confidence than it did a few weeks ago. Mr. Roosevelt will govern the Governor, no one doubts that, but Senator Platt will govern the Legislature. The Governor can block legislation, but the Senate can hold up the Governor's appointments. Attempted coercion on either side would be fatal to a good party record. The machine, moreover, would hardly venture a quarrel with a Governor possessing Roosevelt's traditional qualities, and the Governor-elect as well as the machine is manifesting a "sweet reasonableness" which promises well for a successful administration.

The reputation Theodore Roosevelt has made in some quarters is that he is a habitual quarreler and a poor tactician. He is getting away from that reputation in rapid paces. He is developing into a unifying force."—New York Mail and Express, Anti-Machine.

A TICKET-SCALPING VICTORY.

The railroads are waging a war upon ticket brokers, in which the interests of the public, so far as they bear upon the matter, are with the latter.

The triumph won by the railroad ticket-scalping interest in the Court of Appeals, on a test case of arrest made under the New York State law of 1897 prohibiting the conduct of the business of ticket-selling by all save authorized agents of railway companies was not a surprise. This decision, declaring the law to be unconstitutional, was predicted some weeks ago, when another and similar decision, based, as alleged, upon like grounds, was handed down at Albany.

The court, in effect, denies the power of the legislature to prohibit this more than any other brokerage business in which dishonest men may engage and impose upon the public; that such prohibition is an infringement of personal liberty, inasmuch as the business of ticket brokerage is not in itself of a fraudulent character; that such business has been lawful for many years; that to declare it unlawful now is to unwarrantably grant a monopoly to transportation companies, or an exclusive privilege to say who shall engage in a business which, when honestly conducted, tends, like other brokerage business, to the convenience of the public and the profit of the persons engaged in it. It holds that the sale of fraudulent tickets, so widely complained of, is a punishable offense under the penal code, and that the legislature cannot interdict the sale of a valid ticket by one person to another—unless such interdiction be a proper exercise of police power by the state.

Ticket scalping is prohibited by law in Pennsylvania, Illinois and Indiana—and, we believe, in one or two other states. It is illegal in Canada, in England and throughout Europe.

Prim—Halloa, old man. You are the last person I expected to meet."

Flim—Indeed? Well, I am the last person you have met.

PUNISHING THOMAS.

In a fluff of pink silk and white lace she sat curled up in a huge leather chair drawn up next the reading lamp in the "den." She had an interesting book, but there was heavy woe in the droop of her mouth and her eyes were dark with injury and when Howell Van Rensselaer Gibbon and two girls burst in upon her she put out a languid hand and did not stop frowning.

"What's up?" her visitors chorused, in astonishment. Could this be Beatrix, the creature of smiles and happiness?

She laid down her book.

"Thomas did not come home to dinner," she announced, with an air of having ended a half hour's explanation.

"Good gracious!" said Howell, as he dropped onto the couch from the shock. Is that all? And you've been married—let me see—four months! Don't you think it's time the poor man had a vacation?"

"He has had." spluttered the implacable one. "One evening last summer in London when I was tired and I sent him off alone to the music hall and another time in Scotland I let him go on a two days shooting trip. And I had the loveliest dinner and no one to eat it." She glowered at Howell. "He telephoned at half past five when it was too late for me to go anywhere. If only I'd known I'd have gone to the theatre and when he got home I wouldn't have been here. He'd have been so scared."

"What are you going to do when he does get home?" queried the girl with the coque's plume hat. She was Beatrix's sister and privileged to ask questions.

"I'm going to freeze," said Beatrix promptly and coldly. "I will not have any row—it's so common to squabble. But he's just got to know he isn't going off this way and leave me to spend a whole evening alone. It doesn't pay to be meek about such things—men never appreciate sweet-tempered women—never! You've got to be disagreeable once in a while to make them realize you are an individual with rights.

"In other words," said Howell, with interest, "you are going to work the cold-and-haughty racket."

"I am," said Beatrix, sternly.

The second feminine visitor, who is taking notes on human nature, turned to Mr. Gibbon.

"Howell," she said persuasively, "you go out in the hall and come in and play that you are Thomas. I want to see how Beatrix will treat him."

"No, no!" said Howell, promptly, and virtuously. "I'm afraid I'd get kissed."

There was a sniff from the big leather chair.

"I see myself kissing Thomas this evening," were her icy words.

"H'm," said the suggester of the plan, "you'll be so glad to see him that you'll coo over him in the most maudlin way when he does appear."

Beatrix looked thoughtful.

"Well, I have not seen him since morning," she admitted, as one with a totally new idea. "I will be rather glad to see him—that's a fact!"

"Ha! Ha!" exploded Mr. Gibbon and at once looked grave and sympathetic when she turned on him.

"I'm rather sorry for Thomas myself," said the second girl. She did not like the plaintive droop of Beatrix's mouth. That little sign usually foretells squally weather.

"Unless," said Beatrix's sister, as if to herself, "he has the good sense to come home with a bad headache or a feeling that he is going to have typhoid fever or small-pox."

"I am not," announced Beatrix, sitting up straight for the first time, "silly enough to be hoodwinked by any such trick! When I get angry it is for good cause and it would be doing myself an injustice to let him think I don't mind his neglect and unkind—"

There was a step on the porch, and at once a flash of pink silk and lace through the door. The deserted trio looked at one another and held their breath, as they waited for the storm to burst.

"Hello, Trix," cried Thomas in his heartiest most careless voice,. Been lonesome?"

"Lonesome!" echoed the furious wife in the plaintive and timid tones of an abused infant, "I wanted to see you so—" The rest was remarkably muffled and there was a long silence broken by a faint sound which caused Howell to nod his head.

"Didn't I tell you what would have happened to me?" he asked of the girl who is studying human nature.

"And he didn't even pretend to have a headache," whispered Beatrix's sister, with round eyes of astonishment at her kaleidoscopic sister.

"I think," said Howell, as Beatrix and Thomas entered enveloped in a seraphic cloud, "that it is time for us to go home before the domestic storm which is so evidently lowering over this happy home bursts in cyclonic fury. Come on, girls!"—Chicago News.

Ikey—"Give me a penny, fadder, and I buy me an orange off dat man outside."

Heimstadter—"Go and make faces at him, Ikey; maybe he will throw one at you."

"Your wife?" asked the casual acquaintance as the agressive looking woman passed.

"Well," replied the little man doubtfully, "perhaps it would be a little more appropriate to say that I am her husband."—Chicago Post.

IVORY SOAP PASTE.

In fifteen minutes, with only a cake of Ivory Soap and water, you can make a better cleansing paste than you can buy.

Ivory Soap Paste will take spots from clothing; and will clean carpets, rugs, kid gloves, slippers, patent, enamel, russet leather and canvas shoes, leather belts, painted wood-work and furniture. The special value of Ivory Soap in this form arises from the fact that it can be used with a damp sponge or cloth to cleanse many articles that cannot be washed because they will not stand the free application of water.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory'," they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

THE GREAT INDOOR GAME

WHAT IS GOING ON IN LOCAL BASKET BALL CIRCLES.

Happenings of Interest to Plainfield Enthusiasts—What the Local Teams are Doing—Gossip Among the Players.

When Manager George Fuller, of the Plainfield basket ball team, secured a date for the Yale basket ball team to come to Plainfield, he believed that he had done a good thing for the association and the sport He expected that much satisfaction would be expressed at his work in getting the game. Great was his astonishment at learning that there was considerable opposition to the game. It is safe to predict that he will make no more attempts to get the big teams to come to Plainfield hereafter.

The next basket ball game scheduled to be played in Plainfield will take place Monday evening in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. The visiting team will be from the Hasbrouck Heights Field Club. The Plainfield team went to Hasbrouck Heights several weeks ago and played the Field Club team. Plainfield had everything its own way and won by a very large score. As long as Plainfield had such an easy thing of it in Hasbrouck Heights the game here is likely to be even more one-sided unless the visitors have been doing some wonderful practicing in the meantime.

The proposed basket ball game in the Crescent Rink between the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team and the Yale 'Varsity five will not be held. That was definitely decided by the Y.M.C.A. directors at their meeting Tuesday evening. Neither will there be any games at the Rink this season in which the local team will take part. Some of the local players believed that the proposed Yale game was to be the beginning of a series of games with the prominent teams of the country which can only be brought here at considerable expense. The receipts from games in the gymnasium is not sufficient to cover these expenses.

Informal Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, gave an informal dinner last evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ely, of New York.

A QUICK RETORT OF DR. CHALMERS.

His Host's Manner Didn't Squelch His Desire to Tell a Good Story.

The New York Observer tells this story of the great Dr. Chalmers: "Lady Betty Cunningham, having had some difference of opinion with the parish minister, instead of putting her usual contribution in the collection plate, merely gave a stately bow. This having occurred several Sundays in succession, the elder in charge of the plate at last lost patience and blurted out:

"'We cud dae wi' less o' yer manners and mair o' yer siller, ma leddy.'

"Dining on one occasion at the house of a nobleman, Dr. Chalmers happened to repeat the anecdote, whereupon the host, in a not-over-well-pleased tone, said:

"'Are you aware, Dr. Chalmers, that Lady Betty is a relative of mine?'

"'I was not aware, my lord,' replied the doctor, 'but, with your permission, I shall mention the fact the next time I tell the story.'"

Discrimination in Philadelphia.

Hundreds of colored boys are employed in Philadelphia to sell hot fishcakes on the streets. The cakes, as a rule, are cooked by colored women and are as delicious as fishcakes can be. The boys carry the cakes in tin cans, to the bottom of which is affixed a heating pot. They have also a small box of fuel. They take a stand on some crowded corner and in the course of an evening sell from fifty to 200 cakes. To a sober person the charge for each cake is 1 cent, but if the purchaser shows signs of having indulged too freely in drinks alcoholic a demand for 5 cents is made and generally paid. —Philadelphia Press.

Read the Bible for a "Shine."

The other Sunday morning in Washington a gentleman sallied forth betimes to have his shoes polished, and finally discovered a coal black "professor," who was intently reading the Bible. "Hullo," says the early citizen; "give me a shine." "Yes, I will, boss, if you'll read this second chapter of St. John while I'se work." "All right," responded the gentleman; "go ahead." And he read aloud the chapter as requested. "Thank you, boss; guess you read it straight," said the old darky, "an' yer boots am right, too."—Boston Herald.

Lesson in Morals.

Mother—Now, Willy, you told me a falsehood. Do you know what happens to little boys who tell falsehoods?

Willy (sheepishly)—No!

Mother—Why, a big black man with only one eye in the center of his forehead comes along and flies with him up to the moon and makes him pick sticks for the balance of his life. Now, you will never tell a falsehood again, will you? It is awful wicked!—Puck.

"Rip Van Winkle," as presented by the Jefferson Comedy Company, which will be seen at Music Hall next Monday night can be counted as one of the most enjoyable events in the theatrical line which will be afforded to theatrical people of this city this season. The greatest praise is accorded Thomas Jefferson, who will be seen in that delightful characterization of "Rip," for the able manner in which he presents this character. The company is known as the Jefferson Comedy Company, the four principal members of the same being Charles Jefferson, Thomas Jefferson, Joseph Jefferson, Jr., and Wm. Jefferson. The balance of the company are well-known players, who have been engaged for their particular fitness to the parts which they will play in this beautiful poetic drama. Each of the four boys has had the advantage of a thorough theatrical training under the tutorship of their illustrious father, Joseph Jefferson. Reserved seat sale is now progressing.

Manager Maze Edwards is authority for the statement that the holiday bills Washington's Birthdy at Music Hall next Wednesday, will excel all presentations of a like nature yet offered. Jolly Nellie McHenry and her complete company of artists will appear at both performances, afternoon and evening and will be seen in novel features.

On Friday night of next week at Music Hall is to be presented by Charles Frohman's company, one that has been especially selected by this well-known manager, the now famous comedy "The Little Minister." This is the play adapted from J. M. Barrie's famous novel of the same name. Those who have read the book, or had the pleasure of seeing the play, state that Mr. Barrie has made a remarkable and highly entertaining play. We have received reports that the company, without a single exception, has been accorded praise of the highest order, wherever it has been seen. There is much curiosity by our regular theatre goers, and those who seldom, if ever attend the theatre, to see this performance. This is undoubtedly owing to the fact that the story is such a peculiar one. It is pleasant to be able to announce that Mr. Frohman's efforts to provide a comedy and a company of the highest merit, will be appreciated here. This is shown by the demand for seats for the engagement.

The large audiences that nightly attend the performances of "Trelawney of the Wells," at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, attest the general popularity with which that delightful little comedy has been received by the metropolitan theatre going public. The play has a fascination about it which is partly due to the excellent cast and partly to the clever manner in which the author has pictured his sketch of London life of a half-century ago. The comedy is clean and well chosen with just enough of the troubles and sorrows of its characters infused to lend reality to the scene. "Rose Trelawney," the title role, is admirably played by Miss Mary Mannering. The story is woven about her engagement, when leading lady at the Wells, to the son of a wealthy Londoner, her departure to his home to learn to be a lady, her subsequent return to the bohemian life and a final denoument in which the lovers are united amid general rejoicing. The clever byplay throughout the story give the finishing touches to one of the best comedies that has visited New York this season.

—The account books of Roselle Borough have been placed in the hands of Messrs. Russ & Rodgers, who are making a thorough examination of the different accounts. A report will be submitted to the Council at its meeting next Friday night.

REVIEW OF MUNICIPAL WORK FOR PAST YEAR

Mayor Wilson Sends His Annual Message to the Council.

CREDITABLE RECORD MADE.

IT HAS COST $30,000 TO RUN THE BOROUGH GOVERNMENT.

The Mayor Says That One of the Most Important Questions to be Met in the Near Future is the Maintenance of Somerset Street—The Mayor Explains His Conception of Duty.

The annual message of Mayor Wilson, of the borough, was presented and read at the adjourned meeting of the Borough Council held last evening. The message complete is as follows:

Gentleman of the Council:—The time has arrived for making our annual report to the people of the manner in which we have performed the trust reposed in us by them, and it gives me pleasure to be able to say that there is no department or item of the borough government or finances for which apology need be made, but on the contrary that I believe the more familiar the tax payers are made with the details of our municipal affairs, the better satisfied they will be with your stewardship.

During the past year, as during the past year immediately preceding, the public health has been wonderfully good, and we have enjoyed a freedom from epidemics of contagious deseases which shows that the sanitary conditions of our borough are the best, and this reflects great credit upon the care, intelligence and vigilance of our Board of Health.

The police department has, during the past year, been enlarged and improved. Its work has been done quietly and without attracting undue attention, but the effect is marked. Several disorderly houses have been broken up, and disorderly persons driven permanently from the borough, to its great benefit, and the fact has been made apparent that to be drunk and disorderly in our streets is an expensive luxury. The result is a gratifying reduction in the number of such cases, and a corresponding feeling of security from danger to insult and obscenity which is particularly appreciated by our ladies and children.

The fire department deserves the hearty thanks of our people for its efficiency and thorough organization. Through the energy and enterprise of its members Warren Engine Company will soon be uniformed and equipped in a manner of which all may well be proud.

The old contract for lighting the borough streets expired in January, 1893, and a new contract has been made at a reduction of 50 cents per lamp, and upon better terms as to the character of light to be furnished, which is a substantial advantage.

During the year about nine thousand feet of new flag sidewalks have been laid, making a total of about thirty thousand feet, or nearly six miles of such sidewalks, laid during the two years in which I have been Mayor, and I feel confident that no one would willingly return to the old condition of affairs in this particular.

Over six thousand five hundred feet of streets have been newly graded and macadamized during the year. More than six hundred feet of crosswalks have also been laid to the great convenience of the public, while several new culverts now carry off underground surface water, which formerly impeded pedestrians.

Our new Collector of Taxes has, by his energetic and systematic business methods, succeeded in collecting the taxes due the borough to a most commendable extent, so that the delinquent taxes now amount to much less than at any time for years past.

The settlement with the former Collector, referred to in my message a year ago as desirable, has been accomplished, with the result that the borough has received thousands of dollars which the experts' investigation showed it was entitled to, and a system of accounting has been inaugurated which safeguards the borough treasury to the greatest practical extent.

During the year about to close we have received for general borough purposes in round figures the sum of $38,000.

Our expenditures have been, again in round figures, for the various department as follows: Street department, including subscriptions from propert-owners, etc, amounting to about $2,000 $7,500; fire department and water supply, $2,000; street lighting, $5,000; police department, $4,000; support of poor, $1,800; general borough account, $13,450; balance unexpended, $4,250; total, $38,000.

The details of these expenditures will be found in the reports of the various committees having charge of the several departments, and I would recommend that our citizens and taxpayers read these reports with care, in order that they may become entirely familiar with the purposes for which their money is disbursed, and may give to their representatives in the Council credit where it is deserved and criticism and suggestion if it be required.

In this connection I would suggest that perhaps one of the most important questions to be met in the near future is that relating to the maintenance of Somerset street. At present it seems to require annually nearly one-half of the entire road fund to keep that thoroughfare in repair. Unless some other than the present method of repair can be found, it would probably be economy to cover the street with some permanent pavement.

As my term of office is about to close, it may not be out of place if I say a word relative to the spirit in which I entered upon its duties and have endeavored to discharge them. It will be remembered that I did not seek the office, and it was only my belief that every citizen owes it to the community in which he dwells to bear his share of the public burden, when called upon to do so, that led me to allow my name to be used in connection with the position. Having been chosen by the people, by a most flattering vote, for the place, I endeavored to serve them to the best of my ability. I am no politician, and know nothing of politicians' methods, nor do I believe that in the management of our borough affairs any important political principles are involved. My conception is that what is needed here is sound, business methods, systematic supervision of details, careful consideration before determination upon a policy, and a reasonable and fair enforcement of the laws and ordinances upon all persons alike, without favoritism or regard to politics. In short that what is desirable in the management of the public business is just what is needed to make private business successful, and I have acted upon that theory. Those rules which I have been taught to value by a lifetime of business experience I have endeavored to apply, and I believe that time will demonstrate that, although they may not square with the rules of politics, they will produce results in the long run more satisfactory to the public.

To you, gentlemen of the Council, as also to all the officers of the borough, I desire to express my sincere appreciation for the uniform courtesy and respect with which I have been favored, and which has done so much to make my association with you pleasant. It is compensating for the many annoyances which are necessarily attendant upon the office.

Success will surely crown your individual enterprises if you give to them the same constant, intelligent and honest attention which you have devoted to your official duties during the term for which I have occupied the office from which I am about to retire. J. F. Wilson, Mayor.

SMOKE, BUT NO FIRE.

FIRE DEPARTMENT CALLED OUT TO FIND IT.

Colonel Scott's Studio in the Old Stillman Building Began to Fill With Smoke—The Firemen Found No Fire.

The tenants of the old Stillman building on West Front street enjoyed all the excitement of a fire yesterday afternoon without the usual accompanying discomforts. Shortly before 3 o'clock Col. Julian Scott, the artist, whose studio is located on the third floor of the building, detected the odor of smoke. His rooms began to fill rapidly with it. He hastened down and notified his landlord, Former Judge W. M. Stillman, who in turn notified the fire department. Chief Doane and No. 2 hose wagon responded. An alarm was then sent in from the new box nearby by D. S. Dunavan. The fire alarm whistle refused to work at first and there was a delay.

Chief Doane, Assistant Chief Jennings and a few of the firemen hunted all over the building but without finding any signs of fire. The smoke in Col. Scott's studio gradually disappeared and a careful investigation revealed no more.

A great crowd gathered outside and waited patiently to see the fire. Finding that no fire was forthcoming, the people went away at last. The recall was sent in half and hour after the alarm. The firemen were unable to account for the smoke in the studio unless there is a leak in a flue that has not yet been located

Another still alarm was sent in last evening at 9 o'clock. Col Scott found his room filling with smoke again so he telephoned the fact to Chief Doane. The Chief, Assistant Chief Jennings and four firemen went around with axes and extinguishers. The extinguishers were used in the chimney flue. It is supposed that there was a slight fire in the chimney. If there was any, it was soon extinguished.

ROSELLE IS ASSURED OF CHAMPIONSHIP

Little Chance Now of Parks Finishing First.

THE GAMES LAST NIGHT.

ROSELLE WON THREE STRAIGHT FROM WESTFIELD.

The Park Club Only Managed to Get Two Out of Three in Series With Cranford—Poor Scores Rolled at Roselle and Plainfield—Parks Were in Poor Form—Ought to Have Had Three.

There's little chance now of the Park Club standing first this season in the Central Journal Bowling League. There is a possibility, of course, but the results of the six games rolled in the league last evening just about settled the order of the finish. It will be Roselle first and the Park Club second. Roselle last night greatly strengthened its grasp on first place by winning three straight from the Westfield Athletic Club while the Parks were only able to win two out of three with the tailenders from the Cranford Country Club.

The exhibition of bowling on the Park Club alleys last evening was not very creditable. Three games were rolled between the teams of the Park Club and the Cranford Country Club. Nether side managed to reach a total of 800 pins, and Will Thiers was the only one to make an individual score better than 200. There was evidently something the matter with the Parks, perhaps that old hoodoo that they picked up a Westfield, for at any rate they failed to come up to the usual standard of excellence.

Three games were rolled and the Parks took two of them. Of course that was better than losing two or three, but they ought to have won all of them. Cranford couldn't roll at all and ought to have been swamped if the Parks had rolled as they did early in the season. Then Cranford was minus her best man, who is waiting for a chance to roll against Roselle, and didn't come to Plainfield, for which the Parks ought to be duly thankful. It is even said that Cranford was not particularly anxious to win last night.

The first game was decidedly poor with the Parks in the lead all the time. With all their poor rolling they couldn't keep back with Cranford's feeble work and won out by a big margain. The second game showed the Cranford team ahead for the first four frames. The shock was so great that they promptly fell down and the Parks won by 60 pins.

The third game was positively exciting even if neither side could do anything wonderful. The Parks led for the first five frames, then Cranford braced up and took the lead. It might have been all right in the end, but Cranford got four sloppy strikes on the ninth frame, while the Parks only made spares On the windup a Cranfordite doubled up and the rest made one strike and two spares, while two splits were included in the Parks' share. That was too much and Cranford had no trouble in winning by 33 pins.

The individual scores were as follows:

The bowling team of the Westfield Athletic Club went to Roselle last evening and rolled three games with the Casino team of that place. Westfield had high hopes of downing Roselle's cracks and letting Plainfield step into first place. The Roselle boys were in winning form and took all three games. None of the scores were high, Roselle only doing better than 800 in one game. In the first Roselle rolled 750 and won by 16 pins. They won easily in the second by 96 pins. The third was another walkover for Roselle.

Defendants Did Not Appear.

Judgment was rendered in Justice Moffett's court today against C. Chapot & Sons for about $65. The plaintiffs in the case were the Brotherhood Wine Co., of New York, who sued the Chapots for several gallons of a particularly good brand of whiskey, which they purchased from the wine company at wholesale. Pope & Runyon brought the suit, and as the defendants did not appear, judgment was given.

STREETS ARE FLOODED.

GUTTERS CLOGGED WITH ICE AND SNOW AND WATER BACKS UP.

Commissioner Gavett's Men are Busy Trying to Make Crossings Passable, But it is a Difficult Job to Do.

Street Commissioner Gavett's men are still putting in their time on the streets, cleaning away the snow which in many places has turned to slush. The gutters all over the city are knee deep with water, which can find no outlet.

After the last snow very few people dug out their gutters, as the law demands, and the consequence is great piles of snow all along, which effectually block the gutters, and hold back the water until crosswalks, and even sidewalks in places, are flooded so that the only way to get around dry shod is to wear rubber boots.

The streets that are flooded the most are those streets like Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Watchung, Plainfield and Grant avenues, which take the water from so many side streets and undertakes to carry it to the sewers.

Mr. Gavett has distributed his men in different parts of the city, some with shovels and some with picks, and they are opening the gutters and draining off the water as fast as possible.

Mr. Gavett has also ordered the scraper out, and this is being driven along the gutters on those streets that are flooded the worst, scraping out rough channels for the water to run along in. Much quicker work is being done with the scraper than can be done with men and shovels.

Mr. Martine said to a Press reporter today "that Plainfield was favored with a most efficient and practical Street Commissioner in the person of Mr. Gavett. He combines practical common sense with industry that makes him an official to be proud of."

VOORHEES TAKES NEW DEGREE.

Representative Fowler Also Initiated Into Third Degree of Masonry.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, N. J., Feb 18.—Governor Voorhees and Representative Fowler were initiated into the Third or Sublime degree of Free and Accepted Masons last night in the Star Theatre. The degree was conferred by the Grand Lodge and officers of Washington Lodge, of Elizabeth, Worshipful Grand Master Josiah W. Ewan directing the work. Governor Voorhees was initiated into the second degree in the afternoon in the lodge room.

The theatre last evening contained nearly 2,000 Masons from Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey. A banquet was served to the Grand Lodge in the cafe of the theatre before the exercises. The theatre was elaborately decorated. Every nook and corner was searched for interlopers. Masons gave signs and grips at the door, and were vouched for by brethren. Three hours were consumed in getting all in.

Fifth District Deputy Grand Master C. C. Howard, of Plainfield, in whose district the distinguished candidates live, was congratulated.

Ferryboat Central Goes Adrift.

The New Jersey Central Railroad's ferryboat Central, while on her way from Jersey City to New York, before dawn yesterday, parted her rudder chains trying to force her way through an ice pack. She became unmanageable and drifted several blocks. Tugs answered her signals for help and towed her into her New York slip. The damage was repared and she resumed her trips.

It Won't Do.

"It isn't exactly what I want but it will do," is a remark quite frequently heard among shoppers, a sentiment which many persons carelessly apply to the purchase of glasses. Applied in this connection it is a menace to health, since misfit glasses are the promoters of numberless ailments. The eyes require a perfect fit to their need, and this you are sure of getting at Collier's.

Would Be Cops.

Applications have been received by the Mayor and Borough Council for positions on the police force, but they will be laid over for the next Council to consider.

AGAINST PROPOSED LAW

CONSIDER THAT PRESENT JERSEY LAWS ARE SUFFICIENTLY STRONG.

Oppose Pending Legislation—Present System of Reports to the State Deemed Ample Protection for Stock-Holders
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Feb. 18.—More than 300 building and loan associations in different parts of the State were represented at a meeting in the Assembly chamber yesterday afternoon to take action upon pending legislative bills which affect the interests of these popular organizations. The meeting was presided over by Edmund E. Read, of Camden, and the secretary was George L. Forman, secretary of the New Jersey League of Building and Loan Associations Expressions of opinion were called for and the entire day was consumed in speeches by the delegates present.

A vote was reached about 4 o'clock, when it was decided to be the sentiment of the meeting that no further legislation was needed for the supervision of building and loan associations, but that the act of 1890, unuer which annual reports are made to the State Labor Bureau, was sufficient for all purposes. Fifty-five delegates voted in this way, and thirteen voted in favor of more supervision.

The sentiment of the delegates present, as expressed in their individual speeches, indicated that if any legislation is to be had this winter, that the Guenther bill would be the more acceptable. This bill calls for annual reports to the State Labor Bureau and provides for the inspection of local associations when the directors of such local associations or 20 per cent. of its shareholders ask for it, or where the chief of the Labor Bureau is not satisfied with the report sent in.

The Bell bill, to which nearly all of those present were opposed, provides for an annual examination by the Bank and Insurance Department of all local associations by whom the expense of such examinarion shall be borne.

Chairman Read and Secretay Forman were directed to communicate to tha Governor, the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House the result of the meeting.

FAVOR THE COMPANY.

Trolley Capitalists Having an Easy Time of it in Westfield.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, February 18.—There was a large number of property owners present at the town rooms last evening when the public hearing on the application of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company for a franchise on Mountain avenue came up. There was not a single property owner who objected, but there were a number who requested the Committee not to make the conditions so hard for the company that they would decide not to build the road. The only condition that they wanted was that if the company did not wish to build that they would get out and give others a chance, as the owners wanted a trolley line from Springfield to Rahway, and that if no one else would build it they would do it themselves. Among those who spoke in favor were W. G. Peckham, M. M. Scudder, J. S. Irving and M. J. Gildersleeve. The franchise was accepted and placed on its first reading and will no doubt be passed.

ANNUAL REPORTS TO BOROUGH COUNCIL.

Work in Various Departments Briefly Summarized.

THE FINANCIAL AFFAIRS.

GREAT REDUCTION IN COST OF RUNNING FIRE DEPARTMENT.

During the Year 621 Feet of Crosswalks and 10,000 Feet of Sidewalks Have Been Laid—Fire Loss in Borough Has Been But $3,740—Police in Good Condition—$434 Fines Collected.

The only matters of importance considered at the adjourned meeting of the Borough Council last evening were the annual reports presented by the various committees. The first matter considered was the message of Mayor Wilson, which will be found in another part of the paper. After the reading of the message Clerk Arnold presented his financial report and showed a total balance of $4,250 19 and a cash balance of $163 29. The report of Collector George F Brown showed the receipts to be $81,661.72 and the expenditures $81,030 22. There is $471.21 to the credit of the Watchung avenue account and a borough cash balance of $163 29. Overseer of the Poor David Weaver reported a balance on hand of $135 03.

Mr. Woolston, chairman of the committee on streets and public health, reported the receipts to be $38,751 03 and expenditures $34,508.04. He reported in detail the amount of work accomplished on the streets of the borough and stated that 621 feet of crosswalks had been laid and 10,000 feet of sidewalk.

Mr. Rogers, chairman of the fire, water and lamps committee, reported a great reduction in the maintenance of the fire department, and paid deserving tribute to Chief Fairchild and all of his assistants for the very able and efficient work accomplished during the year. He reported that there had been seven alarms of fire, with a total loss of property amounting to $3,740. Six new fire hydrants were added, making a total of 83, at an expense of $15 each, and there are 323 electric lights in the borough. Mr. Rogers also complimented Chief Fairchild, the sixteen firemen, and the police force, for the excellent work performed at the fire in the borough last Monday night, when Vincent Kuldoshes' house was destroyed. He praised the men for laying so much hose in all the snow and storm, when to all appearances the man who was burned out was so indifferent. He believed that if an alarm had been sent in promptly the house would have been saved.

Mr. Burtis, chairman of the license and marshal committee, stated that the force, consisting of four marshals and a chief, was in excellent condition and he believed that the borough is well guarded from disturbance, etc. This report was supplemented by the report of Chief Marshal Wilson which showed that during the year 151 arrests were made, of which number 27 were sent to jail, 2 to the asylum, 69 fined, 5 held for the Grand Jury, 8 transferred to the Plainfield authorities, one was a case of desertion from the U. S. Army, and sentence was suspended on 29. Thirteen persons were given lodging over night and in all $434 was collected from fines.

Mr. MacLaughlin, as a member of the auditing and finance committee, as well as the committee on taxation and assessment of taxes, reported that the books of the borough had been examined and were found to be all right. This report was a verbal one, but a written report was presented later and filed.

Mr. Burtis offered a resolution to the effect that a sufficient number of copies of the borough reports be printed under the direction of the stationery and printing committee, so that every taxpayer and real estate owner can have a copy. This comprised the business of the evening and the Council went into executive session.

To Remove His Stock.

The insurance companies have given William Schloss permission to remove his stock of boots and shoes to the old City National Bank building, where it will probably be disposed of by those who have it in charge. The change will be made today.

Candidate for Chief Marshal.

It is stated that Marshal Campbell, of the borough, is a candidate for the position of Chief Marshal, when the present holder of the office retires.

In Honor of a Guest.

Miss Miller, of 744 Watchung avenue, gave a luncheon this afternoon in honor of Miss Walbridge, of Buffalo, who is visiting her.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

CANAL BILL REVIVES

Beaten in House, It Takes New Lease of Life in Senate.

HEPBURN'S MOTION LOST.

House Sustains Point of Order Against Nicaragua Measure—Senate Committee Adds it to the River and Harbor Bill—Two Million Dollars to be Reported To-day.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—The House yesterday, by a vote of 155 to 96, sustained the decision of the chair that a motion to recommit the sundry civil bill with instructions to incorporate the Nicaragua canal bill was not in order.

A new lease of life was given the canal project in the Senate, however, by the decision of the committee on commerce to add the Morgan canal bill to the river and harbor bill.

After some brief routine business "the regular order" was demanded in the House. This was the vote upon the motion made just prior to adjournment to lay upon the table the appeal from the decision of the chair wherein the speaker ruled that Mr. Hepburn's motion to recommit the sundry civil bill with instructions to incorporate in it the Nicaragua canal bill amendment, was not in order.

No quorum having developed upon the motion yesterday, the vote was again taken by ayes and noes.

The chair was sustained and the appeal laid upon the table—155 to 96. The sundry civil bill was then passed.

The naval appropriation bill was formally reported. Mr. Boutelle, Republican of Maine, immediately moved that the House go into committee of the whole for its consideration. Mr. Hepburn asked whether he could move to amend the motion so as to provide that the House should go into committee to consider the Nicaragua canal bill.

"This is a general appropriation bill," said the speaker; "the motion would not be in order."

"If the motion of the gentleman from Maine were voted down, would it be in order for me to make the motion directly?" asked Mr. Hepburn.

"It would not," replied the speaker.

Committee's Action.

The action of the Senate committee was preceded by a brief argument by Senator Morgan, in which he went over the general grounds favorable to the construction of the canal. He controverted the opinion that the addition of the amendment would be detrimental to the interests of the river and harbor bill and expressed a preference for the river and harbor bill over the sundry civil appropriation bill as a vehicle to carry the canal bill. There was no prolonged discussion, and there seemed little division of opinion as to the wisdom of attaching the amendment to one of the appropriation measures.

Some of the members expressed the desire that the amendment should go on the sundry civil bill, but a motion to recommend that it be incorporated in that measure was voted down—7 nays to 4 yeas.

Senator Nelson then moved the amendment to the river and harbor bill, which prevailed—7 to 4—as follows:

Ayes—Messrs. Nelson, Berry, Penrose, McBride, McMillan, Elkins and Jones of Nevada. Senator Frye, chairman of the committee, did not vote.

Nays—Caffery, Mills, Pasco and Murphy.

While Senator Caffery voted against the amendment, he did not indicate any purpose to oppose the passage of the bill in the Senate because of the incorporation of the canal provision. He joined with all the other members of the committee in the vote to report the bill with the amendment added.

Aside from the Nacaragua canal, the committee increases the cash appropriation to the extent of about $2,000,000 over the House cash appropriation, while the amount of continuing contracts is increased to the extent of about $10,000,000. The bill will be reported to-day.

Remodeling the House.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Several plans for remodeling the House of Representatives are to be considered by the House committee on ventilation and acoustics. Mr. Heatwole of Minnesota recently renewed attention to the subject by offering a resolution for the expenditure of one hundred thousand dollars for remodeling the hall and putting in a complete system of ventilation.

His plan contemplates taking out the desks of members, with much more retiring room, both for leisure, writing, and the private work usually done at the member's desk.

Another plan, by Mr. Beach of Ohio, embraces the idea of a tribune, to be placed in front of the speaker's desk, from which members will speak in addressing the House.

Speaker Reed's suggestion, made some time ago, was for a remodeling in line with the chamber of the House of Commons. These plans and suggestions will be considered, and an effort made to have the remodeling accomplished during the coming recess of Congress.

Work of Congress Tangled.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Only fifteen and a half days of the present session of Congress remain, including Sundays, holidays and parts of days, and the important legislation of the session is apparently in hopeless confusion.

To the uninitiated it would appear that an extra session is unavoidable, but the wise heads of the two houses know many a trick in the game, and they predict, in spite of the discouraging outlook, that order will yet be brought out of chaos and business closed up by March 4, so that the president can bid good bye to the Fifty-fifth Congress.

Seven Generals Discharged.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—The war department has honorably discharged Major Generals Butler and Sumner and Brigadier Generals Kline, McKee, Wiley, Lincoln and Comba, all of the volunteer army.

DUN'S WEEKLY REVIEW.

New York, Feb. 18.—Beyond question business is expanding, and in many branches it is larger notwithstanding speculative combinations which tend to reduce it. All monopolies, or attempted monopolies, stimulate business while they are coming, but tend to stifle it after they come, and the throng of combinations and trusts which have been formed or proposed have given a temporary but very questionable impetus to trade. But beyond the influence of these there is a genuine and substantial enlargement of business, due to the unexampled prosperity of a growing population.

No fictitious demand has caused the rise in grain, for the exports continue so heavy in wheat and corn that the advance of 3 1-4 cents in wheat is abundantly justified, and the rise of 3-4 cents in corn seems scarcely enough for the occasion. Atlantic exports have been retarded by the blizzard, but have been 2,265,715 bushels, flour included, against 3,142,057 last year, and for the crop year thus far the exports, including flour, have been 156,787,740 bushels, against 143,714,142 last year. When it is remembered that the exports of corn are almost as large as the largest ever known, there is reason for astonishment at the continued foreign demand. That it persists in spite of the strong advance in prices here since September first is most encouraging. It is obviously impossible to judge how far it may go.

Nor does the foreign demand for cotton abate, though the price has again been raised three-sixteenths during the past week.

There is much more inquiry for wool, and the manufacturers have a larger demand for heavy weight goods, but they maintain that they cannot pay prices now demanded for wool, and most of the purchases made appear to have been at some concessions.

The stock market has been quietly but steadily stronger for railroads, the average advancing $1.06 per share since last Friday, while for trusts the average has advanced $1.38 per share. There is legitimate and large buying of securities of transporting lines, and the tone of speculation in the industrial is for the moment better, although the opinion grows that such stocks are not practically valuable as securities in loans at banks. The money market has been undisturbed, although there is much more doing in commercial loans, especially on manufacturing paper, and the temper of the street is in favor of such advances rather than other of a more speculative character.

The failures during the first two weeks of February have been $4,754,109 aggregate, against $5,251,352 last year, $6,661,535 in 1897, and $7,680,393 in 1896. Manufacturing were $2,563,136 against $2,692,112 last year, and $3,504,422 in 1897, and trading were $2,048,520, against $2,435,182 last year and $3,086,250 in 1897. Failures for the week have been 178 in the United States against 295 last year, and 18 in Canada against 35 last year.

No More Private Letter Boxes.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—The report of the commission on the codification of the United States criminal and penal laws is about completed, and the portion of it covering offenses against the postal laws has been submitted as a special report to Congress. The report in brief says:

"A provision has been inserted inhibiting the mainetnance of private post-offices and letter boxes in conformity with the general policy of this government and recommended by considerationsof great weight, it being found that in the larger cities these institutions are made the instrumentalities of practices partaking of fraud and immorality. In a recent instance at New York they were employed as the means by which two human lives were sacrificed under circumstances of grave criminality.

An Indian at the Head

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—The appointment of James S. Sherman, representative from the Utica district of New York to one of the vacant places on the board of general appraisers will leave Charles Curtis of Kansas at the head of the House committee on Indian affairs, with the presumptive right to consideration for the chairmanship when the House is reorganized next session.

This will be a very interesting landmark in the history of Indian legislation, for Mr. Curtis is himself a Kaw Indian, drawing his annuities with the rest of his tribe. He is a man of good standing in the House, with more than theaverage capacity for legislative work, and, although his judgment occasionally differs on certain details from that of friends of the Indian outsideof Congress, he may uniformly be counted upon as a staunch defender of the rights of his people.

Beef Court of Inquiry.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—The beef court of inquiry met yesterday in the rooms formerly occupied by the war investigating commission, in the Lemon building.

The court went into secret session to discuss preliminaries.

Colonel Davis, the recorder, gave out a statement saying that the taking of testimony would begin before Monday. The session then will be open.

General Miles is expected to testify first, presenting his charges and their foundations. The investigation will be limited strictly to canned roast beef and refrigerated beef, but the scope of the inquiry will be so comprehensive as to follow the beef from packer to private soldier, so that the action of the packers and all war department officials connected with the beef supply will be investigated.

Still Breaking Records.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 18.—Charles Miller, the champion, is in the lead in the six day race. He is not, however, in good condition, and Gimm's trainer says the contest will be the hardest Miller ever had.

Gimm started after Miller, who had gained fourteen miles' lead, with renewed energy. Miller left the track at the end of the eighty-first hour for a rest. The pace is still very swift, and the former records drop further back with every hour of the race.

The score at the eighty-fifth hour was: Miller, 1,447 miles 1 lap; Gimm, 1,432 miles, 6 laps; Aronson, 1,384 miles 1 lap; Albert, 1,339 miles, 1 lap; Hale, 1,334 miles, 2 laps; Pierce, 1,332 miles. Former record, 1,335 miles, 1,024 yards, held by Miller.

MR. M'KINLEY'S TALK

The President Visits the Legislature of Massachusetts.

HUMAN LIBERTY HIS TOPIC

Recalls the Unselfish Sacrifices and Dauntless Courage of the Illustrious Men Produced by the Commonwealth—No Desertion To-day More Than in the Time of the Fathers.

Boston Mass., Feb. 18.—President McKinley began a busy day at 10.30 o'clock yesterday. He was fatigued after the incidents of the day before, but was much refreshed by a good night's rest.

The visitors from Washington started from the hotel for Tremont Temple, in which the G. A. R. encampment is being held, at 10.30, under the escort of the First Battalion of Cavalry. The president and his associates were received with cheers by the old soldiers. President McKinley made a brief address, recalling the spirit with which they entered the war of the rebellion, and their loyalty and faith to the republic.

He referred to the stirring scenes of the last year, which, he said, he was glad they had lived to see, and closed by suggesting that the Spanish war veterans should be admitted to membership in the G. A. R.

The suggestion was received with cries of "Good" and applause.

In response to calls, Secretaries Alger, Long, Gage and Smith spoke briefly, and the party proceeded to visit the legislature. Loud cheers were given for each speaker, especially for Secretary Alger, who is an old G. A. R. man.

In the Legislature.

The president and his party arrived promptly at the time scheduled, and after being received by Governor Wolcott, under escort of Sergeant-at-Arms J. B. Adams, the party proceeded to the House. They passed down the main aisle amid the cheers of all present, who arose the moment the president was announced.

President George A. Smith, for the Massachusetts Senate, welcomed the distinguished guest, and introduced him to the convention.

As the president arose waves of applause rolled through the hall, and cheer upon cheer rang out. When it was possible for him to be heard the president spoke as follows:

"Gentlemen of the General Court: Although limited for time, I could not deny myself the honor of accepting the invitation officially extended by joint resolution of your body, which I had the pleasure of receiving from the hands of your distinguished senior senator, Hon. George F. Hoar. I am not indifferent to your generous action, and it can not be more sincere than the feeling of pleasure which I have in meeting the senators and representatives of the great commonwealth of Massachusetts.

"I am glad to be in this ancient capital. Here great public questions have had free discussion. Here great statesmen, whose names live in their country's history, have received their training and voiced the enlightened opinions of their countrymen. Here through the century you have chosen your fellow citizens to represent you in the councils of the nation through that great parliamentary body, the Senate of the United States. You have chosen well, and leaders you have never lacked.

"What illustrious men have thus borne the commission of the legislative body of the commonwealth of Massachusetts—Adams and Pickering and Webster, Choate and Everett and Winthrop, Sumner, Wilson and a long list besides—illustrious in the annals of your state and the nation. And those later statesmen, Hoar and Long, honored everywhere for their distinguished services to our common country.

"It was in the Massachusetts House of Representatives that John A. Andrew made the speech for human liberty which touched the hearts of his fellow citizens and made him your great war governor. Nor do I forget that at one time the speaker's chair of this legislative body was occupied by your former governor and representative in Congress, the able secretary of the navy, Hon. John D. Long, whose great department has added lustre to the American navy and glory to the American name. I am glad to be on this historic ground. It revives memories sacred in American life. It recalls the struggles of the founders of Massachusetts for liberty and independence.

"Their unselfish sacrifices, their dauntless courage, are the inspiration of all lovers of freedom everywhere. Their lives and characters reach into every American home, and have stimulated the best aspirations of American manhood.

"In the beginning of our national existence, and even before, this was the home and fountain of liberty. It is the home of liberty now, and I am sure that what those great men of the past secured for us they would have us transmit not only to our descendants, but carry to oppressed peoples whose interests and welfare by the fortunes of war are committed to us.

"We may regard the situation before us as a burden or as an opportunity; but whether the one or the other, it is here, and conscience and civilization require us to meet it bravely.

"Desertion of duty is not an American habit. It was not the custom of the fathers and will not be the practice of their sons."

No More Hissing in Boston.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 18.—Boston seems to have repented of her discourteous treatment of her distinguished guests Thursday, when Secretary Alger was hissed and hooted in the streets and greeted with derisive cries of "Beef!" along the line of march.

There was no repetition of the disgraceful scene yesterday. The populace seemed to be suffering from a reversion of feeling.

Secretary Alger did not appear in public so much yesterday as on Thursday, or, rather, his appearance was not so spectacular, as there was no military marching yesterday. Yet the crowds were on the lookout, and they saw Alger, but while the head of the war department failed to receive a single cheer, his sensational experience of the day before was not repeated.

"I have used Ripans Tabules and they have done me lots of good, at least my wife says they have," asserts William Donaldson, a blacksmith. "After a hard day's work I would eat too much, I guess," continued he, "and suffer like everything. My wife's brother told me that Ripans Tabules had helped him and he thought they would help me. I believe they have cured me, but I still take them regular, for I would not have them pains again for anything. My partner said, after I was so much better, that I was ready to get well anyhow, and that I would have got well without them. I believe there are lots of people that are ready to get well just like I was. They will get well when they take the same medicine I did, and not before. I have worked hard all my life, first on a farm and then in a blacksmith shop, and have been troubled with dyspepsia ever since I was 18 years old. Now I feel like I was sweet sixteen. I think Ripans Tabules are a great medicine."

NEWS FROM HAVANA.

To Reorganize the Cuban Supreme Court and the School System.

Havana, Feb. 18.—Holman's Washington Cafe, in Central Park, which Senor Mora, civil governor of Havana, had closed because the proprietor had refused to serve the Cuban general, Ducasse, a mulatto, has been reopened. The civil governor, who had directed Mr. Holman to send a letter of apology to General Ducasse, declined to entertain an application to pay the fine fixed by law, and insisted upon the letter of apology.

The matter was finally amicably arranged, though Mr. Holman did not apologize.

General Ducasse sent a letter to Senor Mora withdrawing his original complaint and objections, and the civil governor removed the embargo. Nevertheless, a sign saying that refreshments will not be served to negroes is still conspicuous in the cafe. Much interest is manifested in the result of Mr. Holman's course, and inquiries on the subject are coming in from all parts of the island.

The Cuban supreme court has not yet been organized. An examination of the existing Spanish system shows that there are sixty-nine judges in the island, whose salaries aggregate $190,000 gold. The work of reorganizing the Cuban schools is also under the control of the department of justice, but the supreme court question is considered more important and will be attended to first. The school question will come next. In the meantime there will be a temporary reorganization of the schools in the provinces. In fact this has already been effected in Matanzas and Santa Clara.

La Discusion apologizes for having demanded Governor General Brooke's resignation on account of the Garcia funeral incident by publishing a letter from Senor Capote, dated February 14, exonerating General Brooke of all responsibility for any complications on that occasion.

El Commercio publishes a long article calling upon Cubans and Spaniards to unite against the Americans, who, it says, are "grasping all the possibilities of the island to the exclusion of the natives." The article is so extremely mendacious and misleading as to be ludicrous. Still it is being extensively circulated. Among other statements it contains this:

"Life has become almost insupportable in Cuba. The army of occupation is being paid out of the Cuban customs receipts. It brings supplies from the United States instead of buying them in Cuba. Their object is to cause us to perish of misery. They are restricting our trade and trying to force us to sell everything. Our only hope is in union against the common oppressor."

TO SUCCEED M. FAURE.

National Assembly Called to Meet at Versailles to Elect New President.

Paris, Feb. 18.—Premier Dupuy has fixed the meeting of the National Assembly, or Congress, in which the senators and deputies unite in voting for a president of France, at 1 o'clock this afternoon at Versailles.

At a meeting of the Leftist senators yesterday M. Loubert the president of the senate, and former premier, was unanimously nominated for the presidency. The senators consider M. Loubet's election assured.

At a meeting of eighty Progressist Republicans M. Meline, the former premier, was named as a candidate to succeed M. Faure.

The city and the provinces are quiet.

All the sovereigns have sent condolences. Emperor William of Germany has telegraphed his condolences with Mme. Faure, and has directed the German ambassador here, Count von Munster-Ledenburg, to place a wreath on the president's coffin, and to announce that his majesty is sending a special mission to represent him at the funeral.

The obsequies will take place next Thursday in the Cathedral of Notre Dame, and the interment will occur in the Cemetery of Pere-Lachaise.

President of Chautauqua Dead.

Mr. Miller was admitted to the hospital early in the week. He died after having undergone an operation. He was seventy years old, and leaves a widow and seven children. He was the father-in-law of Thomas A. Edison. One of his sons was Theodore Miller of Roosevelt's Rough Riders, who was killed in action.

Mr. Miller was best known as the joint founder, with Bishop Vincent, of the Chautauqua Assembly, and at the time of his death was its president. He also was president of the board of trustees of Mount Union College in Alliance, Ohio, and president of the Aultmann-Miller Company of Akron, a harvesting machinery manufacturing concern.

That $20,000,000 for Spain.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Mr. Cannon, chairman of the committee on appropriations, has introduced in the House a bill to make the appropriation of twenty million dollars needed to carry out the treaty of peace with Spain which was ruled out of the sundry civil appropriation bill Thursday. The bill reads:

"Be it enacted, etc., that for the purpose of carrying out the obligations of the treaty between the United States and Spain, concluded at Paris on the tenth day of December, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight, there shall be appropriated, to become immediately available upon the exchange of the ratifications of said treaty, $20,000,000."

Three Philadelphia Firemen Killed.

Philadelphia, Feb. 18.—At about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, while about a dozen firemen were at work in the ruins of the store of the Emerson Shoe Company, which was burned out at Thursday night's big fire, a mass of iron and stone crashed down from the upper floors, burying the men beneath Carlists in Arms.

Madrid, Feb. 18.—Bands of armed Carlists are being pursued by the civil guards and infantry at Olocan, in Aragon, the Carlists retreating toward Teruel. The government declares that the people are not in sympathy with a Carlist rising.

OCCUPY ENRIRE GROUP

Our Sovereignty to Extend Over All the Philippines.

MORE WORK FOR DEWEY.

This Will be Begun as Soon as the Gunboats Now on the Way to Manila Reach There—Delay is Dangerous—A Rebel Congressman Seeks Our Protection.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—The administration has determined rapidly to extend the jurisdiction of the United States over the whole of the Philippine group, acting on the theory that delay in this case is dangerous and that anarchy and a general paralysis of such interests as the islands support will be brought about through a failure to promptly replace the Spanish sovereignty by that of the United States.

This decision involves the necessity of a naval campaign, and this will be instituted as soon as Admiral Dewey receives the reinforcements in the shape of gunboats, now on the way to Manila.

The Situation at Manila.

Manila, Feb. 18.—Mr. O. F. Williams, the former United States consul here, has received an application from a member of the rebel congress, at Malolos, for a pass to enable his family, consisting of twelve persons, who are desirous of taking refuge in Manila, to enter the American lines.

This is regarded as significant. Most of the intelligent rebels realize that their families are only safe inside the territory controlled by the Americans.

Except for a few shots fired at a small body of rebels, who were attempting to destroy the railroad bridge near Caloocan, all was quiet along the line last night.

The heat is affecting the American soldiers in the open country to some extent, otherwise the health of the troops has shown marked improvement since hostilities began.

Spain to Free Deported Filipinos.

Madrid, Feb. 18.—The cabinet has decided to liberate the Filipinos deported to the Carolines and Ladrones, in order to influence Aguinaldo to release the Spaniards he holds prisoners.

It has also been decided to postpone the sale of the floating dock at Havana, the offer received not being acceptable.

Food Prices High in Manila.

Manila, Feb. 18.—Prices of provisions here have been trebled. Meat is selling at $1 a pound and eggs at 10 cents each. No native foods are obtainable. No foodstuffs are entering the city from beyond the American lines, but there is no danger of a famine, as quantities of provisions are being imported from Hong Kong, Singapore and Australia.

Fill[illegible] Fire and Fo[illegible]

Manila, Feb. 18.—The guard of the Nebraska regiment, stationed near the water works, was attacked Sunday afternoon by insurgents dressed in citizens' clothes, who were hiding in a bamboo thicket.

The Americans were wide awake and Colonel Stotzenberg immediately sent four companies of reinforcements to the scene of the attack.

The natives stood their ground for a short time and then fled. Our troops drove them toward Caloocan, killing eight of them, including an officer, and capturing two others.

Captain A. H. Hollingsworth, Lieutenant Bert D. Wheedon and six privates were wounded.

The arrest of the natives in the city on suspicion of aiding or attempting to aid the rebels and the seizure of concealed knives and rifles continue.

The insurgents fired on General King's brigade last night, but did no harm.

Won't Let Rios Resign.

Madrid, Feb. 18.—The resignation of Senor Montero Rios from the presidency of the Senate has not yet been accepted.

The government has resolved that, should Rios insist upon resigning the presidency of the Senate, it will publish a decree officially refusing to accept his resignation. It is feared that Senor Rios's resignation would precipitate the fall of the ministry.

Standard Would Not Show Its Books.

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 18.—The Standard Oil Company again refused to produce its books in evidence in the investigation resumed here, before Master Commissioner Brinsmade, and Attorney General Monett asked that F. B. Squire, secretary of the Standard, be committed to jail for contempt of court.

Colonel Brinsmade refused to send Mr. Squire to jail, but said that he would certify all the records to the supreme court, and let the court decide whether a penalty should be inflicted for the refusal to answer the question.

Col. Waring's Will.

New York, Feb. 18.—The will of the late Colonel George E. Waring was filed for probate in the surrogate' office yesterday. The value of the estate can not be learned.

Colonel Waring left everything he died possessed of to the members of his family. To his wife, Louise, and to his daughter, Effie, he bequeathed $500 absolutely. Besides this his daughter is bequeathed books, plate, household furniture, bric-a-brac, horses, carriages and harness.

The residue of the estate is to be created into a trust for the benefit of Mrs. and Miss Waring. The son, Guy, is to receive an income from the trust under certain contingencies.

The colonel's late residence at Newport is bequeathed to Miss Waring during her life.

Thomas A. Edison, Jr., Married.

New York, Feb. 18.—Thomas A. Edison, Jr., the eldest son of the inventor, yesterday announced his marriage to Marie Louise Touhey, who was until recently a member of "La Belle Helene" company, now playing at the Casino. Mr. Edison and Miss Touhey were married on November 23, but the fact was not made public.

TOM GRADY AFTER TRUSTS

The Silver Tongued Orator of Tammany Introduces a Sweeping Measure.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 18.—Senator Grady has introduced his bill for the punishment of pools, trusts and conspiracies to control prices. It is understood that this measure will be pressed as a party measure by the Democrats.

The bill provides that any corporation organized under the laws of this or any other state or country to transact or conduct any kind of business in this state, or any partnership or individual, or other association of persons who shall create, enter into, become a member of, or a party to any pool, trust agreement, combination, confederation or understanding with any other corporation, to control, limit, regulate or fix the price of any article of manufacture, mechanism, merchandise, commodity, convenience, repair, or any product of mining, or any article or thing whatsoever, to maintain the price when so controlled, limited, regulated or fixed, or shall enter into, become a member of, or a party to any pool, agreement, contract, combination or confederation to fix or limit the amount or quantity of any article of manufacture, mechanism, merchandise, commodity, convenience, repair, any product of mining or any article or thing whatsoever, shall be deemed and adjudged guilty of a conspiracy to defraud.

INJURIES TO PASSENGERS.

Important Railway Case Decided by New Jersey Supreme Court.

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 18.—An opinion filed in the supreme court holds a railroad company responsible for injuries inflicted upon a station platform on the company's property, even though the injuries were inflicted by a person not in the employ of the company. This principle of law as laid down by the court is limited, however, to apply to cases where the conditions which led to the injury were notorious, and could have been prevented by the company through the exercise of proper caution.

The case was that of Fanny P. Exton of White House, Hunterton county, who received a verdict of $500 against the Central Railroad of New Jersey in the Hunterton county courts. Mrs. Exton was injured by being knocked down by two cabmen who were indulging in some horse play in front of the entrance to the baggage room of the company at the foot of Liberty street, New York.

Mrs. Exton had bought a ticket and was going to the baggage room when she was hurt.

The railroad company carried the case to the supreme court on an application for a new trial. The supreme court, in denying the application, held that the company had knowledge of the obstruction of the passageway to the baggage room by the cabmen, and should have kept it clear.

STEPHENS CASE ENDS.

The Professor's Plea of Guilty Not Allowed by the Court.

Easton, Pa., Feb. 18.—The case of Professor Stephens, charged with burning Pardee Hall, came to an abrupt and sensational end yesterday afternoon, when Mr. Shipman, attorney for the prisoner, entered the court after a consultation with his client and asked permission to enter a plea of guilty.

Judge Scott would not permit this, whereupon Mr. Shapman announced that the defense had finished its testimony, and he began to plead to the jury.

It seems that Stephens had insisted upon going on the stand, contrary to the advice of his counsel. His lawyers then asked for a recess, in order to hold a consultation with the prisoner. While they were closeted in the jury room an exciting scene ensued. Stephens became vexed when the lawyers persisted in objecting to his going on the stand, and, it is said, they threatened to abandon the case altogether.

John Carey of the Columbia House, Philipsburg, testified that "Aaron Snyder, Scranton," had registered there in the early morning on December 18, 1897.

Quintus Messenger, a watchman at Lafayette College, told of his encounter in the college chapel on a dark night in June with "a living creature." He was stationed there to watch for the person who had been committing depredations in the building. He heard the door of the chapel open. Then a man stole toward the organ. Messenger struck out with a piece of hose. Messenger did not know whom he had struck, but he found a key in the door. This turned out to be the key given to Stephens when he was an instructor.

Stephens in his confession admitted having been in the chapel on the night in question and having been struck by some one.

Detective Wilkins, recalled, produced a valise belonging to Stephens. In it were stains made by tar with which, it is alleged, Stephens besmeared the chapel pews, the pulpit and the Bible used by Dr. Warfield.

Charles Zimmerman, a student, told of a blue mark on Stephens's forehead the day after the chapel affair. He also identified the signature "Aaron Snyder" as the writing of Stephens. Professor Moore identified the key found at Stephens's home as one fitting the door in Pardee Hall.

New Plan for Pacific Cable.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Senator Frye introduced an amendment to the sundry civil appropriation bill, for the encouragement of a Pacific cable. It provides for the payment of a subsidy, not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars a year, for twenty years, for a cable to Hawaii, Guam and the Philippine islands, Japan and China.

The contract is to be let to an American company and to the lowest responsible bidder. The contractor is to be required to have his cable laid to Honolulu by July 1, 1900, and to Manila by January 1, 1901.

Floods in Richmond.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 18.—The expected high water is upon the city. The Manchester span of Mayo's bridge, connecting this city and Manchester, is gone, and the Southern Railway bridge is in danger.

The elevator of S. H. Hawes & Company, the largest coal dealers in the city, is on fire.

One of the electric light plants is under water, and it is momentarily expected that the gas works will be flooded.

FORCE VERSUS IMMOVABLE.

An Encounter In Which the Unexpected Was Obliged to Give Way.

"No," said the man, "I do not want a hair restorer."

The agent smiled genially. It was his boast that he never lost a sale. He sat down and took a bottle of the restorer out of his bag. "This has made more handsome men," he began, then interrupted himself. "You must have been unusually good-looking when you had your hair." He spoke critically, without a trace of vulgar flattery.

"On the contrary," the bald-headed man asserted positively, "it is more becoming to me to be bald. I was not elected coroner till after I lost my hair."

"With men, yes," the agent admitted, indulgently. "Of course, when they can see a man's bare skull and make sure of the confines of his brain, they feel more confidence in electing him to an important office. Besides, they know a man who has lost his hair ought to have something to make up to him for it. But I was thinking of women—"

"You're wrong again," the bald-headed man interrupted. "I tried for seven years to marry a certain girl while my raven tresses clustered luxuriously about my brow. Since I've been bald, I've been married twice; and I shouldn't mind giving you odds that I could get the original woman who refused me, for No. 2 if the opportunity ever develops."

The hair restorer agent began to look a little fagged, but he continued gamely: "There's one other point that I'm sure will appeal to a man like you. Hair acts as a cover and a protection to the head, and the brains within. Even leaving out the colds, and such like, a man catches for want of hair, there's the direct harm to the brain—paresis and all kindred diseases never attack a person with a thick thatch of hair. Do you know"—his tone was impressive—"that—"

"Not at all. You haven't half grasped the subject. The hair is a covering—a mulch, as it were—for the brain when young and feeble; but when it has grown strong and robust, when the blood has learned the way to circulate properly through the arteries of the head, a covering is unnecessary and the hair drops off—gives full play to the brain and saves the necessity of a wet towel tied around the brow. Only small-minded men, whose brains cannot absorb all the nutriment furnished the head, keep their hair. No, you"—the bald-headed man scrutinized the agent carefully—"must have a brain in a singular state of arrested development. Or, if it was once of normal size and activity, you have, by forcing an unnatural crop of hair to grow upon your head with the restorer, so far deprived your brain of the necessary support from the blood, that it is anaemic, half starved-atrophied, in a word."

The agent looked long and sorrowfully at the bald-headed man, then put the bottle back in his satchel and went softly out of the door. The question of the irresistible force and the immovable body was solved.

Crosby is Cross.

The Crosbys were going to the theatre the other evening, and Mr. Crosby was fuming and fretting in the hall, where he was waiting for Mrs. Crosby to "hurry up or the play would be all over before they got there."

Presently Mrs. Crosby came hurrying down the stairs and, glancing at her husband, said:

"Oh, Henry, wait a moment. Yu—"

"What now?" said Crosby, furiously. "I never saw the equal of you women. We have been married fifteen years, and not once—no, not once in all that time—have I ever known you to fail to forget something and delay us just when we ought to be off. Its always your handkerchief or your opera glass or your fan or something that—"

"But, Henry—"

"Go and get what you've forgotten and don't stand there excusing yourself for forgetting it. The first act of the play must be over by this time, and here you are—"

"Henry, listen to me. I—"

"You've forgotten your fan. I suppose. Well, tell me where it is and I'll go and get it for you. My soul, I don't know when we'd ever get any peace if I was as forgetful as you are. Why don't you keep your wits about you long enough to—"

"For goodness sake, Henry, keep still and—"

"How can I keep still when you provoke me so? Here I've been all dressed and waiting a solid half hour, and you come down simply to tell me that you have forgotten something and—"

"I haven't forgotten anything, Henry Crosby."

"Then what under the sun, moon and stars are we waiting here for?"

"Simply because you have forgotten to put on any necktie."

"What? No necktie?"

"No, you haven't any necktie on, and I'm not going with you without one, for—"

"Great Caesar! Why didn't you tell me that I didn't have any tie on and not stand there staring at me and saying nothing? You women beat the band, 'pon my word."—Tid-Bits.

A Practical Wife.

Jean Paul represents Siebenkas as reading one of his beautiful fancies to his wife, who listened with eyes cast down, apparently absorbed in his words. As he finished and waited for her appreciation to express itself, she said, quickly:

"Don't put on those stockings tomorrow, dear. I must mend that hole in the left one."—Youth's Companion.

AN ORDINANCE

For macadamizing West Fourth Street between New Street and Monroe Avenue.

The inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 3. That said macadamizing shall be done by the said owners of lands, tenements or real estate under the inspection and supervision of the Street Commissioner, provided, however, that if for any reason the property owners of said portion of said street shall fail to agree with the contractor or contractors as to the price for which said macadamizing shall be done within a period of thirty days after this ordinance shall become a law, then it shall be lawful for the Common Council to make the contract with the contractor or contractors and order the work done in accordance with the provisions of this ordinance and cause the amount of expenses for doing said work to be assessed upon said lands, tenements and real estate benefited by the same in accordance with the valid statutes in such case made and provided.

Greater Power for Newspapers.

The exciting occurrences of a public nature during the past year has had the effect of making newspapers read more than ever, and a consequent lack of interest in books, magazines and periodicals that were not in touch with the course of events. This fact is brought out conspicuously by the annual report of the librarian of the Paterson Free Public Library, which was submitted to the trustees of that institution yesterday. The librarian reports that there has been a decrease of almost 13,000 in the number of books lent during the year.

The demand for books upon naval warfare and upon Spain and her colonies is large, but the librarian thinks that many people who read chiefly for recreation discontinued taking books and are reading newspapers.

What has been Paterson's experience no doubt is the same of many other towns. The inevitable result of such a condition has been to strengthen newspapers throughout the land, making them more influential in shaping public affairs and giving them greater scope for accomplishing their aims and purposes. And at last, but not least, it has resulted in putting the advertising merchant in touch with increasing purchasing power to be secured through the well-timed and common sense announcement finding a place in newspaper columns.

Jury Commission Again.

A jury commission bill is one of the important measures pending before the Legislature. It provides for two commissioners of jurors in each county, one from each party, who shall draw all grand and petit jurors, receive a compensation of $3 a day and mileage and serve for three years. Several years ago a bill like this met with much favor in the Republican party, and, in fact, a law to that effect was passed. Subsequently it was repealed by the Democrats. Of course, the Sheriffs do not want any such law, because it would decrease their fees. There are now twelve Republican and nine Democratic Sheriffs in the State, and should they pool their issues on this or any other measure their influence could scarcely be resisted. This jury commission bill has for its author Mr. Bell, of Bergen county, where a Democratic Sheriff was unexpectedly elected last November. The bill is not likely to become a law at this session of the Legislature.

The man who originated angel cake, from which he made a million dollars, died in Vineland yesterday. The angelic name of his pastry invention, however, does not condone the innumerable cases of dyspepsia which suffering humanity has had to endure as a result of ambitious housewives trying to shine in the culinary world as worthy imitators of the original angel cake maker.

The New York authorities have notified the Elevated Railroad officials to remove their structure from Battery Park. If the order is enforced every branch of the elevated system will be crippled. It is evident that the authotities think the "L" railroad may as well become an "X" railroad.

In his annual message sent to the Borough Council last night Mayor Wilson exhibits his good common sense again.

Those who have assumed the nursing of the Greater Plainfield baby are doing their best to make her a lusty youngster.

GENERAL MILES' CAREER IN PICTURES.

General Miles' active and distinguished military career began in 1861, at the age of 21. As an aide on General Howard's staff he won promotion by leading a desperate charge while suffering from a severe wound, and a few months later commanded a brigade at Fredericksburg. At Chancellorsville he was carried from the field, believed to be mortally injured. He is one of the country's most noted Indian fighters. His last campaign was in Porto Rico.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The Republican leaders recognize the fact that something should be done for the colored men, but just what to do is a problem. It has been suggested that a certain kind of work might be set aside at all the State institutions to be given to colored Republicans. In this way it is calculated to provide for a large number of colored Republicans and put an end to their importunity. But that arrangement does not suit the four who consider themselves the leaders.—Paterson Guardian.

As capitalists and money institutions are now loaning money freely on Gomernment, public building and other bonds rated at from 3 to 4 per cent. interest and even paying premiums thereon, it stands to reason that 5 per cent. interest for money advanced on real estate security should be sufficient to satisfy any Shylock in the land. The present time and conditions seem favorable for reducing the legal rate of interest throughout the State to 5 per cent, thereby giving the future borrower a fair chance of living alongside his more fortunate neighbor who has money to loan and ultimately of repaying both debt and interest. We see no sign of hardship to any, but promise of good to many in the success of Mr. Cooper's bill.—State Centre.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The condition of West Front street, near Washington avenue, is a disgrace to the city. At present walking is almost impossible in that vicinity. The water overflows from the street and chokes the gutters. This is not the first time the people have complained and they think that the city should adopt some method whereby a good system of drainage can be introduced. Several attempts have been made to fix the street, but in every case it has failed of its purpose. The people have also complained about the snow being left on the Washington avenue bridge when they have been compelled to clean their walks.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

An attraction of unusual merit will be that of the Jefferson Comedy Company which presents "Rip VanWinkle" at Music Hall, Monday night. Thomas Jefferson who will be known as the sixth generation of the Jefferson comedians, will be seen as "Rip VanWinkle," a part which he has been playing with the greatest possible success. He is the second oldest of the four brothers who compose the principal members of this organization. The part of Gretchen, wife of "Rip" will be played by Miss Edna Carey. She is an actress of unusual talent, and this will be her first tour among the smaller cities of this country. She has been specially engaged by the management for this difficult part, which she playes in the most artistic manner.

* * * * * *

Miss Adelaide Thurston, an actress of rare talent, will take the part of "Lady Babby" in "The Little Minister," that appears soon at Music Hall. This is the part made famous by Maude Adams. The cast was especially selected by Manager Charles Frohman, who assures Manager Edwards that the production will be in every particular equal to the New York production.

* * * * * *

"Mrs. Attick's Lodgers," Jolly Nellie McHenry's farcical sketch, in which she will appear at Music Hall next Wednesday afternoon and evening, is said to be the funniest and brightest of all the new skits now on the vaudeville stage. It abounds in humorous dialogue and side splitting complications, Jolly Nellie espousing the character of a vartety actress, supported by John Webster as Captain Doolittle Good, of the Midnight Mission. It is from the pen of Ed. Marble, and the finale almost puts the audience in convulsions.

* * * * * *

The announcement of the famous play of the "Little Minister" and a dramatization of the famous novel of that name made by the author, J. M. Barrie, should be received with a great deal of enthusiasm. It will be seen at Music Hall Friday night of next week, and it will undoubtedly prove the event of the season. Certainly no play comes to us more highly spoken of or one that has met with the great amount of success than has the "Little Minister." The phenomenal engagement they played in New York, where it was seen for 300 performances and by audiences that packed the theatre at every performance, is something that we are all familiar with. We are promised a most excellent company a production complete in every way. That the play will meet with the success that it has everywhere since it left New York is an assured fact. Already the demand for seats has been very large, and there is no question but that the house will be sold out before the company appears.

Scotch Plains, Feb. 18—A pleasant farewell reception was tendered to Miss Lydia Hayes in the Baptist church parlors yesterday afternoon, by the little Christian Endeavorers connected with the church. Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

WONDERFUL TOUCH.

A Blind Man Who Works for a Blind Man and Does Good Work.

T. J. Lockwood of Buda, Ill., one of the business men of that place, being owner of a men's furnishing store, is totally blind. The man who was the buyer for Mr. Lockwood was and is J. Oechsley. He worked for Mr. Lockwood for many years, and was one of the most important of his employes. But one day misfortune came to him. Oddly enough, it struck at his eyes. He was laid low with a nervous affliction, and when he was able to be told of it the doctors announced to him that he was to go through life in the same condition as his employer. His sight was gone and never would be restored.

In the hour of his most trying experience, his old employer came to him and the men went to the old store. Mr. Oechsley knew the place by heart. He was at home there, even if he could not see, and as the days went on he realized that all was not gone, even if his sight was lost. He found that he could tell as of old the differences that lie in materials.

His hands seemed to have been given an extra share of cunning, and in a measure became his sight. He practised and grew more expert. His whole energy was thrown into the work he had put himself to do, and in a short time it was found that as a buyer of goods he was almost as good as before the calamity overtook him.

The merchants and jobbers with whom he deals know him. They would not take advantage of him even if they could. And they all admit that they could not if they would. The hands of this man are as good and even better in their way than the eyes of most men. He tells all about a piece of goods, no matter what it is, by feeling the texture and finish. He is considered to be a first class buyer, and when merchants say this of him they add that they do not take into consideration the fact that he is blind in passing their judgment of this ability.—Chicago Times-Herald.

THE LOVERS' QUARREL.

Gently her head fell forward on his manly chest.

"Is this genuine love?" she murmured ecstatically.

"Is this genuine, love?" he repeated, misunderstandingly. "What do you take me for—a hair mattress?"

Brave Men Fall

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache, and tired, listless, run down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. Listen to J. W. Gardner, Idaville, Ind. He says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he is all run down, and don't care whether he lives or dies. It did more to give me new strength and good appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cents, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store. Every bottle guaranteed.

THE NEW WHITE HOUSE.

The sentiment in favor of a new Executive Mansion in Washington—a greater White House—will soon take tangible, definite form.

Plans have already been prepared by J. M. Pelz, the architect of the new National Library, the Carnegie Library, at Allegheny, and the Georgetown University.

According to the ideas of Mr. Pelz, the new Executive Mansion should stand on Meridian Hill, the central high point of the magnificent amphitheatre of hills inclosing the city of Washington. The northern limit is fixed at Huron street, the southern boundary extending to the rectangle between Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Boundary and U streets, and the eastern end to Fourteenth street.

"That the present White House is inadequate to the demands of the country," says the writer, "is a statement which will scarcely be controverted. It was designed a hundred years ago for a people of three or four millions in number. The nation has already grown to 70,000,000, with a promise that this will be doubled in the next forty years.

"Our Executive Mansion is at present a crowded business building, unfit for family residence and wholly unequal to the social demands of the age. The guests of the Presidents of the United States enter and depart in multitudes through a single door and sometimes through the windows. It is not too much to say that the crushes at White House receptions approach too near the border line of the disgraceful.

"The establishment is a beautiful souvenir of a hundred years ago and is none too large at the present day for the executive offices of the President of the United States. The house will be best honored and revered by preserving its graceful outlines and perfect proportion as it now stands. The addition to it of a larger structure would but mar its modest beauty, while in turn would detract from the larger building, which should be structurally and symmetrically perfect."

Mary Foote Henderson says Mr. Pelz has for years been inspired with the idea of building a new Executive Manson on Meridian Hill. The location seemed to lend itself naturally to every requirement of the object in view. It is suggested that the central location is especially convenient and accessible for the winter season, while for a summer residence it is "the most desirable spot in the whole district," there being no cooler place within a radius of twenty miles than Meridian Hill. The elevation is absolutely free from malaria and infectious gases, while the declivity provides a perfect and rapid drainage.

An examination of the plans prepared by Mr. Pelz, shows the general design of the White House to be a modern adaptation of the Roman order of architecture. The material of which the building shall be constructed is white marble, which will perpetuate the traditional color of the old mansion, while the semi-transparent stone derives new beauty from the sun and clouds.

A reference to the picture will show that the building is constructed in the extract from the letter H.

The great entrance of the mansion in the centre of the main building in Mr. Pelz's plan would lead to a broad vaulted hall, with a view of the gardens and palm houses in the distance.

"The experience of the past," says Mrs. Henderson in concluding her descriptions of the plan, "has demonstrated the folly of building a Capitol or a White House to suit only the necessities of the time in which it is built.

"Let the lesson be accepted in the planning of the new executive mansion which may not only challenge the admiration of the world and the pride of the American people, but satisfy the demands of our ever increasing population."

As With One Voice They Spoke Up.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer says: At a little uptown gathering not long ago the guests played some simple games and told ghost stories, and managed to have a good time in the old-fashioned way.

Pretty soon one of the gentlemen said:

"I don't believe we appreciate what a steady old slow coach the human brain is. Notwithstanding all our talk about quick wits, and flashes of intelligence, the brain is not so easily thrown from its accustomed ruts. If, for instance, I ask you a question which is entirely new to you, but which your honest old brain mistakes for a query quite similar in construction, it will go right ahead and telegraph the reply in its own hidebound way."

"That sounds interesting," said one of the guests, "but show us an example."

"I will," said the first speaker, "with the proviso that you answer it promptly." He smiled, and then, without any haste, quietly asked: "Who saved the life of Pocahontas?"

"John Smith!" roared twenty voices.

"You see," said the questioner.

A little girl, whose mother left her alone at night after telling her her room was full of angels, was heard saying to her doll: "Now, dollie, you must'nt be afraid. The room is all full of angels. It beats the devil how afraid I am of angels."—Trained Motherhood.

Changes His Mind.

"You are just going out, I see"—

"Yes; an important engagement. What was it you wanted?"

"It was about that little debt I owe you."

"Ah, yes; take a seat."

"I was going to ask you for a little delay"—

"Oh—excuse me, but I'm already late."

"I say I was just going to ask you for a little delay, when I met a fellow who paid up what he owed men, and"

"Why on earth don't you sit down? Will you take a glass of wine?"

He—I want you to understand no woman ever made a fool of me!

She—Indeed! Who did it, then?

Monkey Puts Out a Fire.

Mrs. Peter Minetti, of Belleville, Ill., owns a monkey and confines it in a wire cage. Recently Mrs. Minetti put some fresh coal on the grate fire, locked up the house, and went to visit some friends. A lump of burning coal fell to the floor and set fire to the carpet. The monkey broke out of the cage and hurried into an adjoining room, secured some articles of wearing apparel, and threw them over the burning carpet, completely smothering the flames. When Mrs. Minetti returned home the monkey was sitting beside its cage carefully nursing two badly burned paws. The timely action of the monkey averted a conflagration.

When Choate Was Ruffled.

An unpublished story about Mr. Choate tells of the only time his serenity was ever ruffled while cross-questioning a witness. It was during a famous will case, and Felix McClusky, formerly doorkeeper of the house of representatives, was the witness.

"Now, Mr. McClusky," insinuatively asked Mr. Choate, "isn't it true that you are the modern Munchausen?"

"You're the second blackguard that has asked me that in a week," roared McClusky. "An'—" The roar of laughter, in which Surrogate Rollins himself joined, drowned the remainder of Mr. McClusky's retort, and it was fully five minutes before business went on again.

PARLOR MAGIC.

Some Really Astonishing Tricks Based On Scientific Principles.

A very interesting experiment to work out during the performance is one based upon the action of chemicals. About an hour is required for this, so it should be commenced just before the entertainment, and the things left to stand as part of the outfit on the table. Take three medium-sized leaves from a red cabbage and strip them to pieces, and put them in a clean earthen dish and pour a pint of boinling water over them. As soon as the water is cool, transfer it all to a pretty glass bowl and set that on the magic table. The water will be of a rich blue in an hour. At the same time take four clean wine glasses and put six drops of common vinegar in one, six drops of baking soda dissolved in water in the second, and six drops of alum solution in the third. The fourth is to be left empty. No one would notice the small quantity of liquid in these glasses.

When you are ready to use them you say something like this: "You see these empty glasses. I shall pour this blue liquid into them. They will, at my command, change their color. This (taking the empty one) shall remain blue. This one shall turn red (taking the one with the vinegar), this shall become green (taking the one with the soda), and this one shall take on royal purple. (The alum makes purple.) this is very effective, as well as pretty.

A boiled egg—boiled for fear of accidents—is put, large end downward, in a wine glass. Another glass like it is stood an inch distant. The performer must blow forcibly down in the side nearest him of the glass with the egg, and it will jump out and into the other one. Better try this two or three times privately to make sure of distance and force required.

Air pressure may be used as the basis for the "dancing waterbaby." This is easily made, and is very comical. A clear glass milk jar should be filled with water up to an inch from the top. A small walnut has the meat taken out and the shell fastened together with sealing wax, so that it is watertight. At the lower end a small hole is to be made. Two threads are fastened to the shell by wax, and these are tied to the head of a small wooden doll. A bullet is fastened to a string around the waist and hangs down a trifle below the feet. The hole in the nutshell is right over the doll's head. When this is done put the doll down into the water, and the water must reach to about an inch from the top, when all is in. A piece of bladder is to be firmly tied over the mouth. This should be wet first, as that makes it more pliable, and no air must enter. When this is dry the baby is ready to dance for you. You press the cover with one finger, and that causes a corresponding pressure of air upon the nut, which is then filled with water, and that makes it heavier, so that it rises and falls with each pressure of the finger.

A puzzling trick in chemistry is to take a very transparent glass goblet with four drops of hydrochloric acid in the bottom, and a saucer where the bottom has just been dipped in ammonia. Cover this glass tightly with the saucer and step away, declaring that you will cause the smoke from a cigarette to all pass inside the glass. The glass will slowly fill with fumes of smoke. It is the union of these two volatile liquids which forms the white fumes.

If one wants to do a really remarkable thing let him get a handful of letuce seed and soak them over night in alcohol. Then have a flower pot or box not over six inches deep. In the bottom strew 2 inches of well mixed loam or florist's soil. At the beginning of the evening's performance the lad should show this box of soil and tell them that before the audience leaves he is going to show them some of his farming. He then takes his seeds, and after putting in the box 2 inches more of soil, composed of one part loam and one part of quicklime, he scaters his letuce seed all over the top and then sifts a little more loam, very fine and thinly over the seeds. Then he waters the whole and stands it directly in the light. In ten minutes the seeds burst, in twenty there are two leaves, and at the end of an hour, if kept sprinkled a couple of times, the lettuce leaves will have attained the size of a quarter of a dollar, and ought to be numerous enough to make the whole top green.

KINDNESS TO HOBSON'S MEN.

The Hero of the Merimac Acknowledges the Courtesy of His Captors.

Lieutenant Hobson gives in his "Merrimac" papers, in the Century, an account of the kind reception he and his men received on the "Reina Mercedes."

When we were all on board and had laid aside our side arms and accoutrements, the launch headed around and stood for the Reina Mercedes, and I directed the men, who were shivering to get down near the furnace, to which no objection was raised. Not a word was spoken till we reached the Mercedes. However great may have been their curiosity and interest, the officers, after their first kind words of greeting, forbore to ask questions or make remarks. When we came alongside the senior officer asked if I would be good enough to go on board with my men. So courteous was his manner, we might have been guests coming to breakfast. The officer of the deck and the executive officer were at the head of the gangway. I gave the salute, and inspected the men for their condition. Those who were still shivering were sent forward at once for stimulants and friction. Kelly's lips showed a wide gash that had become clogged with coaldust. Murphy had a wound on his right hip, twelve or fourteen inches in length and perhaps a quarter or a half of an inch in depth, which he had received in the blast when he fired torpedo No. 1; and though the wound certainly must have been very painful, he had not uttered a groan or made any reference to it during all the time that had elapsed. It was only after our arrival on the Mercedes that we learned of it. The men were all more or less scratched and bruised from colliding with objects in the vortex whirl, but there was no injury of consequence, the life-preservers having formed excellent buffers. The executive officer followed the inspection, and gave directions for the care of the men. Kelly and Murphy went to the surgeon, and all were given facilities for washing and were supplied with dry clothing.

How to Study Law.

To obtain a broad and comprehensive view of the "entire body of the law," there is nothing better for a beginner's reading than Blackstone. There is, however, so much in the original Blackstone that is obsolete and archaic, so much of "mystic, dark and discordant lore," that the American abridgement of the Commentaries (we think by Prof. George Chase) is for the young student preferable to the original—interesting as is the latter to the student of history.

Kent's commentaries should be read carefully and critically for the frame work of American law. For the law of Contracts, probably the most important branch of the law to be mastered by the student, Bishop is the simplest to master, being a single volume, and is fairly full and complete. Parsons (3 vols.), Story (2 vols.), and Wharton (2 vols.), are more elaborate treatises, each being a standard work. On Equity, there is nothing better than Story. Other elementary works which might be read in succession are Abbott, Gould or Baylies on Practice and Pleading; Washburn on Real Estate, Cooley or Pomeroy on Constitutional Law. Greenleaf on Evidence; Redfield or Schouler on Wills and Probate Law; Wharton's Criminal Law; Browne or Schouler on Domestic Relations.

These suggestions presume that our young friend knows the Constitution of the United States by heart, that he has a reasonable degree of familiarity with the history of his country, especially in the formative period, and that that he is a daily student of our New York Code of Civil Procedure. If not the latter, let him make it a vade mecum till he knows its contents.

Get Bouvier's Law Dictionary and consult it whenever you meet in your reading a term which you do not fully understand. If your two years in college did not give you at least a smattering of Latin, get it now. You can hardly continue your studies intelligently without it. A little volume, Reed's "American Law Studies," will be found very useful as a guide to intelligent reading. You can get it at any law book store, or read it in any law office to which you have access. And, whatever you read, read not carelessly or thoughtlessly, but with the concentration of every faculty upon your subject.—New York Mail and Express.

FAIR EXCHANGE.

Who laments the verdure vanished
  From the hillside and the field
  In the Fall?
Shall we cling to recollection and to melancholy yield?
  Not at all.
Let the violets and the daisies in the year's procession pass,
Let none in idle folly cry "Alack!" nor yet "Alas!"
When the celery is smiling on the table from the glass
  Crisp and tall.

Why recall the morning jewels with their sparkle and their glow
  Which we've lost?
And wail because the dewdrops which were glistening long ago
  Turn to frost?
The sight of glimmering globules as they drip into the pan,
When the feast's in preparation on an epicurean plan
Makes the blisses of the present fully worth to any man
  All they cost.

And he who mourns the songbird that was erstwhile perched so high
  On a twig,
Deserves no recognition for his hypocritic sigh.
  He's a prig.
For the bird which in the oven is reposing so serene,
Adds a vastly greater share of picturesqueness to the scene,
And he's infinitely sweeter and at smallest seventeen
  Times as big.

STORY OF A STOLEN KISS.

"My dear Leslie," said Henry Seymour to his ward, "I do wish you would try to be a little less fast; every one is talking about you and it is very painful to me."

"My dear guardy," said the young lady he addressed, a very pretty girl, about eighteen, "what have I done? Just mention some of my sins and I will try to reform."

"Well," said Sir Henry, "to begin with you are much too fond of using slang expressions; I am sure you do not mean any harm, dear, but it does not sound well. I wish you would adopt a more ladylike manner, like those nice, quiet girls, Colonel Bond's daughters. I assure you, Leslie, men do not care for fast girls, however much they may flirt with them, and I confess I should like to see you well married."

"Now, my dear Sir Henry," said Leslie coaxingly, "tell me, did you ever hear me say anything the least weeny bit improper?"

"Certainly not, my dear child."

"Then let me tell you those nice, quiet, ladylike girls you admire so much say things that would make your hair stand on end. If you could only hear how they go on when we are by ourselves. I should be quite ashamed," she added, with energy, "to even think of the things they discuss freely; indeed, I cut them whenever I can. As for marrying—really, all the young men I know are such muffs or prigs I detest the whole lot. What is my next crime?"

"You smoke cigarettes, Leslie," said her guardian sternly. "I was told you were actually seen with one between your lips out of doors the other night."

Leslie hung down her head a little and then said, with a slight blush:

"I cannot deny I tried one once, and indeed it was so nasty and made me feel so ill that I assure you I am not likely to do it again."

"I am glad to hear it. So you think all young men muffs or prigs? I hope to introduce to you one who answers neither description; you have of course heard of Captain Murray?"

"Do you mean the Captain Murray who gained the Victoria Cross for defending that fort so gallantly in the last campaign? Of course I remember all about him. Why?"

"He is coming home, and being the son of an old friend, he has promised to pay me a visit, and I expect him shortly."

"How delightful! I shall like to meet a real hero. I hope he is handsome."

"Douglass Murray was a very good looking lad, but you will not suit him, young lady; he abhors 'fast girls,' and is very fastidious.'

"Well, I shall survive his disapprobation, I dare say. Amy will suit him to a T. She is such a demure little mouse." And Miss Lindsay took herself off.

In due time Captain Murray arrived. Leslie Lindsay was disappointed; she could hardly believe that quiet, unassuming young man could be the hero who had startled the whole civilized world into admiration. To her guardian's great annoyance she seemed to make a point of showing herself in her worst colors, and when Sir Henry asked her whether she thought Captain Murray a prig or a muff she declared he was both.

One very hot day in July Leslie and Sir Henry's daughter, Amy Seymour, were returning from making a call. The drawing room windows opened on the veranda, which was covered with luxuriant creepers. It looked very cool and pleasant inside on such a sultry day. The two girls were about to enter the room when Leslie, who was in advance, suddenly drew back and pointed inside. Amy peeped in. There was Captain Murray fast asleep in an arm chair near the window.

"What a chance, Amy, for me to win a pair of gloves."

"For shame, Leslie. You surely would not think of such a thing."

"Who's afraid?" said Leslie. "Besides he is really fast asleep and will never know, and the temptation is too much for me. Consider, the hero the whole world raves about," and with a mischievous look at Amy, she stepped lightly in and dropped a kiss as light as a puff of thistledown upon the sleeper's forehead.

As the sound of the girl's retreating footsteps died away Douglas Murray opened his eyes, and, smiling to himself, said:

"I suppose that is considered a fast girl. I must confess I like her, and believe she is really true and womanly. That fast manner is all humbug. I must not forget to pay my debt, however," and he laughed. "She thinks me a muff, I know. Never mind, that kiss was very nice—I forgive her."

A day or two afterward, as they were all at breakfast, Sir Henry said:

"I forgot, Leslie, here is something for you," handing her a small packet, marked "Parcel Post."

"What can it be, I wonder?" she said, as she cut the string; "the handwriting is quite strange to me," and she was about to open it quite unconcernedly when Amy remarked:

"It is just the shape of a glove box."

Leslie started and looked guilty across the table at Captain Murray, who was, however, going on with his breakfast.

She took off the paper wrapper and discovered a white box—it did look horribly like a glove box, Leslie thought, as she lifted the cover—and, yes, inside lay several pairs of dainty kid gloves of different shades.

Hoping nobody noticed her confusion and not daring to look across the table she was replacing the cover of the box when Captain Murray said very coolly:

"I always pay my debts, Miss Lindsay; I do not like to feel under any obligation."

Hastily seizing her parcel Leslie rose, and, murmuring something to Sir Henry about not feeling very well, she flew upstairs and locked herself into her room, where she had a good cry.

After a little time she took a look at the gloves.

"Just my size. I wonder how he knew; and six buttons—and how pretty they are. He is not quite such a 'prig' after all, but it makes no difference to me now. He dislikes me, I know, and I wish he was gone." And then she had another good cry.

Sir Henry Seymour had no reason to complain of his ward's conduct for the next few days—but she avoided Captain Murray, who tried in vain to get a chance to speak to her.

One morning, however, fortune favored him. He was in the garden and Leslie was walking toward him; she was quite unconscious of his proximity and they must meet in a moment more. When she saw him standing near she lifted her sweet blue eyes to his with a wistful, half-beseeching glance.

"Miss Lindsay," said Douglas, "shake hands with me, please. I am afraid I took a most unfair advantage of you; pray forgive me and let us be friends."

"Oh, Captain Murray, I do feel so awfully ashamed of myself—what must you think of me?"

"Shall I tell you what I think of you, darling?" as he gently drew her toward him. "I think you a dear, sweet, lovable girl, and if you can put up with such a muff as I am as a husband——"

"Oh, please don't," said Leslie, interrupting him, "do not remind me of my impertinence. You are much too good for me, but indeed," with earnestness, "I will never do it again!"

"I call that positively unkind, I assure you," said he, laughing. "I do not care how many times you repeat the operation——"

Leslie has been Mrs. Murray now some years, but her husband has never regretted he married a fast girl, while she declares she has found from experience all men are not either prigs or muffs.—London Evening News.

National Customs.

The traveler who lands at Calais from Dover and stops there over night is put into a bed having a hard round bolster, surmounted by a huge square pillow, very different from anything of the sort he has before seen, but which he is destined to find—perhaps to his great comfort—wherever he goes in France. Here is a French fashion.

The traveller who enters Switzerland—it matters not where—has honey placed before him the first time he breakfasts or takes his tea. He has not been treated to honey before in any adjacent country in which he has traveled, not at least, unless he has specially ordered it; but now it is placed before him whether he cares for it or not, and it continues to appear both at breakfast and tea, so long as he continues his sojournings in Switzerland. Here is a Swiss custom.

One who crosses from France to Germany exchanges customs in regard to the time of day for taking dinner and the time of night for retiring to rest. The Frenchman eats but little in the morning or through the middle of the day, reserving his dinner until the close of the day. The German dines at midday. So much is this his practice, the very word for dinner signifies "midday's meal." And even fashionable Germany goes to its evening's entertainment at half past six P. M., and is at home and in bed before the night has barely begun in London or Paris. Here are German habits.

The more one travels, the more, of course, he observes of these national peculiarities. He finds them existing not merely in such outward matters as those just indicated, but in every department of life. So numerous, so deeply rooted, so widely prevailing are these peculiarities as to stamp ineffaceably the national character.

THE BEECHER RIFLES CHURCH.

It Was Erected By the Men Who Went From New-Haven to Kansas in 1854.

The call of Dr. Newell Hillis, of Chicago, to fill the pulpit made famous by Henry Ward Beecher has recalled many incidents in the career of the distinguished pastor of Plymouth Church. His church appears to belong to the American people, as being Old South Church and Gettysburg field; it was made through Mr. Beecher's pastorate a National institution more than a local one. It was the heart of the abolition movement, and was called by its enemies "the d—— abolition nest." During the Civil War Plymouth pulpit was the place from which loyal Americans were given inspiration and encouragement. The church gave its money and the lives of its sons to the cause of the Union. Mr. Beecher died in 1887, and the first Sunday thereafter Lyman Abbott preached from Plymouth pulpit. For some time he was acting pastor and became the regularly chosen head of the church in 1888. He resigned on November 27, 1898.

Dr. Newell Hillis.

One of the most striking reminders of the character of Henry Ward Beecher is in the little town of Wabaunsee, Kan. It was the Beecher Rifles Church, erected by the men who went out from Hartford, Conn., in 1854 to help free Kansas. At one of the meetings held at New Haven to organize the colony Mr. Beecher made the principal address. After he had finished speaking it was announced that, while the party was well prepared to dig and plough, it was not in shape to fight. Prof. Silliman, of Yale College, arose, and in a short speech urged the furnishing of the colonists with guns, so that they could do something for freedom as well as for the building up of prosperity on the plains. He ended by subscribing $25 for the purchase of a Sharps rifle. Others followed, and in a few minutes half of the colonists had been provided with weapons for either defensive or offensive warfare.

The meeting was in many ways remarkable, but most for what followed. Beecher, then at the zenith of his power, again took the rostrum, and in a magnetic speech gave his blessing to the new plans, and promised that if the colonists could get half enough rifles there he would promise that his church would furnish the remainder. In a few days he sent to the company the required number of guns, over $600 having been subscribed by his parishoners for the purpose, and along with them came a Bible and hymn-book for every member of the party. On the last day of March they tramped out of New Haven as splendid a party of men as ever gathered for the colonization of the West. In the party were doctors, lawyers, merchants, teachers and preachers, and every one carried on his shoulder a rifle, in his pocket a Bible and hymn-book, and in his heart a dertimination to honor the people who had fitted them out with the means to conquer slavery and the Wilderness. In St. Louis they organized a co-operative company, and brought the necessities of life to the bare prairies and went into the new lands with a complete outfit, prepared to make a living and fit out homes for the reception of their families, who were to come later.

With them went the words of the preacher, who wrote them from his study in Brooklyn as he sent the rifles: "Let these arms hang above your doors as the old Revolutionary muskets do in many a New England dwelling. May your children in another generation look upon them with pride and say, 'Our fathers' courage saved this fair land from blood and slavery.' Every morning's breeze shall catch the blessings of our prayers and roll them westward to your prairie homes. May your sons be large-hearted as the heavens above their heads; may your daughters fill the land as the flowers do the prairies, only sweeter and fairer than they. You will not need the use of arms when it is known that you have them. It is the essence of slavery to be arrogant before the weak and cowardly before the strong."

Embarassment Ensued.

A certain wealthy man has a brother who is hard of hearing, while he himself is remarkable for his very prominent nose. One evening, dining at a friend's house, he found himself between two ladies, who talked to him very loudly, rather to his annoyance. Finally one of them shouted a commonplace remark, and then said, in an ordinary tone, to the other, "Did you ever see such a nose in your life?" "Pardon me, ladies," said the wealthy man, "it is my brother who is deaf." Tableau!

SPORTING.

THE GREAT INDOOR GAME

WHAT IS GOING ON IN LOCAL BASKET BALL CIRCLES.

Happenings of Interest to Plainfield Enthusiasts—What the Local Teams are Doing—Gossip Among the Players.

While the proposed match with the Yale basket ball team has been effectively killed by the action of the Board of Directors of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., it does not mean that the game itself is not going to continue. On the contrary, the sport is very popular with the Directors and will be encouraged within what they believe are its proper limits in connection with the association. The old policy will be continued the remainder of this season and games will be played in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium with such teams as Manager George Fuller can get. He will be limited by the revenue to be derived from the games in the gymnasium which will be necessarily small as the place will only hold a comparitively small number. The physical work committee was first called upon to act on the Yale game. It lay with the committee to recommend or oppose the game. The question came up for vote when all but one of the committee were present. The absentee was T. A. Cuming. Those who favored the game were John Valiant, the chairman, C. B. Egan, and George Proctor Smith. It was opposed by R. A. Meeker, S. B. Joseph and L. I. VanAlstyne. J. W. Gavett was neutral. Then the directors considered it. Mr. Valiant, the only director on the committee and an advocate of the game, was absent when it was brought up and voted down.

The basket ball team from the Hasbrouck Field Club will play a return game in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Monday evening, beginning at 8:15 o'clock. Owing to the fact that the visitors' gallery will only accomodate a limited number, those who are anxious to get a seat are advised to go early. While there isn't any doubt as to the victory of the local team in the game, it will be an interesting match as the visitors play a good clean game while they can't equal Plainfield in team playing.

Plainfield Y. M. C. A. will be represented in the match against Hasbrouck Field Club Monday evening by the regular team. Both Bonny and Carroll, the two substitutes, will probably play one half each.

VARICUS SPORTS.

Considerable interest is manifested among the boys at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium in the proposed dual indoor athletic meet with the New Brunswick association. While Plainfield has good material, New Brunswick has the advantage of being able to draw some of its athletic material from among the students at Rutgers College.

OUR SKILL NEEDED IN ENGLAND.

American Electrical Machinery Used Extensively in London.

The headline of a recent article, "Pittsburg Is To Light London," has directed attention to the marked demand which has set it in in England for American electrical machinery. A prominent Pittsburg firm has received an order from a London company for an electric lighting plant, which is to include three dynamos of about 3,000 horse-power each, and to cost nearly $500,000. This order, following on that of the new electric underground road in London, which is to be equipped with American machinery throughout, will doubtless have the effect of renewing the lively discussion which has been taking place both in Parliament and out of it in regard to the vogue of American apparatus in England. It has been conceded by the London technical papers that this vogue is but the natural outcome of the greater experience and skill of the American manufacturers, who have been for many years making electrical equipments that their English cousins have been chary of putting their hands to. The most influential engineering organ in London in regard to the present activity in the construction of electric railways in England, says "the large and increasing contracts for this new industry must be taken by Americans." But, in reality, this is no new phenomenon. When the telephone came out in this country it was soon exploited in England; the arc light was taken over not long after with brilliant financial success, and the incandescent lamp followed. Many of the English electrical companies to-day are based on American inventions, and whenever anything new makes a hit here it is immediately carried over the water. When the Brussels Exposition was being held it was remarked that one of the finest things in the show was a presentation in the British section by an American firm in London of a very fine exhibit of American trolley material. While England might not need it for herself, she was quite willing to trade in it.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

A REMARKABLE RUN.

A Hound Chased a Fox Four Days, Covering More Than Seventy Miles.

The most wonderful instance of the unflagging perseverance of a fox-hound that has ever been recorded occurred in Scotland, in 1808, near Dunkeld. On the 8th of June a fox was observed on the highroad, proceeding at a very slow trot, and at a short distance behind it was a fox-hound, travelling at the same gait. A countryman, by running, caught the fox without difficulty, and took it, together with the dog, to the house of a gentleman in the neighborhood, where in the course of a few hours the fox died.

It was afterwards learned that the hound belonged to the Duke of Gordon, and that he had started the fox on the morning of the King's birthday, on the top of the Monaliadh hills, which divide Badenoch from Fort Augustus. From this it appeared that the chase continued four days, and that the distance covered from the place where the fox was started to the spot where it was finally caught, without allowing for doublings and crossings, but taking it in a straight line, as the crow flies," exceeded seventy miles.—Harper's Round Table.

A SPIDER STORY.

Saved the Life of Frederick William, Grand-Uncle to the German Ruler.

In one of the splendid rooms of the palace of Potsdam one of the decorations is the figure of a large spider wrought in gold. According to the Portland Oregonian, a tradition as picturesque and interesting as that told of David of Israel and Robert Bruce attaches to this piece of work. It commemorates an incident in the life of Frederick William, the granduncle of the present Emperor of Germany. An attempt had been made to poison him in a cup of chocolate. By chance a spider fell into the cup and for this reason the beverage was given to a dog, who immediately upon taking it died. The cook was afterward hanged, and the golden spider in the Potsdam palace immortalizes the incident.

WANT ROAD LIGHTED.

Westfield People Want Freeholders to Pay the Bill.

(Special to The Daily Press)

This is the proposed county boulevard, and if Westfield's request is granted all the other towns between Elizabeth and Plainfield will be entitled to the same treatment. The law and county road committees of the Freeholders, the Director of the Board and the County Attorney held a prolonged session yesterday afternoon, but were unable to reach a decision. The probabilities, however, are that the request will be refused.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS DONE WITH LEAGUES.

Will Withdraw From Interscholastic Association.

THE LACK OF MATERIAL.

WILL CONFINE EFFORTS IN ATHLETICS TO LOCAL CONTESTS.

Formal Action Will be Taken Friday Afternoon—No Athletes of Prominence Remain in Plainfield High School—Only a Few Ever Contested in State Games—Baseball a Failure Two Years.

After a general decline in the number and ability of its athletes, the Plainfield High School Athletic Association has finally decided to withdraw from the membership of the New Jersey Intercholastic Athletic Association. While no formal action has yet been taken on the question, there is no doubt but that the association at the next meeting, which will be held Friday afternoon, will decide to withdraw.

It is a matter for general regret that the association should be forced to take such a step but the present condition of athletics in the High School seems to warrant it in the opinion of the principal workers in the association. While there are still a number of boys who are staunch believers in athletics, there are none there, at present, who would stand any show in the state interscholastic meet, nor is there sufficient material in the school to support a baseball nine or football eleven, capable of making it worth while to try for the championship of the state association.

Plainfield High School boys were the originators of the Interscholastic Association from which they now intend to withdraw. A meeting was called in the High School in this city in the fall of 1895, when the temporary organization was effected. George Proctor Smith and Frank Wilbur Cornwell, of the Plainfield High School, were prominent in the association and its formation. Smith was elected the first president and Cornwell was placed on the executive committee.

In the spring of '96, the first games were held and Plainfield was represented in the them by Carroll L. Runyon, George Proctor Smith, Frank Wilbur Cornwell, Raymond B. Carroll and Lindley M. Hillman and finished third out of seven schools.

The Plainfield High School finished third in the '97 games, with a representation of Hillman, Runyon, Smith and Harry Cuming. Plainfield was represented at the start in the baseball championship but the schedule was never completed owing to lack of funds to pay the expenses of the team.

Last spring, Runyon and Smith competed and landed Plainfield fourth out of ten schools. A baseball team opened the season but met with the same fate and for the same reason as the nine of the previous year. The High School was never entered in the football championship.

This year, the High School is practically without athletes. Runyon and Smith have gone. So have Hillman and Cuming, the bicycle riders, and Rhey T. Snodgrass, Arthur W. Lederer and Henry W. Brower have graduated.

There are still many of the boys who would gladly compete in a field day, open only to their own ranks, who would not stand any show against the best schoolboy athletes of the State. So it is proposed to go ahead with athletics, perhaps arranging a dual meet with Leal's School, but not to make any attempt to gain representation in the State meet.

The baseball team has proved an expensive adjunct to the association, for the team went to different parts of the State and the association had to bear the expenses. The outfit was also costly. This year a nine will be formed, but games will be scheduled with nearby teams and so heavy expenses, caused by lengthy trips all through Jersey, will not be incurred. There are plenty of good teams right in the neighborhood that will give the Plainfield boys all the playing they want.

A meeting of the Athletic Association will be held Friday afternoon, when the question of resigning from the State organization will be considered. As the principal workers there have declared themselves in favor of resigning, there is no doubt but that such action will be taken. The prospects of an entertainment to raise funds for the baseball nine will also be considered. The members will also discuss the advisability of holding a field day in the spring.

TWO DAYS IN BOX CAR.

TRAMPS WERE HUNGRY WHEN THEY GOT OUT AT DUNELLEN.

Aftering Satisfying Their Craving for Food They Filled up With Whiskey and Became Abusive to the Women.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Feb. 20.—Two rough looking men belonging to the tramp fraternity, visited the borough Friday and terrorized several women and children before they finally left and were last seen going down the road towards Bound Brook. They were first seen during the forenoon, when they applied at one or two houses for food, telling a pathetic story of having been shut up in a freight car for two days during the blizzard, unable to get anything to eat.

The men were as docile as could be expected, after having been half starved, and thankfully received what was given them and ate it with a relish. When the men's stomachs were filled they made a visit to one of the hotels and had several drinks which they paid for. After they were well warmed up with whiskey they set out again, but now their mood had changed, and they were ugly.

At two or three houses where they stopped and begged, they were offered food, but when it was handed to them they threw it aside with ugly words. At Mr. Laire's house the men were particularly cross, and swore at Mrs. Laire because she had no coffee to offer them. Towards night the husbands of the women came home, and when told about the two men started out in search of them. The tramps had left town, but it is probable that it would have fared badly with them if they had been caught.

SOLDIERS ARE "HUFFY."

VOLUNTEERS SAY THEY WON'T MARCH BEHIND CERTAIN OFFICERS.

They Allege That They Were Treated Harshly in Camp and They Will Not March Behind Field and Staff Officers.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth, Feb. 20—The members of Companies C and E, Third Regiment volunteers, who returned from Camp Athens, Ga., last week, where they were mustered out, have held several meetings, and almost to a man have resolved not to parade next Wednesday, when it is proposed by the citizens to have a parade and banquet for them as a welcome home and appreciation of their services. The members of both companies declare that they will not march behind the field and staff officers of their regiment, who, they say, treated them harshly while in camp.

The citizens' committee, of which Capt. D. F. Collins is chairman, has a communication signed by nearly all members and sent from Camp Athens to the effect that they would not take part in any demonstration if field officers were included.

Regimental Adjutant Robert L. Patterson, who comes under the censure of the soldiers, announces that he will parade Wednesday. This, it is feared, will create trouble that day. Capt. J. M. Drake, who has been appointed grand marshal for the parade, has also come under the general condemnation of the troops, many saying they will not march behind him, as it is claimed he has ever sought to belittle the citizen soldiers by calling them "tin soldiers," etc. He has also been censured because he appointed forty citizens on his staff, who will all have to be invited to the banquet. In view of all the scandal the parade is likely to prove a failure.

Martha Washington Council Fair.

Only One Registration Day.

There will be only one registration day in the borough prior to election and that will be Tuesday, March 7th. Election will occur Tuesday, March 14th.

BOUND BROOK IS SAFE.

LITTLE FEAR OF A FLOOD THERE AT PRESENT.

The Dangerous Conditions That Threatened the Town Have Passed Away—Ice in the Raritan is Breaking up—Jam Unlikely.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, Feb. 20.—The usual scare over the possible inundation of Bound Brook has come around again this year. It was felt outside of Bound Brook rather than in it, however. There was, at one time, some cause for worry but that has all disappeared now unless the elements enter into some new combination.

The very heavy fall of snow, followed by the steady rainfall and a high temperature, gave rise to the rumors that Bound Brook was likely to see another flood. The Raritan has been frozen over all the way to New Brunswick for several weeks but the rapidly rising water threatened to break up the ice, then twelve inches thick. An ice jam near the dam was predicted should the ice go out in a hurry.

Luckily, the rain stopped before the water reached a dangerous point and trouble was averted. Saturday afternoon the ice in the Raritan began to break up above the bridge over to South Bound Brook. Yesterday it continued to break up, but with no serious results. Today there is every likelihood that the ice in the Raritan will soon give way its entire length.

The lowlands along Bound and Green brooks and the Raritan river are flooded as they always are in the time of freshets, but there is not the slightest danger to the town as yet. The water will have to rise many feet before it will enter even the "gravel pit," as the lower section of the town is called. Such a combination as caused the big flood of three years ago is an unusual thing. A heavy rain, mild weather and a big ice jam are the only things that are feared at present.

KAY DARES 'EM TO FIGHT.

In Personal Bravery He Says His Detractors are Inexcusably Deficient.

(Special to The Daily Press)

New Brunswick, Feb. 20.—Captain Joseph Kay, of Company D, Third Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, which was mustered out last week, has announced his intention of resigning his office of captain of the National Guard. It has been an open secret for some time that Captain Kay was not in close sympathy with his men while the regiment was stationed at Athens, Ga. The captain took no part in the ceremonies attending the homecoming of Company D.

The captain will probably hand his resignation to Colonel Lee when the latter returns from Florida. He ascribes the feeling against him in the company chiefly to the men who were mustered in to complete the ranks and not to the old members. He said it had come to him while at Athens that certain men had made disparaging statements about him, but in no case had they had the manliness to make their remarks directly to him. If they had, said the captain, some of them might not have come back from Athens in such good shape. Captain Kay spoke very bitterly of the insults which he had to put up with on the part of some of his men.

ACTIVE CAMPAIGN TO SAVE SOULS BEGUN.

Evangelist Belknap Now at First M. E. Church.

THE SERVICES YESTERDAY.

HIS MANNER ON THE PLATFORM IS BRISK AND VIGOROUS.

First Meeting Held Last Evening—Large Crowd Present—Dr. Belknap Sang—Explained Methods of Campaign—Several "Seekers" Came Forward at Last of Meeting—Meetings to be Continued This Week.

The series of revival meetings at the First M. E. church began last evening under the charge of Rev. Dr. J. D. Belknap, of Syracuse, and promise to be different from anything in the line of evangelistic work seen in the city. The meetings will be continued this evening and all the week.

Every evangelist has a method of work particularly his own and Dr. Belknap is no exception. At the first glimpse he impressed his hearers as being very energetic. He opened his campaign of saving souls with vigor and in a very business like way. Music and singing promise to play an important part in it.

The meeting opened with a song service. He had dispensed with the pulpit and desk and had substituted a parlor organ which served a double purpose. Sometimes the singing was by the choir and congregation with the big organ accompaniment. He sang alone, as well, playing his own accompaniment.

Dr. Belknap is a man above the middle height, well built, and one who impresses the observer at once by his energy. His hair is very dark with a sandy mustache and short sidewhiskers. He has a powerful baritone voice that filled every crevice and cranny of the auditorium when he wished.

There was not the slightest semblance of form or ceremony in his conduct of the meeting. He was frank and out-spoken and plunged into the work without hesitation.

After the usual opening exercises in which several of his solos were interspersed, he gave a short talk from a text in Deuteronomy 32:31. "Their rock is not our rock." It was a short informal talk on the necessity of making God a part of every life. In his brisk business like manner he drew many illustrations and impressed the points on his hearers with vigor. He talked without notes, making frequent gestures. His illustrations were common little happenings in life, frequently his own experiences while in the work. He told no humorous stories.

His talk was short but vigorous and pointed out how necessary it was that every life contained God and the evils that followed the lack of it. He then asked all the professed Christians in the house to rise and nearly all present did so. He explained that his usual method was to ask the "seekers," as he termed the converts, to occupy seats together at one side of the church. He also asked that the Christians sit by them. The object of thus gathering the "seekers" together was, he said, to make a public profession of their conversion. While it was not necessary he hoped all would do so.

Then he made a strong appeal to the congregation and several came forward during the singing of a hymn and occupied the seats designated. Then, as all knelt and a short prayer service was held, the evangelist passed among the congregation speaking to those who he hoped to bring to Christ.

The service ended with more music and pray, after which the congregation was dismissed. The church was well filled.

Judgment Against Chapot & Son.

Frank Zibette and Pierre Lessler have both secured judgment again C Chapot & Sons in Justice Nash's court. Zibette sued on a protested check and secured judgment for $42.13. Lessler, who at one time was employed in Chapot's factory, sued for wages due him and got judgment for $58.15. In both cases the defendants put in no appearance.

STRAIGHT AND NARROW.

THE CHRISTIAN PATH LAID OUT FOR CHURCHGOERS.

The Union Meeting of Colored Churches Adopt Resolutions Decrying Cake Walks and Kindred Amusements.

The colored church-going people of Plainfield have become religiously enthused, and to further the movement on foot a union meeting was held at the Mt. Olive Baptist church yesterday afternoon after the Sunday-school session. The speakers were Rev. Scott Wallace, Rev. W. D. Johnson, Rev. Mr. Groves, Rev. G. W. Mitchell and Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of the church in which the meeting was held. Rev. Mr. Jackson was made chairman of the meeting and made a few stirring remarks. Rev. Mr. Wallace was introduced and spoke on the subject of "Union." He was followed by Revs. Groves, Johnson and Mitchell.

Several resolutions were read and adopted denouncing all church members who frequent public balls, liquor saloons and gambling dens, as being unfit for Christian membership.

There were also resolutions adopted denouncing all entertainments such as punching the donkey's tail, cake walks, games of chance, etc., for the benefit of churches.

Mr. Jackson stated that the reasons for offering these resolutions were that the ministers and Christian people could come out and take a stand against these practices and try if possible to lift the colored people to a higher plain morally.

The result of the meeting caused quite a stir among the colored folks, who are wondering just what line of attack will be followed. Other meetings along this same line will be held from time to time.

A PROSPECTIVE PREACHER.

A Council of Baptist Pastors to Examine George Poole.

A council of pastors of Baptist churches in the East New Jersey Baptist Association, together with delegates from those churches and a few outside invited guests, will examine George Poole, of Oak Tree, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Park Avenue Baptist church, to see whether he is a fit subject for ordination.

Young Poole is a member of the Park Avenue Baptist church, and has been called by a church in Hunterdon county to serve as their pastor after he is ordained. There are thirty-one churches in the East New Jersey Association, each one of which will be entitled to send its pastor and two delegates to the council. In addition to these, four Baptist ministers in the association, not at present acting in the capacity of pastors, will be invited to sit with them. They are Rev. Dr. Robert Lowry, of this city; Rev. Dr. Parks, of Scotch Plains; Rev. Dr. Pogson, of New York, and Rev. D. DeWolf, of Newark.

The sessions of the council will be public during their examination of the applicant, but their deliberations will be behind closed doors. Rev. Dr. Yerkes, D. D., Rev. Mr. Cubberly, of South Plainfield, and Rev. Frank Fletcher, of New Market, will be among those who form the council.

If Poole successfully passes his examinations an ordination service will follow later. A year ago the Park Avenue Baptist church licensed Poole to preach.

GOOD TIME FOR CLERKS.

Woodhull & Martin's Employes to be Entertained at Lake Hopatcong.

Woodhull & Martin, Plainfield's up-to-date dry goods firm, has arranged to give their employees a pleasant trip Wednesday next. They have chartered a Central Railroad Company coach and will take their employes to Lake Hopatcong, where they will be entertained at Mr. Woodhull's summer cottage.

A through car has been secured over the New Jersey Central, High Bridge Branch and Ogden Mine Railroads, leaving Plainfield about 7 o'clock in the morning and returning at about 9 o'clock in the evening. A string band will furnish music on the train and for dancing at the lake. Among the amusements of the day will be the ice boat sailing, skating and fishing. The most substantial feature of the occasion will be the roast turkey dinner at the cottage belonging to one of the firm.

Back to His Old Place.

Harry McCormick, formerly conductor on the street railway, and late member of Co. H, Third Regiment, has returned to his first position and now is in charge of car No. 12.

Board of Trade Meeting.

This evening the Board of Trade will hold a regular meeting, when something regarding the new silk company will be talked of.

YERKES' CHAPEL WORK.

MISSIONARY WHO HAS HAD CHARGE TALKS IN AN INTERESTING WAY.

Dr. Heinrichs Says That Excellent Results are Being Accomplished Among the Heathen in That Eastern Land.

Rev. Dr. Heinrichs, a missionary, who has been in charge of Yerkes' chapel at Tettu, India, spoke last evening at the First church under the auspices of the Temple Builders' Society of the church, who are supporting the work at this chapel. Dr. Heinrichs is an entertaining speaker and told something about the work being carried on at Yerkes' chapel. At present there about thirty workers at the chapel and several competent teachers. Recently an important railroad has been located near Tettu which runs from Madras to Calcutta, making Tettu one of the principal places along the route. He spoke of the excellent work being done among the heathen of that country and how they are being taught not only the English language, but about Christ as well.

Dr. Heinrichs said that the students are exceptionally bright and make excellent progress in their studies, a number maintaining the average of 100 in all their studies. He cited many obstacles in the way of teaching Christ, chiefly the high caste people and the many forms of religion that are to be found in that country.

During the service last evening special music was rendered by the choir. George H. Batchelor, of the Temple Builders' Society, had charge of the meeting and at the close a collection was taken for the work presented.

ROW WITH A CONSTABLE.

OFFICER ALLEGES THAT HIS LIFE WAS THREATENED.

He Tried to Levy on Goods at New Market and was Driven Away at Point of Revolver—Two Arrests Followed.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, Feb. 20—There was an interesting incident connected with the levying of a constable on some goods belonging to Mrs. Amelia E. Hayes, Saturday, which has resulted in the arrest of Col. William B. Hayes' hired man and servant girl. Constable Luther Mundy went to the Hayes place to make a levy to satisfy a judgment obtained against Mrs. Hayes. He was ordered off the place by the hired man, and alleges that the girl threatened to shoot him.

Counsellor W. S. Angleman, of Plainfield, secured a judgment against Mrs. Hayes for Julius Lehman, a New York lawyer, last Tuesday in Justice Storms' court. The claim was for attorney's fees in some law business Mr. Lehman had done for her. An execution was issued against Mrs. Hayes, and Saturday morning Mundy went out to the Hayes' farm to make the levy.

He levied upon a horse and carriage when his work was rudely interrupted by the appearance of the hired man who ordered the Constable off the place. Mundy attempted to explain to him that what he was doing was only his duty, but the fellow paid no attention to the explanation and repeated his orders. It is not known how the affair would have ended if the hired girl had not taken a hand, and running up with a revolver is said to have pointed it full at Mundy's heart and ordered him to leave.

He went, and never stopped until he got to Plainfield where he told his story to Mr. Angleman. The two came back together, and before Justice Storms a complaint was sworn out against the two, charging them with threatening an officer in the discharge of his duty, and soon afterwards they were arrested. Justice Storms held them in $600 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. Colonel Hayes, it is said, left Saturday for the West Indies.

DUAL ATHLETIC MEET.

Will Be Held at Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium Tomorrow Evening.

The date for the dual indoor athletic contest between the teams from the Plainfield and New Brunswick Y. M. C. A.'s has been changed. It was decided to postpone the contest until March, but a date was finally settled upon, and now it is announced that the contest will be held tomorrow evening at the gymnasium of the local association.

The visitor's gallery will be open and a small admission fee will be charged to cover the expenses. Special arrangements will be made for the ladies. There is every prospect that the contest will be quite an exciting one as the teams are very evenly matched. New Brunswick will have several of Rutgers College best athletes on its team.

HONORED MEMORY OF A CHRISTIAN LEADER.

Memorial Service Held For the Late Dr. French.

AN ENDEAVOR MEETING.

IT WAS IN CHARGE OF THE PLAINFIELD LOCAL UNION.

Miss Florence G. Hawkins, President of the Union, Was in Charge of the Services—High and Worthy Eulogisms for the Late Endeavorer—A Dr. French Memorial Fund Was Started.

Those who attended the memorial service held for the late Dr. J. Clement French, in the Trinity Reformed church yesterday afternoon, realized that the loyalty of the New Jersey Christian Endeavorers towards their chief was not loyalty in name only. The service was well attended, and a spirit of sadness at their loss brooded over all.

Miss Florence G. Hawkins, president of the Local Union Christian Endeavor, had charge of the meeting, and introducted the speakers who were Mrs. D. M. Runyon, ex-superintendent of the missionary department of the State; Rev. J. W. Richardson, one of the vice-presidents of the State Union, and E. E. Anthony, State Treasurer.

Upon the pulpit platform besides these four was Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., who offered prayer. He spoke tenderly of the departed president, who remained young to the last and never lost his interest in young people. He prayed that Dr. French's mantle of virtue and goodness might fall upon them.

The three speakers were those who had been personally acquainted with Dr. French. Mrs. D. M. Runyon, was the first to talk, said, "We are seldom called upon to mourn for a leader, but sooner or later the time must come when ones near and dear to us are called home. And at that time our hearts are more tender and we are more inclined to listen to the Word of God.

"For three years I served as superintendent of missions under Dr. French and that entitled me to a place on the executive committee and here I came into personal contact with the president." Mrs. Runyon spoke of three particular qualities which Dr. French had and which helped make him so successful: cordiality, a habit of being prompt in his attentions to every department of his work, and a willingness to go anywhere or do anything for the cause.

"Peace, be still. A great man has fallen this day in Israel," were the words with which Rev. Mr. Richardson began his remarks. "I cannot say that I would wish him back here," the speaker said, "Death is only the vestibule to Heaven. I cannot wish him back, he who has exchanged the cross for the crown."

Mr. Richardson spoke of the dead president's fortitude during his illness and how he had passed out of this life into the next in the same heroic way in which he had urged others to be prepared to go. He also spoke of Dr. French as a Christ like man, and said he was one of God's sublime creations on earth.

Mr. Anthony said that Dr. French had called him his friend which he considered a high honor. He spoke of his love for his president, and how much he had gained spiritually from his constant association with him. He said that Dr. French loved the Christian Endeavor cause with all his heart, and that on one occasion during his last illness, when his mind was wandering, he lay in bed and preached a sermon, the burden of which was to young people. Mr. Anthony showed that even in his illness and suffering, the Doctor had his mind on his work.

During the service L. H. Biglow, Jr., who had charge of the music, sang very sweetly the hymn, "Homeland," which a male quartette sang at the funeral service of Dr. French.

Letters were sent to all the officers in the union reminding them of the service in memory of the president, and Miss Hawkins said yesterday that she had received answers from almost all of them. At the close of the meeting a collection was taken which which will be the neuclus of a fund to be known as the Dr. French Fund," and which will be devoted to furthering some work which he was deeply interested in. The memorial service ended, but the spirit of Dr. French will brood over the Endeavorers for many a long day.

The collection amounted to $6.69. The sixteen letters which Miss Hawkins received from the State officers will be read at some public meeting of the local union. There was not time to read them yesterday, as was expected.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

HEART DISEASE

SOME FACTS REGARDING THE RAPID INCREASE OF HEART TROUBLES.

Do Not Be Alarmed, But Look For The Cause.

Heart troubles, at least among the Americans, are certainly increasing, and while this may be largely due to the excitement and worry of American business life, it is more often the result of weak stomachs, of poor digestion.

Real organic disease is incurable; but not one case in a hundred of heart trouble is organic.

The close relation between heart trouble and poor digestion is because both organs are controlled by the same great nerves, the Sympathetic and Pneumogastric

In another way, also the heart is effected by the form of poor digestion, which causes gas and fermentation from half digested food; there is a feeling of oppression and heaviness in the chest caused by pressure of the distended stomach on the heart and lungs, interfering with their action; hence arises palpitation and short breath.

Poor digestion also poisons the blood, making it thin and watery, which irritates and weakens the heart.

The most sensible treatment for heart trouble is to improve the digestion and to insure the prompt assimilation of food.

This can be done by the regular use after meals of some safe, pleasant and effective digestive preparation, like Stuarts Dyspepsia Tablets, which may be found at most drug stores and which contain valuable, harmless digestive elements in a pleasant, convenient form.

It is safe to say that the regular persistent use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at meal time will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach.

Full sized package of these tablets sold by druggists at 50 cents. Little book on stomach troubles mailed free. Address F. A. Stuart, Co., Marshall, Mich.

HANNA'S PREDICTIONS

No Extra Session and Important Bills Will All Pass.

IS REED PLUMING FOR 1900.

The Speaker Said to be Laying Wires for a Presidential Nomination—A New York Newspaper Claims to Have Discovered Some Important Schemes of the Man from Maine.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—"An extra session of Congress is not at all probable," said Mark Hanna. "I am of the opinion that we shall finish what business we have to do and get to our homes soon after March 4. The people and the country need a rest from legislation and we ought to give it to them."

"What disposition will be made of the Nicaragua canal and the Cockrell army reorganization bills?"

"Personally, I believe both should pass togethere with the subsidy bill. There is a strong disposition in Congress to pass all three. When you are in a fight it is no time to talk compromise. The Cockrell bill providing for a standing army of 62,000, and the equipment of 35,000 natives as troops is meeting with a great deal of favorable criticism. Nobody wants an army organized on the European basis. At the same time we must have one large enough to protect our national interests. I really look for the passage of an army measure before adjournment. I wont attempt to predict which one will be approved."

"Speaker Reed is said to oppose your subsidy bill."

"That is not true. A majority of both houses favor it as well as the Nicaragua canal bill. If they get a chance to vote they will pass both of them. The fate of these measures depends upon the possibility of getting a vote."

"Would their failure force an extra session?"

"I am not considering their failure. I am fairly certain there will be no necessity for an extra session. As I understand it, the president would not call Congress together again except in a case of great emergency far beyond anything now in sight. That would mean consideration of subjects which might have to be debated throughout the entire hot summer.

When Senator Platt was asked if Senator was right in predicting no extra session, he replied:

"I do not know. I doubt if he knows any more than others do about it. I only hope that he is right, though."

Reed and the President.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—The explanation of the pact between Collis P. Huntington and Speaker Thomas B. Reed, whereby the latter is to kill the Nicaragua canal project and in return Huntington is to deliver 132 delegates to Reed in the next Republican national convention, was read in the New York Journal with much interest in official circles.

That paper claims that Reed, who of late has grown incautious, declared at a recent dinner that he would kill every administration bill coming before him. He denounced expansion, the army reorganization and the campaign in the Philippines. While his views were generally known, it was the first direct threat he had made, and his familiars bruited it about until it has come to administration ears.

Usually such stories are accepted with a grain of salt, but the verification of this one lay in Reed's defeat of the effort made in the House to pay Spain the $20,000,000 guaranteed by the peace treaty

Reed seeks to defeat McKinley that he may become the color bearer of the Republican party in his stead. He seeks to prevent the accomplishment of legislation demanded by the people, because its enactment would mean the loss to him of corporate influence and resources—confidently counted upon to aid in the fruition of his plans.

The Journal says: "From now until Congress closes Reed may be expected to fight every bill which has the executive endorsement. The administration is to be harrassed at every turn with all the power and influence which, as czar of the House, he is able to muster. In this way Speaker Reed hopes to convince his friend Huntington, and through him the trusts, that their salvation lies in his (Reed's) political elevation."

Star Route Scandals Aired.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—The Senate spent most of Saturday on the postoffice appropriation bill, but failed to complete it.

Mr. Cullom's amendment, increasing the appropriation for pneumatic tube service from $225,000 to $500,000 and designed to extend the system to Chicago was tabled by a vote of 29 to 23. New York city will remain the only city having such service.

Mr. Pettigrew declared that the company operating the New York plant was receiving now an amount which was three per cent. on $5,000,000, yet the plant, he said, cost only about $200,000.

A controversy arose over the Senate amendment that star route bidders shall reside on the route where they perform service.

Mr. Money of Mississippi said this would result in leaving many star routes without service, as there would be no local bidders.

Mr. Stewart upheld the amendment, declaring that at present the country was divided up by a combination of star route speculative bidders who sublet the contracts to local bidders.

Mr. Pascoe of Florida said steps should be taken to break up this speculative bidding in star routes. He had seen the service carried on in Florida in a manner unworthy of the government as a result of the system of subletting.

The amendment was allowed to stand with a suggestion from Mr. Jones of Arkansas that the conferrees provide against sub-letting of star route bids.

Bribery Charged in Utah.

Salt Lake, Utah, Feb. 20.—When the joint assembly of the legislature met and before the vote for United States senator was taken, Representative Law, a Republican, created a sensation by saying that A. W. McCune the leading candidate and a Democrat, had agreed to pay him $1,500 for his vote.

FRANCE'S NEW PRESIDENT.

Anti-Dreyfus Mobs Meet Him With Jeers in Paris.

Paris, Feb. 20.—By a vote of 483 to 279 for his nearest competitor, Emile Loubet becomes the seventh president of the French republic. The fact that as he passed through the streets of Paris to the Palace of the Elysee he was honored by insults and derision from the public enemies of the present form of government in France, may not be a happy augury, but it is an incident of which he may be proud and not ashamed.

The new president is a genial, honest and sincere gentleman, whereas France needs above all else at this moment in her history a man of iron. It is not necessary, however, to give expression to the foreboding when the new chief magistrate has scarcely undertaken his herculean task.

Instead of driving from Versailles to the Elysee, according to custom, a landau drawn by four cavalry horses, conveyed the new president, Premier Dupuy and the governor and prefect of Versailles from the palace to the railway station, where M Loubet took a special train for Paris.

The crowds at Versailles acclaimed the new president heartily, but in Paris his reception was less friendly. Cries of "Vive l'Armee" predominated, and there was a good deal of hissing along the route from the railway station to the Elysee.

The president stopped a few moments only at the Elysee, offering his condolences to Mme. Faure, and then proceeded to the foreign office, where he held an informal reception in the chamber recently occupied by the Spanish-American peace commission. M. Loubet will continue to make the foreign office his official headquarters until he takes possession of the Elysee after the funeral of M. Faure.

Choate to Sail Wednesday.

New York, Feb. 20.—Ambassador Joseph H. Choate will sail for the court of St. James on Wednesday. His son will accompany him as secretary. Young Mr. Choate is a graduate of Harvard. He was one of the most popular men in his class. He was a bright student, and while quiet in manner, has much of his father's wit and geniality.

The Bar Association will give a reception in Mr. Choate's honor to-night. The members, nearly sixteen hundred in number, and more than twelve hundred special guests, have been invited.

The list of invited guests includes the president of the United States and his cabinet, the supreme court of the United States and all other federal judges, the British ambassador, a number of senators, the New York court of appeals, the supreme courts of New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the governor and lieutenant governor of New York, and other distinguished men from all parts of the country.

Miller's Performance in San Francisco.

San Francisco, Feb. 20.—No men ever welcomed the approaching close of a contest more heartily than the dozen riders remaining in the international six days bicycle race in Mechanics' Pavilion, when at 6 o'clock they entered the last half dozen hours of this remarkable test of endurance. Nothing but the nearness of the finish and the stimulus of a cheering crowd could have kept the men at their task. Human endurance had reached the point where reason deserts the body and total collapse was imminent.

Miller deserves his victory, and his record probably will stand for years to come. No previous contest has been contested so stubbornly from start to finish, and no similar number of men have shown such wonderful pluck and endurance. Enormous crowds remained in the pavilion throughout Saturday night and Sunday.

It was a noisy, but sympathetic and impartial crowd, urging and encouraging each rider in turn. There was plenty of enthusiasm too, when Miller, at the end of the 127th hour, rode his 2,000th mile in 2.25 3-5, unpaced. At 6.30 o'clock this morning Miller was fourteen hours and nineteen minutes ahead of his New York record.

The order at the finish was: Miller, Aaronson, Fredericks, Gimm, Hale, Nawn, Alberts, Barnaby, Pilkington, Lawson, Ashinger, Julius.

Rebels Active Around Manila.

Manila, Feb. 20.—The California Volunteers abandoned Guadalupe church at 5 a. m. yesterday, which has since been set on fire, and retired to San Pedro Macati. The rebels still hold the country in the vicinity of Guadalupe, Pasig and Patero, despite the efforts of the gunboats to dislodge them from the jungle on both sides of the river.

The heat yesterday was intense and is increasing perceptibly daily. Under present conditions it is impossible to provide shade for the troops in certain parts of the line, particularly McArthur's division. King's brigade also is exposed from San Pedro Macati to Culiculi, where it joins Ovenshine's brigade.

The Buffalo's searchlight discovering the rebels unusually active about ten o'clock in the evening signaled the flagship for permission to fire upon them, and this being granted bombarded the enemy's trenches for twenty minutes. The only effect of the fire was apparently to drive the rebels further inland.

Scouts assert to have seen General Pio del Pilar, who commanded the rebels at Pace, with his arm in a sling, directing the troops. General Montenegro, the insurgent commander-in-chief, is reported to be personally conducting the movements in front of General King's line at San Pedro Macati. The signal corps is arranging signals with the navy for future operations on the left.

With the exception of the port of Iloilo trade with Philippine ports is still blockaded.

A New Jersey Execution Thursday.

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 20.—The New Jersey court of pardons, at a special meeting at Jersey City, refused to commute the sentence of William Reid of Hoboken, who will be hanged next Thursday for the murder of Andrew Henry in a saloon about a year ago.

Dr. Depew's Condition Improving.

New York, Feb. 20.—The condition of Senator-elect Chauncey M. Depew was said last night at his home in West Fifty-fourth street to be much improved. He was able to sit up yesterday and will be out in two or three days.

BEEF PACKERS ATTEND

The Investigation of Gen. Miles' Charges Begun.

ROOSEVELT IS TO TESTIFY.

Believed Miles Will Submit Important Information to the Inquiry Board—Packers Employ Counsel and Prepare to Assist in Prosecution.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—Having completed its preliminary work, the court of inquiry appointed to investigate "allegations of the commanding general" relative to the character of the supplies furnished the army, began its formal investigation to-day.

A list of witnesses has been prepared from the reports which have been received by General Miles and transmitted by him to the court. These witnesses include practically all of the commanding officers of regiments in the country who reported on the beef, including Governor Roosevelt, who, it will be recalled, furnished to General Miles a statement of the bad character of the meat supplied to his command. Major Jesse M. Lee, Ninth infantry, who was ordered to Washington a few days ago to consult with the major general commanding; Captain Duncan of the Twenty-first infantry, and Major Jackson of the Third cavalry are in Washington and will appear as witnesses.

General Miles will be the first witness called. In anticipation of a subpoena, he has been engaged in looking over the reports and has gathered a considerable amount of evidence in addition to that contained in the reports of the officers transmitted to the court, which he will submit to-day. It is believed by General Miles that the court is likely to call upon him for an explanation of his action in not reporting the bad character of the beef to the secretary of war last summer, but he is confident that he will be able to answer this question to the satisfaction of the court.

It is said that General Miles has some important information which he will submit to the court, and which may change the present belief that he will be unable to furnish proof in support of the allegations he has made.

It was positively stated yesterday by a member of the court that the court would investigate the conduct of any officer relating in any way to the beef subject so that it is generally expected that General Miles will be asked if he authorized the publication of interviews accredited to him in which he declared that the refrigerated beef had been embalmed. General Miles has denied the interviews, and it is said by his friends that he will make his denial under oath.

The beef packers have employed expert counsel to assist in the prosecution of the major general commanding, and have submitted a list of witnesses whom they desire to have heard. General Egan has furnished the court with all the information in his possession relative to the beef matter.

Surgeon Smart Finds No Chemicals.

Colonel Robert Smart, deputy surgeon general of the army, has transmitted to Secretary Alger a report on the result of a chemical analysis of several samples of canned roast beef submitted to him by General Miles. The examination of the beef was conducted at the Army Medical Museum at the request of the general commanding the army and Colonel Smart's analysis was made with a view to determining the nutritive value of the beef in addition to ascertaining if it was treated with chemicals.

His report will declare that no chemicals were found in the beef, and that no lead from the soldering of the can had affected the meat, and that the examination failed to disclose any deleterious substance.

Colonel Smart says that the beef was nutritive and wholesome, and his report is a clear demonstration of its value as a food for soldiers. This report will be submitted to the court of inquiry for its consideration.

Carolina to Disfranchise the Negroes.

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 20.—The amendment to the constitution of North Carolina limiting suffrage, has been adopted by both branches of the general assembly. It passed the house by a vote of 81 to 27, and the Senate to-day by a vote of 41 to 6. Before becoming a part of the constitution, however, it must be submitted to a vote of the people of the state. This will be done at the next general election, which, under the new election law, will be held in August, 1901. The avowed object of the amendment is to eliminate the ignorant negro vote. To do this, educational, property and poll tax qualifications are prescribed. To prevent this disfranchising white votes a further provision is made that any person can vote whether he possesses the other qualifications or not, provided he or his ancestors could have voted on January 1, 1867.

The passage of the amendment was greeted with great applause in both houses, the galleries and lobbies being thronged with spectators. Such a scene has not been witnessed in the general assembly of this state in many years.

The Wicked Trolley in Princeton.

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 20.—Despite strenuous efforts on the part of the trustees of Princeton University a traction company incorporated at Trenton has secured a right of way from that city to Princeton within the last two days, and will build a line connecting the state capital and the university town during the coming spring.

This move by the street railroad company has been combatted by the university authorities for the last year on the ground that such connection with Princeton would be prejudicial to the interests of the university.

Barnum's Reorganized Circus.

London, Feb. 20.—The prospectus of the reorganized Barnum & Bailey's circus says that Mr. James A. Bailey, in addition to making Mr. George Starr and Mr. M. C. Caddon directors of the enterprise, intends to present each of them with at least ten thousand shares of the company as a reward for their many years of service.

The shares of the company are already selling at a substantial premium being quoted at thirty shillings on an issue value of 25 shillings.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald, I concluded to give them a trial, and I found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one affected as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." And the daughters, familiar with her case and knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received from Ripans Tabules, decided that their mother was quite right.

A new style packet containing NINE RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (NINE TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

MORE TROOPS FOR MANILA.

Three Vessels Chartered of the Pacific Coast and Three to be Fitted Here.

Havana, Feb. 20.—General Brooke issued to-day an important order concerning the reorganization of the government. All of the affairs formerly under the direction of the secretary to the Spanish governor general will be hereafter directed by the secretary of state and the secretary of the interior. The other three secretaries of General Brooke's cabinet, together with the secretary of the interior, will have the same powers as those of the autonomist secretaries under the Spanish government, and the civil governors of the provinces will exercise the same powers that Spain's civil governors did. The powers of the municipalities will be greatly extended, the care of the charities and public instruction being intrusted to them. The order will greatly minimize the duties of the governor general.

El Reconcentrado makes a savage attack upon General Brooke's cabinet, declaring among other things that it is not composed of men who served in the Cuban revolution.

Senor Mendez Capote, secretary of the interior, has discovered that the hospital for orphans and the insane asylums have spent $5,500,000, yet many of the poor and sick have died of hunger.

Secretary Capote has reported the matter to General Brooke, and it is his intention to begin criminal proceedings against the directors.

Agoncillo Making Promises.

Montreal, Feb. 20.—Agoncillo, the Filipino representative here, is assuming to speak for the future government of the Philippines. The Rev. Mr. McWilliams of the American Presbyterian Church and Principal Shaw of the Wesleyan College, acting for a number of people interested in missionary work in the Philippines, had an interview with him yesterday.

Agoncillo told them that the Filipino republic was determined to give religious freedom and toleration to all. Inquiry being made as to education in the islands, Agoncillo said that on this point the world had been greatly misled. He said that 64 per cent. of the 9,000,000 people can read, and the secretary added that they have over 2,500 schools and three universities, one of them, St. Thomas, founded in 1604. The visitors referred to the immense areas of land held by monastic orders. Agoncillo admitted that this was a serious evil, but intimated that it would be rectified.

The rights and powers of the United States were not referred to except by an incidental allusion by Dr. Shaw to President McKinley's speech in Boston. Agoncillo said the Filipinos would continue to struggle for complete independence.

OUR GOVERNMENT IN CUBA.

Gen. Brooke Extends the Authority of His Cabinet.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—While the war department continues to assert that there is no necessity for sending reinforcements to the Philippines, preparations to that end are being made by the quartermaster general of the army.

The transport Manitoba, now on her way to Havana and Cienfuegos, will be withdrawn from service in the West Indies on her return to the United States and turned over to a shipbuilding firm for conversion into a troopship capable of carrying soldiers to Manila by the Suez route. She will be fitted with bunks, a gymnasium and all modern improvements, and it is expected that she will prove very comfortable to those who make the long voyage on her.

Just as soon as they can be taken off the Cuban and Porto Rican route without embarrassing the war department in the shipment of troops to and the withdrawal from the two West Indian islands, the Minnewaska and the Mississippi will be fitted for a voyage to Manila. They can, it is asserted, be made quite as comfortable as the Manitoba. When assigned to the Philippine service, these transports will bear the names of distinguished generals of the civil war, following the example in calling the Mohawk, the Mobile and the Massachusetts in honor of Generals Grant, Sherman and Sheridan. Two of these vessels will be renamed Thomas and Logan.

In addition to these preparations, the quartermaster general has chartered three steamships on the Pacific coast for service as transports between San Francisco and Manila. They are the Portland, the Conemaugh and the Roanoke. The charter of the Valencia having expired, she was rechartered.

This vessel is also to be used in the Pacific service. Three regiments of regiments of regular infantry, the Sixth, Ninth and Twenty-fourth, are under provisional orders to go to Manila, and will probably proceed from San Francisco. Other regiments to reinforce General Otis will not be sent until the army reorganization bill becomes a law.

Civil Governor Mora is drafting an order compelling restaurants, hotels and cafes to treat white and colored persons alike. This matter is causing trouble, colored men entering cafes merely for the purpose of starting rows. King, Hanson & Holman, proprietors of the Washington Hotel, have been indicted for refusing a third time to serve colored guests. They were released and on $50 bail each. Cubans are disgusted at Mora's attitude in this matter, and clashes between the whites and blacks are imminent.

If General Brooke's decree is enforced over five hundred houses seized by the Spanish government for the collection of unjust taxes will be returned to their owners. General Brooke has granted to the orphans of Cuban patriots the use of the handsome house of the old Spanish Civil Guards.

Another Leather Trust.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 20.—A member of a firm of Chicago attorneys is here attempting to secure options on upper leather tanneries. He says that he has obtained enough concerns to make the project a success. The name of the new organization will be the American Hide and Leather Company, and it will have $60,000,000 capital, or such other sum as will be found necessary to acquire the property. One-half is to be seven per cent. non-cumulative preferred stock and one-half common.

This company has no connection with the United States Leather Company, which manufactures only sole leather.

WOMEN SCORE ROBERTS

Susan B. Anthony Was Against The Resolutions.

UTAH SISTERS FOR PEACE.

The National Council of Women and the Congress of Mothers Do Not Want a Polygamist in Congress—Miss Susan Says it is Outside Our "Province."

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—The National Council of Women, the representative body of twenty-seven of the best known women's organizations in the United States, spent almost all of Saturday in discussing resolutions aimed at Congressman-elect Roberts of Utah, and six of the Utah delegates, some of them plural wives of leaders in the Mormon church, took part in the debate. There were two resolutions reported to the council by the committee on resolutions. The majority report, which was adopted, was as follows:

"Whereas, The National Council of Women of the United States stands for the highest ideals of domestic and civic virtue, as well as for the observance of law in all its departments, both state and national, therefore,

"Resolved, That no person should be allowed to hold a place in any law-making body of the nation who is not a law abiding citizen."

This report was signed by the more conservative element in the committee. The minority report was:

"Whereas, The passage of the 'Edmunds bill' so-called, established the law of morganic marriage as binding upon all citizens of the United States, therefore.

"Resolved, That no person shall be allowed to hold a place in any law-making body of the nation who is not in this and in all other matters a law abiding citizen."

The reference to the Edmunds bill was particularly displeasing to the Utah delegation. The members of that delegation, including the wife of the president of the Mormon church, were opposed to any resolution, even an inferential one, directed against Roberts. Realizing, however, that some such action would be taken, they were prepared to accept the majority report.

At first an effort was made to effect a compromise by adopting parts of both reports, but after an hour's debate this failed. Miss Susan B. Anthony was opposed to the adoption of either report. She said such matters were outside the province of the council.

From the Utah delegation Mrs. Susie Young Gates, Mrs. Minnie J. Snow, Mrs. Emmeline B. Wells, Mrs. Ann M. Cannon, and Mrs. Martha H. Tingey, vigorously opposed the minority report. Its adoption was as strongly urged by Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, vice president at large of the council, Mrs. Lillian M. Stevens, president of the W. C. T. U., and Mrs. Elizabeth B. Grannis of New York.

The general trend of the argument of the Utah delegation was that action upon the Roberts case was entirely unnecessary and that he should not be singled out for criticism.

A statement from President Snow of the Mormon church, alleging that polygamy had ceased to be practiced, was read.

Finally the minority report was defeated by a majority of two to one. The majority report was then adopted without amendment.

Mothers Against Alger, Also Roberts.

The National Congress of Mothers refused to go on record as indorsing the conduct of the war with Spain. A resolution to that effect, reported by the committee on resolutions, met with such determined opposition that it was stricken out.

There was no objection to indorsing President McKinley and the navy, but the delegates promptly turned down the resolution as a whole, because it carried with it approval of the war department.

A conservative delegate suggested that as there was now no war that particular resolution might be omitted. Her suggestion was adopted.

The congress added its unanimous disapproval of the seating of Representative-elect Roberts to the many protests already made. The resolution as adopted was:

"Whereas, The election of a polygamist to Congress threatens the sacred institution of monogamous marriage; that the third National Congress of Mothers requests the Congress of the United States to repudiate the result of the November election in Utah, either by refusing to allow the name of Bigham H. Roberts of Utah to be placed upon its roll or by expelling him from his seat."

The resolution was framed by Mrs. E. H. Parsons, a delegate from the Mothers' Club of Utah, and was prefaced with the statement that man is largely what his home makes him.

Last State Reception of the Season.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—The last state reception of the season at the White House will be given by the president and Mrs. McKinley on the evening of February 22, when the general public is invited to be present without special card announcement.

This reception was to have been held on Monday evening last, but was indefinitely postponed on account of the storm.

Up to the present time during President McKinley's administration, no evening reception to the general public has been held. A reception of this kind has been announced as a part of the regular social programme at the White House for the last two years, but has been prevented for some reason in each case.

Pennsylvania's Official Poultry Book.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 20.—Judge McPherson has handed down an opinion in which he decides that Clarence M. Busch, former state printer, has no legal claim to be paid $56,662.85 for printing 15,000 copies of a bulletin on "Diseases and Enemies of Poultry."

At the last session of the legislature a resolution was passed authorizing the reprinting of this bulletin, which originally cost less than $500. It was a simple pamphlet, but when Busch got through with it the pamphlet was a richly illustrated volume of almost a thousand pages, for which he put in the big claim that was refused by the commonwealth.

TOLEDO'S OUTSPOKEN MAYOR.

He Appeals to the People and Stands on His Record.

Toledo, Feb. 20.—Mayor Jones has issued the following to the people of Toledo:

"I am a Lincoln Republican. I believe in the people as he believed in them, and trust them as he trusted them. I have been the mayor for all the people, high and low, rich and poor, black and white, employed and unemployed. My experience in the office has served to strengthen every conviction to which I have ever given expression regarding the brotherhood of all men. I believe that we are in the beginning of a time when, through the administration of live as law, we are to realize in a larger degree the kind of liberty that Lincoln believed in and died for.

"I believe that the wealth created by the people should be used for the people's benefit. The streets are the common property of all the people. Every wire, every pole, every conduit, every rail, everything permanently in or on the streets should be for the common benefit of all of the people, not for the private benefit of a few.

"The contract for lighting the streets of Toledo expires with this year. The city should at once take steps to own and operate its own lighting plant. We are now paying $90 each for about eight hundred arc lights; the city can furnish them for $60, thus saving about $25,000 a year.

"I believe in the shorter work day as the most practicable step now possible looking to the solution of the problem of problems—the problem of the unemployed. The eight-hour day should at once be adopted and rigidly adhered to on all public work. It is wiser, more humane and cheaper to provide a plan to let men work and add to our wealth than to keep them in idleness either as tramps, beggars or dependents on our overworked charities.

"It is reported that I have said I would not be a candidate for the Republican nomination. This is not true. I never said anything that could be construed to be an intimation of the kind. I am a candidate, and ask that all who believe in the principles that I have here outlined, and who trust the justice of the golden rule and the Declaration of Independence, to assist me with their support for the nomination."

Ian Maclaren Urges Expansion.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 20.—Dr. John Watson (Ian Maclaren) arrived Saturday on his American tour. In an interview he said:

"We Englishmen welcome any share your nation may take in civilizing and governing Cuba or the Philippines. We believe that the Anglo-Saxon race has a mission to establish peace, order and civilization.

"Your new policy will make for commerce; it will make for peace. I make no doubt myself that had any European power or any combination of powers interfered in your Spanish war, we would have taken a share in the game.

"Had our two navies united I believe no other nations would have had any show. Had France gone to war with England over the Fashoda affair, I think France would not have lasted long enough for a naval battle.

"Two great differences your new policy will make will be that you must maintain a large standing army and you must train up a governing class for your new possessions. Unless your political system is changed your administration will end in corruption and incapacity. If you give the governing of the Philippines over into the hands of political jobbers it will be a terrible disaster."

Added to the N. Y. Central System.

Elmira, N. Y., Feb. 20.—After negotiations which extended over some five years or more the Fall Brook Railroad has passed from the hands of the Magee family into those of the Vanderbilts and becomes a part of the New York Central system. The transfer includes all the mines owned by the company, and it is said on the best of authority that the inventoried value of the transferred property was $15,000,000. This sum, however, is not the one to be paid for the Magee and other allied interests in the Fall Brook Company. The purchasers do not agree to pay to them any principal sum for their valuable property, but do agree to give them bonds, the principal amount of which is $5,000,000. These bonds are to run for 999 years, and will draw 2½ per cent. annual interest, and this interest is all that will be paid to the Magee and allied interests.

The payment of the stipulated annual interest on the bonds for 999 years is, it is said, amply guaranteed by the purchasing parties, the guarantee being made a permanent and fixed lien on the railroad property more than ample for the purpose. An outright sale of the road was impossible, as the Magee estate was entailed for three generations by John Magee, grandfather of the present head of the road.

Latest from Klondike.

Tacoma, Feb. 20.—Advices from the Klondike region state that Dawson's first dog team road is in successful operation. It runs from Dawson to the forks of Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, and thence up Bonanza, a total distance of nearly twenty miles.

Thirty thousand dollars was expended in building the road and placing bridges over Bonanza creek. The tram company charges one cent a pound for all freight passing over the road. Ten dogs pull a sled load of two thousand pounds.

Commissioner Ogilvie recently required saloons at Dawson, the Forks and Gold Hill to take out two licenses at $2,500 each. They readily paid it, some having feared that all saloons would be closed.

M. Marks, an Australian expert, direct from Dawson, estimates the output of the Klondike at $19,000,000 this year. His estimates are: Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, $5,000,000; Big and Little Bonanza, gold and French creeks $5,000,000; Dominion, $4,000,000; Hunker and Quartz creeks, $5,000,000

Bulgaria's Signal, "Am Sinking."

Bremen, Feb. 20.—The steamer Koordistan, from Savannah, January 26 for this port, arrived yesterday. She reports that she spoke the Hamburg-American line steamer Bulgaria on February 5, in latitude 41 degrees north, longitude 44 degrees. The Weehawken and another big steamer were standing by. The Bulgaria signaled "Want immediate assistance. Am sinking." But no assistance was possible owing to the bad weather.

RICHES IN ALASKA.

OUR NORTHERN TERRITORY FURNISHES ABUNDANCE OF MINING.

Gold in Large Quantities Can be Found, and the Natural Resources Are Such That a Few Years' Labor Would Make One Rich Indeed.

The sons of men seem to have periodical attacks of gold fever. Ever since the days of the 'Forty-niners it has needed but a little breath of excitement to start thousands upon thousands of eager gold-seekers over hill and vale, mountain, meadow and morass in search of this yellow treasure.

Just now Alaska is the objective point, and the immigration bids fair to equal the wonderful exodus of Pike's Peak days. The men who make up these exploring parties are for the most part intelligent and well-conducted, many of them extremely well educated, some of them being accomplished scientists and high-grade civil engineers. They go with capital, machinery, and a full understanding of the requirements of this tremendous undertaking.

Juneau is what might be called the port of entry to the country of the Yukon. It is about a thousand miles from Tacoma, and is the outfitting station for many of the smaller parties. Aside from the amazing interest in mining—an interest which promises to equal, if not to surpass, any of the recent years—the surveys and topographical branch of the undertaking will be of great advantage to the country.

It seems like a fairy tale to declare that there are thousands upon thousands of absolutely unexplored acres of territory in this country, portions of which are among the most fertile spots in the world. There are livings to be had for the asking, and wealth untold for people who are willing to break away from the masses and surrender for a little time the gregarious instincts that lead to what is little better than herding.

While Alaska has long, cold and trying winters, its natural resources are such that, as soon as facilities for transportation are established, it will furnish not only excellent, but luxurious homes for many persons. Lumber, fish, minerals and many forms of vegetation are there in abundance, and only need the careful management of interested and intelligent commercial workers. The Treadwell and Mexico mines are in the immediate vicinity of Juneau, and there is located a flourishing settlement of six or seven hundred persons. Circle City, on the Yukon, has about fifteen hundred people, and is growing into a place of a good deal of importance. It is in the very heart of a mining country, and offers great inducements to men wth energy and even a small capital.

The mining interests of Alaska have received far less attention than they should have done. Seven or eight years ago, some mining engineers, backed by abundant capital, made explorations in that country, and some of the best mines were located and claims were entered for them; also for large tracts of land where it was supposed metals might be found.

It was a "still hunt" for property that at some future day means enormous wealth to the possessors. Everything was kept quiet, and all the work was done without ado or publicity. When these men had finished their work they quietly subsided, to be heard of no more until such time as they chose to assert their claims to this far-distant territory.

Alaska covers a great deal of ground, and it is not yet too late to take up claims there that will yield a rich harvest at no distant day.

PITH AND POINT.

The Turkish language is said by scholars to be the softest and most musical language of modern times, better being adapted to the purposes of musical notations and recitative than even the Italian.

He who opposes his own judgment against the consent of the times ought to be backed with unanswerable truths; he that hath truth on his side is a fool as well as a coward if he is afraid to own it because of the currency or multitude of other men's opinions.

Every one has an ideal of life higher than his actual life reaches. We should all like to be better, nobler, more just and generous and disinterested than we are. Through self discipline alone can we climb this ladder and approach this ideal.

At the bottom of every leaf stem is a cradle, and in it is an infant germ; and the winds will rock it, and the birds will sing to it all summer long; and the next season it will unfold. So God is working for you, and carrying forward to the perfect development all the processes of your lives.

A French savant predicts by the year 2,000 a method will be discovered for utilizing the sun's heat and for tapping the central heat of the globe. Under the reign of chemistry, we are told that the earth will become a vast pleasure garden, and the human race will live in peace and plenty.

There is so little wood in Spain that the small boy knows nothing of the joys of whittling, and develops no ambition to become a carpenter. The result is that the carpenters are few, and their shops not well provided with modern tools and machinery.

It is said that the longest artificial water course in the world is the Bengal Canal, in India, which is nine hundred miles long. The next longest is the Erie Canal, which is three hundred and sixty-three miles long; each cost nearly ten million dollars.

Mayor Wilson's Message.

Mayor Wilson's annual message to the Borough Council, presented Friday night and published complete in Saturday's Press, is typical of its author in that it is a straightforward business document, in which fanciful theories do not find a place.

The Mayor devotes his message to reviewing the affairs of the municipal government, of which he is the chief executive, almost exclusively. He takes occasion to make only one suggestion, and that is in reference to improving the condition of Somerset street in a manner that will permit the street funds from being constantly expended to put it in half-way good condition.

As the last message that the Mayor will present before his term of office expires it is quite proper that he should indulge in a little discussion as to the views he has taken in his official position. He does this with a nicety of words and an abundance of common sense that is admirable. The keynote of the Mayor's successful administration is found in this sentence in his message: "In short that what is desirable in the management of the public business is just what is needed to make private business successful, and I have acted upon that theory."

That the Mayor has made practical use of this idea is found in the fact that never before has the business of North Plainfield borough been on such a sound basis as it is today. Whether Mr. Wilson is renominated and re elected, or whether he is succeeded by someone else, it is to be hoped that the next Mayor will follow out this same application in handling affairs of the municipality. That it is the right and proper view of conception of duty on the part of the Mayor cannot be gainsaid.

Elevate the Standard.

The Hackensack Republican, in common with the rest of newspapers of New Jersey, holds a poor opinion of the State's justice of the peace system. The Republican says:

Some justices of the peace in this State have organized for the purpose of obtaining increased jurisdiction for small cause courts, and to secure better compensation for their services. One of the arguments in favor of the movement is that by enlarging the powers of justices for the adjudication of simple cases a considerable sum would be saved to the taxpayers by lessening the business of the court of oyer and terminer. There may be something in this, but many litigants would pay a considerable sum out of their own pockets to have their cases tried in the higher court rather than let them go before some justices of the peace. One of the most important elements in a movement r garding the justice courts should be that of elevating the standard of the men who are to preside over these vehicles for deciding questions that may come before them. Until this is done the powers of the justices should not be enlarged. There are a few intelligent justices. There are more who don't know enough about law to distinguish between a piece of Coke and a Blackstone.

TOM JOHNSON AND THE SINGLE TAX.

Tom Johnson, who before he has reached his forty-fifth year has been known as a steel mill and street railway magnate and as a member of congress for two terms, has announced his early retirement from business. Mr. Johnson was a close friend of Henry George and withdraws from active business pursuits to propagate his single tax views.

Under the Act of Congress of March 30th last permitting the filing of claims for indemnity on account of the Maine disaster there have already been presented 325 claims, aggregating $123,342. This leads the Philadelphia Record to say: "The list will be largely increased when the claim agents shall have exhausted the possibilities of the permissive statute. These claims are entirely apart from the pension account which must be kept with the ninety-four survivors and the relatives of the 261 victims of the catastrophe. When all shall have been settled the sinking of the Maine may well be reckoned among the most costly disasters in the world's naval history."

The terms of the eight State Senators expire with the present session. They are Stanger, of Gloucester; Johnson, of Camden; Miller, of Salem; Frances, of Monmouth; Reed, of Somerset; Cross, of Union; Ketcham, of Essex, Republicans, and Barber, of Warren, Democrat. Of these it may be considered as pretty certain that Miller, Johnson, Frances, Reed, Cross and Barber will be renominated, and except Frances, of Monmouth, and Miller, of Salem, the chances are that the Senators enumerated will succeed themselves.

Congress will have to hustle in the next ten working days before adjournment March 4th to get through with urgent public business. If the Constitution was not so strict we would suggest that they parcel out part of the work to the New Jersey Legislature. The latter body seems sorely perplexed for somthing to do, and we have no doubt but that the Assemblymen and Senators would gladly welcome a little variation it it was possible to secure such a thing.

Wednesday will be observed as Washington's birthday. Of all the natal days of national heroes there is none so closely associated with New Jersey, and particularly of the section of which Plainfield is a part, as that commemorating the birth of the illustrous "Father of His Country." Many of the most stirring scenes of Washington's life were enacted in this vicinity.

An Indiana man has sued a newspaper for several thousand dollars for erroneously stating that he had killed his son. There are contradictions in every phase of life. We have seen people almost willing to kill their sons to get their names in the paper.

The path of the private trolley capitalists between Plainfield and Elizabeth is not exactly strewn with roses, but nevertheless they are not finding many thorns to block their way or cause them undue anxiety.

A Tennessee Congressman is about to start a semi-weekly newspaper in his home town. Can the Congressional Record possess a waste basket, or has the Congressman money which he isn't particular how he spends?

A visit to North Plainfield and a little study of the political primer "over the brook" will show that when it comes to politics the borough is strictly up-to-date.

A walk about the city just now indicates that Park avenue is not the only street in town that needs a sewer to carry off the surface water. There are others.

There is only a little over a week for the subscription contest of The Daily Press to continue. Thus far the results have been extremely gratifying.

It is not necessarily true that England will take all that Mr. Choate says with a grain of salt because he is famed for telling stories.

The average saving banks deposits in New Jersey are $50,000,000 annually. That is a record to be proud of.

It will be a merciful act of Providence if the heavy accumulation of snow is melted in a moderate way.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Our collection laws in New Jersey are not strict, some of them very loose, but so many concerns take undue advantage of the chattel mortgage to squeeze the innocent and unfortunate and triple feather their own nests that the time is ripe for legislative action that will nip this practice in the bud. It can work no hardship on either dealer or creditor, but will give at least a chance of redemption to the unfortunate and check those agency hogs from satisfying their avarice and help many a poor man or woman from parting with things upon which their hard-earned money has almost paid.—Hackensack Record.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

An interesting incident is related which explains how a report was recently circulated that Engineer Stephen Brown, of the Central Railroad, who lives at Dunellen, was killed near Cranford. The report was given out by Chief Engineer Beck, of the company, and he did so owing to the fact that Engineer Brown was assigned to engine No. 320, which was in charge of Engineer Phillip Brown, of Phillipsburg, the man who was killed. In some way Stephen Brown did not get No. 320, but instead secured another engine. It so happened that Stephen Brown was directly back of the train in charge of Engineer Phillip Brown, both trains westbound It was thought for a certainty for several days that Stephen Brown was killed and many of his fellow-engineers on the road supposed that he was buried. As one by one learned that it was not him he was kept busy shaking hands with his fellows who expressed the greatest joy that he was not killed. Most of the engineers driving coal trains have a horror for No. 320 on account of some peculiar arrangement which makes it obligatory for an engineer to get under the engine several times while making a long trip, and if possible the engineers try to get out of running that particular engine.

Mrs. L. E. Linderman, of West Front street, who has been seriously ill, has about recovered.

Percy Robert Colwell, of Warwick, N. Y., went to Ramseys today after spending a few days with A. A. Cannon, of Craig place.

Mrs. Freeman, of Islin, and Mrs. Platt, of Newark, have been guests for a few days at the home of Robert Clark, Jr., of Jackson avenue.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetising. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about ¼ as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink, 15 and 25c.

Dunellen, Feb. 20—Rev. Dr. E. S. Jamison, of the Methodist church, preached to a large congregation last night composed chiefly of the members of the Jr. O. U. A. M. and their wives and sweethearts. The subject of the sermon, which was of a patriotic order, was "Washington, his character and example."

Mrs. Enoch Giles, with whom Corporal John Fisher boards, entertained a number of friends Saturday night in his honor. A pleasant evening was passed with games and the affair closed with refreshments. It is said that Corporal Fisher may not return to his position with the Central Railroad, but will enter another line of work.

Admission is by invitation and a very enjoyable evening is promised all who attend and help celebrate Twilight's fifth anniversary.

The rains, together with the heavy snow, has filled the gutters through town and pedestrians are forced to go a block out of their way sometimes before being able to reach the other side of the street.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another great discovery has been made, and that, too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night, and with two bottles has been absolutely cured Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

Regular size 50c. and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Feb. 20—Most of the talk in town just now is of the proposed new primary school, plans for which the Board of Education have under consideration. The plans are for a building of the Colonial style, to be built of brick and contain 12 class rooms, besides two rooms for the teachers, and a large library. On the second floor will be an assembly room to seat 600 people, and this is to be used as a place in which to hold school meetings and commencement exercises. The building will contain all the improvements to be found in a first class school building.

The Republicans of Westfield will place in nomination Martin Welles for Township Committeeman, Fred C. Decker for overseer of the poor, and C. D. Reese for township clerk. The Democrats have not as yet named anyone for committeeman, but they will nominate Robt. Woodruff for overseer of the poor, and for township clerk they have two candidates, Irving I. Ross, the present clerk, and Chas. Clark, but it is thought the former will get the nomination.

Overcharging by Hackman.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The experience of your correspondent "X." in being charged 50c. by a hackman Thursday night, had its counterpart on West Seventh street the same evening. A lady reaching the station after dark, took a hack home. The driver demanded 50c. "because the roads were bad." She handed him the regular fare, and asked his number, saying she would see that he had an additional quarter in the morning. He said he had no number as he was "just driving for a friend." He followed her to the door, and she asked the gentleman of the house to give him another quarter. Misunderstanding her the gentleman gave the boy 50c. which he took, and then hurried away, thus getting 75c. for one fare. Is it a trick to send out boys without numbers to make extra demands on stormy nights?

This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion build up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, druggist. Guaranteed.

A LITTLE ROMANCE.

Working hours were over in the Great White Canon. Mary Verner pulled down the little window of the Post Office of which she was the mistress, swept the contents of the narrow counter into a drawer, which she locked; then, pinning a broad-leaved hat above the brown curls that clustered about her brow, she passed out of her log cabin into the fresh, sweet evening air.

As she reached the low fence which ran before her house, a hurried footstep sounded through the gathering gloom, and a man's voice said, "Is that you, Mary, my girl? You loook little more than a ghost under the shadow of those bushes."

The girl—young and slender and graceful as a fawn—ran out into the lonely road.

"You've kept your promise dearest, and come to see me," she cried, as she threw herself into the arms of her lover.

Reuben Halse kissed the red lips, so frankly offered him, before he spoke.

"Yes, Mary, I've kept my promise; but I've come to say—Good-bye!"

"'Good-bye — good-bye'? You're going away? You're going to leave me—your sweetheart—your wife that is to be?" She clasped her arms closely about him, and trembled like a leaf.

"My little girl, don't cry—don't grieve. You've been my sweetheart, faithful and true; but we can never marry."

The strong man's voice broke and died into silence.

"Go on; tell me the worst," sobbed the girl in his arms.

"Listen, dear. You know that lately things have gone wrong with me. The bit of money I'd saved for our wedding in the Fall was stolen, and then the cabin I'd built for you, down by the Blue Pools, was burned. Still, there was the farm stock, and your little purse of savings left, but the drought his killed the stock, and—Oh, Mary, how can I tell you?"

Mary drew apart from her lover, and steadied her trembling form against the garden fence.

"Some one has robbed you of the money I gave you. Oh, my poor boy—" She stretched forth her pitying hands toward the man before her, who only bowed his head, and shuffled his feet in the thick white dust.

"Tell me, Reuben; tell me how it happened. All! surely you are not thinking I shall blame you for such a misfortune?" and once more she crept to his side.

But Reuben thrust her from him.

"'Twas no misfortune; twas a crime. Your little savings, those few coins you've starved and scraped to keep lie there." He pointed with his lean brown hand down the Canon, to where, amid a dense mass of foliage, a few lights twinkled.

Mary staggered.

"Down there? At Ffolliott's"

"Aye, lass—at Ffolliott's! I lost it all at faro last night."

For a moment no sound but the evening breeze whispering among the creepers and the bushes, and the harsh notes of a night bird broke the silence. Then a woman's voice, tender and low, and full of tears, murmured, "Rube, dear Rube, I forgive you."

Reuben Halse flung his arms above his head and gave a bitter cry. "Don't, Mary, don't! I'd rather you'd strike me!"

The stars twinkled their diamond eyes, on the man and girl as they said farewell. For Reuben had settled to leave the canon that night.

One kiss on her brow, then a clatter of galloping hoofs, and Mary Verner was free to go back to her log cabin and sob out her heart till the dawn.

Reuben Halse had left the Great White Canon for a week. Mary's cheeks, never very full of color, had grown pale and heavy, and blue lines beneath her large eyes told of sleepless nights and many tears.

Yet, Paul Harding—"Beauty" Paul, as he was called in the canon, thought he had never seen Mary look so lovely, as he clattered up to the door of the post office one morning and asked the young postmistress if there was anything for him.

He watched, with his handsome dark eyes, her small white fingers go through the letters lying on the counter before her.

But she finally shook her head. "Nothing for you to-day."

Yet Paul seemed loath to go. He pulled his long, tawny mustache, jingled his spurred boots upon the floor, and continued to stare through the pigeon-hole window at the girl as she flitted about her usual business.

"Anything I can do for you?" she asked him, presently.

"No," Paul said, slowly, taking in every detail of the girl's pretty figure, clad in a cotton frock of gentian blue. "But might I speak to you one minute—privately?"

"You can say what you've got to say where you are."

He stared silently, first at his boots, and as his eyes wandered up they lit on the snowy shelves of bright and simple utensils and shining saucepans which lined the walls.

"How different you keep your place from what a man's shanty is."—St. Paul's.

"Are you much rushed now, Foozer?" "Rushed? If I were to die tonight my employer would expect me to come own town to-morrow and work until the hour set for the funeral."—Cleveland Record.

QUEER NOTIONS OF BEAUTY.

They Don't Always Agree with Ours But Each Is Quite the Thing at Home.

It is curious to note the queer idea of beauty which characterize different nations. In Fiji the native women paint their faces with red and white stripes as an ornament. The women of Greenland cover their faces with blue and yellow, while Arabian beauties stain their lips blue and their fingers and toes red.

The pearly teeth of the poet and novelist would not be valued by some of the Eastern and Polynesian nations. In Macassar the women paint their teeth red and yellow, in such a way that a red tooth follows a yellow one, and alternately. The teeth of the Tonquinese are as black as art can make them. The dyeing occupies three or four days, and is done to both boys and girls when they are about twelve years of age.

During the whole operation they never take any nourishment, for fear of being poisoned by the pigment if they swallowed what required mastication. Every person, high and low, rich and poor, is obliged to undergo this somewhat objectionable operation, as it is alleged that it would be a disgrace to human nature to have teeth white like those of dogs or elephants.

In Japan fashion compels married women to blacken their teeth, not, however, as an ornament, but to make them more ugly and save them from temptation.

The Sunda Islanders sometimes blacken all the teeth but two with burned cocoanut, covering the two excepted teeth with thin plates of gold or silver. The same tribe is in the habit of employing their old women to dress up the teeth of the youths and maidens at wooing times. The girls' teeth are filed to a fine, smooth edge, and the body of the teeth made into a cave, or they will notch the edge of the teeth like a fine saw as an additional means of beautifying.

This mutilation of the teeth is observed by many of the savage or uncivilized races in various parts of the world. In the Malay Archipelago natives file their teeth into points like those of a saw, or pierce them with holes into which they insert studs. The Macassar people sometimes put out two front teeth in order to surely their place with teeth of pure gold or silver. Some African tribes knock out their front teeth on the ground that they do not wish to look like beasts. On the Upper Nile four front teeth are always knocked out, but further south only the two upper incisors are dispensed with.

In some parts of the world the shape of the head is of great importance. Many American Indians admire a head so extremely flattened as to appear to us idiotic. The natives of the northwest compress the head into a pointed cone, while the inhabitants of Arakham admire a broad, smooth forehead, and in order to produce it they fasten a plate of lead on the heads of the new born children.

In some countries the feminine headgear is carried to singular extravagance. The Chinese lady carries on her head the figure of a bird, which is composed of copper or gold, according to the quality of the owner. The Mauritius women carry on their heads a fan board, about a foot long and six inches broad. With this they cover their hair and seal it with wax.

With the Tahitians to be called "long nose" is considered an insult, and they compress the noses and foreheads of their children for the sake of beauty. The same custom is prevalent among the Malays and the natives of Brazil. In some parts of the world the nose is pierced, rings, sticks, feathers and other ornaments being inserted in the holes.

The ancient Egyptians and Assyrians used paint to make their eyebrows seem wider; the Arabians of the present day go a step further in the use of paint. They endeavor to produce the impression that their eyebrows grow down to the middle of the nose and meet there. Persian women paint a black line around their eyes and ornament their faces with a variety of figures. The Indians of Paraguay eradicate their eyebrows and eyelashes, saying that they do not wish to look like horses.

In China and neighboring countries the finger nails are allowed to grow to a monstrous length as a symbol of nobility, ladies wearing silver cases to protect them. In some parts of Africa yellow or purple nails are considered fashionable, while the Turkish women tinge their nails with a blue color.

How to Manage an Allowance.

Girls, when they are first given an allowance, seldom know how to spend it. They have a large wardrobe to fill, and until every available spot in the room is covered with hat boxes, boots and shoes, and other varieties of feminine apparel, they do not consider the allowance well spent.

Now, when you first begin shopping for yourself, there are several things that, if you wish to have a well stocked wardrobe, you must guard against, and one of the chief things is buying things because they are pretty, not because you want them so much. This you do not discover until you get home and then you wonder what on earth induced you to throw away so much money on an article you never knew when you would wear, or even if it would suit you.

That is the first. The next is buying a dress without first making up your mind what you want it for, when it is to be worn, if it is a dress that will be of use to you after a few wearings, instead of a trailing rag; and, again, if it will not clash with everything else in your wardrobe

JOYLESS JOKER IN LONDON.

American Complains That City Knocks Out His Frolicsome Humor.

An American in London asks a question: "I wish you would tell me what is gone with the frolicsome humor I brought here from my native land. You are real white men in this city, but you are powerful sad, and that tells on the stranger till he feels he might as well be an owl Out at Colorado Springs I was the most buoyant man in the country. Here I don't buoy worth a cent. My friends called me Laughing Willie. I've got no more laugh in me now than a mummy. The first stroke of business I did here I was so pleased with it that I wanted to tell the other man the story of the tin-roofed cock-tail. You should have seen his face. He said he didn't listen to stories in business hours. I went to a club, a regular palace, a magnificent hall, full of busts, and I said, "I must tell somebody that story or die." There was an old gentleman on a settee, and I said, 'Have you ever heard the story of the tin-roofed cock-tail?' He looked fierce. 'Am I right in supposing that a cock-tail is a drink?' 'You are, old man,' I said, 'you bet every dollar on it.' And I had just started a real live laugh when he spoiled everything with, 'Then you mustn't talk about drinks in this hall.' Snakes and Injuns! How can I ever laugh again? I won't tell you the story of the tin-roofed cocktail, for you'd never put it in. Certainly not. This column, like the hall of the Mausoleum, is no place for drinks."

But my correspondent's grievance is real enough. There is a kill-joy solemnity in our fine island decorum. We cannot even discuss holiday recreations without an awful sense of responsibility.—Illustrated London News.

It Had Just Happened.

The other night—or, rather, it was very early in the morning—the telephone in a certain newspaper office rang loud and long. Most of the workers had gone home for the forty winks that newspaper people contrive to put in between times, but there was one man on the "dog watch"—that is, you know, he was the one person detailed to stay around the office and be ready for anything from a murder to a fire. At that hour of the day—about, well, somewhere around 3 A. M.—when a telephone in a newspaper office rings it generally means a police story that is worth looking up, so the "dog watch" hastened to answer the summons.

"Hello!" said a voice; "is it too late to get something into to-morrow morning's paper?"

"Not if it's important," was the reply.

"Oh, it is," assuringly.

The reporter rushed for a pad of paper and a pencil, screwed his ear up to the telephone again and said:

"All right; fire away, there!"

Then the voice was heard again, tremulous with emotion:

"The engagement of Miss —— to Mr. —— is announced."

There was an explosion of wrath at the press end of the line, and the rules of the telephone company restraining irate persons from indulging in profanity were smashed into smithereens.

"Why under the blankety-blank-blank" (that wasn't exactly what was said, but it will do, you know) "didn't you send in such stuff earlier in the day?"

"But I couldn't," said the voice, apologetically. "You see, it just happened."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Anthony Trollope's Pun.

Mr. Trollope's big voice drowned every one else as he chaffed my father down the length of the dinner table, says Mrs. G. Porter's "Annals of a Publishing House." He had jested over golf (John Blackwood was a devotee and attained to being captain of the St. Andrew's club), what would he not do next? He used to make daring assaults upon the most cherished articles of the Blackwood faith.

Blind, unswerving devotion to the sovereign was one of his favorite points of attack. "Now, Blackwood, how could the death of the sovereign possibly affect you?" he would say. "If you heard of it to-morrow morning, you know perfectly well you would eat just as good a breakfast—you would not even deny yourself that second kidney." It was in vain to protest that in the face of such a calamity the very thought of broiled kidneys would be distasteful. Mr. Trollope bore everything before him and prepared for another attack.

The conservative party and Dizzy were a tempting subject for a tilt. "You know, Blackwood, you know you think exactly about Dizzy as I do; you know you would be very glad to hear he had been hard up for—for shoplifting." Tableau! all holding up their hands and Mr. Trollope delighted with the sensation he had produced.

Then He Changed the Subject.

THE HEAD OF THE FAMILY

He Was Unable to Make a Trade With a Grocer

The family had only lately moved into the neighborhood. A day or two after their arrival the head of the family went to the grocer in the neighborhood and asked the price of a can of condensed milk.

"Fifteen cents," said the proprietor.

"Fifteen devils!" exclaimed the customer, "why, man alive, I don't want to buy a dozen cans, but only one. What do you ask for half a can, whole sale figures?"

"Never sell half a can."

"I reckon you never sell anything, if you make up your goods in that way. Suppose I take a whole can, will you come down to a dime?"

"Fifteen cents is the usual price."

"That may be with unreliable, transient customers, butt I am an old citizen of Galveston, and the store that catches my permanent trade will have to be enlarged within six months. Say a dime, and throw in a pound or two of soda crackers, and it's a whack."

"Do you buy a good deal in the course of a year?" asked the proprietor with a sneer.

"Do I buy a good deal? I should say I did. Why, it won't be more than two months before I'll buy a box of matches. The box I'm using now is more than half gone, and I only got it last February, too. Say a dime for the condensed milk, and one of them stale watermelons thrown in as a sorter inducement, and you can put these two nickels in your burglar-proof safe."

"Fifteen cents is the lowest price."

"I wish you could see my blacking-brush. It can't hold out over Christmas, and then I am bound to negotiate for a new one. Throw one box of blacking in with the condensed milk, and it's a transaction."

"I won't do it."

"All right! You won't do it. I'll just keep my eye on you. I'll bet your stock is insured for twice what it's worth, and you are going to have a fire pretty soon. When a merchant don't care to build up a trade he is fixing to fail or swindle somebody. Good morning, sir."

Making the Most of Leap Year.

A cow and a mule were harnessed together and hitched to a plow, and a woman was holding the plow and ripping the soil of Kansas up the back at a great rate as I rode along the highway. I halted to watch the novel sight and as she caught sight of me the woman stopped her team and came striding across the furrows to say:

"Hello, stranger! Did ye stop at the shanty?"

"Yes, stopped for a drink."

"Was the children all right?"

"I saw seven or eight playing on the grass and having a good time. Where's the old man?"

"Pegged out last fall."

"Do you mean he died?"

"Didn't do nuthin' else fur about three months, and he finally got thar. Yes, he's gone to a better land, and I'm working to pay up his debts."

"Then you are a widow, of course?"

"Sartinly. Goin' to settle out here?"

"Possibly."

"Married?"

"No."

"Want me?"

"No."

"Stranger, shake!" she exclaimed, as she came nearer and extended her hand. "You ar' a critter as knows you gait, you ar', and it does me good to meet you. Lands alive, but the men who come along here don't know 'nuff to pound sand, and I waste about three days a week on 'em! I want a critter to say yes or no right off the handle and hev done with it. So you don't want me and the young 'uns and the mule and the cow and the claim?"

"No, ma'am."

"'Nuff sed—so long—gee up thar', you critters and get around the field afore another fellow comes along."

Obeying Orders.

Many years ago when Lord Dufferin was about to go to India as viceroy, he instructed his steward to build a stone wall around a famous ruined castle on his Irish estate, in order to protect it from vandals. On his return home, several years after, he found to his amazement that the old castle had disappeared, and in its place was a circular wall inclosing nothing. Sending for his steward, he demanded to know why his orders had not been carried out. The steward insisted that what he had ordered had been done.

"But where is the castle?" asked the marquis.

"The castle, me lord?' That old thing. Shure I pulled it down to build the wall wid. Do ye want me to be going miles for materials with the finest stones in Ireland beside me?"

In telling the man to build the wall his lordship had said nothing about the preservation of the castle.

Two Americans.

Mr. Hardhead (crazy mad)—"Ah, ha! Caught you at last, have I? I understand, sir, that you have been calling me a liar, and a thief, and a born scoundrel, a wife-beater and a bigamist and a drunkard."

Mr. Greathead—"Really, you surprise me. I have no recollection of—"

Mr. Hardhead (hotly)—"I know it's true. Mr. Goodheart said he heard you."

Mr. Greathead—"Goodheart? I remember now what you refer to. But that, my friend, was during the election campaign."

Mr. Hardhead—"Oh! The campaign? Beg pardon. What'll you take.—New York Weekly.

AN APPRECIATIVE DAUGHTER

Father's Suggestion That He Bring His Trunk Solved the Problem.

Frederick Charles Petticord was in love with Susan Jane Dusenberry, and was unhappy when not in her company. When first he began to call upon her it was on Thursday nights, and he never stayed later than ten. Then he began to come on Monday evening also. Later he added Sunday afternoon to his list, and so it went on until he was liable to drop in at the Dusenberry residence every evening in the week, besides spending all of Sunday afternoon there.

Mr. Dusenberry, Susan Jane's father, viewed with growing anger the increasing numerousness of Mr. Petticord's calls, and often expressed his mind on the subject to the wife of his bosom, but she silenced him with the convincing query:

"Would you like Susan Jane to die an old maid?"

Notwithstanding this, Mr. Dusenberry was barely civil to the young man, for he did not like him, and was more than once on the point of saying something to him which, in all probability, he would have regretted subsequently.

One day, however, Mr. Dusenberry could restrain himself no longer. Frederick Charles had not omitted to call a single night for nearly two weeks, and had been at the house on four afternoons as well. After Susan Jane had dismissed her admirer, she turned and confronted her papa. He made a great effort to be calm as he said, with what he intended to be cutting sarcasm:

"Hadn't that young man of yours better bring his trunk?"

Instantly Susan Jane threw her arms around her father's neck and kissed him impulsively.

"O, you dearest, kindest father in all the world!" she exclaimed. "You don't know how happy you make me."

"What?" gasped the old man.

"And Charley will be happy too, when I tell him," she went on, nearly strangling her parent with her energetic hugs.

"W-w-what's that?"

"You see, papa, it's just this way. Dear Charley is the best fellow in the world, but he isn't very well off and we couldn't for the life of us see how we could go to housekeeping, but your kind suggestion that he bring his trunk here has solved all our problems. We'll stay right with you, daddy dear, when we are married. Oh, you are the best papa in creation. I'll go and tell mama and we'll decide on the date for the wedding right away."

Mr. Dusenberry essayed to speak, but she was gone, and the next thing he heard was that the wedding would take place in about six weeks.

If he had any opinions on the subject they were mental ones, for he was not allowed to express them orally, and the affair came off as planned.

His son-in-law is still living with him.

SMILES

Cholly Chumpleigh—"I think ideas are catching. Don't you, Miss Coldeal?"

Miss Coldeal—"Possibly. But some people seem to be most effectually inoculated against the infection."

Conductor—"How old are you, little girl?"

Little Girl—"If the company doesn't object I prefer to pay my fare and keep my own statistics."

Ada—"So Miss Lange said she would be a sister to you?"

Lawson—"Yes."

Ada—"What did you say to that?"

Lawson—"I told her we would compromise and call it aunt, as I was too young to be her brother."

College Youth—"It was a great foot ball game, and the Allround University would have won only one of the players lost his head."

Fond Mother—"Mercy! Such brutality! I always said something like that would happen sooner or later."

Conductor of Horse Car—"Move forward, please. Plenty of room up in front."

Man up in Front (gasping)—"So there is, but I don't know how to ride horseback."

Anna—"They say I have my mother's mouth and nose."

Hannah—"Well, your mother was lucky to get rid of them.—Yonkers Statesman.

She—You know that overcoat that you gave me to give away to some poor family. Well, I have been mending it, and it looks so well now that I thought you might like to take it back again.

He—Only on one condition.

She—And pray what is that?

He—That you go with it.

Quite Monotonous.

"My old friend," remarked the humorist, "I note that you have taken to a life that is full of ups and downs."

"Yes, my facetious friend," replied the elevator man, "As thou has taken to the life of a knight of nonsense; but notwithstanding all the ups and downs of my life, I find it quite monotonous."

Quite so; I anticipate that it is 'Quite's "O!" '"—E. A. B.

Far Gone.

Miss Quickstep—Oh, wouldn't you like to live the World's Fair year over again?

He—What! Go back to a time when I didn't know you, dear girl? Well, I should say not.—Chicago Tribune.

Outrageous.

UNAPPRECIATED KISSES.

He never sunk a collier
To bottle up a fleet,
But the pretty maidens kiss him
And exclaim: "Oh, ain't he sweet!"

He never scoffed at danger,
Nor made a poet sing;
He has never done a single Extraordinary thing.

Still the women, when they see him,
Utter words of wild delight,
And at once begin to kiss him,
Each of them with all her might.

But it hasn't swelled his head up,
Hasn't spoiled the little chap—
He is three weeks old and doesn't
Care a continental rap.

THE CRAMPTON MYSTERY.

"Please tell Mr. Crampton that I must see him—I have something of the utmost importance to tell him."

"Very well, sir."

The maid left Fred Palmer, a hustling youth, with an habitually sensational air, standing by the hat rack, and ran upstairs as fast as she could. The parlor seemed deserted, for there was no fire in it, though it was midwinter. Altogether, the house had a disagreeable feeling of sadness about it. No wonder, considering that the only son of the family had been missing for over a week, and nothing but a crumpled and battered hat found in a passenger coach on the railroad to give a hint of his fate.

Presently the maid came running down the stairs with, "Please come up to Mr. Crampton's room, sir." Which message she delivered breathlessly before she could touch the last step of the flight.

The young man found a picture of bereavement in Mr. Crampton's room. A week before that Leonard Crampton would have been set down by any chance acquaintance as a robust, prosperous man of forty-five. This evening he looked, wrapped in a drab flannel dressing gown, and seated in an armchair close to the fire, like a man of seventy.

"You have something to say to me, Mr. Palmer?" he asked, in a shaky voice.

"Yes, sir, and it would not wait, or I would not have troubled you at this hour. To come to the point, I have traced the—murderer."

Mr. Crampton pulled himself forward by the two arms of his chair and stared with open mouth.

"Then poor Bob—my boy has been murdered?"

"Oh, I beg your pardon, sir," said Palmer, starting back and hesitating—"I—I thought—why, everybody says—I thought you were all reconciled to—to this view."

"Yes—yes; go on and tell me. I suppose it must be so. Sit down."

"The man has left Chicago, sir. The police think he has made his way to Oregon or Washington. They are looking for him on other charges."

"Yes, but I care nothing about other charges. Tell me about this—about my boy."

"Yes, sir," said Palmer; "I am coming to that. This man—commonly known as Nipper Cary—was seen here a week ago last Wednesday, wandering about the town. He had on an old brown traveling cap and a dilapidated summer suit. Said he was looking for work. The police here had no idea as to his identity. Thursday he was seen speaking to poor Bob—"

"Good God!"

"Yes, sir. Then he followed Bob down toward the freight yards. You remember that was the night—"

"Yes. Never mind that—"

"Well, sir, it seems that the wife of the gatekeeper at the Love Lane crossing heard some one call for help—a man's voice. She went out and spoke to her husband about it, and he told her she must be dreaming, that it was a drunken man trying to sing up the lane. Seen after that this same gatekeeper admits that a man answering the description of Cary, only with a derby hat, came to the crossing, carrying a bundle under his arm."

"And which way did he go?"

"Well, the gatekeeper says he turned and walked up the line away from town. It was just after that that the No. 9 train went out, you know, sir. And it was on the No. 9 that the porter found Bob's hat—a derby—under the seat. The conductor said, you remember, that a rough-looking man boarded the train at Whitger's and paid his fare as far as Evanston."

The unhappy father was sobbing, and Palmer respectfully paused a moment in his story.

"What do you think this scoundrel did with my son? Where is the body?"

"I have been looking through Love Lane this afternoon, Mr. Crampton, do you know the cedar clump at the edge of the Carpenter place, just about fifty yards from the crossing?"

"Well?"

"I found the bushes a good deal trodden at one place there. The long grass in the ditch at the roadside is dry now, of course, but at this place it was broken and stamped. And two rails of the snake fence have been let down there. Mrs. Carpenter told me that she had never known any one to make a short cut through the cedar clump at that place. But I went and looked about among the trees and found a well there. It has not been used for years, and the story goes that it is a used-up oil well."

"And you think?"

"Yes, sir. I think that the murderer threw poor Bob's body down that well."

"But isn't it filled up."

"Not up to the top, sir."

"Isn't there any machinery in it?"

"No, sir. The machinery was all removed long ago."

"Then," said Mr. Crampton, "I'll have that well opened, if I have to pay ten thousand dollars for it."

Here was where Palmer found his difficulty in the task he had set himself. The Carpenters—two brothers and his wife or one of them—refused to allow the well to be touched. When Mr. Crampton, accompanied by Palmer, visited the Carpenters' place on the morning after this interview, the Carpenters pointed out that the short, thick undergrowth of brushwood at the mouth of the hole was not disturbed, as it would be if a dead body had been dragged thither and thrown in only a week before. Mr. Crampton pointed to the disturbed fence rails and trampled grass at the break in the fence, and the unquestionable evidence that some one had passed in that way, walked to the old well and gone back again the same way.

But the Carpenters, though they admitted all these evidences, denied the force of Palmer's theory that a murder had been committed thereabouts on the Thursday night of the previous week.

It must be said that the Carpenters were in a minority. Fred Palmer, in whose ability to ferret out a mystery most of his fellow-townsmen had great confidence, had discovered fresh evidence in the shape of a rag with blood on it in the ditch. Apart from all this strong circumstantial evidence, Fred Palmer was the assistant editor of a local morning paper, and at least once before had successfully traced the guilt in another lesser crime to the guilty party.

In the previous case, a small gambling swindle, the opposition paper and most of the inhabitants had ridiculed Palmer's pretensions to being able to solve the problem; this time, at least, the citizens were very wary of premature ridicule.

The upshot of all this was that, while Mr. Crampton consulted lawyers to find a means of compelling the Carpenters to allow their oil well to be excavated, local public opinion in the space of forty-eight hours pretty generally came round to Palmer's views; that young Bob Crampton had been murdered for his watch and the considerable sum of money he was known to have had in his pocket; that the murderer was a tramp who had disappeared from the neighborhood on the night of Bob's disappearance, and that Bob's body had been thrown into the abandoned well.

"If you will only bring that villain to justice," Mr. Crampton said to Fred Palmer at a second interview, "you may command any service I am able to do you from now on."

That was just what Palmer wanted to hear from Bob's father, chiefly because Bob's father was also the father of Clara. There was more than mere reportorial ambition in this activity of Fred Palmer.

Palmer knew that Nipper Cary was supposed by the Chicago police to have made his way to Oregon or Washington state. He did not hesitate to follow the desperate villain whose description answered so completely to that of the tramp with whom Bob Crampton had been seen.

He had $500 of his own within easy reach. He resolved to send that sum in his struggle for justice and Clara. So he went and spoke about the matter to his editor and chief.

"And you want to go all the way to Seattle to hunt this desperado?" the editor-in-chief asked, incredulously.

"Just that," said Palmer. "See here; suppose I end by finding the fellow, the paper gets fame, doesn't it? Suppose I don't find him, what does the paper lose? You can get Giles to supply for me."

"Go ahead," said the chief.

And ahead Palmer went. But he did not leave town without one brief interview with Clara, in which he got that young lady—she was very young, besides being heart-broken about her brother—to promise that if he brought her brother's murderer to justice she would honestly try to love him. The promise was not given very willingly, but it was sincere, and it meant an indefinite deal to Palmer, who was very sanguine.

So Palmer, leaving Mr. Crampton to fight with the pig-headed Carpenter family, set out for Oregon by way of Chicago.

Two days later a letter with typewritten address came to Clara Crampton. Don't be shocked. I have just met that ass, Palmer, coming out of a police station. He rushed up and grabbed me by the shoulder. His jaw dropped when he first saw me. He says you all think I am dead. I am not.

"The fact is, a tramp I came across last week followed me all the way out of Love Lane, trying to bulldoze me into giving him something. You know, I meant to go out there and make a moonlight study. It ended in my giving him a bloody nose. Then I went on my way, carrying my sketching box and book under my arm. The tramp tumbled so dead-like into the ditch that after I had left him I gave up the idea of making my moonlight sketch and came back to see if he was hurt badly.

"I found that he had crawled on to the Carpenter farm. Then he and I made friends, and I took an idiotic notion to go tramping with him. I had read so much about that sort of thing in magazines. Some days ago I caught on to it that my tramp was not a regular tramp at all, but a big criminal the police here are looking for. Then he suspected me and gave me the slip.

"Since then I have been having a great time looking for him in the slums of Chicago—the police and I.

"I shall be home to-morrow. I am an ass, I know, to frighten you like this. But Palmer is a still bigger ass. He says he will go to the Pacific and begin life afresh. I told him it was the best thing he could do. Your own brother, R. C."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

AMERICAN SLANG

How It Confuses the Average Englishman.

The utter ignorance of the English of the significance of American slang expressions often causes some curious scenes between them and Yankee buyers in England, who seem to think that because their language generally is understood, all their American idioms will be. An expert buyer, junior partner in one of our large American firms, at a recent first visit to his correspondent in an English manufacturing city, was complimented by the senior partner of the house, who insisted on personally showing goods to his American purchaser.

"There, sir," said Dowlas, throwing out a roll of goods, "what do you think of that?"

"Oh, that's played out," said the American.

"It's what?" said Bull.

"It's played, I tell you,'" said his customer.

"Played—ah! really—we call it plaid—plad, you know."

"No," said Yankee, "I don't mean plad. I mean 'ter say it's 'gone up.'"

"Oh, no," said Britisher, "not at all; it has not gone up—quite the contrary. We've taken off from the price."

"Over the left; it's three pence too high now."

"No doubt of it, but our neighbors, you know, on the left are not manufacturers, you know."

"Very likely; but I don't care to be 'stuck' when I get home."

"Really. Most extraordinary. Is it as dangerous in New York as the newspapers say?"

"Yes, but I don't want these goods. I've got some already that will 'knock the spots out of 'em.'"

"But, my dear sir, there's no spots on the goods, I assure you. They are perfect."

"Well, well, suppose we 'switch off' on these goods, and try something else."

"Certainly!" and the Englishman, to the infinite amusement of the American's friend, called a clerk with a wish-broom and directed him to 'switch off' any dust he could find, while he proceeded to show something else.

"There," said the Englishman, triumphantly, spreading out another fabric, "there's the handsomest piece of goods in England, 'arf a guinea a yard."

"I can't see it," said his customer.

"Can't see it; why, you are looking right at it; however, suppose you try the light of this window."

"No, I don't mean that," said the American; "I haven't got the stamps for such goods."

"Stamps! no stamps required but a bill stamp, which we are happy to furnish."

This misunderstanding might have continued longer had not one of the younger members of the house, seeing his senior's perplexity, rescued the American and "put him through" after the manner of his countrymen.

Blocking the Yellow Fever.

Some years ago, when the terrible "Yellow Jack" was in Savannah, Judge B., of the Supreme Court of the state, was holding session in the upper county, but within twenty-four hours' run by mail of the infected city. Quite suddenly, late one afternoon, he was seized with a headache, pain in his back, limbs, etc. Having heard that these were the salutations which Yellow Jack extends to his victims when approaching them, the judge in great consternation applied to a friend who was "posted" for advice. A hot mustard bath was ordered at once, and the judge was soon laving himself in the irritating fluid.

Presently he felt better, and finding a cake of soap in the bath tub, he began to apply it quite freely upon his person. After some pleasant exercise in this way he looked down for the first time at his body and limbs, and to his horror discovered that he was turning black.

His friend was hurriedly sent for, came in and declared that the symptoms were intensely expressive of yellow fever.

"But," said the judge, "I feel no pain; I feel well."

"So much the worse; the absence of pain is a marked symptom."

"Oh," groaned the judge, "what shall I do?"

"The only hope is in mustard; rub away," was all the advice his friend could give.

And he did rub, with a vim.

On examination he was as black as a crow—and the "soap," which a careless servant had dropped into the tub, was discovered to be somebody's patent paste blacking.

The judge survived.

Why He Married.

In the north of England, where rabbit coursing is much in vogue, swift, well-trained dogs often win large sums in prizes. It is, therefore, little ti be wondered at that the owners of these animals should bestow so much attention upon them.

An old Yorkshire collier, well known for his success in the coursing field, recently surprised all his mates by marrying a very unprepossessing woman. He had always been reckoned a confirmed hater of the other sex.

"Why has ta gone and got spliced, lad, at thy age?" one of his friends asked him.

"Oh, that's not much of a tale," answered the old man stolidly. "I agree wi'ye 'at Betsy yonder is no beauty—if she had been I shouldn't have wed her. But that there dog o' mine, he was simply pinin' for somebody to look after him while I was away at t' pit. I couldn't bear to leave him in the house by hissen, so I hit on the idea of marryin' Betsy. She's not handsome, but she's mighty good company for the dog."

THE GREAT INDOOR GAME

WHAT IS GOING ON IN LOCAL BASKET BALL CIRCLES.

Happenings of Interest to Plainfield Enthusiasts—What the Local Teams are Doing—Gossip Among the Players.

The proposed basket ball match between the girls of the Plainfield and Montclair High Schools is still in abeyance. There seems no doubt that the game will be played as both sides are willing and anxious to play but the present trouble is to arrange a date satisfactory to both sides. The Plainfield girls are now waiting to hear from Montclair as to the dates that would be satisfactory to the Montclair team.

The basket ball team from the Hasbrouck Heights Field Club will come to Plainfield Monday evening for a return game with the local association team. The game will be played in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, beginning at 8:15 o'clock. The visitors' gallery will be open at the usual prices. Its capacity is limited. When all the seats there are filled the remainder of the spectators will have to find room on the gymnasium floor. The game played at Hasbrouck Heights was a great big walkover for Plainfield and there isn't any doubt but that Plainfield will have an easy thing of the game here. The Hasbrouck Heights team is composed entirely of married men who had played only five games with outside teams when they first met Plainfield. They promised to improve considerably before they come here, but there isn't any doubt but that they will easily succomb to the prowess of the Plainfield boys.

FIFTEENTH ANNIVERSARY.

Reform Club to Celebrate the Event Next Thursday Night.

The Reform Club will celebrate its fifteenth anniversary Thursday night, and will provide as an entertainment for the members and those who attend, a mock trial. Benjamin Hand is to be charged with murdering his wife, and will come up to the bar of justice, behind which will sit Justice of the Peace J. E. Mosher, for trial.

Lawyer DeMeza will represent the State and will prosecute. His will be an easy task, as the jury have already made up their minds as to Mr. Hand's guilt, so all of his lawyer's pleadings in his behalf will be in vain. Lawyer Swackhamer will represent Mr. Hand, and an evening of fun as well as profit is expected. Refreshments will be served at the close.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

One of the most important theatrical engagements of the season will be the production of "Rip VanWinkle," as presented by the Jefferson Comedy Company, at Music Hall tonight Thomas Jefferson, who essays the role of "Rip," has met with the most flattering praise in the principal cities in which he has presented this delightful comedy during the early part of this season. The other three principal male parts of the cast will be in the hands of Joseph, Jr., William and Charles Jefferson, the above four Jeffersons being the principal members of the Jefferson Comedy Company. Miss Blanche Bender, one of the most accomplished and prettiest of all the ingenues, will play the part of "Meenie," a part which she has played for the past three seasons with the elder Jefferson. A most complete production is guaranteed by the management.

* * * * *

A host of notable attractions are offered at Music Hall this week, but none will prove more enjoyable than the holiday bill Washington's Birthday, Wednesday, when Jolly Nellie McHenry and her own company of vaudeville appear. This charming and finished actress has never appeared in this city, so all lovers of genuine hilarity may in truth anticipate a feast of fun. Two performances will be given, afternoon and evening, in both of which Miss McHenry will participate, presenting her great sketch, "Mrs. Attick's Lodgers." In this she will also have the support of John Webster, a comedian of note. Reserved seats for the night performance can now be secured at the box office.

* * * * *

It is with a great deal of satisfaction and pardonable pride that Manager Edwards announces that "The Little Minister," a comedy adopted from the famous novel of that name by J. M. Barrie, will be seen at Music Hall Friday night. No play produced in the last century has been so well received, or has made such phenomenal success as has this one. It is hardly necessary to speak here of the phenomenal success which this comedy has obtained. Its marvelous run in New York of 300 nights and to audiences at every performance which packed the theatre to the doors, is a matter of history. Not only is this a phenomenal fact but an absolutely true one. Since the play left New York the business has been of the same order as accorded it there. The reports that reach us of the performance given by the company that will be seen here is such as to lead us to believe that our theatregoers will be afforded a rare treat.

* * * * *

At the Manhattan Theatre, New York, "Mlle. Fifi" shows much of an improvement since its original production. The play has been toned down and the work of the company has improved thereby. The theatre is crowded every night and Rose Coghlin, Aubrey Boucicault and Grace George are sure of a hearty reception, for they have entered into the spirit of the play with a desire to keep free from adverse criticism. Mr. Boucicault, in particular, has improved upon his work, while Louise Beaudet, who plays the title role, has added reserve to her style of acting.

RABIES-PROOF DOGS.

A Simple Operation, When Performed, Has Proved of Value

William Lawyer, who is an old man, has always been fond of dogs and he has always performed an operation on all the animals he has owned to prevent them from having rabies. He has had but one animal affected, and in this case he failed to take the precaution as he had done with the other dogs.

When he was 17 years of age a German blacksmith, who lived at Hanover, Pa., owned two puppies. He offered to teach Lawyer a certain trick which he declared would be of use to him. Taking one of the dogs, the blacksmith placed it in a boot top, and, pulling its mouth open, pulled the animal's tongue out. Then he took a sharp knife and made a slit under the dog's tongue, then took an awl and forced out a small worm. When he had completed the operation the blacksmith asked Lawyer to try his hand on the other animal, which he did. The blacksmith then said: "These dogs will never have the hydrophobia. If they are bitten by a mad dog their jaws will lock and they will not be able to open them."

One of his dogs, which had been treated by this process, was bitten by a dog which was mad, and in a few days the mouth of Mr. Lawyer's dog became locked and the animal died without inflicting any injury to any one.—Baltimore Sun.

HE DRANK LAMP OIL.

Hadn't the Heart to Spoil the Fun, and Therefore Swallowed the Stuff.

One night Munden the actor (relates a musical contemporary) was playing in The Committee as Obadiah, and Jack Johnstone as Teague, who has to ply Obadiah from a black bottle. Such extraordinary and unusual grimaces did Munden make as he took down his draughts that not only did the audience break into convulsions of laughter, but Johnstone himself grew almost hysterical. The moment, however, that Munden was borne from the stage and the drop fell, he leaped up and screamed for a stomach-pump. "I'm a dead man," he shouted—"I'm poisoned! Where's the villian that filled that bottle? Ugh, oh! Hang it, sir, it's lamp oil—lamp oil, sir, every drop of it!" Johnstone had the empty bottle in his hands—he smelt. It was too true. The property-man in haste had mistaken the lamp-oil for sherry and water. "But why, in the name of all that is holy," said Johnstone, "why Joe, did you allow me to pour the whole of the filthy stuff down your throat when a look or a word would have stopped me?" Munden's reply was worthy of an enthusiastic actor. "Jack," he gasped out, "my dear boy, so I should, but there was such a glorious roar at the first face I made that I had not the heart to spoil the scene, though I thought I should have died every time you poured a fresh gulp."

REASONS FOR MAKING GREATER PLAINFIELD.

Advantages That Are Urged to Effect Consolidation.

W. L. SAUNDERS' ADDRESS.

TIMELY INTEREST BECAUSE OF THE BOROUGH ELECTION.

Mr. Saunders Sums Up the Situation in an Exhaustive Manner, and From His Point of View Makes a Strong Argument—One City Would Do Away With Much Unnecessary Expense.

Information on the subject of consolidating Plainfield and North Plainfield is in great demand just now inasmuch as a canvass to ascertain the sentiment of the voters of the borough is being made and the proposition is to be voted upon at the coming borough election. Two years ago, when a number of North Plainfield citizens formed themselves into a consolidation society to urge the project, former Mayor Saunders delivered an addre-s on the subject. Among the reasons for consolidation he mentioned the following:

"1—It is one of the fundamental maxims of business and Government that two men should not be employed to do work, which can be done equally as well by one. Two Mayors, two Councils, two Clerks, two Attorneys, two Tax Assessors, two Collectors, two Street Commissioners, two Chiefs of Police, two Fire Chiefs, two Overseers of the Poor, are unnecessary in this little circle of ours. It is simply extravagance in time and money. Not one of us would think of keeping up such an organization in his own business.

"2—Joint co-operation in building and maintaining sewers and other improvements would reduce the per capita expense and aid in getting the best results. A community of twenty thousand might afford to go to tidewater for sewage disposal, while one of half the population might not. Plainfield's present system is probably the best under existing circumstances, but think of the folly of North Plainfield building its own system to tidewater, or maintaining separate disposal beds! Are the intelligent taxpayers of the borough ready to buy property in the face of the fact that the city beds are big enough for two? Will they be willing to employ men to take care of them when the men employed by the city can attend to both? The alternative is to go to tidewater at an expense which makes it prohibitive. Yet who will deny that the borough must in time be sewered? It will not do to rely forever on our gravel soil. It is difficult to convince intelligent people that one portion of a town with cesspools is as good a place to live in as another with sewers.

"3—The administration of justice is retarded by the present condition. The authority of the city and borough police stops at the county line, so that criminals escape capture by flight across the brook. The only magistrates in the borough are justices of the peace, hence important civil and criminal cases must go to Somerville, an inconvenience and expense in time and money. Plainfield has only a city court, which has many limitations. Consolidation would probably entitle the city to a district court for cases now tried in Elizabeth. Need one ask for a better reason for union than that it will aid in the administration of justice?

"4—Municipal improvements are retarded by the lack of political co-operation between the two towns. Much of the delay in opening up Watchung avenue was due to this conflict. The streets in the city which lead to the brook are in bad condition, because of neglect and the feeling that if anything is done our neighbor will get the benefit of it. Sycamore avenue in the borough has recently been cut through to Front street at private expense, and it will probably be a difficult matter to get the chairman of the street committee in Plainfield to accept and care for the little spur on his side because those foreigners in the borough will get all the benefit and should pay the tax. No such conditions would arise if we were united. If a bridge is needed across the brook it will not be built until the two boards of chosen (and very precious) freeholders are brought together each in their respective county seats. Think of this kind of home rule! A board of freeholders in Somerville and another in Elizabeth passing on the question whether or not Plainfield can have a bridge for one of its streets!

"5—Free access to the public schools and to the public library is much to be desired. The High School of the city is not free to borough residents. A free library is a fruitful source of cultivation and enlargement; it is open to the poor as well as to the rich, and the charge which is made for residents of the borough, even though it be small, is nevertheless a barrier to its general use.

"6—The laws that govern cities are not the same as those that govern boroughs, hence where the two are practically merged in one there is an inequality of conditions. The difference in the saloon license tends to drive the saloon into the borough. The laws compel them to close at eleven o'clock at night in the city while in the borough they keep open till twelve and sometimes later. After eleven at night the city empties its saloon refuse into the borough. I have known this to result in so much disorder as to require a special officer to look after the regions of the bridge at night.

"7—A single Board of Health would probably clean the filth from the brook and main it in a proper condition. What is everybody's business is nobody's business, and in spite of laws, threats and wrangles the brook is still the same foul and unkept thing—an open letter.

"8. One fire department with all that this implies.

"9. One police department.

"10. Lower taxes because of the increase in the per capita.

"11. The borough is now contributing to build up and extend the business district in the city and without getting any benefit from taxation.

"12. The population of Plainfield is 13,629, that of North Plainfield, 4,879. The influence of Plainfield would be extended. The rating is now too low because it is based on the population of the city alone, while in reality the borough should be added. Post offices and other privileges are based on population.

"But you will ask how union be brought about? The friends of this movement are united only in their desire for consideration by that means which is the most equitable. An act of the Legislature should be the first move, next a vote of the people. Four plans have been proposed as follows:

"1—Consolidation without changing the county lines.

"2—To take a slice from Somerset county thereby bringing North Plainfield into union.

"3—Adding Plainfield to Somerset county.

"4.—A new county."

FIRST NIGHT OF FAIR IN WASHINGTON HALL.

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICA IN CHARGE.

Three Booths Trimmed in Natty Colors—Committee in Charge of Arrangements.

Washington Hall this week is the scene of a fair which the members of Martha Washington Council, No. 23, D. of A., are holding.

The hall is decorated with flags and greens, and with the fancy-colored booths makes a handsome appearance. There are three booths: the grocery booth in red, white and blue; the fancy booth in red, and the candy booth in white.

The committee in charge of the fair consists of Mrs. I. F. Biker, chairman; Mrs. Eliza Radin, Mrs. B. Mattis, Mrs. Mary Hoffman, Mrs. Hannah Thompson, Mrs. Ellen Smith, Mrs. Hester Campbell, Miss Ratie Johnson, Mrs. Amelia Wyckoff, Mrs. Agnes Randolph, Mrs. Sarah Page, Mrs. Winnie Allen, Mrs. Mary Welsh, and Messrs. G. S. Martin, F. W. Welsh, George Allen and Howard Bennett. These look after the various booths and have general charge of the fair. A feature of Friday evening will be a supply of home-made clam chowder which will be served.

Fell on the Ice.

Mrs. William Wilson, of Grove street, is detained at home the result of a severe fall she had on the ice Saturday evening in front of her home. She was considerably bruised about the body, while her arms and wrists were sprained to a large degree, giving her great pain. Dr. Buchanan was called and prescribed the proper treatment. Mrs. Wilson will be confined to the house for a week at least.

To Devote His Time to Musical Work

Wm. Holmes, the well-known baritone soloist at the First Baptist church, has decided to devote all his time to a musical career. He has resigned his position in New York and will give vocal instruction at his studio, 440 West Front street. Mr. Holmes is a pupil of Dr. Carl E. Dufft and is well and favorably known in local musical circles.

DUAL ATHLETIC CONTEST

PLAINFIELD AND NEW BRUNSWICK Y. M. C. A. TO MEET.

Contest Will be Held in Local Gymnasium This Evening—Seven Events to be Contested for—The Plainfield Team.

An advance step in athletics will be taken by the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. this evening, when the dual indoor athletic contest will be held in the local association gymnasium. It is the first time since the organization of the local Y. M. C. A. that a friendly contest in athletics has been arranged with any neighboring association. While there have been many local contests in which the Plainfield boys have had a chance, this is the first time that they have had a chance to compare their abilities with the athletes of other cities.

The contest this evening will be between teams of three men each from the Plainfield and New Brunswick Associations. It will begin at 8 o'clock prompt. There will be seven events contested, which will be as follows: Running high jump, standing high jump, standing broad jump, three standing broad jumps, hop, step and jump and putting the shot. Owing to the lack of proper accomodations there will be no running events in the contest.

Plainfield's team will consist of Raymond B. Carroll, winner of the local indoor athletic contest this year, Frank O. Bristol, last year's champion, and George Proctor Smith, scholastic champion of New Jersey in '96 and '97. Ivan Hardingham and William Townsend will be the two substitutes.

The personel of the New Brunswick team has not yet been announced here. It is understood, however, that two of the three will be the crack athletes of Rutgers College who are expected to give the Plainfield boys a lively hustle.

The visitors' gallery will be open and a small admission will be charged if the contest is a financial success, others will probably follow later in the season.

LOOKING FOR "SEEKERS."

Evangelistic Meetings Continued With Energy by Rev. Mr. Belknap

The revival meetings at the First M. E. church were continued last evening. Rev. Dr. J. D. Belknap was in charge. The church was partially filled. The service was very similiar to that on Sunday evening. The choir was present and assisted in the singing.

Dr. Belknap made a short address pointing out the blessings of a Christian life and urging his hearers to share them. He also sang several solos. The work of gathering in the "seekers" was continued with the characteristic energy of the evangelist. Several young people responded to his invitation to come forward and make open profession of the turning point in their lives.

The meetings will be continued this week and a special service for young folks will be held Friday evening.

Couldn't Find Papers.

Milkman Sage, of Stirling, who supplies customers in this vicinity with milk each morning, also combines with that business supplying the Stirling people with New York papers, which are thrown off here every morning from the paper train. Lately Sage has not been able to find his papers when he reached the station mornings, and Roundsman Frederickson has been making a quiet investigation. He believes that some newsboys have been picking up the roll of five New York Journals and selling them, and pocketing the proceeds. Hereafter a sharp lookout will be kept on the lads.

Settled Out of Court.

The case in tort between J. H. French and Peter Zimmerson, which was to have been tried yesterday afternoon before Justice Moffett, was settled out of court. Zimmerman, who used to keep a butcher shop where Mundy & Drake now are, broke a large pane of glass in the store, which, Mr. French, who owns the store, claims Zimmerman refused to replace. Suit was therefore brought against Zimmerman for damages, but the case was settled before going to trial.

Wants Wages and Borrowed Money.

Miss Mary Leary, of 40 Madison street, New York, has brought suit against Adrian C. Pickhardt, of this city, on contract, before Justice Mattison. Miss Leary is suing for two months wages, $36, and $99 borrowed money. She claims that when he paid her wages he would immediately borrow it again. The plaintiff is represented by V. W. Nash, Jr., and the case will be tried next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

CHANGE IN OWNERSHIP OF WHITE'S BIG STORE

Crosby & Hill Took Possession Today.

WAS A GENERAL SURPRISE.

MR. WHITE WILL RETIRE ON ACCOUNT OF POOR HEALTH.

The Business Transferred Entire—Mr. White Still Owns the Building—No Change in Staff of Employes—New Firm is From Wilmington, Del.—Has Branch Stores at Morristown and Perth Amboy.

The sensation of the morning came in the announcement that Edward White, the well-known local merchant, had decided to retire from business and that his big store on West Front street had passed into the hands of Crosby & Hill, who hale from Wilmington, Del., where their principal store is located. The new comers already have two branch establishments in New Jersey, one at Morristown and the other at Perth Amboy, where they have been eminently successful.

The news of the change in the management of the big store came to the public this morning without warning and was the principal topic of discussion on the streets today. Even to the interested parties the deal was consummated with a celerity and dispatch that gave them the information but a short time in advance of its general announcement. Last summer Crosby & Hill considered the advisability of purchasing Mr. White's business in Plainfield, but no action was reached at that time. A little correspondence and yesterday afternoon W. K. Crosby, senior member of the firm, with S. B. Carson, one of the managers, came to Plainfield. A settlement was reached at once and the establishment was turned over to the new firm last night.

Crosby & Hill have had much experience and have met with uniform success in all their stores which are conducted with a view of giving their patrons the best possible service and the best goods at the lowest possible prices. They will continue the business in this city on the same broad liberal lines under which it flourished during Mr. White's time.

Mr. White has been intimately connected with the business progress of the city every since his youth and has built up this store until it has become equal in many respects to the big department stores of the big cities. The building, where the store is located, is the property of Mr. White and will remain so. He has leased it to the new owners of the business who will continue in the same quarters.

To a Press reporter Mr. White said this morning that he sold out as his health would not permit him to give his business the attention it needed. He will remain at the store for a few weeks to give the new comers the benefit of his advice and knowledge of the local affairs and see them well started. Then he will retire from all business for the spring and summer and take a well earned rest.

Mr. Crosby, the senior partner, is in town today but will soon return to Wilmington. The business will then be left in the hands of S. B. Carson, a thoroughly experienced man, who will manage the establishment for the present. Both Mr. Crosby and his manager impress the visitor as energetic business men who intend to give Plainfield their best efforts in providing for their wants.

There will be no changes in the staff of employes at the store and the arrangements will remain the same for the present at least.

Next fall Mr. White will resume his business career and will take charge of several mill accounts in wholesale houses. He will make his headquarters in New York or San Francisco.

Goes to California for His Health.

George L. Colgate, president of the Bard Company, dealers in sporting goods, has gone to California for his health, where he expects to remain until spring. The Bard Company will continue to do business at their present situation on North avenue.

Farewell Reception to Dr. Richards

The farewell reception to be tendered Dr. Richards by his congregation in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, previous to his departure to Palestine and the Holy Land, will take place Thursday evening.

Funeral of James Ammerman.

The funeral services of the late Jas. Ammerman will be held tomorrow afternoon from the residence of Mrs. William Hedden, 401 Kensington avenue, at 2 o'clock

A PASSION FOR TRUTH.

ONE OF CROMWELL'S CHARACTERISTICS NAMED BY DR. RICHARDS.

The Largest Lecture of the Season Before the Monday Afternoon Club—Audience Pleased With the Discourse.

No lecture of the season before the Monday Afternoon Club has been so largely attended as was that delivered yesterday afternoon at the Casino by Dr. William R. Richards on "Oliver Cromwell." Giving a brief outline of the condition of England the corruption of the church, the growth of puritanism and the march of events in which Cromwell was concerned, Dr. Richards made a close analysis of the character of Cromwell.

He denied that this leader among men was guilty of dissimulation, but on the contrary, he had a passion for truth. He granted that he was inconsistent, caring more for God's thought of him than his reputation with men. He described vividly Cromwell's army, made up from the ranks of the non-conformists, who never lost a battle. As a soldier, there was but one opinion of Cromwell, who always fought to win. There was much question about his statesmanship.

This was shown at the best in his dealings with the Scotch, and the worst when dealing with the Irish. His foreign policy was described as magnificent. It was in dealing with the English parliament that Cromwell failed, and his failure was caused by his masterful force that was impatient of the methods of others. Dr. Richards closed his lecture of thrilling interest by an account of the punishment that came to England by Cromwell's failure, and that was the restoration of the stuart rings and the end of puritanism, but which happily was transferred to new soil in a new England.

The justice of Dr. Richard's estimate of Cromwell was shown in this that the admirers of Cromwell in the audience were satisfied and that his depreciators were content that he was not put on a pedestal for hero worship.

LIQUOR DEALERS WANT LAW.

Bill to Be Introduced by Them to Abolish the "Bleeding" Process.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, February 21.—A bill will be introduced in the House indorsed by the Board of Excise and drawn by the Liquor Dealers' Association, of this city. The bill provides that a saloonkeeper shall require only one or more signatures to remain permanent. In other words, the saloonkeeper will not be compelled to look for signatures to his license application each year, as heretofore, unless he violates his pledge to keep an orderly house, etc.

The bill also intends to protect the saloon keeper from what is known as the bleeding process by the signers, who, it is claimed, exact credit, political preferment, loans, etc. Saloonkeepers throughout the State favor the bill, and every effort will be made to have the bill become law. The Legislature committee of the association will select the Assemblyman to introduce the measure.

HIGH WATER AT NEW BRUNSWICK.

Raritan River Choked With Ice, and the People Fear a Flood.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, Feb. 21.—There is danger of a freshet in the Raritan River. The ice in the Millstone and other tributaries of the Raritan has broken up and also the ice in the river above the city. It has gorged at the landing just above the city, and the river has been five feet, flooding the surrounding meadows and covering the causeway leading to the landing bridge. The water is within a few feet of the floor of the bridge.

The ice in the river in front of New Brunswick is solid from New Brunswick to the bay. In some places it is 13 inches thick. If the gorge above the river breaks the ice and water will have no way of escaping and the lower part of the city will be flooded. The volume of water in the river has enormously increased by the thaw, and merchants along the water-front have moved their goods to the second floors.

Death of a Young Woman.

Miss Nellie Killoran, aged 24 years, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Killoran, died today noon at her home, East Fourth street, after a lingering illness of one year with consumption. The deceased had a host of friends who will mourn her death.

Leveling Mounds of Snow.

The Plainfield Street Railway has a gang of eight men at work on West Front street today leveling the mounds of snow on the side of the roadway. They are the last relics of the blizzard remaining along the line of the trolley.

LAWMAKERS ON DECK.

NEW JERSEY LEGISLATURE STARTS IN FOR REAL WORK.

Two Bills Passed—Resolution Calling for Popular Election of Senators—New Plan for Jury Drawing by Senator Stokes.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Trenton, Feb. 21—Routine business and the introduction of bills formed the major part of the work of both Houses of the Legislature last night. The House passed the bill authorizing the erection of a home for aged disabled firemen by the State Firemen's Association, and also a bill allowing constables a fee of 50 cents for attendance at the hearing of any person who may have been arrested.

The House referred to the Committee on Revision of Laws a resolution by Mr. Abbett (Dem.) favoring the election of United States Senators by popular vote. Mr. Abbett wanted the House to vote on the resolution, but Mr. McKee, the Republican leader, moved its reference and the motion was carried by a party vote. The Republicans voted in the affirmative.

House bill No. 102, providing for a State Board of Children's Guardians, was recommitted to the Committee on Revision of Laws. The bill is meeting with much opposition.

In the Senate Senator Stokes introduced a bill which changes the present system of drawing juries. Grand juries and petit juries must be chosen by lot from a list of all those in the county eligible to jury duty. The list must be filed with the county clerk subject to revision by the county court.

Senator Wm. M. Johnson introduced a bill extending the State aid law to cases where roads are built by townships.

The members of the two Houses, after adjournment, attended a reception given by the Republican Club of this city in honor of Senator-elect John Kean and United States Senator Wm. J. Sewell.

OFFICERS MARCHED IN RANKS IN COMPANY H.

PRIVATES ARE IN A SPUNKY MOOD.

Somerville Company, in Which Plainfielders Were, Wouldn't Be Led to Church by Commandant.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 21—The members of Company H, Third Regiment, who were recently mustered out of the service and returned from the camp at Athens, Ga., were invited to attend a service at the Second Reformed church last Sunday evening. When the soldiers assembled at the company rooms on Main street prior to the hour for service, they declared that they would not march to the church under command of Captain John E. Wehrly and Lieut. Harry Dietz. The men maintained that the officers had not treated them right. The trouble began when the company first went out and has continued until now.

The company finally started from the rooms under command of Sergeant E. A. Thompson. The officers fell into line in the rear and were jeered at several times as they went along the street. At the church they took seats behind the men in the pews that had been reserved. The action of the men caused quite a sensation in the town. Tomorrow night a banquet will be given by the citizens in Somerset Hall, and it is feared that there may be unpleasant circumstances.

A number of Plainfield boys were members of Company H.

NOT EVEN A QUORUM PRESENT.

Not Enough Board of Trade Members Present to Hold a Meeting.

Last evening was the regular time for the Board of Trade meeting, but as usual there was a lack of a quorum. The usual four or five members assembled and after a smoke and a chat decided that they would adjourn to meet when a sufficient number of members would come together. While the few members were together they engaged in a discussion regarding the enterprise (?) of the local merchants, some of whom are members of the Board.

A member of the Board previously suggested that an effort be made to assist the G. A. R. in celebrating next Decoration Day, but it is hardly thought that there will be enough enterprise manifested to carry the scheme through.

Address by Prof. Sumner.

Prof. W. G. Sumner's address on "The Recent Conquest of the United States by Spain" will take place Thursday of this week at half-past eight o'clock at the parish house of Grace church. Tickets are for sale at Armstrong's pharmacy.

Miss Wyckoff, of Somerville, is visiting her friend, Miss Mildred Tyrell, of Manning avenue.

VICTORY WAS EASY FOR PLAINFIELD TEAM

Plainfield Y. M. C. A. Defeated Hasbrouck Heights F. C.

BY A VERY LARGE SCORE.

FINE EXHIBITION OF TEAM WORK IN BASKET BALL.

Game Played in Local Gymnasium—Plainfield Won By Score of 40 to 8—As Game Was Easy, Home Team Did Some Spectacular Playing—Smith's Long Throws for the Goal Successful.

Scoring at the rate of one point for every minute of play the basket ball team of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. had an easy thing of it in its match with the team from the Hasbrouck Heights Field Club, played in the local gymnasium last evening. While Plainfield won by the large score of 40 to 8, the game was not as uneven as the first match played at Hasbrouck Heights.

It was a pretty game, even if it was rather uneven, and there was plenty of enthusiasm shown particularly for the visitors. The crowd realized that it was a one-sided contest and so gave its sympathy to the weaker side. When the visitors threw their first goal the players had to wait several minutes for the applause to subside before resuming play.

The game furnished an opportunity to the home team to show off its abilities. The visitors, while they played hard, lacked the training and endurance of the Plainfield boys and so played much slower. As a result, there was a great exhibition of passing on the part of the local players. There was really some fine work done. The team work was almost perfect, and the Heights' men were fairly bewildered by it.

The scoring for Plainfield began at once. Several times Egan and Long worked a pretty little trick at the start and scored without the ball ever passing out of the hands of the home team. George Proctor Smith made some flying leaps and tries at goal with success. He also did some accurate goal-throwing from a distance.

The game opened with both substitutes, Carroll and Bonny, playing. Eric Moraller came in collision with Fred Bonny and cut his face. Smith took his place for the time. In the the second half, the Moraller brothers went in and the team lined as of old. Then followed a very clever bit of team work and passing.

The Hasbrouck Heights men showed a decided improvement over the form in the first game. The lively game tired them out toward the last and they showed signs of weakening. They were playing on the defensive most of the time.

The teams lined up as follows:

PLAINFIELD.		HASBROUCK HEIGHTS.
Long	right forward	Leighton
Bonny	left forward	Benedict
M. Moralier	centre	Doyle
Egan	centre	Doyle
Carroll	right guard	Roberts
E. Moralier	right guard	Roberts
E. Moralier	left guard	Cox

Score—Plainfield, 40; Hasbrouck Heights, 8. Goals from the field—Long, (4), Bonny, (2), Egan, (1), E. Moralier, (2), Smith, (7), Carroll, (2), M. Moralier, (2), Leighton (2), Doyle, (1), Roberts, (1). Goals on fouls—Long, (2). Fouls—Plainfield, 4; Hasbrouck Heights, 4. Referee—O. E. A. Heywood.

LITTLE WATER TO FIGHT FIRE.

Low Pressure to Blame for Much Damage to Four Buildings.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Somerville, Feb. 21—Fire which started about 1 o'clock yesterday morning did much damage to four buildings. The flames originated from a stove in Charles Spector's house and spread rapidly. Mr. Spector was badly burned in his attempt to put out the fire.

The flames got into the attic and spread through the buildings adjoining for nearly half a block. The firemen were handicapped by a low pressure of water, but finally got the flames under control after the roofs and third floors of all the buildings were destroyed.

Charles Schwed and the Dougherty estate own the building. The loss, about $8,000, is covered by insurance.

Lace Curtains Caught Fire.

On Saturday evening last a serious conflagration was averted at the home of Valentine Utzinger, No. 75 Grandview avenue. Mrs. Utzinger changed the position of a lamp, placing it near a lace curtain. In a few minutes the curtain caught fire and was blazing fiercely when discovered by a son, John Utzinger, who promptly removed the lamp and extinguished the blaze.

Convincing Proof.

The Average Plainfield Citizen Must Accept the Following Proof.

The great Sir Isaac Newton, one of the most profound reasoners the world ever produced, once cut a large hole in a board fence to allow a favorite cat access to two gardens, and cut a smaller hole to allow her kitten to follow her. The weakness manifested in Sir Isaac's action was due to want of thought. Any Plainfield citizen who mentally debates the proof offered here about Doan's Kidney Pills and arrives at any other conclusion than that stated in this citizen's statement, is as short of reasoning powers as the philosopher when he turned carpenter.

Mr. P. J. Krettling, proprietor of barber shop and cigar store, living at No. 253 West Front street, says:—"I had all kinds of pains in my back and loins for five or six years. Standing all day at a barber chair aggravated the difficulty very much. If I stooped and remained in that position a short time it was very hard to straighten again and if I attempted to lift anything heavy, twinges caught me in the back. I used different kinds of plasters but they did not relieve me. After reading several statements in my paper about Doan's Kidney Pills curing people similarly afflicted, I made up my mind to try a box and procured them, and after a short time was entirely relieved. Doan's Kidney Pills not only cured the pain but they strengthened my back. My wife was troubled in a similar way and was also cured by Doan's Kidney Pills. We both consider them a good medicine and will gladly recommend them to anyone suffering from symptoms of disordered kidneys."

MILES' CHARGES DROOP

The General Did Nothing to Stop The Embalmed Supplies.

JUST TALKED AFTERWARD.

Says He Never Asserted That Tinned Beef Was Treated With Chemicals, but Referred to Refrigerated Beef—Miles Declares That Newspaper Interviews Were Incorrect.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—The court of inquiry appointed by the president to investigate the charges made by Major General Nelson A. Miles regarding the beef furnished to the army in the war with Spain held a brief executive session yesterday morning as stated, and perfected its organization. Major General James F. Wade presided.

All the members were in full uniform. The others present were Brigadier General George Davis, Colonel George L. Gillespie and Lieutenant Colonel Geo. G. Davis, recorder. After organizing, the court proceeded to the White House and was received by the president. From the White House the members went to the war department and paid their respects to Secretary Alger and General Miles.

The court reassembled at noon in the rooms formerly occupied by the war investigating commission.

Colonel Davis brought with him on his return from Cuba two cans of roast beef which were placed before the court for examination. After several minutes occupied in being photographed, Colonel Davis read the order convening the court. This was followed by the reading of a letter from the war department giving definite instructions to the court.

The members were then sworn, and General Miles was announced as the first witness. His examination was conducted by Colonel Davis, who inquired:

"Did you submit to the war investigating commission a statement?"

"Yes sir," answered General Miles.

Colonel Davis then submitted to General Miles a printed copy of his statement, indicating to him what referred to the question of beef supplies. This General Miles pronounced to be a correct report of his testimony, who explained that it had been supplemented by reports of regimental commanders.

Colonel Davis next called attention to an alleged interview in the New York Journal and asked General Miles if he had been correctly reported.

A clipping from the paper giving the interview was handed to General Miles. After carefully reading it he remarked:

"This reported interview, you will notice, has four or five statements saying I declined to give names of officers. I declined to reply to questions, and in fact I do not recall any allegations in that interview that had not been given before the war investigating commission, and also in official reports from me and other officers. As far as the interview is concerned, it is evidently written from the memory of the interviewer. As the press has been so kind to the army and to the enlisted men, I have given such information as I thought proper."

"That is hardly material to this interview," interposed Colonel Davis. "Can you say that any one statement is correct or incorrect? Does it incorrectly set forth in any respect what was said?"

"I don't think I could remember the newspaper man's face should I see him again. In regard to the action of the chemicals I would have to compare that with my testimony. It was never asserted that the canned beef was treated with chemicals. It has been asserted that refrigerated beef was and such information has come to me."

"Are you now prepared to say whether or not the interview is correct? Is it in the main correct?"

Blames the Interviewers.

"I do not think it is in the main correct," General Miles answered, at the same time again calling attention to the fact that he had declined to answer the questions of the reporter.

"Here is another interview in the Herald. What have you to say about it?"

"I have a letter from the gentleman who wrote this saying that he will swear that I declined to be interviewed, and that he, believing something had been given out, fixed this up."

General Miles pointed out several inaccuracies in the reported interview, and again explained:

"I have the statement that the writer will swear that I declined to be interviewed."

"Was that a fact that you declined to be interviewed?"

"There was this conversation: 'I decline to be interviewed. I decline to discuss the question, as it is before the proper authorities.'"

"Do you give as your answer that you did not give the interview or that it does not report you correctly?"

"It is not correct," was the reply of General Miles.

Colonel Davis then took up the statements of General Miles before the war commission, first calling attention to his remarks about the use of cattle on the hoof.

"You assumed in the beginning, then, that beef cattle on the hoof would be used in Cuba and Porto Rico?"

General Miles answered affirmatively, saying that from reports from officers, among them Captain Whitney, who was in Porto Rico as a spy, he believed that beef on the hoof was to be used in Cuba and Porto Rico. It was not supposed that cattle on the hoof would be procured in Cuba, but that such cattle would be shipped there from this country. He remarked that even now refrigerated beef was supplied the army in Porto Rico and carried to the troops through a country supplied with herds of cattle.

"You speak of them in your testimony as the finest beef cattle in the world. Are they large cattle?"

"No, they are small; but they are of good quality."

"Do the people of Porto Rico export their cattle?

"I am told so."

General Miles again said that refrigerated beef was being supplied to the troops on the sea coast and also in the interior. The conditions now were different from those during the war. Then there were no refrigerators on shore, and not enough ice for the hospitals.

"Would the freshly killed beef not have to be eaten quickly?"

"No, sir; no, sir. It would be killed at night, when it was cool, and would not spoil the next day as quickly as refrigerated beef, unless the latter had some artificial preservative that would keep it seventy-two hours."

Did Not Complain to the Department.

Gen. Miles made an explanatoin to the reports read by him to the commission about the canned beef. The commission had information that the officers making the reports had not been to Porto Rico, and it was in explanation of this that General Miles directed his remarks, saying that he had called for reports only from regular regiments, as they were familiar with the army ration, and many of these reports were from officers then in this country. What attracted attention to the canned beef were the reports about the weakness of the men who had been in Cuba.

"I thought that very unusual, and directed an investigation by asking the adjutant general to call for reports on the subject of the beef supply of the army."

"Did you inform the commissary general of this condition?"

"It is not my duty to report to the commissary general."

"But did you inform him?"

"No; I had not received my reports."

"Did you inform the secretary of war?"

"The rule of the office is that when I have an order to issue it goes to the adjutant general. I sent the order calling for reports to the adjutant general to be issued. Under the rules of the office it is his duty to call the attention of the secretary of war to such orders. I supposed that this had been done."

General Miles said that he first knew that canned beef was being issued to the men while in Porto Rico.

"Did you then call the attention of the secretary of war to this important matter of food?"

"I did not. I was not convinced that it was an improper article of food."

"You said that the canned beef was furnished as a 'pretence of experiment.' That was serious, and implied fraud," remarked Colonel Davis.

"As far as fraud is concerned I disclaim any such intention," quickly exclaimed General Miles. He added that while he had been under the impression that it was furnished as an experiment, it was not intended by him to say "pretence."

"I should have said theory," was his explanation.

Referring to the remark "embalmed" and the reference to the chemical treatment of refrigerated beef General Miles testified that he got his first idea about that from a report of Surgeon Daly, made, he believed, in the latter part of September. Later there were other references to processed beef. Some suspicion had been caused among army officers by reason of the contract for refrigerated beef calling for the beef to be in good condition seventy-two hours after delivery. He had also received a number of letters about the beef supply. Eighteen of these referred to "embalmed beef," five to "injected beef," three "poisoned" and one used the term "inoculated." Nearly all of these letters, however, were subsequent to Dr. Daly's report.

"What action was taken by you after the receipt of Dr. Daly's report?"

"The same action as in the canned beef."

"Was any preventive action taken?"

"No. I was informed that the contract called for delivery of beef that would keep seventy-two hours outside of refrigerators in a tropical country. I have other information that will be submitted to you later that I do not care at this time to divulge."

Colonel Davis announced that he had concluded his inquiry, and Colonel Gillespie inquired:

"Did you, on arrival at Ponce, eat any of this refrigerated beef?"

"I don't remember that I did."

"Was there any controversy among the officers about this beef?"

"I cannot recollect that there was."

General Miles said that he may have eaten refrigerated beef, but did not know it.

"Then you do not know that it possessed any distinguishing qualities from other fresh beef?" continued Colonel Gillespie.

"I do not."

General Miles was excused.

President Faure's Funeral.

Paris, Feb. 21.—In the Chamber of Deputies the premier, M. Dupuy, asked for a credit of one hundred and sixty thousand francs to defray the expenses of the obsequies of the late President Felix Faure.

M. Dejeante, Socialist, representing one of the districts of the department of the Seine, asked that the obsequies be purely civil.

This drew forth murmurs and protests from the Rightists and Centrists, who threatened to leave the Chamber.

The president of the Chamber of Deputies, M. Deschanel, interrupted M. Dejeante several times, calling upon him to respect the stricken family of the deceased.

Eventually M. Dejeante's motion was rejected by a vote of 444 to 68, and the credit was adopted by a vote of 463 to 42.

The Chamber unanimously decided to attend the departure of the body from the Elysee Palace on Thursday. A large multitude defiled before the coffin yesterday.

Congratulations for M. Loubet.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—The secretary of state has sent the following telegram to our ambassador at Paris:

"You will appropriately convey to President Loubet the president's most cordial congratulations on his elevation to the chief magistracy of the French republic, and the sincere wishes of the government and people of the United States for the continued welfare of the French nation.

Mr Porter's Trip Unofficial.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—It is stated on authority that Mr. Robert P. Porter's trip abroad has no connection whatever with the government. On his recent return from Cuba Mr. Porter declined for the present to accept another government mission, saying that it was his purpose to go abroad for a few weeks on private business.

Nine Years for Stephens.

Easton, Pa., Feb. 21.—Prof. Stephens, who was convicted on Saturday of setting fire to Pardee Hall, Lafayette College, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Scott to serve nine years in prison.

SCHLEY DEFENDS HIMSELF.

Unwilling to Rest Under Long's Charges of Reprehensible Conduct at Santiago.

Washington Feb. 21.—Commodore Schley's reply to the letter of Secretary Long regarding his course during the Santiago campaign was filed with the Naval Committee yesterday. Senator Perkins is a member of the committee in the absence of Senator Hale, and will lay the document before the committee at its regular meeting today. At the first executive session the injunction of secrecy will be removed and the document made public. It is long and is an elaborate defense of Schley's actions and a refutation of the criticisms of Sampson and Long.

Speaking of the "retrograde movements," which the secretary, adopting the language of Admiral Sampson, characterizes as "reprehensible conduct," Admiral Schley says that in forty-two years' service "never was such language used to characterize conduct of mine, and I see no reason for it now."

As to the battle of Santiago, Admiral Schley says the facts of that contest speak for themselves. He quotes from his official report to Sampson, in which he congratulated the commander of the squadron and said the "victory seems big enough for all of us," he asks the committee to contrast his reports and those of Sampson containing references to himself, and continues:

"As to all this criticism of my course prior to the discovery by me on May 29 of Cervera's fleet, whether from Admiral Sampson or the department, none of it has ever been made by either to me, and I never heard a word of it from anyone until after the battle with that fleet, although more than five weeks had passed since the alleged 'reprehensible conduct' had occurred. Although Admiral Sampson used this language to the secretary concerning me on July 10 (just one week after the battle), he has never to this day, in any manner or to any extent intimated to me any disapprobation, or made to me any criticism of my conduct of the flying squadron."

Admiral Schley quotes the department's dispatch of May 30 in these words: "The department looks to you to ascertain the fact of the presence of the enemy, and that the enemy, if in the harbor at Santiago, does not leave without decisive action." Commenting on this, the admiral says:

"In obedience to the above order and without any further order or instruction from any one, I did ascertain the fact that the enemy was at Santiago, and the enemy did not escape without a decisive conflict."

In conclusion Admiral Schley contends that the turn of the Brooklyn in the battle was "the crucial and deciding feature of the combat, and of decided advantage." Furthermore, he says it is a mistake ot say that the vessel's distance from the enemy was increased to the extent of eight hundred yards, and adds:

"Though this may not be of record, it is a fact, nevertheless."

He cites the fact that the charts of the board of navigators show that the Brooklyn was nearest when it emerged from the harbor, nearest at every stage of the battle, and nearest the Colon when she surrendered.

He says he made no report of his manoeuvre in his report of the battle, as its effect upon the battle was never a question with him. His last paragraph reads:

"On May 31 I received a telegram from the commander-in-chief congratulating me upon my success in locating and blockading the enemy's fleet at Santiago. If it was worthy of commendation at that time, I am at a loss to understand how it could have grown into 'reprehensible conduct' as suggested by Admiral Sampson in his letter of July 10, 1898, some six weeks later."

G. A. R. Must Elect Sexton's Successor

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 20.—Captain Torrance, judge advocate general of the G. A. R., has made his decision in the matter of the disputed succession to the national commandership made vacant by the death of Colonel Sexton of Chicago. The decision is that a successor must be elected; that there is no promotion in the G. A. R. through death. Captain Torrance holds that the executive committee of the national council has full power to elect the commander.

CONGRESS' LAST DAYS

The President Will Insist Upon An Adequate Army Bill.

OTHER IMPORTANT WORK.

Less Than a Fortnight Left to the Fifty-fifth Congress—Army Bill, Nicaragua Canal Bill and Anti-Scalping Bill Among the Important Measures Now Pending.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—Yesterday began the last full week of the Fifty-fifth Congress. One week from next Saturday, on March 4, the present Congress will expire by limitation of law, and unless an extra session of the new Congress is called, Washington will not see the legislators again until the first Monday in December.

Whether or not an extra session will be necessary depends altogether, perhaps, upon the developments of the next few days. It is the general opinion of public men here that if the legislation now asked for by the majority in Congress and by the administration is enacted, nothing will occur during the coming eight months to make the convening of the new Congress necessary. But the uncertainty of the present session is unprecedented. All of the most important work of this Congress has been so delayed that it now comes forward in apparently inextricable confusion, struggling for precedence in the closing twelve and a half days of the session. The list of important measures to which the Republican Congress and Republican administration are committed is most imposing, and fine parliamentary and political strategy, aided by all day and practically all-night sessions, must be put into practice from this day forward if the programme is to succeed.

The House of Representatives, with its habit of doing business in a business like way, assisted by Speaker Reed's code of rules that permit a vote to be taken when legitimate debate has been closed, has done its business well, and nearly, if not quite all, of the important measures struggling for passage in the lying hours of the session have already passed the House. The river and harbor bill, to which the Senate has added the Nicaragua canal bill as a rider, and the anti-scalping bill to secure the passage of which measure the railroads have again sent an important delegation to Washington for a last stand, have both passed the House, as well as the several big appropriation bills that are now pending in the Senate committee or on the Senate calendar.

The Senate is, of course, favorable to the Nicaragua canal bill, having passed it this session and previously, and its confrerees will make such a stubborn fight for it that the river and harbor bill itself will be endangered.

The anti-scalping bill was some time ago made the unfinished business of the Senate, but its friends have judiciously allowed it to give way from time to time for other and more popular measures.

They have no idea of abandoning it, however, and it may go through in the log rolling rush of the closing hours, when all things are possible, but is likely to be killed.

Bills That Should Pass.

The bill appropriating $20,000,000 for the payment of the indemnity to Spain having been ruled off the sundry civil appropriation bill as not "germane," will be passed as a separate measure, although Wheeler of Kentucky and one or two other short-sighted statesmen are at present standing in its way. They will be bowled over at the proper time, as there is no doubt of the bill's passage.

The important measures in addition to the army reorganization bill (the final bill, the anti-scalping bill and the river and harbor bill, are the bill for a form of government to Hawaii, the additional measure regulating contract labor in the islands, the Alaskan code bill and the administration measure known as the Hanna-Payne ship subsidy bill. A "subsidy measure," the Democrats call it. A "bill to aid the American merchant marine" is the Republican title. But under whatever name, it seems to be destined to defeat.

The Democrats, as a party, are arrayed against it, and neither Mr. Hanna in the Senate nor Leader Payne in the House is conducting a very energetic canvass in its behalf.

Friends of the army bill won a great victory yesterday when the Senate, by a vote of 44 to 26, took up that measure, and it was made the unfinished business.

The postoffice bill was before the Senate and threatened to consume all the day. About two o'clock Secretary Alger came to the Capitol and a conference was called by the Republican leaders in the Vice president's room. It was then determined to make a test.

General Hawley at once began to gather his forces. While the roll was being called there was intense excitement. The Democrats attempted to make objections, but they were not heeded, and the vote was taken. There were some surprises, among them being Senator Hoar's vote to take up the bill, and Senator Quay's vote against it. This latter is explained by saying that Quay is not against the army measure, but being in charge of the postoffice appropriation he did not want it put aside.

The silver Republicans voted against the bill, led by Teller and Pettigrew, but the Southern Democrats came out strongly for it, including Morgan, Lindsay, Pasco, Kenney, as well as Murphy of New York. These, besides Bacon and Clay of Georgia, will all vote for the bill, so there are really over fifty votes for it.

It is possible that while the reorganization bill will pass, some of the appropriation bills will fail, and thus be the cause of an extra session. The Democrats have concluded that the Hull bill practically, as now reported, will be passed. They have given up hope of adopting the Cockrell substitute, but will talk against the bill for some days hoping to force a compromise.

The president, however, is still firm against this, and General Hawley repeated yesterday before the vote that unless the reorganization bill passed an extra session would be called.

Senator Allison said: "As it now stands, no one can predict whether there will be an extra session or not. It remains with the Democrats to decide."

SECRETARY HITCHCOCK SWORN IN.

Secretary Bliss Will Once More Become a Man of Business in New York.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—Ethan Allen Hitchcock, the newly appointed secretary of the interior, called on the president yesterday to pay his respects and to arrange for entering upon his duties in the interior department.

Shortly after Mr. Hitchcock's visit, Secretary Bliss went to the White House and called on the president for probably the last time as secretary of the interior. It was arranged that the office business should be turned over to Mr. Hitchcock at his convenience.

Mr. Hitchcock was sworn into office in the afternoon and introduced by Secretary Bliss to the heads of bureaus of the department.

Secretary Bliss told a reporter that this was his last trip to Washington as an officer of the government. "Next time you see me," said he, "I will be plain Bliss. I expect to leave my position on Tuesday, and hope to return to New York about the middle of the week. I will renew my associations in business and settle down to a private life."

Pay for Cuban Army.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—It is proposed to reconcile the radical element among the Cubans to the American offer to pay the Cuban soldiers $3,000,000 by authorizing the Cuban municipalities and provinces to raise $7,000,000 additional by an issue of bonds. It is expected that the administration will sanction this plan.

General Gomez himself is expected to broach the scheme formally when he begins his conferences with General Brooke in Havana.

Gomez arrived yesterday at Matanzas, making his way very slowly toward the capital.

In addition to this, the United States government is to be asked to sanction the redemption, out of the customs receipts, of the bonds issued in aid of the Cuban rebellion, to the amount of $2,500,000.

Data, it is stated here, will be produced by the Cuban assembly to show that every cent of this sum was expended in legitimate war expenses.

Pleas for Mrs. Place.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 21.—A plea was made to Governor Roosevelt yesterday to exercise executive clemency in behalf of Mrs. Martha Place of Brooklyn, who is awaiting execution at Sing Sing prison for the murder of her stepdaughter, Ida Place.

The plea was made by Howard McSherry of New Brunswick, N. J., and Robert Van Iderstine of New York city, attorneys for the condemned woman. The hearing was in the main audience chamber of the executive suite.

Mr. Van Iderstine said he was personally of the opinion that Mrs. Place is insane and was at the time of the crime. He could not make that plea at the time of the trial because Mrs. Place told him she was innocent and reiterated that statement until Saturday last.

Ordered Mustered Out.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—The war department announces that orders have been given for the muster out of the following volunteer regiments:

At Savannah, Ga.—Third Georgia; Batteries A, B, C, D, Maine Artillery; 202d New York volunteers.

At their present camps at Augusta, Ga., and Greenville, S. C.—Third Alabama, Third Connecticut, Fifth Massachusetts, Thirty-fifth Michigan, Fifteenth Minnesota, Fourth New Jersey, 201st New York, 203d New York, Tenth Ohio, First Rhode Island, Second West Virginia.

This order discharges all the volunteers remaining in the United States.

Sampson at the Bermudas.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—The advance guard of the North Atlantic squadron, composed of the flagship New York and the battleship Indiana, arrived at the Bermudas yesterday and reported to the navy department by cable.

Admiral Sampson also said that William J. Brownley, a first class gun captain, was swept overboard Friday morning from the Indiana. The squadron was between three and four days in making the trip from New York to the Bermudas, owing to the terrible weather.

They will proceed to Havana.

Khedivah Has a Boy.

Alexandria, Feb. 21.—The khediviah has given birth to a son at Montazat. There are great rejoicings because the khedive has an heir to the throne.

Abbas Hilmi, khedive of Egypt, succeeded to the throne on the death of his father, Mohammed Tewfik, on January 7, 1892. He married the Princess Ikbal Hanem. They have three daughters. There had been some talk of deposing the khedive and placing his only brother, Mohammed Ali, on the throne.

Joint High Commission Adjourns.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—The Anglo-American joint high commission yesterday decided to adjourn until midsummer, when it will reassemble to seek to agree finally on the pending questions in difference between the United States and Canada. Agreement on several of the most important issues pending is apparently impossible at this time.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the head of the Canadian commissioners, left for Ottawa last night.

A Medium Guilty of Assault.

New York, Feb. 21.—The jury in the trial of Dr. Henry R. Rogers, a spiritualist, brought in a verdict of guilty, with a recommendation to mercy.

Dr. Rogers was accused of having, at a spiritualistic seance, at No. 100 East Seventy-sixth street, in 1898, attempted to strike a detective with a hatchet when the officer tried to expose the fraud of his performance. Dr. Rogers was remanded to the Tombs until Friday, when he will be sentenced.

No Monday Quorum at Harrisburg.

Harrisburg Pa., Feb. 21.—The twenty-ninth ballot for United States senator resulted as follows here yesterday: Quay, Republican, 9; Jenks, Democrat, 4; Grow, Republican, 1; paired two hundred. There was no quorum

TAMMANY'S BIG STRIKE

AFTER RICH CORPORATIONS

Croker Says Justice Shall be Done—The Principal Move is to Oust the Elevated Structure from New York's Battery Park Where It Has Stood for Twenty Years.

New York, Feb. 21.—There was an interesting rumor yesterday that the avowed purpose of Messrs. Gould and Sage to equip the Manhattan system with electric power had brought much of the trouble which has just manifested itself as coming from the direction of Tammany Hall. Mr. Croker is largely interested in compressed air as a motive power for railroads. Certain Tammany Hall leaders would like to see a change in the Manhattan management before the contracts for motive power are determined upon.

In an interview yesterday morning Richard Croker posed as the champion of the people's rights, and said he is after other corporations. He said:

"There is but one thing in this matter that Tammany wants, and that is justice. Tammany was returned to power in this city because a majority of the citizens thought that the big corporations were not respecting the rights of the people. We were put into office to see if the people could not get back something which belonged to them. We want Battery Park for one thing. That belongs to the people, and Tammany will see that the people get what's coming to them. Then we want better service from the Manhattan railroad. We want a clean service. We want well ventilated cars and we don't want to get the pneumonia every time the guards open the doors. Vestibules on the cars in winter would prevent the people from catching colds when the doors were opened. We want clean cars. We don't want those dirty rope mats which absorb all kinds of disease germs. The mats ought to be of some material which could be easily cleaned.

"If the Manhattan had the interest of the people at heart it would not have allowed a week to go by without fixing the accommodations at the stations. Half of the water pipes which broke in the stations in the cold snap last week are still unrepaired. For that reason the rooms in many of the stations have been closed. We want quick service at night and more cars in the day time so that business men need not stand up all the way to and from Harlem during the busy hours.

"Our policy is one at a time. After we have set everything in motion to see that the people get justice from the Manhattan, other street railways will receive attention from Tammany. We want all corporate interests to do justice to the people who put us in office. Financiers may call this persecution, if they will. I don't care. It isn't persecution. It is a desire on our part to see that justice is done. We want these corporations to obey the law made by the peoples representatives; not to make laws for themselves and override the will of the people."

The Elevated's Side.

The Manhattan directors still have a few cards left, and while no positive information was obtainable, it was reported that the Tammany authorities may find themselves held up as the worst obstructions to the improvement of the elevated system.

In fact, it is possible that at the meeting of stockholders of the Manhattan on February 28, originally called for the purpose of ratifying the plan to change the motive power on the elevated system and to provide other improvements for the public, it may be voted to give up for the present all such plans. For if a part of their property may be taken away from them, some of the heaviest holders of Manhattan securities argued yesterday, what is the use of spending money to improve it?

The directors of the Manhattan Elevated Railroad were not prepared yesterday to make any open answer to the attack on the corporation by Tammany Hall. If an open fight should come there will be interesting revelations affecting the stock market and the desire of influential men in Tammany to force a sale of the Manhattan road to the men who control the Metropolitan Traction Company. Judge Dillon, it is understood, has advised against any statement at this time by the owners of a majority interest in the Manhattan, but it is said that at the proper time the facts will be forthcoming.

The improvements demanded by the board of health along the route of the "L" roads will, it is said, have to be carried out by the company, and it is asserted that the municipal assembly will find other means of causing a money outlay by the Manhattan directors. This, with the expense involved in changing from steam to electricity, would cause a fall in the quoted values of the stock, and of course the future of the property would be in financial danger should Tammany force the company at enormous expense to buy the right of way over or through private property to the Battery.

Tammany's demand that the Manhattan system shall get out of the Battery Park before the end of August is not taken seriously by those who are well informed. Should the Manhattan people fail by any other means they would be forced to compromise with the interests that are now attacking them. Those who are on intimate terms with the Goulds say that there will be no compromise, and that Tammany Hall will be prevented from interfering with the operation of the road through the park.

The Gould interests are confident on this point, and the rise in the stock 2½ points yesterday in a few hours showed that the Tammany men who expected to realize large profits by a sudden fall in prices, will be badly hurt if they remain in the market.

Fitz's Money Attached.

New York, Feb. 21.—Fitz and Julian posted a $2,500 forfeit in this city, and now it has been attached by a combination which rendered the Australian some assistance several years ago. Forfeits of this kind will be scarce hereafter.

FIRE HORSES TO GO.

AUTOMOBILE FIRE TRUCKS TO BE INTRODUCED IN THIS COUNTRY.

A Noiseless, Invisible Motor Will Do the Work More Efficiently—The Idea Has Much in Its Favor, and Will Doubtless be Used in All Large Cities.

Science has killed the fire horse. Before long the noble hero of a thousand mad races for life or death will be no more. The automatic fire truck has come to take his place, and soon every fire department of importance in the United States will be in possession of one of the latest inventions.

The new automatic fire truck will be in every way a more practical and efficient aid to fire fighters than its more picturesque predecessor, but from an artistic or sensational standpoint there will doubtless be many persons who will regret the passing of the fire horse.

The inspiring sight of a bare headed driver, with loose reins and slender whip, urging his three big horses to greater speed, will give place to the cool headed motorman, sitting in the driver's seat, increasing or reducing speed as the occasion may warrant by the simple turning of a lever, and guiding the apparatus in a similar manner.

In appearance the automatic fire truck does not differ greatly from the hook and ladder truck of to-day. There is the same arrangement of ladders along the body of the truck, the same footboard for the crew, and the manipulation of the rear steering gear is the same. The radical difference is in the arrangement of the front wheels and the driver's seat.

The motive power of this automobile is what is known as a compressed air gas engine of continuous running design.

The engine which furnishes the motive power is placed just above the front axle and directly beneath the driver's seat. A system of cog wheels and levers acts directly between the engine and the front wheels; in fact, the engine machinery, which is very simple and consists principally of cog wheels, is located directly in front of the engine, almost beneath the footboard of the apparatus.

Extending upward from the machinery, through the footboard, and reaching to a height a little above the driver's seat, are two levers, which resemble those in common use on cable cars. One of these levers is used for the double purpose of steering the machine and as a brake, while the other lever controls the speed of the engine.

The engine is so constructed that when the driver takes his seat and grasps the left hand lever the whole apparatus is ready to start. By simply drawing the lever toward himself the driver sets the truck in motion. The cogs on the lever, which work the wheels, fall into another set of cogs which work directly from the engine, and the start is made.

A most peculiar feature is found in the fact that, in order to stop the truck it is not necessary to stop the engine. A forward pressure on the left hand lever throws the cogs out of place, and a pull on the right hand lever applies the compressed air brakes. Should this not stop the progress of the truck in sufficiently short time, the cogs can be thrown back into place and the engine reversed and an entire set of other brakes applied to the rear wheels of the truck.

The truck can be driven at a speed of forty miles an hour if necessary and in order that it can travel at a high rate of speed over smooth and slippery pavements, the tires of the wheels are roughened and provided (like a horse's hoof) with calks or short spikes. This improvement has been found to be most successful, especialy in turning sharp curves.

Another great advantage of the new invention is found in the fact that the motive power being so completely under control it can be used immediately for elevating an extension ladder, which is of the greatest importance both in the fighting of fires and the saving of human life.—New York Herald.

McPherson the Winning Name.

The London and China Telegraph says that in Otago, New Zealand, where Scotchmen are in the majority, a contract for mending a road was to be let, and the most acceptable bid was signed "McPherson." Notice was sent to the said McPherson to complete the contract, and lo! he appeared in all the glory of yellow hue and pigtail! "But," gasped the president of the Board, "your name can't be McPherson?" "All lightee," cheerfully answered John Chinaman, "nobody catchee contlact in Otago unless he named Mac." The contract was signed and the Mongolian McPherson did the work as well as if he had hailed from Glasgow.

Sufferers from Gun Discharging.

Krupp guns are certainly not desirable neighbors even in times of peace. The inhabitants of Essen suffer much in nerves and house property from the trials of the heavy guns close by. Many houses and walls show large fissures from the shocks, and others are actually unsafe. At the latest experiments all the doors and windows in one quarter of Essen flew open at every discharge, while one house had thirty panes of glass broken.—Tid-Bits.

A Rare Dish.

"Your majesty," said the chief of the King of the Cannibal Islands, "we have in the larder to-day a couple of fine fat captives who say they are twins. What is your royal pleasure?"

"Twins?" replied the potentate. "That is fine. I have an idea. Serve them both at dinner, and the Queen and myself will eat a philopena."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Beef for the Sailor.

Not the least of the curious facts brought out by the beef controversy, and a fact that is not generally known, relates to the beef that is bought for the merchant marines of the world. An old ship's surgeon has furnished a statement that the beef served to the men on the best of the steamship lines has often been in the stores of the British navy for three years, after which it is sold at auction and is generally bought up by the commissary department of the steamship lines. If it is not used up within a year or so, it is resold and bought up by smaller lines and tramp steamers and finally reaches the whaling craft. This authority says that he has seen many a cask of meat on a transatlantic steamer bearing the marks of Aden, Calcutta, Bombay, Melbourne and San Francisco, showing that the meat had been making voyages for three or four years and traveling all over the world, and he testifies from personal knowledge that meat kept in this way so long becomes green and black around the bone and the bone becomes soft. That it is fit food for men is absurd, but the poor sailors have grown accustomed to it and they take it rather than go without meat at all.

It seems hardly credible that morbid Paris, in its search for sensations, should resort to surgical operations. But the statement is circumstantially telegraphed that the latest craze of the gilded youth of Paris is for stereoscopic exhibitions of surgical operations in which the subject and the operators are shown in action, and a great deal of satisfaction is expressed that at last a genuine sensation has been reached. A few more discoveries and Paris will not need to have a revolution. The ghastly evidences of degeneracy in the gay capital have reached no worse exhibition than this. But what are we to think of the men of science who allow a private operation to be photographed to make public amusement for the crowd?

On every side the Justice of Peace system seems to be getting hard knocks. Yesterday's Newark Advertiser takes an editorial whack as follows: "As long as the office of Justice of the Peace exists some method should be devised of looking into the characters of candidates for this office. Ordinarily no attention is paid to the candidates in elections, who are voted for without inquiry and without the least regard for their fitness. The legal fraternity, which is jealous of the standing of the State judiciary, has also an interest also in the personnel of the petty magistracy, and it could not do a better service than that of investigating and making publicly known the character and antecedents of candidates for Justice of the Peace."

No appointment which Governor Voorhees has made or will make in the future is more merited than the nomination of Charles H. Baxter, of Plainfield, to succeed himself as State Superintendent of Public Schools. The principal part of Mr. Baxter's life work has been with educational matters and in such a way as to put him in close touch with the varied conditions and needs that the public schools constantly bring to the attention of their official head in the State. During his previous three year term Supt. Baxter successfully adopted several innovations in the conduct of his office that experience has proven to have well-timed and chosen. It is a gratifying fact for Plainfielders to know that so creditable an official is a resident of this city.

In another part of today's Press will be found a portion of an address delivered by former Mayor Saunders, of the borough, on the project of consolidating Plainfield and North Plainfield into one municipality. Mr. Saunders had made an exhaustive study of the consolidation question, and what he says will be recognized as important and interesting at this time in view of the fact that North Plainfield voters will be given a chance to express their opinion on the matter in an informal manner at the approaching borough election.

If the French republic elected a successor to its dead President by popular ballot it is doubtful if there would be any Frenchmen left to vote when election day arrived. When it comes to political excitement and chicanery France easily leads the world.

One of the questions of importance that will come up in the borough after the election next month will be the erection of a building for a borough hall.

Assemblyman King's pure beer bill is said to be doomed to defeat. Perhaps the collar on it is not large enough for the Legislators to get hold of.

This week, at least, the Legislature will have no blizzards to excuse their failure to do something in the line of actual work.

The Daily Press will not be issued tomorrow, it being a legal holiday.

ENGINE TO OPERATE HITE'S AIRSHIP.

Professor Charles E. Hite's new airship, which is about ready to be launched at Trenton, N. J., is a balloon in the shape of an egg, inflated with hydro-carbon gas and driven through the air by means of fans operated by an engine. To the engine is attached a car made of steel tubing. A carbon dioxide engine is placed in the center of the car and connected by a rope belt with the fans.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Instead of expending a million dollars additional to complete the Rahway Reformatory it would be far better to use the completed part for the State Arsenal and devote $200,000 to placing an additional wing on the State Prison at Trenton, covering the ground where the old arsenal building now is. By this means the penal management could be brought under one head, as it should be. The new wing could be made subject to distinctive features that would classify it as a reformatory, and the annual expense of running it would not be one-quarter that of maintaining the Rahway institution.—Camden Telegram.

Col. Julian Scott's trusted companion in his studio for the last few years has been a big cat. The cat lives in the Colonel's apartments in the Stillman building and seems to possess almost human intelligence. The fact has just come to light that it was this same cat that first gave the alarm of fire that aroused the town when it was supposed that the Stillman building was afire. It happened that afternoon that the Colonel was taking a nap on the lounge in his room. He was awakened by the cat which carefully tried to pull open his eyelids with its paws, earnestly meowing all the time. The cat's efforts finally aroused the Colonel who opened his eyes to find the room full of smoke. Then the Colonel took measures at once to get the fire department whereat the cat stopped crying and quietly viewed operations from a secluded vantage point. The Colonel valued cat greatly before but it has now attained even greater value in his eyes.

Mexico has never had a case of consumption until within the last three years, and it is said by competent authorities that the germs of the disease were brought into the country by American invalids.

The custom of throwing old shoes and rice has prevailed for many years in America, England and Scotland. It came from the eastern nations and was originally intended as a sign of relinquishment by the relatives of their authority over the bride.

Harry D. Cooper, known among tramps as "Railroad Jack, the Hammock Rider," says he has traveled over 100,000 miles in the last ten years, riding under a box car. He does most of his riding at night, and is fairly comfortable, having a cover to the hammock that keeps out the dust.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15 and 25c.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another great discovery has been made, and that, too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night, and with two bottles has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help, but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion build up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, druggist. Guaranteed.

Opportunities.

Every day offers some new opportunity for women's work, because every day creates some new necessity. The incessant demand for novelty is considered, by some people, to be the great evil of modern life; but it is undoubtedly a blessing to the class of women who are called "reduced gentlewomen."

This is, unfortunately, an ever growing class, perhaps because the gentlewoman who now considers herself "reduced" would have seemed, a few years ago, to have, if not a comfortable, at least a tolerable existence. The sudden cessation of luxuries that comes to many women when the bread winner meets with death or disaster plunges them at once into this body of reduced gentlewomen, and they begin to look for some way of earning money to provide if not the luxuries at least the semblance of them.

The production of staple articles is in the hands of trained workmen, and it is in catering to the fads and caprices of society that the novice finds her most lucrative field. A modern mother, who is perhaps a leader of faddists, has determined to have her children brought up on the music of the future. Unable to find a nurse who is capable of singing Wagner to these unfortunate infants, she employs a young gentlewoman to croon Wagnerian lullabies for the morning nap and the night's repose. This might seem to be a joke, but it is a serious determination on the mother's part, and it offers an acceptable livelihood to the singer.

Again, a butterfly of society likes to have exclusive designs for her gowns; so she has in her employ a young woman who does nothing but invent lovely costumes, making water color sketches of milady's appearance in daring color combination and original shapes and fashions. This employee was, not many years ago, as well able to buy gowns as her present employer, and, if rank in America were dependent upon birth or pedigree, would far outclass her.

Every one knows the story of the old Indian who said, "I like to see white girl work." Perhaps, in the grande dame's willingness to employ her less fortunate sister, there is some of this aboriginal quality; or perhaps it is only a gratification of the desire to patronize—which desire is of course quite foreign to American ideas of equality, but which, nevertheless, is latent in every human breast.—Puritan.

The Art of Praising Our Friends.

No, we do not remember to say nice things to one another, or rather we do not make the effort to say those nice things we are often actually thinking.

It is not that we mean to be grudging of our praise, nor are we restrained by delicacy, but we just do not think of opening our mouth and unclosing our teeth on the pleasant thought that would give Mary undeniable pleasure. There, no doubt, have been times when you yourself have worn a new gown or made some conspicuous effort of one kind or another, and found a friend utterly silent on the subject—so silent that you thought she had no good thing to say, and so kindly held her tongue; then later (through more thoughtful channels) trickles to you a warm approval that she had spoken behind your back.

Behind-the-back approval is extremely valuable, more so than before the face, of course, but somehow it is never so sweet.

Flattery? It is not flattery to speak of a true admiration. It is rather a duty to do so than to refrain. The use of clean, honest praise is not its abuse. It costs more effort to speak pleasant thoughts aloud than to think them in silence, and when one feels irritable or tired the effort is greater to thus make one's self very pleasant; but there is no doubt whatever about the duty in the case.

I once saw a father walk up to a map his little boy had made and pinned on the wall. He stood before it a long time in silence, and in silence walked away. The little fellow was sitting in the room, and his father knew he was there. He was watching with his eager child's eyes, waiting anxiously for a word of approval. As none came his poor little face fell unhappily. Straight into the next room walked the father, and said, carelessly:

"Robert has drawn a very clever little map in there. Look at it when you go in."

"Did you tell him it was clever?" asked a judicial listener, following from the room where little Robert still sat.

"Why, no. I ought to have done so. I never thought to mention it."

"Well, you ought to be ashamed of yourself," was the deserved reply. "Go back now and tell him."

We ought all of us to be ashamed of ourselves a dozen times a day for like sins of omission. It costs so little to say nice things, and the result in another's pleasures is out of all proportion to our trouble.

An Ideal Cosmetic Box.

A dear old Quaker lady who was asked what gave her such a lovely complexion and what cosmetic she used replied sweetly: "I use for the lips, truth; for the voice, prayer; for the eyes, pity; for the hands, charity; for the figure, uprightness, and for the heart, love."

Smart for Street Wear.

A stylish design for alpaca, cachemire, faced cloth, canvas, plain or fancy silk, &c. The six-gore skirt, measuring 4½ yards at hem, would be used for lining and material, and made up together, interlining foot apart about 9 inches up with horsehair cloth, cut the same shape as gores, and stitched in with seams. Place center of front and back to a fold in material to avoid seam, the side of back gore to selvedge, and the line of oblong holes, running lengthways down the side gore, on exact straight of material, while on to the back part of side gore a small piece has to be joined as shown by the round perforations. The foot of skirt is trimmed with narrow braid, immediately below which is arranged fancy braid, put on as illustrated, the trimming line being indicated on pattern by round perforations, while carried entirely around skirt is a border of the fancy braid.

The front, also front part of side gore as far as round as perforation, are fitted plain into the band, the remainder of side gore eased, while the back gore, also the back itself, are gathered into the band, the placket-hole being formed on left side. The fitted lining bodice would have the front darts stitched up, then join on the side pieces and back, but leave the shoulder seams andone for the present. Cover with the material front and back, which can be of chiffon, muslin, silk, satin, &c., and which cut without a seam down back, and stitch back and front, together by the under arm seam. Gather the neck and shoulders which draw up to lining size and tack to same, also round armhole, and gather waist, back and front on to lining, hooking fronts down center. The Zouave is to be cut without a seam down the back, and stitched to the front by the under-arm seam, then tack to armhole of bodice, also shoulder and neck, while now the shoulder seam can be stitched, thus fixing lining, material, and Zouave shoulder all firmly together. Zouave can be lined with silk.

The short basque is worn inside skirt and the waist banded with ribbon, tied at back in a smart bow, or fastened beneath a rosette. Coat-shaped sleeve, the under of which use for cutting both lining and material. Cover lining upper with material upper, the shoulder fulness of which gather to lining size. Stitch upper and under together by inner and outer seams, where the fulness at elbow in upper sleeve between the two notches is to be gathered to corresponding space on under sleeve. Face up wrist with sarcenet, and finish with the braid trimming.

An Umbrella Holder.

The device for holding umbrellas can be made of leather or of canvas and meets a great need in the household. In the first place it will create a definite place for canes and umbrellas and secondly it will keep the umbrella silk from getting dust and hall-worn. Pockets at the sides are intended for riding gloves.

Grey—"That's all right. A woman, you know, is hardly ever able to remember what's trumps."—Boston Transcript.

A Dressy Gown.

A dressy gown for striped or plain serge, cachemire, alpaca, faced cloth, crepon goods, satin merv or brocaded goods, filled in at the neck with plain soft silk or chiffon. The seven gore skirt is arranged for 42-inch goods, and measures 4¾ yards around the hem, where it should be interlined nine inches deep with horsehair cloth, cut the same shape as each gore and stitched in with each seam. The front is placed to a fold to avoid a seam, the front sides of each of the other gores placed to the selvedge, the front and two sides being shaped to the waist, and the back gore formed into a single pleat towards the back; then it folds under once at side, which covers where it joins to the side, thus forming a single box-pleat; and when the entire back is made up there are two box-pleats, between which the placket hole is formed down center back. The bodice has a lining front shaped by two darts, the pattern for which use for cutting left and right sides, and again use it for cutting left material front which make up with lining in the usual way, arranging center to hook.

The neck part of each front is filled in with a yoke of plain material, gathered round neck, along the shoulder, also across the figure, and with the fitted front hook down center. The right front is covered with the material front, slip-stitched plain to yoke, and joined in with right lining shoulder, armhole and side seam, the waist fulness being arranged in two single pleats either side to fall toward center. The left half of this front must be faced back on the wrong side with a piece of sarcanet or ribbon, round the top, along shoulder, also down the straight edge, where hooks are to be sewn on, so that after hooking fitted fronts down center this double-breasted part can hook over to the left side, where it is outlined with a frill of accordion-pleated chiffon, lace, lisse, &c., the square neck being outlined with passementerie. The two side pieces and French back are cut in lining and fancy silk, which make up together in the usual way, the pointed basque being faced up on the wrong side with sarcenet, and finished with a piece of folded ribbon, mitred front and back, and finished on the left side with a bow. The band collar cut in canvas, line sarcenet, and cover with the full collar of plain material, this being cut on the cross, and without a seam down front, then rucked round the band, to which is secured across back and round right front, but from center front across left side it must be left detached and hooked at back, then finished at upper edge with a lace frill. The under sleeve is to be used for cutting lining and material, which tack and make up together; then cover lining upper with material upper, and stitch to under sleeve by the inner and outer seams, while elbow fulness in upper sleeve is gathered to space on under sleeve as notches show. Where the lining and material upper sleeves are cut up at the wrist the material and lining edges are to be turned in together and slip-stitched down, the wrist being faced up on the wrong side, with sarcenet and edged with a lace frill, while shoulder fulness gathers to lining size.

A Waste Paper Basket.

The Empire style of needle work will greatly beautify this quaintly-shaped basket. The basket itself should be made of thin red mahogany and the cloth pattern will be found easy of adjustment to the side. To add to the effectiveness of the needle work design the other three sides can be prettily hand-painted, and a waste-paper basket will then be "a thing of beauty and a joy forever."

Strelitz. Das hiesige Technikum wurde im Schuljahr 1898 von 894 Personen besucht; 169 davon haben sich nach bestandener Vorprüfung der Hauptprüfung unterzogen und auch diese bestanden. Die Gesammtzahl der Absolventen während der verflossenen 48 Kurse, in denen die Lehrweise des Einzel- und Gruppenunterrichts, die eine erhebliche Kürzung und Verbilligung der Gesammtstudienzeit zuläßt, geübt wurde, beträgt 1083. Am Technikum Strelitz bestehen Abtheilungen für Hochbau, Tiefbau, Maschinenbau und Elektrotechnik. Von diesen hat die Abtheilung für Elektrotechnik im letzten Jahre eine wesentliche Steigerung der Frequenzerfahren. Da die Lehrweise des Technikums den täglichen Eintritt gestattet, haben sich auch in diesen Tagen wieder zahlreiche Neueintretende eingefunden.

Kaiserslautern. Im Walde bei Enkenbach wurde eine große Zigeunerhochzeit gefeiert, bei der der Schnaps in Strömen floß. Sieben Wagen voll der vagirenden Gesellen, die elf Bären bei sich hatten, nahmen daran theil. Den Schluß bildete eine Keilerei, so daß die Gendarmerie einschreiten mußte.

Landstadt. Ein gräßlicher Selbstmord ereignete sich in der Nähe von hier. Der verheirathete Maurer Brechtel kam auf das Forsthaus Weilach und verlangte von dem Förster Guggert einen Strick, um sich aufzuhängen. Natürlich wurde ihm das verweigert. Brechtel ging darauf niedergeschlagen weg und stürzte sich von einem 50 Meter hohen Steinbruche herab. Dort fanden ihn Passanten mit zerschmettertem Rückgrat todt vor.

Pirmasens. Dieser Tage brannte die bedeutende Schuhfabrik von Heinz nieder. Ein großes Lager von Schuhwaaren wurde vernichtet. Der Schaden beläuft sich auf 250,000 Mark.

Stuttgart. Die zweite Kammer lehnte mit 72 gegen 11 Stimmen den Antrag ab, der Kammer der Standesherren das Recht einzuräumen, bei etwaigen künftigen Erhöhungen der direkten Steuern diese Erhöhungen als Gesetz zu behandeln, so daß die Kammer der Standesherren gleichberechtigt darüber zu entscheiden habe. Dieses Recht besaß die zweite Kammer bisher allein. In Folge dieses Beschlusses ist die ganze Reform der direkten Steuern in Württemberg gescheitert. — Die Verdeutschung einzelner militärischer Fremdausdrücke wurde auch beim württembergischen Armeekorps eingeführt.

Eßlingen. Bei der Ziehung der Lotterie des Schwäbischen Frauenvereins fiel der erste Gewinn mit 10,000 Mark und der dritte mit 2000 Mark an zwei Fabrikarbeiter in benachbarten Orten. Beide Gewinner sind in bescheidenen Verhältnissen.

Geislingen. Hier ist ein Schwarzer, der als „Reichslehrer Milo Zampa" im Lande und auch im hiesigen Gewerbeverein über Kamerun Vorträge hielt, von einem Herrn, der mehrere Jahre in Kamerun lebte, als Schwindler entlarvt worden. Der Schwarze konnte die an ihn gerichteten Fragen über Kameruner Verhältnisse nicht beantworten. Das Kolonialamt (Auswärtiges Amt), sowie das orientalische Seminar in Berlin, in dem Zampa zum Reichslehrer ausgebildet sein will, depeschirten, Zampa sei dort unbekannt.

Leutkirch. Dieser Tage erschoß sich hier im Ufergrund des nahegelegenen Stadtweihers Schultheiß und Geometer Adolf Wörner aus Heiningen, Oberamts Göppingen. Durch Postkarte benachrichtigte er das hiesige Stadtschultheißamt von seinem Entschlusse. Wörner hatte noch eine Baarschaft von 200 Mark bei sich.

Ulm. In der Bleiche und Appreturanstalt von Hartmann brach in der seit langer Zeit mit der Bleicherei verbundenen Flachsrösterei Feuer aus und fand hier so reichliche Nahrung, daß bald das ganze Gebäude in Flammen stand; auch das anstoßende Waschtrockenhaus wurde vom Feuer ergriffen. Die Feuerwehr mußte ihre Thätigkeit darauf beschränken, die übrigen Gebäude zu schützen. Die vom Feuer ergriffenen Gebäude sind vollständig ausgebrannt.

AMERICA'S NEW GEM.

IT WAS FOUND IN MEXICO AND FIRST EXHIBITED IN CHICAGO.

It Is Christened Cyclops—History of the Name—The Stone is Cut and Mounted Like an Opal—The Third Semi-Precious Stone Found in This Country.

At one of the Chicago jewelry stores a new stone has been placed on sale which has never been shown anywhere else in the world. The stone is called the cyclops and is peculiar and original in every respect. It was first found by an opal miner in an extensive mine near the City of Mexico. The miner, in order to ascertain whether he had discovered anything of practical value, sent some to Chicago to have them examined. The stones were cut, and it was found that they made very beautiful ornaments for jewelry.

In the rough, the stones have much the appearance of a rose on the upper side, and vary in size from a large pea to a penny. In the center on the under side of each one is a single little nodule of quartz of a reddish color. When the stone has been smoothly cut this little red spot plainly shines through the clear substance of the stone, and from this the stone is given its name—the cyclops. The clear quartz substance, which is chalcedony, has apparently accumulated on the red colored nodule in strata, and in general shape resembles a hemisphere with the red ball in the middle of the flat side.

The stone is entirely new and has been so pronounced by all experts who have seen it. The same specimens, which are now in Chicago, were taken to Europe and were there exhibited to some of the best known specialists, who pronounced them beautiful and well worth developing.

The present value placed upon the stone is about the same as that of the opal, varying according to the beauty and quality of each individual specimen. The lapidary gives the cyclops the same cutting as he gives the opal, called en cabochon. In this cutting, as is well known, no facets are cut, but instead, a smooth rounding surface.

The finding of a new stone is of considerable importance in the mineralogical world. It happens so seldom that a discovery always attracts much wide attention and considerable comment. In our own country only three semi-precious stones have been found which are not in the other parts of the world.

America's first discovery, peculiar to its own soil, was found about forty years ago on Isle Royal in Lake Superior. This stone was called the chlorastrolite.

The second stone which was a native of America only, was found about fifteen years ago in North Carolina. It was found by a man named Hidden and after him was called the Hiddenite.

Next in discovery to the hiddenite comes the cyclops. As a gem of value and in all probability in popularity the cyclops will outrank either of its predecessors.—Chicago Times-Herald.

ANOTHER BRIGADIER GERARD.

He Understood His Worth and Had No Fear in Proclaiming It.

There is something so bluntly honest and bold in the self-criticism of a man who appreciates his own virtues, that it may well appal the soul unaccustomed to confidence. Says the author of "John Bull's army": An English General, in reviewing a corps of cavalry, suddenly stopped before a splendid-looking fellow, and asked abruptly:

"Which is the best horse in the regiment?"

"Number Forty, sir."

"What makes you think it is the best horse?"

"He walks, trots, and gallops well; is a good jumper, has no vice, no blemish, carries his head well, is in his prime."

"And who is the best soldier in the regiment?"

"Tom Atkins, sir."

"Why?"

"Because he is a honorable man, is obedient, tidy, takes good care of his equipment and his horse, and does his duty well."

"And who is the rider of the best horse?"

"Tom Atkins, sir."

"And who is Tom Atkins?"

"I am, sir."

The General could not help laughing, but he gave a sovereign to his informant, who received it without moving a muscle.

Tale of a Cat.

Jim is a very intelligent cat who is the pride of all the clerks in a well-known business house on Market street. It happened that a young lady, entered the store in question, wishing to pay a bill. She was told to take a seat on a large settee while the office boy obtained the receipt. Now, the back of this settee rests against a railing which incloses the office. This railing is very much like a backyard fence, and for that reason is a favorite place for Jim. He was in this place when the lady took her seat, and he cast admiring glances at her. She was neatly attired in black, and had a large stuffed bird in her hat. Everything went well until Jim spied this bird, and with a jump he was on her hat, much to the alarm and fright of the lady, who instantly jumped to her feet, screaming loudly. Jim was quickly removed, but could not be driven away while the lady remained in the store.—Philadelphia Record.

Startled.

On a recent Sunday in a church in Dublin the choir was startled during the singing of the psalm by the appearance of the organ-blower's head, who shouted out:

"Sing like fury! The bellows is busted!"—Pearson's Weekly.

JAKE'S DEVOTION.

He Fell in Love but Once and Never Deviated from His Allegiance.

One day my grandfather brought home a new horse, one that he had taken in some trade; hitched with a halter to the back of a wagon, he was, when he entered his new home, because, forsooth, my grandfather had not been able to mount him to ride him home, says a contributor to the Philadelphia "Inquirer."

"That's a fine lookout," said my grandmother, as she stood on the long porch at the back of the house and heard this account of things, "and you say he's dangerous in harness, too—I admire your bargain, John."

"Well, it was this brute or nothing on that debt, and he's a fine fellow if he wasn't so ill-tempered. Come here and look him over yourself, Emmy," so said my grandfather to my grandmother, for one was as good a judge of horseflesh as the other, and that is saying a good deal for both.

All this time the new horse stood or pranced listlessly, while a negro boy held his halter. "Take care, ole miss," cried the boy, when the lady stepped up to the big gray brute; but she didn't notice the warning. She took hold of the horse's head and drew it toward her and looked in his eyes. Now, here is as curious a part of the story as any, and it is absolutely true; she and "Jake," as he was already named, naturally surveyed each other, and they did it to such a good purpose that she said after a moment to the negro boy:

"Tom, do get my saddle and bring it here," then, to her husband: "Now, don't say a word; I know what I am doing. See!" and she picked up the horse's feet, opened his mouth, took every liberty with him, while he acted as if she were Mary and he the lamb. She put the saddle on him with her own hands, then led him to the porch steps, sprang into the saddle and rode around the yard, Jake stepping as carefully as if he had a load of eggs on his back.

Well, he was a lady's horse with a vengeance from that time forth, for no one but my grandmother ever mounted him. No one else could! but between those two the ties that had been formed when they first looked in each other's eyes, continued down to the day of Jake's death, years after. No better understanding ever existed in the whole romantic field of friendships between horses and riders. The lady was not then young. She was already a grandmother (though not mine), and one of her frequent rides was to a married daughter's five miles away, and do you want to know how she amused herself on that trip? She used to throw the lines on Jake's neck, trot him to a gallop, draw out her knitting and so, knitting and riding, progress to her journey's end. There you have one little bit of pure history about a woman of ye olden time way down in Tennessee.

Need of Intelligence in an Operator.

A. M. Pierce, one of the oldest Associated Press operators in the city, tells an interesting story to illustrate how important a place the operator upon the railway lines occupies, even the operators in the small and lonely stations, where no train stops except it is flagged.

"People who travel on the cars," he said, "have no idea what close shaves the trains have every day. When I first began work for the railways I was located at a little station twelve miles from Batavia, called Byron. Eight miles east of Byron was the station of Bergen. This was on the New York Central. It happened that just beyond Byron there was a high hill; it was difficult for trains to mount, and they sometimes had to wait there for another train to come along and help them over the hill. One night I received a telegraph message from the operator at Bergen that, as the train was passing, he noticed from the sound that one of the wheels on one of the cars was in bad shape. He suggested that I stop the train.

"Acting upon his suggestion, I put out my flag and stopped the train. The engineer was pretty sulky, and the conductor got off and wanted to know what in hades I had stopped them for. I told them the message I had received. They cursed some and started out to look for the broken wheel.

"A broken wheel was a serious matter going over that hill, with the possibility of plunging the train off the track and rolling it down the precipice. As it happened, the conductor had his wife and child aboard, too. Well, we looked down one side of the train, and we looked down the other without success. But in looking down one of the sides we had a bad light, I went down again, and found a quarter of one of the wheels broken.

"Well, sir, when the conductor came up and saw that wheel he picked me up in his arms, and I believe if I had been a little younger, he would have kissed me. he was so glad. I speak of it as illustrating how important the operator may become to the railway.—Detroit-News Tribune.

Ink on Tickers.

In every stock and news ticker is a little steel type-wheel, from which the imprints are made. It is a costly piece of work, and when the ticker was first introduced the company controlling them was embarrassed to find that the ink used had such a corrosive effect that after a few days' use the wheel was worthless. By way of experiment, one of the steel wheels was placed in a bath of ink. In 24 hours it had disappeared entirely. An operator who has since become a reporter set to work and patented an ink which is now used in all tickers. By its use the life of a type-wheel is prolonged to nine years. The ink is absolutely non-corrosive.

BOBBY'S FAMILY.

Mamma's got such pretty hands,
But when "precious baby's" pranks
Go beyond what patience stands,
Hully gee! How mamma spanks.

Papa's voice is soft in prayer
In the church at meetin' night,
But you ought to hear him swear
When the meals ain't cooked just right.

Sister's very coy with Jack,
And her smiles would make you sick,
But when he has turned his back,
Gee! You orter see her kick!

Though when anything is done,
I'm the boy is blamed for it;
'Pears as if I'm the only one
Ain't a bloomin' hypocrit!

A FRONTIER EPISODE.

We sat in the little frontier hotel at Pine Ridge Agency that stormy December night in '90. There were a number of us—all newspaper correspondents—and a few interpreters, officers and reservation employes. The days previous had been full of excitement, for the Brule and Ogallala Sioux were engaged in the Ghost Dance or Messiah Craze. About the Agency General Miles had grouped some 1,500 troops; beyond their white tents clustered the dingy tepees of the Indians, some 800 of them.

We greatly enjoyed these evenings in the hotel. They brought back to memory pictures of the old West—staging, buffalo hunting, Indian fighting. And what a fund of information the scouts, interpreters and "old timers" poured into our willing ears! Each one could have talked all night and yet left the narration of his experiences unfinished then. We were especially interested in the singular career of B. He had left a home in Connecticut, and after varied experiences in Iowa and Nebraska joined a company of miners and with them entered the new mining camp of Deadwood. He was then but seventeen years old. That same winter he carried the first mail out of Deadwood to the Missouri River.

B. joined our circle while a scout was relating some experiences with stage robbers in the early seventies, and immediately entered into the conversation.

"So far as I know the smoothest trick, prompted by a desire to save money, ever played upon stage robbers occurred near Miles City in '79. A load of passengers were almost within sight of the town. They had been travelling all day and were worn out, for the roads were awful bad in those days and all coaches bounced and swayed very much. Having come near their journey's end they were congratulating themselves. Hold-ups had been frequent. Two heavily armed messengers accompanied each coach, with orders to fire on any person acting suspiciously.

"'Dear me!' said an elderly man near the door, 'I'm glad we are safe. I have about $500 and if I lost it I don't know where I could get more.'

"'I can get plenty of money,' said a travelling salesman, 'but the loss of what I have would put me to much trouble out here among strangers.'

"Two miners and a prospector, each with large rolls, expressed their satisfaction at passing dangerous points safely. The next speaker was a little old woman, kind and motherly in her ways.

"'My boy has started a restaurant in town and is doing well. He wanted me to come and help, so here I am, godness knows far enough away from dear old Ohio. I thought he would need his mother, for these mining towns are wild, I hear, and full of temptations. I have only $200. It's all the cash I have in the world. Fearing robbers I have put it in a place where no one would think of looking. You cannot guess where?' Of course the guesses were all wrong.

"'Well, I have four $50 bills against the sole of my foot inside my left shoe!'

"'Capital!' said the elderly gentleman. 'No one would ever think of looking of money in your shoes.' In the far corner at the front sat a small slender, black-haired man. He kept between his feet a little black valise. No one spoke to him during the journey and he made no sound save occasionally to cough in a peculiar manner. Some of the passengers thought him to be a consumptive. Even when general good-fellowship prevailed he took no part in the conversation. Making bold, the old lady said:

"And you; what would you do if you were held up?"

"A hollow cough and a shrug of the shoulders was all his reply.

"'What a mean fellow!' thought the old gentleman. At this instant the coach lurched violently to one side and bang, bang, came the sudden reports of the guns! One messenger was shot, the other compelled to throw up his hands before time for resistance, and consternation and terror prevailed within the coach.

"'Lord, Lord!' prayed the elderly man.

"'Oh, dear, oh, dear!' cried the woman.

"'Hustle up there, git out,' and one of the robbers held the door open with his left hand while he covered the passengers with the revolver in his right. Of course they all filed out and were stood up in a row. There was much trembling on the part of the men and the poor old woman wept audibly. It only took a few moments to go through the pockets of the line and to investigate the messenger's small safe. Probably the road-agents would have taken to the hills at this moment had not one of them beheld the frail figure within the coach.

"'Hold on, boys; here's one we forgot,' and he started in with an oath to drag forth the consumptive. As he entered a most plaintive, cough interrupted voice greeted him, and, tough as he was, he paused.

"'Please don't make me get out. I am very sick. I will die, I know. If you will only let me be I will tell you where you can get $200 which you have overlooked. I have no money, but I know where the $200 is.' The robbers outside, having heard the shrill, penetrating voice, glanced at each other. The leader called out to his fellow within the coach: 'All right, Bill; find out where them two hundred is and let the poor devil alone. We got to be skipping out.'

"The piping voice took courage. 'Gentlemen, if you will ask that old lady to remove her left shoe you will find the money.'

"The men began to mutter and scowl. The drummer even found courage enough to say it was a shame to rob a poor old woman of her last dollar, and no one but the most depraved sort of a road-agent would be guilty of such an act. The leader walked up to the drummer, slapped his face and tickled the end of his nose with the muzzle of his six shooter. The drummer discreetly held his tongue until the thieves were gone.

"It was with sighs and sobs that the old lady seated herself on the ground, took the shoe from that fat foot, and handed up her last dollar. In a twinkling it was pocketed and the outlaws jumped for their horses and were gone.

"With a hallaballoo broke out when the people found themselves alone once more! With one accord they assailed the man within the coach.

"'Oh, you villain, you wretch, to tell them of my money!' cried the woman as she shook him by the shoulders. The drummer muttered at this moment. He had been talking to the other men of the party in low tones.

"'Just step out, madam, we want to talk with you,' he said. She obeyed and several entered. It was noticed that the driver had his reins in his hands and one end or them looked suspiciously like a noose.

"'You dirty rascal,' said the driver, 'to have deliberately given this woman's money over to those outlaws! We'll make short shift of you,' and he threw the noose over the man's head. There was a desperate struggle for a moment, and then the noose fell down clean cut through. It was seen that the little man had a bowie in his hand. He spoke in a different voice this time.

"'For God's sake, don't bother me here. You can hang me at Miles City as well as here. It's only a little way; I shall not escape. When we get there I will have something to tell you which will explain my action. A man always has a right to have a fair hearing before he is hung, and I claim that privilege.'

"'Well, we can watch him that far,' said the drummer, 'we can hang him there as well as here.'

"Some one helped the driver with the body of the messenger, and the coach started for town. The drummer, the miner and several others watched the little man intently, but he made no movement nor did he speak until the coach lumbered up in front of the postoffice and hotel; then he said in a quiet voice:

"'I am Tom ——,' (one of the famous men of the Black Hills), 'and I have $40,000 in this grip. The only way to save it was by telling the robbers of the old woman's money. I am glad to return it to her and a stake extra for the worry I caused her. As for the rest of you, I have nothing to do with your losses. We all ran the same risk. I wish you good evening,' and he stepped quickly from the seat to the door and into the street, dropping a bundle of bills into the lady's lap as he passed."

And after lighting his pipe our story-teller passed out into the night and wended his way to his humble cabin.—New York Tribune.

Verdi's Stratagem to Obtain Rest.

Verdi once went to the watering-place of Montecatini for a much-needed holiday. In one of the apartments assigned to the veteran musician stood a grand piano of splendid tone. Verdi removed the score of Il Trovatore, which had been laid on the rack by way of compliment, locked the instrument, and called for the son of his host, to whom he said in solemn tones, "Lead me to the spot which overhangs the steepest precipice." On reaching the summit the maestro, who was almost exhausted from fatigue, flung the key of the piano into the abyss, saying with energy: "Now I have done something to secure rest and quiet! On the day of my departure I will send a locksmith to provide the piano with a new key, but while I am here let it remain as it is!"

Youngest Colonel in America.

The city of Louisville can boast of a thirteen-year-old colonel. His name is Harry Mulligan. He is the son of an hotel manager. He is at the present time attached to the staff of Governor Bradley, of Kentucky. He owes his promotion to a prophecy he made that Colonel Bradley would be elected Governor of Kentucky.

"My boy," said the Colonel, when he heard him, "if that prophecy comes true, I will make you colonel of my staff."

When he was elected he issued a commission for the boy, and gave to Kentucky the youngest colonel in the American army.—Tid-Bits.

Feminine Fire Brigade.

The little town of Nassoi, in Sweden, has a feminine department, 150 strong, in its fire brigade. The waterworks of the village consist simply of four great tubs, and it is the duty of the women firemen to keep these full in case of fire. They stand in two continuous lines from the tubs to the lake, about three streets away, one line passing the full buckets, and the other sending them back.—Tid-Bits.

SAVED BY LITTLE CHILDREN.

An Episode of an Indian Raid in Utah Nearly Thirty Years Ago.

Robert F. Spearman, attorney for the Department of Justice, Washington, is at the Albany. Mr. Spearman has been engaged in the taking of testimony, on behalf of the government, in Indian depredation claims.

"In taking testimony in these Indian cases," said Mr. Spearman, "I frequently hear some very interesting stories concerning early frontier life. I remember one case in particular, which I thought to be one of the most remarkable exhibitions of courage in an 8-year-old boy that I have ever heard of. It occurred near the town of Beaver, in Utah. A ranch in that vicinity was attacked by the Indians and one man who was visiting the ranchman was killed, and for a while it seemed as if the whole party, wife and children, would fall prey to the savages. The house was surrounded by the Indians and the people within defended themselves as best they could, but the ranchman, watching his opportunity, lowered his little boy and his daughter, who was but 12 years old, from the back window and told them to try to make their way to the cañon and follow it down to Beaver, where they could obtain help. The two children succeeded in reaching the cañon unobserved, and, with presence of mind and bravery which, I think, is remarkable for a child of that age, the boy told his sister to follow down one side of the cañon and he would follow the other, so that in case the Indians should find one of them the other might not be observed.

"The children succeeded in reaching Beaver, where a relief party was organized which hastened to the rescue of the besieged party. At the beginning of the siege the Indians had heard the children in the house, and missing their voices the alert savages discovered that they had gone and endeavored to overtake them, but being unsuccessful, and knowing that help would soon arrive, withdrew before the rescuers could reach the ranch."—Denver Republican.

WHERE HARD TIMES ARE UNKNOWN.

Unbounded Success of the Mormons as a Business Community.

The large profits of the Mormons as farmers financially are exhibited in the Atlantic Monthly for November by William E. Smythe, and the showing is remarkable. In the 40 odd years since these people settled, virtually penniless, in Utah, they have expended $563,000,000 for the cost of maintaining church and state, the two having been virtually one. All this, excepting $20,000,000 brought in by immigrants, was the product of farming by irrigation. Each Mormon farmer enjoyed an average income of $482 a year above the cost of living. Each has been compelled, moreover, to give a tithe every year to the church. Broadly speaking, all the farmers are proprietors and none tenants. The land in Salt Lake City was originally parcelled out in an ingenious manner, so that all should share equally in its appreciation. Professional and business men received 1¼ acres apiece in the center; mechanics five acres apiece a little farther out; then 10 to 20 acre lots to farmers, according to the size of their families. Water for irrigation, and other utilities were owned by the community, each man holding shares according as he contributed labor to their construction. The farmers were taught to diversify crops and raise what they needed for themselves rather than specialize, and the consequence was a never-failing product and complete self-sufficiency. They have never felt "hard times."

Stores, factories, banks and industrial enterprises generally were conducted on the co-operative plan as joint stock companies. The famous Zion's co-operative mercantile institution, which includes stores, a boot factory and other departments, has paid an average of 91-3 per cent dividends yearly. The capital stock is now over a million dollars.

VARIETIES.

Hood once said of himself that it was only for his "livelihood" that he was "a lively Hood."

The wood of the pine-tree is used for the sounding-boards of pianofortes, as it does not warp under change of temperature or atmosphere.

Only 70 years have elapsed since the first railway in the world was finished. During that comparatively brief period 400,000 miles have been constructed, the British Empire accounting for about a sixth.

The reason why birds do not fall off their perch when asleep is because they cannot open the foot when the leg is bent. Thus a hen while walking must close its toes as it raises the foot, and open them as it touches the ground.

A bamboo church organ is reported to have been built at Shanghai, and it is said to surpass organs made of metal. As bamboo can be obtained of all dimensions, from the thickness of a pen to pieces a foot in diameter, this natural wood costs little more than the simple labor, and the notes are—so says the report—beautifully soft and pleasant to the ear.

There is at least one country in the world where it costs nothing to die. In some of the cantons of Switzerland all the dead, rich as well as poor, are buried at the public expense. Coffins and all other ordinary articles are furnished on application to certain undertakers designated by the government. Everything connected with the interment is absolutely gratuitous, including the grave and the religious service. All classes avail themselves freely of the law.

WHAT IS GOING ON IN LOCAL BASKET BALL CIRCLES.

Happenings of Interest to Plainfield Enthusiasts—What the Local Teams are Doing—Gossip Among the Players.

Much regret has been generally expressed among the basket ball enthusiasts and other lovers of good sport that the attempt to allow the local basket ball team to meet some of the best teams of the country should fail and that, not only the Yale game has been cancelled, but the whole policy of playing the leading teams opposed. While arguments against the Yale game have been advanced going to prove that the Yale management wanted too much of a guarantee and that there were various other technicalities in the patch, it is well understood that the real reason for the opposition to the game on the part of the Y. M. C. A. directors was that they did not wish the team to play in Plainfield anywhere but in the Y. M. C. A. building. Now the gymnasium in the building was never built for basket ball games, neither was there any attempt to provide for an audience there. The gallery was intended for a running track. The result is that the association team is practically prohibited from playing any of the large teams who are compelled to ask a suitable guarantee.

When the question of the Yale game was considered by the physical work committee, Robert A. Meeker, one of the committee, while he opposed the game under Y. M. C. A. auspices, remarked that he would give his support to the team if the game was played under another name. The ruling of the A. A. U. prevents the players playing on another team or under another name without an interval of two months, so such action was impossible. There has been a general expression of the wish that another year will see the local basket ball players as an independent team, not connected with the Y. M. C. A. With Manager George Fuller in charge, the team would undoubtedly do well for basket ball is deservedly popular here, and games with good teams would be largely patronized.

Miss Mary Constance Patton, of West Fifth street, who entered Smith College last autumn, has just been chosen on the leading basket ball team of the college. The selection is made from the best players without regard to class, and only these are eligible who passed the examinations without a low grade or a condition.

He Fooled the Surgeons.

All doctors told Renick Hamilton, of West Jefferson, O., after suffering 18 months from Rectal Fistula, he would die unless a costly operation was performed; but he cured himself with five boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the surest Pile cure on earth, and the best Salve in the World. 25 cents a box. The points of a collar cause you much trouble and annoyance because they break at the seam. If this seam was dampened before being turned cracking would be prevented. We have a girl to do this, and nothing else. A small detail, but it counts.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

Central Journal Bowling League.

	Won.	Lost.	Highest Score.
Roselle	22	8	904
Park	21	14	905
Elizabeth	18	12	911
Westfield	18	18	915
Newark Bay C. C.	15	15	955
N. J. A. C.	12	18	944
Cranford Casino	7	23	811

The Parks have only three more games to roll and those all away from home. They are scheduled for Thursday evening at the alley of the Newark Bay Boat Club in Bayonne. The Roselle Casino team is still in line for two more series of three games each. If the Parks should win their series of three and Roselle should lose five out of the six games, then the Parks step up into first place. Two victories for Roselle would tie the teams and three would give Roselle the championship. So, it is easy to see, the chance of first place for the Parks is awfully slim. The Newark Bay Boat Club team is quite strong this season, particularly on its own alleys where the Parks have to roll. Unless the Parks develop some phenomenal improvement in their bowling, the very best they can hope for is to win two out of three with Newark Bay. Roselle has to roll three games on the Cranford alleys, and, in the ordinary course of things, would probably win all three. Cranford has promised to put up the game of its life and down the leaders if possible. It's doubtul, however, if they accomplish very much, and Roselle can be counted on winning two of the games. That would tie the two leading teams if the Parks won everything, and then Roselle is not likely to lose all the remaining series of three games with Elizabeth. So it can be seen that the Parks are apparently cut out for second place unless they lose all their next series, and Elizabeth wins nine games straight, which is not likely.

The close of the Central Journal Bowling League is near at hand. The Park Club has only three more games to roll to complete its schedule in the league. The Parks now stand second and with only a very dim prospect of taking the remaining step forward to the position of leader. While there is still a chance of winning out, it's such a slim one that it's hardly worth banking on. Roselle seems assured of first place. A victory for Roselle will mean the permanent possession of the trophy, which will then have been won three times by the Roselle Casino team. Naturally there isn't a team in the league but would rather see the Parks win this year and so keep the trophy still in the league to be contested for.

Last evening two games were rolled on the Catholic Club alleys in the tournament. Morran and Birmingham beating Reville and Hines both games. This leaves five games yet to be rolled and the contest will be continued this evening.

This evening the bowling team from the Catholic Club will go to Orange Valley and roll the team at that place.

VARICUS SPORTS.

At the request of the physicial director of the New Brunswick Y.M.C.A., it has been decided to increase the number of events in the dual indoor athletic meet with the Plainfield Association from five to seven. The two new events have not yet been selected but will probably be the running high kick and the hop, step and jump. It doesn't make any particular difference to Plainfield what the number of the events in the contest are while New Brunswick seemed particularly interested in increasing the number. The request was therefore granted at once.

Next Saturday will see the open indoor pentathlen contest at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Every one who saw Little Gertie Cockran at Music Hall Christmas, will be interested in the Baby phenomen, who is to appear there with Jolly Nellie McHenry tomorrow afternoon and night (Washington's Birthday). This little living encyclopedia is known as Master Lavender Richardson. He is much younger than little Miss Cockran, scarcely six years of age, and is said to answer questions that would puzzle the little Miss. His intellectual throne is a baby's high chair, from which he not only startles his hearers by his wonderful knowledge of facts and figures, but convulses them with his natural wit and unexpected humor. The little ones should be taken to the matinee to see this really wonderful child. Mad'lle Valesca, who appears with Nellie McHenry's Vavdeville Co., is said to be the handsomest and most divinely formed lady gymnast before the public today. Her performance on the flying trapeze, suspended in midair, has created a furor on both continents.

J. M. Barrie's dramatization of his famous novel the "Little Minister" will be seen here at Music Hall Friday night. It will be presented by Charles Frohman's Company, one which he has especially selected to present this successful comedy. Mr. Frohman has taken especial pains to give the comedy the cast that will in every way do justice to it, and those who have seen "The Little Minister" say that the dramatization is fully as good, if not better than the story. Mr. Barrie, it is said, has given us a delightful play. A play that has been given for 300 performances, and every one of them attended by an audience that packed the theatre to the doors, certainly must have a great deal of merit in it.

At the Proctor continuous theatres in New York in these early spring days the crowds are taxing the capacity of both houses. At the Twenty-third Street Theatre the shoppers flock in droves, taking an hours' respite from the turmoil of bargain hunting. This theatre, just west of Sixth avenue, is in the very heart of the big retail dry goods district and is the most accessible of any continuous house in town for suburban visitors From points in Long Island and on the line of the roads running out of the Grand Central depot, the Palace, at 58th street, Third and Lexington avenues, is the most accessible as it is but a few minutes distant from 42d and 34th streets. For the week of February 20th, and including the holiday, Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22d, elaborate bills have been arranged for both houses. On Washington's Birthday, the doors will open at both houses at 9:30 a. m. and the programme will run continuously without a break until 11 p. m. The stars at the Twenty third Street Theatre are Edward Harrigan the famous New York comedian, assisted by his own company in "My Son Dan;" Isabelle Urquhart and company in "Even Stephen;" Thos. J. Ryan and Mary Richfield. At the Palace are the Three Eugenes, the greatest of all aerial acrobats; Marzella's wonderful troupe of 200 birds; Marco Twins.

Manager Edwards has succeeded in getting the heating apparatus in Music Hall in good working order after a severe trial and is able to assure his patrons that hereafter the theatre will be comfortable no matter how cold the weather is.

* * * * *

In the presentation of "Rip Van Winkle" by the Jefferson Comedy Company in Music Hall last night Manager Edwards scored another distinctly creditable attraction. It may be well said that men may come and men may go but "Rip Van Winkle" seems to go on forever, for as old as it is the dramatized legend of Sleepy Hollow it is bright and interesting whenever seen in the hands of capable actors. And to say that it was presented last night by the Jeffersons — minus Joseph, Sr., however, but with his sons who have inherited much of their father's natural talent, which has been added to with ideas of the histrionic art drilled into them by years of association with the elder on the stage—is tantamount to crediting the performance as the best of "Rip Van Winkle" to be seen on the stage today. Thomas Jefferson played the title role. In appearance he resembled his father very much, and in acting he carried out the character of "Rip" in much the same manner as his sire, whose association with the part was so familiar to all theatregoers that to mention the name "Rip Van Winkle" meant to think of Joseph Jefferson and vice versa. The supporting company, including three other sons of the elder Jefferson, together with the scenic accessories, was all that could be desired to make the performance a finished one.

MAYOR WILSON'S MESSAGE.

A Borough Correspondent Inquires About the Finances.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—It seemed to me that Mayor Wilson's scheme of sending a message to the Council at the end of his term of office is rather a novel idea, as it is customary to deliver a message containing recommendations at the beginning of the term, and to my knowledge no Mayor of the city or borough had ever concluded a term of office by sending a message to the Council.

If he has not made recommendations to be carried out by a future administration it would not have been such as unusual proceeding but this fact, together with the whole tenor of the article, appears in the nature of a bid for re election.

However, my object in writing this is not to criticise the Mayor's political methods but to make an inquiry of the Mayor and Council on a subject that is of interest to every tax payer.

The usual receipts of the borough for the past two years were about $22,000, but from the extra effort made by the two tax collectors and by money received from other sources an additional sum of $14 000 has been raised this year, making a total of $36,000 in addition to the $2,000 paid by private subscription for streets Of this amount $32,000 has been expected.

What I want to know is what will the borough do another year without this additional sum of $14,000?

The tendency has been to increase rather than decrease expenses, and it is only a matter of a year or two when the tax rate must be increased.

Whither are we drifting?

Taxpayer.

Another One.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Please allow me space in your paper to ask the Mayor and Council of our almost unknown borough, the only one of that class within the State without a railroad or postoffice, and the total business confined to one portion of a street that never saw brick pavement, why it is that leaving a horse unguarded costs only $10, when semi-annual messages are $18,000 each. It seems high time for the taxpayers to go into executive session. Defer the question of annexation and call to account those having charge of the spending of the foregoing amount. We voted for the borough with the understanding that the cost of running the same should be limited, but on learning that the Borough Clerk and Corporation Counsel received over $1,700 last year for services, I feel that some one should have the courage to ask, where is the ending?

LOCAL ATHLETES WON DUAL INOOOR GAMES.

Brunswick Y. M. C. A. Worsted By Many Points.

LASTED FOR FOUR HOURS

PLAINFIELD WAS FIRST IN SIX OUT OF SEVEN EVENTS.

First of Athletic Meetings Between Neighborhood Y. M. C. A.'s—Plainfield Was Represented by Raymond B. Carroll, George Proctor Smith and Frank O. Bristol—Carroll Scored Most Points.

Plainfield won a substantial victory in the dual indoor athletic contest between teams from the Plainfield and New Brunswick Y. M. C. A.'s, held in the local gymnasium Tuesday evening. Victory was won by a score of 1,343.5 points to 1,255.5 points, the Plainfield boys winning six out of the seven events. The points were scored according to the excellence of the performances from a table prepared by the Y. M. C. A. Athletic League. The contest was interesting enough, but it was dragged out for four weary hours until audience and contestants were completely tired out.

Each side was represented by a team of three men. Plainfield's team was composed of Raymond B. Carroll, George Proctor Smith and Frank O. Bristol. The New Brunswick contingent was Rooney, Lyons and Thompson. C. E. A. Heywood acted as referee. Henry B. Drake and E. Maxwell Honeyman were the measurers.

In the first event, the standing broad jump, New Brunswick came out ahead by one point. In putting the shot the lead was increased to six points. On the standing high jump Plainfield picked up and took the lead by one point. After that Plainfield's team bested their opponents in every event. In the running high jump, they particularly distinguised themselves, leaving New Brunswick way behind.

At the close the individual scores were as follows: Carroll, Plainfield, 486.5; Smith, Plainfield, 428; Bristol, Plainfield, 428; Thompson, New Brunswick, 422; Lyons, New Brunswick, 418.5; Rooney, New Brunswick, 415.

The summaries of the events were as follows:

Standing Broad Jump—Won by Lyons, of New Brunswick; Bristol, of Plainfield, second; Carroll, of Plainfield, third. Distance, 8 feet, 11¼ inches.

Putting the Shot—Won by Smith, of Plainfield; Thompson, of New Brunswick, second; Carroll, of Plainfield, third. Distance, 37 feet, 2½ inches.

Standing High Jump—Won by Carroll, of Plainfield; Lyons and Thompson, New Brunswick, tie for second. Height, 4 feet, 3 inches.

Running High Kick—Won by Bristol, of Plainfield; Carroll, of Plainfield, second; Lyons and Rooney, of New Brunswick, tie for third. Height, 8 feeet, 2 inches.

Running High Jump—Won by Carroll, of Plainfield; Bristol, of Plainfield, second; Smith, of Plainfield, third. Height, 5 feet, 3 inches.

Three Standing Broad Jumps—Won by Bristol, of Plainfield; Lyons, of New Brunswick, second; Rooney, of New Brunswick, third. Distance, 25 feet, 1 inch.

Hop, Step and Jump—Won by Carroll, of Plainfield; Rooney, of New Brunswick, second; Smith, of Plainfield, third. Distance, 34 feet, 11½ inches.

A LITTLE GIRL'S GOOD LUCK.

Adopted by Legal Process by Well-to-do Dunellen Couple.

John E. Low and Sarah M. Low, residents of Dunellen, and well known in Plainfield, have adopted into their family Hattie May Covey, the daughter of a New Yorker, who had left the child with them some months ago. Its mother has been dead for some five years and Mr. and Mrs. Low were so touched by its unfortunate situation and took so much interest in it that they concluded to adopt it. They have a little girl of their own about the same age, and as they are people of some means and of high character and standing in the community, the new relations will be of the greatest benefit to the child. The proceedings in the Middlesex County Orphans' Court were completed Tuesday last when S. S. Swackhamer, of the firm of Codington & Swackhamer, produced the necessary evidence to obtain a decree. Judge Strong after having the child and foster mother before him and on signing the decree said that the highest interests of the child would no doubt be secured by the adoption.

MERCHANT TURNED HOST

WOODHULL & MARTIN'S CLERKS ENTERTAINED AT LAKE HOPATCONG.

The Holiday Pleasantly Spent at Mr. Woodhull's Summer Home on Halsey Island—A Special Car for the Party.

Washington's birthday was pleasantly spent by a large party of Plainfielders at "Pioneer Cottage," the summer home of Floyd T. Woodhull, of the dry goods firm of Woodhull & Martin, on Halsey Island, Lake Hopatcong. Mr. and Mrs. Woodhull gave a large house party at their cottage to which were invited, in addition to outside guests, the clerks and employes of the store with their wives and sweethearts.

The Plainfield guests left here in a special car attached to the 7:12 a. m. train and after a pleasant run of about three hours reached the station. Mr. Woodull's cottage occupies a commanding site on a small island three-fourths of a mile out from the mainland, and is one of the cosiest and prettiest places on the lake. The cottage was built about six years ago when the island was a primeval wilderness. Mr. Woodull cut the first tree, split the log in half, smoothed it off, and now it is a mantel in the reception room.

The party, increased by other guests at different points on the route, were transported from the shore to the island across the ice in a large open sled, a novel experience for nearly every one in the party.

After the long ride in the train and the trip across the ice, dinner was the one thought in everybody's mind, and preparations were made for it at once. The party number 53, and ate in three companies. The table was tastefully arranged, and was loaded with good things. It was waited upon by the ladies. Clam chowder and tomato soup came first, and this was followed by roast turkey and chicken, with dressing, cold ham, corned beef and tongue, potato salad, Boston baked beans, olives, pickles and relishes, pies, sake, coffee, fruit, nuts, raisins and candy.

Mr. Woodhull went to the cottage cottage Tuesday, and when the guests arrived the place was warmed throughout. The day turned out so bright and pleasant that part of the time was spent on the wide piazza, which commands a fine view of the lake and mountains. Mr. Martin had his violin, and several of the ladies volunteered their services at the piano, and the day was taken up with singing and dancing. Miss Grace Allen, of Dover, a cultured elocutionist, rendered several selections which were very much appreciated, and presided at the piano a great portion of the time. Mr. Martin also favored them with vocal music. After a day of uninterrupted pleasure, the party retraced their way across the lake and took their car for home, arriving in Plainfield at 8:45 p m. Mr. Woodhull and his wife proved an excellent host and hostess, and everyone who partook of their hospitality returned home having had a splendid time.

In the party, beside Woodhull & Martin's clerks, were Miss Margaret Menaugh, of Hacketstown; E. M. Bartles, Mr. and Mrs. William Dufford, Mrs. Delph, Miss Cool and Mrs. Angie Sharp, of German Valley; Mrs. Lillian Johnson, Miss Grace Allen and Fred Allen, of Dover; Mrs. Campbell and Frank Cortwright, of Newark; Mr. and Mrs. Morris Rarrick, of Dunellen; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Allen and son, of Lake Hopatcong; and Mr. and Mrs. Edson C. Martin and a Daily Press representative from Plainfield.

The elaborate dinner was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Woodhull and the clerks, all of whom donated freely, and there was such an abundance that a lunch was served on the train coming home. Mr. Allen had his camera with him, and took a few photographs of the group.

WALKED FOR CAKES.

Martin Brothers Had Big Time at Crescent Rink Last Night.

The indomitable Martin combination conducted a cake walk and dance at the Crescent Rink last evening. It proved a great success. The participants were all colored but the gallery was crowded with an audience of white folk who dropped in to see the fun.

Young Samuel Jackson, late of Trenton, did the right thing at buck dancing. Then there was a juvenile cake walk in which six couples participated. Miss Henrietta Martin and Bert Brown were awarded first place by popular acclamation. Another cake walk wound up the programme. Miss Vandeveer, of Somerville, and Alfred Oby were the winners.

BOUND BROOK HONORS GEORGE WASHINGTON

Site of His Camp Ground to be Made a Park.

IT IS RICH IN HISTORY.

ANNUAL MEETING OF WASHINGTON CAMP GROUND ASSOCIATION.

Address and Historical Sketch Were Given—The Camp Ground Has Become Property of Association Through Generosity of President, Hon George La Monte—Old Officers Were Re-elected.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Bound Brook, February 23—Washington's birthday was observed in this place yesterday by the Washington Camp Ground Association, which held its annual meeting and reception at Bound Brook hall yesterday afternoon. The association is formed of the leading citizens of Bound Brook, and has been interested in the movement to change the site of the old camp grounds along the Middlebrook, where Washington and his Continental army spent one winter, into a public park. During the past year, the five acres of land that formed the site were presented to the association by its president, Hon. George LaMonte.

The meeting in the afternoon was largely attended. President LaMonte made the address of welcome and was followed by the reports of the officers showing a membership of 150, and a balance of $78 76 in the treasury. The report of the trustees, made by W. H. Whiting, acknowledged the gift of the president and told of the incorporation of the organization.

The election of officers resulted in the re-election of the following: President, George LaMonte; vice presidents, W. H. Whiting, C. Howard Parry and W. H. Ayers; secretary, W. H. Dunham; treasurer, Frederick Coriell; historian, Rev. T. E. Davis; trustees, W. H. Whiting, A. J. Bailey, P. J. Staats, W. B. R. Mason, S. Ayers, Jr., and C. Howard Perry.

A historial paper, entitled "Bound Brook's Losses in the Revolution," was read by Rev. T. E Davis. The other speakers of the afternoon were Rev. J. W. Daily, of Englewood, on "Washington, the Extemplar of American Patriotism," and Howard MacSherry, of New Brunswick, on "Lessons from Washington's Farewell Address."

The reception followed the meeting and was one of the social events of the season in Bound Brook.

THE HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS PLAY AT BASKET BALL.

MANY PRESENT AT THE GAME.

Two Picked Teams, Mostly Seniors and Juniors, Met in Exciting Match—Score Was 20 to 4

Ten young women of the Plainfield High School played an exciting game of basket ball in the Whittier building yesterday afternoon, a large attendance of friends being present to witness the match. The teams were composed principally of Seniors and Juniors, and while they were not the regular class teams, they were designated by those names. The so-called Juniors had a comparatively easy thing of it and won the match by a score of 20 to 4.

The Juniors had the best of it from the start, showing better team work and form than most of their opponents. Miss Jessie Pruden, captain of the High School team, acted as captain of the Seniors and quite distinguished herself. Her dribbling of the ball was particularly clever. Miss Beatrice Miner and Miss Stephanie Krom, as forwards on the Junior team, did most of the scoring for their side and played well together. Miss Alice Morgan was captain of the Juniors.

The teams lined up as follows:

SENIORS.		JUNIORS.
M. Sterling	right forward	B. Miner
O. Dunham	left forward	S. Krom
J. Pruden	centre	E. Runyon
L. Fuller	right guard	A. Morgan
P. Denton	left guard	E. Moore

Colored Revival Meetings.

This evening at Filmore Baptist church Rev. E E. Bird, an evangelist, will preach the first in a series of sermons. Revs. E. E. Jackson, Scott Wallace, Ross and Groves will be present. The meetings will be of the union sort.

Thirty Friends Danced

Miss Susie Boss, of Central avenue, gave a dance at her home last evening to some thirty of her friends. The evening was passed very enjoyably and closed with the serving of refreshments.

MAYOR WILSON MAY BE ENDORSED BY G. O. P.

Republican Leaders Held a Caucus Yesterday Afternoon.

VOTED ON PROPOSITION.

ONLY FOUR OF THEM WERE OPPOSED TO THE MOVE.

Caucus Held in Senator Reed's Office and Attended by Fourteen Influential Members of the Party—The Smalleys, Rowley and Williams the Objectors—Democratic Councilmanic Possibilities.

Not in several years has there been so much interest in a municipal election in North Plainfield as is the case this year. At present the principal issue is the question of whether or not Mayor John F. Wilson, a Democrat, is to be indorsed by the Republican primaries, or at least not opposed by the nomination of a regular party candidate. In certain G. O. P. circles there is a strong movement in favor of Mayor Wilson's re election for another term on the plea of his fine record for the term about to expire. That feeling culminated yeeterday in a private caucus of the Republican leaders to discuss the situation.

The caucus was held in President of the Senate Charles A. Reed's office and was attended by fourteen Republicans who control the action of that party in North Plainfield. The approaching election and its possibilities for the Republicans were discussed in a lively manner, and finally the proposition was made that the Republican convention make no nomination of a Mayor, but tacitly endorse Mayor Wilson's candidacy, as it is conceded generally that he will secure the nomination of his own party, though there will be considerable strife about it

The proposition met with favor from the majority of the leaders present, but four of them held out most vehemently against any such concession. It is understood that there was a good deal of lively talk, but the majority of the leaders left the conference feeling that it would be best for the interests of the borough not to oppose Mayor Wilson's candidacy. Those who are opposed to Mayor Wilson are Barney Williams, Warren Rowley, N. B. Smalley and A. I Smalley.

The preliminary campaign now on resembles the one preceding the beginning of the second term of ex Mayor Wm. L. Saunders. Then, as now, a few who assisted in his first election assumed grievances and opposed his re-election, but the taxpayers re-elected Mr. Saunders Mayor by a decidedly increased majority. Heretofore it has been a very hard matter for the leaders of the Democratic party to get men to allow their names to be even considered as probable Councilmanic candidates. It is the reverse this year. Among the names spoken are S B. Wheeler, S. S. Swackhamer, W. C Linbarger, D. N VanVliet, Edwin T. Douglass, Charles Lyman, Audrew Love, Sr., A. E Kenney, J. V. N. Willis, W. J. Conroy, Louis H. Brown, R H. McCullough, George W. Bird, Frank J. Blatz, J. P. D Kirch, Hiram O Hance

SHOT AT FOUR TIMES.

Keiderling and Snyder Met Exciting Experience Near Scotch Plains.

John V. Keiderling, of West Fifth street, and Harry Snyder, of West Front street, were shot at four times Tuesday evening, shortly before 8 o'clock while driving near Scotch Plains. They were passing out East Front street and had just reached the Italian settlement when two men jumped at the horse's head. Keiderling made a sudden swerve. As the buggy passed the two strangers fired four shots, two of which passed through the top of the buggy. The two men in the buggy crouched down to avoid the bullets. They were unable to identify the men.

Dinner to Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Moore, of 66 Westervelt avenue, gave a dinner yesterday afternoon to a few of their friends. During the afternoon there was an entertainment consisting of music, recitations and stories of thrilling adventures by Miss Lillie Moore. Those present were Miss Elsie Horton, of Utica, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. French, Masters Lawrence and Elmer French and Mr. and Mrs. A. J Moore.

WILL TRY TO BREAK A. C. BALDWIN'S WILL.

His First Daughter Started Proceedings Today.

ACTION IN ORPHANS COURT.

CLAIMED THAT HE WAS INSANE WHEN HE MADE LAST WILL.

The Will Filed by Executor's Counsel—It Favors Last Wife and Her Child—Judge Vail Set Down Case in Orphan's Court for March 4th and 5th—Mr. Baldwin Was a Prominent Citizen—In Clothing Business.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth, Feb. 23.—The will of the late A. C. Baldwin, a prominent citizen of Plainfield who died two months ago, is to be contested. Mrs. Black, his daughter by his first wife, began proceedings here in the Orphan's Court this morning which, if successful, will have the present will favoring the widow set aside. The ground for the contest is the "want of testamentary capacity," which is the legal way of saying that they believe that Mr. Baldwin was insane at the time when he made the will.

Mr. Baldwin was identified with the merchantile growth of Plainfield for many years. He was in the manufacturing of clothing, being a member of the firm of Baldwin & Starr during the war. Then he went to Plainfield where he became interested in Scheptlin, Baldwin & Tweedy He was identified with the movement to build the Public Library and the formation of the Hillside Cemetery Association.

Mr. Baldwin was twice married. He had one child by his first wife, Mrs. Black, who has been residing in New York. His second wife and her child are now residing at the Baldwin residence on Park avenue. The last will, which affects all his property, gives most of it to Mrs. Baldwin and child. This will was filed by Craig A. Marsh and William M. Stillman, lawyers for executors.

Mrs. Black has retained S. T. Savage, of Rahway, of the law offices of Lord, Day & Lord, New York, and Richard V. Lindabury, of Newark. This morning they appeared before Judge Vail, in the Orphans' Court, and announced that they would contest it. Judge Vail set the case down for March 3d and 4th.

The grounds given for the contesting of the will are the wants of testamentary capacity. It is claimed that Mr. Baldwin did not have full possession of all his faculties during his last years when the will was made.

GEORGE POOLE FITTED TO PREACH THE GOSPEL.

HE WAS EXAMINED BY MINISTERS.

He Will Be Ordained Next Thursday—Fourteen Churches Were Represented.

George Poole, who was examined Tuesday afternoon at the Park Avenue Baptist church by a council of ministers and messengers from the Baptist churches in the East New Jersey Baptist Association for ordination as a Baptist minister, passed his examinations creditably and will be ordained next Thursday evening.

There were fourteen churches represented. Rev J. H. Parks, D. D., of Scotch Plains, was made moderator. The examination of the candidate was public and there was quite a number of listeners. The examination lasted two hours and consisted of questions on the young man's conversion, his subsequent call to preach, and of his knowledge of the Bible and the Christian ministry, followed by an examination upon the Baptist principles.

The examination finished, the council went into executive session and decided upon the ordination services, which will be held in the church. They then took a recess until Thursday night.

At the ordination services Rev. Dr. Robert Lowry will preach the sermon; Rev. Dr. Perkes will make the ordaining prayer; the hand of fellowship will be extended by Rev. Frank Fletcher, and the charge to the candidate will be made by Mr. Poole's pastor, Rev. J. W. Richardson. Other Baptist ministers will assist in the laying on of hands. In a short time afterwards Mr. Poole will go to Hunterdon county, where he has received a call to preach.

Change in Treasurers

The only important business transacted at the meeting of the board of governors of the Park club Tuesday evening was the acceptance of the resignation of George P. Dupee as treasurer, and the election of J. C. Peck to the position. Mr. Dupee resigned on account of business which keeps him away much of the time.

BON VOYAGE THEIR WISH

FAREWELL RECEPTION TO REV. DR. RODMAN BY HIS PARISHIONERS.

The Rector Leaves Saturday for a Trip to the Holy Land—Purse Presented to Him to Cover Expenses

"Farewell, Godspeed and a safe return" were the words and sentiments extended to Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman, pastor of Grace P. E. church, last evening, when the members of his church and congregation gave him a reception in the parish house, prior to his departure for the Holy Land and Palestine Saturday next.

The affair was strictly an informal one and was largely attended. The parish house was thronged during the evening with people who joined in giving the popular pastor a farewell that he would always have occasion to remember most pleasantly.

The reception was arranged by Mrs. VanBuren, Mrs. O. T. Waring, Mrs. J B. Dumont, Mrs. F. H. Wills and Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, and under the direction of the members of the Helping Hand Society of the church, the parish house was decorated most tastily with palms and pink roses.

During the evening Dr. Rodman made a few remarks in which he thanked his people for their generosity in allowing him a vacation, under such favorable circumstances, and he was assured without a dissenting voice that he was deserving of the rest from his arduous labors and that he would return greatly improved in his health.

It might be stated that the Vestry of the church very generously gave Dr. Rodman a purse of money which will prove ample for his expenses while abroad.

HOME FOR UNION WORKINGMEN.

Trades Union Committee Confer With Mayor Drake, of Lincoln.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Lincoln, Feb. 23—The committee appointed by the Essex County Trades Union to confer with Mayor Silas D. Drake, of Lincoln, in connection with the latter's proposition to donate land for the site of a home for aged and infirm labor union men, met Mr. Drake at Lincoln yesterday afternoon. The committee was headed by H. J. Gottlob, chairman of the trades union. Mayor Drake offered enough land free of cost to the organization which, when divided up into building lots and disposed of at reasonable prices, would furnish more than enough funds to build the proposed home as well as leave a large piece of ground for the use of the institution. The project was discussed at length and the committee left Lincoln telling Mayor Drake that they were favorably impressed with the locality as a site for the proposed home. The committee will submit their report to the trades union tomorrow night.

DEPICTED THE SOUTHERN DARKEY.

Polk Miller Gave a Fine Entertainment at Y. M. C. A. Hall.

The appearance of Polk Miller, of Virginia, at the Y. M. Star Course entertainment last evening, was a signal success in every way. By far the largest attendaace at any similar entertainment was recorded and it was with difficulty that all were able to obtain seats. Polk Miller's entertainment consisted of interesting sketches and stories depicting the typical southern negro, and the many humorous incidents related kept the audience in a continual laughter. Mr. Miller also sang a number of songs with banjo accompaniment, which were well received.

A DECADE SHORT OF THE CENTURY MARK.

William Swalm Passes Away at the Age of Ninety Years.

HIS LIFE WAS A USEFUL ONE.

ONE OF THE DEMOCRATS WHO NAMED JACKSON FOR PRESIDENT.

Born in New York State, But for Many Years a Butter Merchant in New York City—Was Instrumental in Organizing Trinity Reformed Church—Remains to be Interred in Brooklyn.

At the ripe old age of 90 years, two months and thirteen days, William Swalm, one of Plainfield's most respected and honored citizens, passed away Tuesday night at 11:30 o'clock. Mr. Swalm had been complaining for over a year, but since last August he had been confined to the house and to the bed a greater part of that time. He was subjected to an attack of grip and this had a very weakening effect on him. During the past few days of his life he was unconscious and failed to recognize any one. His grandson, Walter Swalm, was watching patiently by his bedside Tuesday evening, and and just before Mr. Swalm died it was noticed that he was sinking slowly and the end was near. Mr. Swalm lived a Christ-like life and such died. Thus another one of Plainfield's staunch citizens passed away.

William Swalm was of German parentage, being the son of Godfrey and Charity Swalm, who resided at Montgomery, Orange county, N. Y., where Mr. Swalm first saw the light of day December 8th, 1808. He spent his boyhood days at the place of his birth and left there when 18 years of age to take up his residence in New York city. While at the latter place be was married. He engaged in the butter business in Fulton Market and for twenty-one years he remained in that business. He afterward moved to Brooklyn, then to Sing Sing, then back to Brooklyn, and then to Plainfield.

During his residence in Brooklyn he was instrumental in organizing the Reformed Dutch church, which now stands at the corner of Harrison street and Tompkins place, and is used as a Jewish synagogue. He was also associated with Benj. A. Hegeman, Sr., as a member of the consistory of that church, and he alone gave $6,000 toward the church.

It might also be stated that he resided with his family for a time at Ellenville, N. Y, and was one of the delegates that was elected to help put in nomination Andrew Jackson for his second term for the Presidency. He also boasted that he cast his maiden vote for President Jackson. He was a strong Democrat.

It was always his boast that he had a personal acquaintance with General Lafayette, having met that distinguished personage at Newburgh-on-the Hudson.

When he moved to Plainfield he purchased the Ephraim Drake place at Evona, where he devoted his time to light farming. He lived there four years. He lived for nine years where he died, at the corner of Plainfield avenue and West Front street. Altogether he lived in Plainfield thirty years. He was a faithful churchman and when he came to this city it was through his means that Trinity Reformed church was organized.

During Mr. Swalm's connection with the church he filled the position of elder. He was always a faithful attendant and seldom absent.

In municipal matters Mr. Swalm took a great deal of interest. He served the city as a commissioner of appeal under Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, and he also served as one of the commissioners on streets. He was the last one of eleven children. He leaves a widow, who will be 84 years next April; three sons, Dr. W. F. Swalm, Everitt S. Swalm, of Brooklyn; Alburtis Swalm, of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. Pascal C. Burke, of Brooklyn. Four grandchildren survive him as follows: Walter Swalm, William A. Swalm and Clarence Swalm, of this city, and Mrs. Ida L. Thomas, of Brooklyn.

The funeral services will be held this evening from the house corner of Plainfield avenue and West Front street, at 8 o'clock, and Rev. Dr. Schenck will officiate. Interment will be in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn, tomorrow morning.

Rush is Over.

As the rush is over at Collector Martin's office for the present, his assistant, Miss Nevius, has concluded her work for the time being.

Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Coddington, of Newark, spent yesterday in Plainfield with relatives.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Convincing Proof.

The Average Plainfield Citizen Must Accept the Following Proof.

The great Sir Isaac Newton, one of the most profound reasoners the world ever produced, once cut a large hole in a board fence to allow a favorite cat access to two gardens, and cut a smaller hole to allow her kitten to follow her. The weakness manifested in Sir Isaac's action was due to want of thought. Any Plainfield citizen who mentally debates the proof offered here about Doan's Kidney Pills and arrives at any other conclusion than that stated in this citizen's statement, is as short of reasoning powers as the philosopher when he turned carpenter.

Mr. P. J. Krettling, proprietor of barber shop and cigar store, living at No. 253 West Front street, says:- "I had all kinds of pains in my back and loins for five or six years. Standing all day at a barber chair aggravated the difficulty very much. If I stooped and remained in that position a short time it was very hard to straighten again and if I attempted to lift anything heavy, twinges caught me in the back. I used different kinds of plasters but they did not relieve me. After reading several statements in my paper about Doan's Kidney Pills curing people similarly afflicted, I made up my mind to try a box and procured them, and after a short time was entirely relieved. Doan's Kidney Pills not only cured the pain but they strengthened my back. My wife was troubled in a similar way and was also cured by Doan's Kidney Pills. We both consider them a good medicine and will gladly recommend them to anyone suffering from symptoms of disordered kidneys."

DALY ON THE STAND

It Was on His Report That Miles Made Charges.

SAMPLES THROWN OVER

Quarters of Beef Were Hung About the Transports in the Sun Experimentally and They Spoiled, but None Were Issued as Rations and Their Doubtful Character Was Generally Known.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The Miles court of inquiry met yesterday, and after a brief executive session Col. Davis, the Recorder, called Dr. William H. Daly, of Pittsburg, to the stand. He was sworn and detailed his appointment in the army as Major and Chief Surgeon and his assignment to Gen. Miles' staff.

Col. Davis called Dr. Daly's attention to his report to the Major General commanding, in which he charged the use of chemicals in the preparation of refrigerated beef. After examining a copy of it, Dr. Daly pronounced it correct except as to the date. "The date, Sept. 21, is a mistake," said Dr. Daly. "I told the War Commission that my belief was that it should be Oct. 21, and I changed the date. This copy has been changed, and I think I changed it to Oct. 21 in Col. Garlington's office. After much thought on the matter I am now convinced that it should be about Oct. 14."

Col. Davis made an explanation to the court about the report, saying that he found reference in it to certain persons who had contracted with the Government.

"It would be unfair to Dr. Daly," he remarked, "to proceed further with him at this time, and unfair to those persons accused in the report, who should, according to law, be allowed to be present and hear his statements."

Col. Davis' remarks were accepted as an explanation of the propriety of allowing the beef packing firms to have their representatives present at the examination of Dr. Daly on the question relating to their contracts. Dr. Daly was told that he would be recalled, but for the present the court would proceed with his examination as to the alleged processed beef seen by him at Tampa, said to have been treated and placed on exhibition by a man of the name of Powell.

Speaking of his observations of a quarter of beef hanging on a transport at Tampa, Dr. Daly said his attention was called to it by Col. Weston, who, so far as he could remember, had said to him:

"This beef has been hanging in the sun for sixty hours, and we want to see what it will do."

He testified that Col. Weston did not tell him that the beef was there on exhibition, and therefore he took it for granted that it was a sample of the beef in the hold of the transport. He cut a small piece off the quarter, wrapped it up and later cooked it at a fire at the corral. It made him ill and brought to mind an illness of several years before, when he had eaten some elk and antelope preserved by him on a hunting trip in the West.

Dr. Daly again said that his recollection was that Col. Weston made no explanation to him about the quarter being merely on exhibition. He said that as late as December, when he met Col. Weston in the War Department and had a conversation with him about the quarter of beef, he received no impression that it was put there by an inventor, and was only on exhibition.

"What was your impression?" asked Col. Davis.

"My idea was that there was a supply of beef that was furnished to the United States by contractors; that it had to tide over the seventy-two hours called for in the contract; that the commissary of course had to see that it would keep that length of time, and that the quarter hanging up there was to prove this to the commissary officers. I did not view this with suspicion, but rather in the light of science, as something very desirable."

Reverting to his hunting trip in the West, he explained how the elk and antelope had been reserved by a preparation of salicylic and boric acid, and his illness after eating the elk and antelope he attributed to those chemicals. His illness at Tampa was just the same, and brought to mind the experience in the West.

Gen. Davis remarked: "Doctor, you say Col. Weston said to you that the quarter was put there to see what it would do, and you also say your impression was that it was not there as an experiment. Col. Davis' remark indicates something in the nature of a trial. How do you reconcile your impression with that?"

Dr. Daly ipsisted that he had no idea of an experiment. He had made no report on the result of his eating the cooked piece of meat and his illness, because at that time he had no suspicions whatever.

Capt. George H. Beckham of the Subsistence Department and Commissary of the cavalry brigade commanded by Gen. Sumner, was called to the stand. He was with his command at Tampa in June, and, replying to inquiries of Col. Davis, said that to his knowledge no beef was experimented with at Tampa, but on the transport going to Cuba there were four quarters of beef kept as an experiment.

"Where did you receive it?" asked Col. Davis.

"At Port Tampa," he replied.

"Who put it on board?"

"I don't know, but I received orders from Gen. Sumner to observe it and see how long it would keep. When received it was covered with gunny sacks. I did not know of its treatment, but was told that it was an experiment. The quarters were hung up, but spoiled and were thrown overboard. No part of this beef was eaten by any one on the vessel. I knew of no fresh beef on board for use by the troops except the four quarters mentioned and the canned roast beef. There must have been some for the cabin passengers, but, except the canned roast beef, there was no other fresh beef for the soldiers."

The next witness was Lieut. James A. Cole of the Sixth cavalry, a regiment in Gen. Sumner's brigade. He testified that on the day after boarding the transport Capt. Beckham came to him and stated that some well known firm of packers had requested him to distribute on board samples of a certain kind of beef that was intended to keep until time for its use in Cuba. A piece of this beef was turned over to Troop F and hung up on the ship and exposed to the sun. It stayed there about three days. At the end of seventy-two hours the troop's coop informed him that the beef was spoiling.

"I examined it and ordered it thrown overboard at once. The day after it had been issued I saw a piece of this kind of beef cooked. It was cooked in a troop other than my own. Capt. Beckham told me that the beef was no part of the ration, but was furnished without cost, and I considered the matter merely as an experiment. I heard the matter discussed after the beef had be thrown overboard, and one officer ventured the opinion that it had been frozen, but I doubt that, because the flesh was not unusually cold and was not hard." Lieut. Cole testified to eating canned roast beef on the transport, and did not regard it as unwholesome.

Col. Davis called the court's attention to the difference between the statements of Capt. Beckham and of Lieut. Cole, and suggested that the former had apparently forgotten to mention some of the circumstances about the distribution of the four quarters of beef. He thought it might be well to recall Capt. Beckman and allow him to listen to Lieut. Cole's remarks on this point. The suggestion was not acted upon, and Col. Gillespie, reverting to the canned roast beef, inquired about Lieut. Cole's opinion of it. Lieut. Cole said that he had eaten it twice in Cuba, made two meals of it and relished it.

Lieut. Col. H. H. Humphrey, Twenty-second Infantry, testified to securing several cans of canned roast beef in Cuba, and said he remembered seeing some of the refrigerated beef It was received with pleasure by the troops as a change, but a great deal of it spoiled, and the Subsistence Department tried to make up the deficiency by supplying canned roast beef, but this gave no satisfaction and the men could not eat it. Although this was very unsatisfactory as an article of food, he made no report on the matter, because the regimental commander was there to attend to any such complaints.

Replying to Gen. Davis, the witness said that the spoiling of the refrigerated beef and the unsuitability of the canned roast beef, in his opinion, left the men without adequate food. As to the refrigerated beef, it was brought up to the camps and dumped right on the polluted ground over which the troops and Cubans had trod. As to his own experience with canned roast beef, he had swallowed one forkful, the second gagged him. "I ate bacon after that," was his concluding remark.

Major Gen. J. F. Kent explained that he had command of a division in the operations before Santiago. Having been told that the men complained of the canned roast beef, that it was obnoxious to them and they sickened of it, he looked into the matter and recognized that no remedy could be applied, as there was nothing to take the place of the canned roast beef.

"What satisfaction did the refrigerated beef give?" he was asked.

"At Tampa it was excellent and a treat to the men. In Cuba it was not satisfactory for the reason that it frequently spoiled before the men received it," was Gen. Kent's reply. It would leave the refrigerator in the morning and sometimes it did not reach the camp until evening. This was due to the absolute insufficiency of transportation. At no time did he have any suspicion that it had been treated with chemicals.

Young Rockefeller in Business.

New York, Feb. 23.—John D. Rockefeller, who for years has been working modestly as a clerk in his father's office, earning $15 a week, it is said, has taken a great stride forward in the direction of the financial greatness that is to be his, if his father's plans, ably seconded by the son, are as well carried out in the future as in the past.

The sole male heir to the greatest fortune in the world was yesterday elected a director of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad. On this board he will be in touch with such men as Samuel Sloan, Eugene Higgins, John I. Blair, William W. Astor, William Rockefeller, Frederick W. Vanderbilt, and in addition to what he learn from them about the railroad business will come the pointers that he will pick up from W. H. Truesdale, now of the Rock Island road, who will be chosen president of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western in about a month.

At twenty-three years of age young Rockefeller starts upon his active career with practical training and backed by $300,000,000.

Old Guns from Cuba.

New York, Feb. 23.—A smelting firm in this city has received from Cuba during the past two weeks fifty of the oldest Spanish cannon on the island, ranging in weight from 500 tons to five tons, each one of solid bronze and each one with a history of its own. Fifty huge bells of bronze, all containing a considerable proportion of gold and silver, have also been received, and unless some one wants some of the pieces as curiosities the whole lot will be run into smelting pots before another month has passed.

In this lot are many cannon and bells over 200 years old. Nearly all are floridly decorated and inscribed. They bear the arms of Spain, some running back to the time of King Philip V.

The cannon were brought here on Ward line steamer and are now in the warehouse of the Terminal Warehouse Company at Thirteenth avenue and Twenty-eighth street. They were gathered from all parts of the island and make an interesting collection. The oldest is marked 1720.

Architect Perry Ousted.

Albany, Feb. 23.—There was a political fight in the Senate yesterday over the nomination of George Lewis Heins to be State Capitol Commissioner, to succeed Isaac G. Perry. It was reported to the Senate by the Finance Committee, Senators Grady, Douglass, Martin and Plunkitt dissenting.

The nomination was confirmed by a party vote.

Hanna's Man Beaten.

Cleveland, Feb. 23.—Mayor Robert E. McKisson, the young political rival of Senator Hanna, was renominated for Mayor of this city last night, defeating Judge Carlos M. Stone, the candidate favored by Mr. Hanna.

A TILT ON ARMOR PLATE

Hopkins of Illinois Tells Boutelle He Is Not the Whole Thing.

MEMBERS DESKS AT SALE

The Atmosphere is Not Sufficiently Cleared So a Safe Prediction Can Be Made as to the Fate of Some Bills and the Chances of an Extra Session. The President Firm in His Determination.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The situation with regard to the Army bill in the Senate has not changed. The deadlock between the Republicans and President McKinley on one hand, and the Democrats as a party on the other, continues and the result of the fight cannot be foretold. Yesterday was patriotic and eulogy day, and little progress was made in the discussion of the Army bill. Senator Wolcott, of Colorado, the leading orator of Congress, read from the Vice-President's desk Washington's farewell address, and a portion of the day was given up to the delivery of eulogies upon the life and character of the late Senator Morrill, of Vermont.

The speech of Senator Cockrell, regarding one of the compromise army measures, which the Democrats are endeavoring to force upon the Administration as a substitute for the Hull bill let the cat out of the bag so far as the politics in the situation is concerned. That the Democrats seek a political issue as the result of their attitude is clearly shown by these words of Mr. Cockrell: "We have no disposition to force an extra session and we have no intention of doing so. Every bill necessary for the successful administration of the executive branch of the Government can be passed at this session, if you do not force a continued discussion of the increase of the standing army.

"If an extra session is called," said Mr. Cockrell, emphatically, "it will be for the purpose of fastening upon the people of the United States a standing army of 100,000 men and adding enormously to the taxes which are already being wrung from the people."

This means that if the Republicans do not abandon the Hull bill the Democrats will prevent a vote upon it, and the Republicans must either withdraw it or permit the big appropriation bills to fail, thus making an extra session absolutely necessary. Senator Hawley, chairman of the Military Committee, has announced that "No terms but unconditional surrender" will be accepted, and thus the situation stands. President McKinley is determined that the army must be reorganized now, and if the Democrats stand by Cockrell the failure of the Hull bill is inevitable.

Senators and Representatives of influence are divided in opinion as to how or when the deadlock will be broken, and what the result will be.

Armor Plate Again.

Washington, Feb. 23.—After the reading of Washington's farewell address by the clerk, the House, in committee of the whole, resumed consideration of the naval appropriation bill. The pending matter was the point of order made by Mr. Hopkins, of Illinois, against the provision authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to pay $545 a ton for armor plate as being a change of the existing law, which authorizes the payment of but $400 a ton.

Mr. Boutelle said that the only effect of the point of order made by Mr. Hopkins would be to prevent the United States from using on its battleships the quality of armor that every other civilized nation in the world was purchasing for its ships. Mr. Boutelle fiercely denounced Hopkins for his action, saying that it was pure obstruction, the outgrowth of neither statesmanship nor wisdom, but of demagogy. Hopkins said in reply that if to insist upon orderly procedure under the rules offended the gentleman from Maine he (Hopkins) preferred to stand by the rules.

"As able and powerful as the gentleman from Maine is," Hopkins said, "the House is not willing to concede that he is the whole thing, painful as it may be to him to have it said."

Chairman Sherman overruled Hopkins' point of order upon the authority of a decision made by himself last year upon a similar provision in the naval bill, then under consideration, for the reason that it was a mere limitation upon the expenditures of the appropriation carried in the bill.

Mr. Underwood, of Alabama, offered an amendment providing that the Government should build an armor plate plant of its own.

Representative Boutelle made a point of order against the amendment. In the course of an animated colloquy between Boutelle and Underwood the former admitted that out of the increase of $145 a ton for the Krupp armor $45 or $50 a ton was to be paid to the patentees as royalties. The amendment had not been disposed of when the committee of the whole rose.

Desks as Souvenirs.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The proposed remodelling of the House of Representatives during the intervals between the meeting of the two Congresses brings up the question of the disposition of the old desks, which are to be done away with. It is proposed to give each Representative the desk at which he sat during the past session to take home as a souvenir of his public service.

Some of the desks have been made famous by men prominent in the affairs of the nation, but who are not now in Congress, and a number of these have made anxious inquiries to learn if they cannot secure their old desks. They suggest that the desks be put up for sale at public auction, so that they may have a chance. One of these old desks was once occupied by President McKinley when he was in Congress.

Kipling Dangerously Ill.

New York, Feb. 23.—Rudyard Kipling is critically ill with pneumonia in the Hotel Grenoble, Seventh avenue and Fifty-seventh street. At midnight he was unconscious. Although his attack dates only from last Monday evening, when he got a cold, his condition yesterday was viewed with such alarm as to require a consultation of physicians, and Dr. E. G. Janeway was called in by Dr. Theodore Dunham, the physician first summoned by Mrs. Kipling.

PENNSYLVANIA ELECTIONS.

Philadelphia Gives the Republican Candidate an Unprecedented Plurality.

Philadelphia, Feb. 23.—The exact plurality for Ashbridge, the Republican candidate for Mayor in Monday's election, is 118,766, the largest ever given a candidate for the office. He carried every ward in the city, and his total vote, 143,204, is the heaviest vote ever given a candidate in the city except the candidates for President. The vote for Hoskins, the Democratic opponent of Ashbridge, was 23,438, the smallest vote accorded a candidate of that party for a city office in many years. The total vote was less than that cast for Mayor since 1887, the certainty of success of the Republican ticket causing a lack of interest.

Both branches of the new City Council will, as heretofore, have overwhelming Republican majorities, and in nearly all the wards the Republican candidates for school directors were successful.

The elections throughout the state show mixed results, the general trend being Republican. In Reading, nominally Democratic by 600 to 800 majority, Leader, Republican, is elected Mayor by 65 majority. Chester elected Jeffries, Republican, Mayor by 320 majority over Ross, Independent Republican, who was indorsed by the Democrats. Harrisburg gave Fritchey, Democrat, for Mayor, a majority of 250, though in November last the city was carried by the Republicans by 1,100 majority. Shippensburg gave a large majority in favor of local option.

Lebanon county elected Dr. Weiss, an anti-Quay Republican, to fill a vacancy in the Legislature, and Cumberland country elects Manning, Democrat, to the Legislature to succeed his father, who died a few weeks ago.

In several towns in the state the vote is so close that the results cannot yet be correctly stated. The women candidates for school directors were defeated by their male competitors. At Snydertown three women ran on the Democratic ticket for school directors, but received a small vote. Mrs. Kline received 17 votes, while her husband was one of the three successful Republican candidates.

SENATOR QUAY'S CONTEST.

Mitchell Refers to the Forces as Republicans, Democrats and Insurgents.

Harrisburg, Feb. 23.—A few more members of the House and Senate yesterday joined the stragglers who have been here since Saturday, and gave to the joint session a semblance of something more than a farce, but as many of the arrivals were paired with absent members, the total vote did not show any great change.

Senator Mitchell, of Jefferson, said to-day that the Quay men would never surrender; that they represented the principle of majority rule, and that under the circumstances it would be folly to yield an inch. When it was suggested that all factions of the Republican party would be living together in harmony before the close of the year, he said that this could only happen through the election of Senator Quay.

"There are twenty-five or thirty Democrats who are at heart with us," said a Quay leader, "and they don't need to vote for Senator Quay to accomplish his election. All that would be necessary would be for them to remain in the joint session when the rest of the Democrats and insurgents walked out for the purpose of breaking a quorum and the result would be Senator Quay's election. There are at least 107 men who are sure to vote for Quay through thick and thin, and twenty Democrats remaining in their seats and voting for Jenks would constitute a quorum and give Senator Quay victory. It might also happen some day that after the Democrats had retired to assist the insurgents in breaking a quorum, twenty or more would return to their seats and do the trick."

It is believed that some such scheme as this is contemplated, and that explains the anxiety of some Democrats to have the joint caucus recalled, so that they can make trouble, and if possible, get away from Jenks. It would require a two-thirds vote in the Democratic caucus to change to Jenks, and a majority of the executive committee must vote to recall the caucus. Prominent Democrats say that there is danger of a break from Jenks.

Can't Stop Celebrating.

Albany, Feb. 22.—Gov. Roosevelt celebrated Washington's Birthday by signing Assemblyman Cornelius F. Collins' bill to prevent the mutilation of the flag. The bill adds a new subdivision to Section 640 of the Penal Code, which provides that any person who in any manner, for exhibition or display, places or causes to be placed any inscription, design, device, symbol, name, advertisement, words, characters, marks or notice whatever upon any flag, standard, color or ensign of the United States or State flag of this State or ensign evidently purporting to be either of said flags, any inscription, design, device, symbol, name, advertisement, words, marks, notice or token whatever, or who publicly mutilates, tramples under, or otherwise defaces or defiles any of said flags, standards, colors or ensigns, whether any of said flags, standards, colors or ensigns are public or private property, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

Wages Advanced Ten Per Cent.

Allentown, Feb. 23.—Notice has been posted at all the plants of the Thomas Iron Company notifying the employes that their wages have been advanced 10 per cent. The increase dates from Feb. 16, the last pay day of the company being on Feb. 15.

The company is overrun with orders. This is the first order increasing wages that has been issued in the Lehigh Valley for many years. Potts Brothers will increase puddlers' rates to $2.50 per ton in their big mill at Pottstown on April 1. Other employes will also receive an advance in their wages.

New York, Feb. 23.—Joseph H. Choate, the new Ambassador to the Court of St. James, sailed for England yesterday on the American line steamship St. Paul. With him went his wife, his daughter and his son, Joseph H. Choate, Jr. Many of Mr. Choate's friends gathered on the steamship before she sailed to bid him good-by, and cheers were given for him as she moved out into the river.

SET MANILA ON FIRE

Repels Tried to Destroy the City but Failed.

NATIVE UPRISING CHECKED

The Visayans Not in Sympathy With the Tagalos and Offer to Raise an Army of 100,000 to Assist the Americans to Subdue the Island of Luzon—Representatives Banqueted by Americans.

MANILA, Feb. 23—7.30 A. M.—There was an outbreak of incendiarism, accompanied by fighting, in Manila last evening.

The casualties were few, but the property loss is enormous.

Notwithstanding the close watch that has been kept upon the natives in the city, they, as the result of a conspiracy among their leaders, attempted last night to destroy Manila with fire. In order to make sure of success the incendiaries planned to start the fire in three different quarters of the city, believing that the flames would soon get beyond control and that they would then have a chance to kill the foreigners here and pillage their property.

Santa Cruz, San Nicolas and Tondo were the quarters selected for the starting of the fires, and those who were chosen to apply the torch did their work only too well. In a short time after the fires were discovered the flames had spread to such an extent that the destruction of the city was threatened.

The troops and foreign residents worked manfully to check the fires, but it was not until this morning that the flames were under control and the city was out of danger. It is estimated that the loss will be very heavy.

During the confusion attendant upon the work of fighting the fire, native sharpshooters who were concealed in the vicinity of the burning quarters fired upon the troops. In the Tondo quarter seven members of the Minnesota regiment were wounded, including Capt. N. C. Robinson, of Company C.

There was the wildest excitement among the natives, and they were primed for a general uprising. Strong guards were stationed everywhere about the town, and the natives were awed into submission by the show of force.

Matters are quieting down at the time this dispatch is sent.

Manila, Feb. 22.—Great satisfaction is felt by the American authorities at the news of the submission of the inhabitants of the island of Negros to American rule and the voluntary raising of the Stars and Stripes there. This action on the part of the natives of that island is regarded here as the entering wedge by which the occupation of the entire Visayan group will be speedily accomplished. Senor Lacson, President of the Negros native Government, which is now styled the Canton Federal Americano, is the chief of the Negros Commission which arrived here on board the transport Newport on Monday night to offer the allegiance of the inhabitants of the island and ask American protection. The Commission had an interview with Gen. Otis yesterday.

Senor Lacson says that the inhabitants of the island of Cebu are also ready to accept American rule, and declares that there is little sympathy between the Visayas and the Tagalos. He offers to raise an army of 100,000 Visayans to assist the Americans to fight the Tagalos in the island of Luzon. The Commissioners while here will be the guests of the American Government.

The Negros Commissioners were interviewed in a body this afternoon. They said: "We have put ourselves unreservedly in the hands of the Americans, relying upon their sense of right and justice regarding our form of government. Aguinaldo twice asked us to join him, but we declined. Crowds of people were present at the raising of the American flag at Bacolod, the capital of the island, on Saturday, and sent up cheer after cheer while the bands played. Our people are unanimous in favor of American government, and we will use our influence to have the people of the other islands accept American rule."

The Nebraskans this morning drove a force of 300 Filipinos three miles to Pasig, killing many of them. Twenty-one of their dead were found on the field. Of our men none was killed and only three wounded. They are John Alley, of Company D; Alonzo Groverick, of Company M, and Charles Pike, of Company K, First Nebraska Infantry.

A prisoner captured by the Nebraskans confirms the report that the insurgent leaders threaten death to natives who refuse to take up arms against the Americans. Under this threat many pacificos have recently been impressed into the native army in the province of Manila.

The English banks observed Washington's Birthday by closing their establishments to-day.

Arms Were Impounded.

Hong Kong, Feb. 23.—Through the efforts of Consul General Wildman, who discovered 20,000 rifles and 2,000,000 cartridges stored on lighters at Nankin ready for shipment to the Filipinos, the insurgents have been deprived of these most valuable munitions of war.

Consul General Wildman induced the Chinese authorities to impound these arms. The loss of them was a terrible blow to Aguinaldo.

These munitions of war were obtained in Japan by extraordinary official connivance. The Japanese Government sold them to the regular agent of the Filipinos at Yokohama, although for appearances a form of auction was used. The Japanese officials offered 100,000 rifles, with appliances for loading amunition, for sale last September, and the Filipinos took advantage of this opportunity recently.

CUBAN CITIES GREET GOMEZ.

The General is Expected to Arrive in Havana Friday.

Havana, Feb. 23.—The Board of Aldermen yesterday considered proposals for the reception of Gen. Gomez upon his arrival here. It was proposed to give a banquet in honor of the old Cuban General, and this called forth violent speeches for and against the proposition. Dr. Nunez, who proposed the banquet, waxed eloquent in defense of his plan, but Drs. San Martin, Cowley and Zayas vehemently declared that it would not be humane for the municipality to spend money for a banquet while thousands of poor were dying of hunger in Cuba. They added that Gen. Gomez himself would appreciate the people of Havana all the more if the money was given to the starving. Senors Aguero, Berriz and others said that the city owed a great reception to Gen. Gomez, and they supported the banquet idea.

Other members of the board opposed the proposition, and a row ensued. Finally Dr. Nunez appeased the Aldermen by proposing that each man who attended the banquet should pay his share of the expenses. This proposition was adopted. The board also agreed that Gen. Gomez should preside at a solemn session on Feb. 24, and that afterward there should be a great procession. A resolution was unanimously adopted asking Gov.-Gen. Brooke to declare Feb. 24 a national holiday.

Gen. Gomez is at Matanzas, where a banquet was given in his honor at the Esteban Theatre. He says that Gen. Wilson, the Military Governor of Matanzas, is a great and noble American, whose policy is to maintain harmony between the Cubans and the Americans. Gen. Wilson declares that the Americans are friends, not conquerors, and that the American people recognize the independence of Cuba. This is the only way, Gen. Gomez says, to establish a definite peace and prepare the Cubans to rule themselves.

Gen. Wilson says that Gen. Gomez understands better than any Cuban he has heretofore met the true nature of the intervention of the United States in Cuba. Gen. Wilson attended the banquet, and he and Gen. Gomez received an ovation.

The Cuban Assembly met yesterday at Marianao. A dispatch was read from Gen. Gomez, in which he said that he supported the policy of the Assembly, and announced that he would leave Matanzas for Mariano on Thursday and would spend a day with the Assembly.

It is the General's intention to enter Havana on Friday. The Assembly resolved to hold a session on Saturday to decide, with the aid of Gen. Gomez, the question of the payment of the Cuban army.

There was a review of the American yesterday by Generals Brooke, Lee and Ludlow. All the Government offices were closed in honor of the day. Gen. Brooke held a reception at La Vedado. Gen. Ludlow also held a reception, and Gen. Lee gave a dinner at Buena Vista. Twenty-one guns were fired from the Morro and from Cabana.

PARIS FEARS AN OUTBREAK.

Rumors of Serious Political Events to Occur at M. Faure's Funeral.

Paris, Feb. 23.—The police have seized 10,000 Orleanist medals at the engraving establishment of Cartaux. Premier Dupuy has forbidden the League of Patriots to attend the funeral to-day, while the Free Masons will be permitted to take part in the procession. The police have been ordered to seize all seditious emblems and to disperse all groups in the streets.

Rumors are current that serious events are likely to occur at the obsequies to-day, and the necessary precautions have consequently been taken. M. Pelletau, Radical-Socialist Deputy for Aix, has warned Premier Dupuy and M. de Freycinet, Minister of War, that the Cesarians will attempt a coup de force during the progress of the procession.

The Gaulois positively denies the truth of the report that the Duke of Orleans is in hiding in Paris.

The paper also asserts that the judges of the Court of Cassation will go to the Cathedral of Notre Dame in closed carriages upon the occasion of President Faure's funeral to-morrow, fearing an attack by the mob, and for the same reason they will not be present at the burial in the cemetery of Pere Lachaise.

The President's message to the Chambers is received by the French press in exact accordance with the prejudices of the respective journals. The anti-Revision papers find nothing good in it, while the genuine Republican organs welcome M. Loubet's attitude.

Anti-Bunco Law in Connecticut.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 23.—Connecticut's Legislature will be asked next week to pass a law that will prevent the spectators at prize fights from being swindled by irresponsible managers. The recent failure of the managers of athletic clubs to give the advertised matches between Conroy and Maher, at Bridgeport, and between Connolly and Matthews here, and also to return the admission fee to the spectators, has given pugilism a knockout blow unless the sport can be placed in responsible hands.

The bill which will be introduced in the Legislature will provide that a heavy bond must be placed with municipal authorities by every manager of a pugilistic exhibition.

Bob Burdette to Marry.

Toledo, Ohio, Feb. 23.—Robert J. Burdette, the humorist, will be married before Easter to Mrs. P. C. Baker, of Pasadena, Cal., a woman of wealth, well known on the Coast. The ceremony will be performed in Pasadena.

The bride elect has one son about the age of Mr. Burdette's son.

Senator Depew Well Again.

New York, Feb. 23.—Senator Depew has recovered from his attack of laryngitis and will journey to Chicago to-day. On Friday night he will deliver the oration at the convention of railroad employes in that city which was postponed from last Saturday because of the Senator's illness.

Bennington at Manila.

Washington, Feb. 22.—Admiral Dewey telegraphed to the Navy Department of the arival of the gunboat Bennington at Manila. The Bennington is one of the vessels so urgently desired by Admiral Dewey to visit the Philippine ports which are inaccessible to cruisers and other ships of heavy draught.

LIFE IN THE CONGO.

ALL THE NEGROES ARE LAZY BUT THE WIVES DO THE WORK.

Peculiar Custom of the Natives Who Have Marriageable Daughters—A Prospective Bridegroom Has to Pay for the Girl of His Choice a Good Price.

Mrs. Martha Nehme, a missionary to Africa, now sojourning in this country for her health, relates this strange story of the customs of the people among whom she labors:

"In the French Congo the advent of a girl baby is hailed with joy. Already the heads of the family consider the possible addition to their treasury when this baby arrives at a suitable age to be married. The care of the little girl falls to its mother and aunts, and the infant life is free from care until the little girl is seven or eight years of age. Then the poor little thing is made a beast of burden, always carrying as heavy a load as possible, helping with planting and harvesting, and assisting with the cooking. Her clothing consists of a strip of cloth tied around the waist with a string. This strip increases in size as the girl grows older, but it is worn only down to the knees until she gets married. Sometimes the cloth is plain, not even sewed, but oftener it is trimmed with home-made fringe and borders of different colors, red, yellow, green and blue being preferred.

"In some cases the relatives promise the girl in infancy to some old man who has a dozen wives already, but oftener the girl has her freedom until twelve or fourteen years old. At this time her people cast about for a bridegroom, and to attract the young men of the neighborhood, or old men either, they put the girl on exhibition. It is lots of fun for the girl, and the nicest time of her life.

"A platform is erected at one end of a new hut, and the girl reclines upon it. Four to eight other young girls are called to attend to her every wish and to invite the men of the neighboring towns. This is done by means of a piece of red chalk. The girls visit the towns, and if they see a suitable man they approach him and put a red mark upon him. This puts him under obligation to visit the young would-be bride that evening. If the man fails to appear, the girls who invited him visit him again, and he must give a small present for the bride. A hunter, a fisherman and a jackwash are at the disposal of the bride. Her food is the best in the country, and is prepared for her. She is carried about by her friends, and is not allowed to touch her feet to the ground. She is dressed in all her finery, with rings on her arms up to her elbows and heavy rings about her ankles. Her face is painted with red and white chalk, and her whole body shines like a mirror from the generous application of palm oil. She amuses herself by rubing the rings together, and the grating noise seems not to affect her nerves in the least. At night there are dances to draw a crowd. This exhibition may be kept up for six months or even longer, according to the wealth of the family. At last a big dance is given, and the bride-elect with her bridesmaids goes the rounds of all her friends, dancing before them and receiving gifts.

"The preliminaries finished, the price will be settled upon. Two hundred yards of calico, six gallons of rum, one gun and a few small articles, such as knives, mirrors, spoons, beads, forks, plates, cups, are sufficient to buy the nicest kind of a wife. The bridegrrom pays the rum, forty yards of cloth and some of the smaller things, and then the girl can go with him to his home. If he cares for her, he soon pays the balance, but if they cannot get along it ends in a divorce. The man sends his wife back, and her family return the purchase money.

Polly Rebukes the Parson.

An American gentleman had a parrot named Kate. She had a splendid time of it, for she was never kept in a cage. She was so tame that there was never any fear of her coming back to her owners, and she flew about wherever she liked. She could talk very well, and sometimes her speeches were quite uncannily clever and very amusing. Here is one of the stories her owner told me about Kate:

Kate used to sit on the mantel while the father of the family said grace, and he always used the same form of thanks, the parrot got so that he knew it by heart. One day the minister took tea at the house, and, of course, the father asked him to say grace. Kate was on the mantel, as usual, and before the preacher had finished his last sentence, she shouted,

"That ain't right!"

The parson went on, but Kate kept shouting, "That ain't right!" at him until he finished, when she flew to the father's shoulder and said coaxingly,

"Pa, you say it!"

The father asked the blessing to please the parrot, and when he got through, Kate perched herself on the preacher's chair and muttered:

"That's the way to say it."

The parson was a very serious man, but the parrot's caper amused him greatly.

An Ill Omen.

The Newport home at which occurred the Vanderbilt-Whitney nuptials is called "The Breakers." It seems rather unfair to handicap the newly wedded couple with such a suggestive forecast of their matrimonial experiences in the near future.

A Difference.

"Madge, you've been maried unhaplily once; do you risk it again?"

"Well, you see, this is another man."

All About the New County Idea.

Once again The Daily Press acknowledges the publication of news in an out-of-town paper concerning Plainfield that we confess complete ignorance of. As might be suspected, it concerns the project of forming a new county, with Plainfield for the county seat. The New Brunswick Times, which is Democratic, has been looking into the subject, and presents these startling revelations:

It would seem that the Republican bosses in every section of every county of the State are putting in all their time hatching up partisan schemes. The latest suggestion of these sharpies is to erect a new county out of parts of Union, Somerset and Middlesex. The project has already been referred to in The Times. It is planned to take a part of Middlesex including South Plainfield, New Market and Dunellen. Greater Plainfield, comprising Plainfield and North Plainfield, the latter being in Somerset county, is to be the county seat of the new county. It is needless to say that the proposed border lines of the county have been arranged so as to make it almost certain that the new county would be very strongly Republican. It would have a made-to-order Republican majority that would make it almost certain that the county's representatives in the State Legislature would be Republican. That is one of the reasons why the present Republican Legislature is expected to give favorable consideration to the scheme. The enterprise, however, is so plainly an unnecessary bit of partisan gerrymandering that its chances of success are not considered especially good, particularly as Middlesex, Somerset and Union counties, naturally enough, are opposed to being deprived of such valuable slices of territory.

In the past we have prided ourselves on the fact that we could see "a nigger in the woodpile" as far off as the ordinary run of human beings, but The Times goes us one better in this case.

The Times seems to have an opinion that the present Legislature is highly favorable to a new county. If such is really the case, we are glad to hear it. But as much as we would like to foster and propogate such a thought till it becomes a certainity, we believe The Times to be way off in its calculations in this particular. In an editorial from the Hackensack Record, republished in our columns today, it will be noticed that the esteemed Hackensack editor disagrees with the view of The Times with considerable confidence.

It looks as though all efforts to change the system of drawing grand and petit jurors would be futile at the present Legislative session. The Jury Commission bill does not meet the favor apparently of the political powers in the several counties. The bill places in the hands of two men, whose only compensation is to be $3 per day for about 10 days in the year, the power of selecting the grand and petit jurors.

PHASES OF THE CONTEST IN THE PHILIPPINES.

This picture shows where the fighting between American soldiers and the Filipinos began. Colonel Smith is the gallant officer who succumbed to an attack of apoplexy while at his station on the firing line. The Igorrote warriors are brave, but, equipped as they are with crude weapons, they were mowed down by the Americans.

Assemblyman Hall introduced a bill in the Legislature that sporting men hope will be passed. It is to allow alleged amateur athletic clubs to have boxing bouts. If the bill is passed a club will be formed in Hudson county and such "amateurs" as Fitzsimmonds, Sharkey, Corbett, McCoy and Jeffries will appear in "friendly" 20-round bouts, and an admission fee of from $5 up will be charged.

Speaking of military drill in schools the Jersey City Journal has this to say: "There are ten millions of boys in this country, and seven millions of these are attending schools. Nearly four millions of these are old enough to be taught military drill. It would be a good thing for the boys and a good thing for the country if military drill was made a part of the public school curriculum."

The Westfield Leader says that "Director Hubbard, of the Union County Board of Freeholders, evidently is opposed to the bill providing for jury trials in condemnation proceedings for the County Boulevard and trolley road. He is reported to have been working against the bill in Trenton Monday night."

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Thanks and greeting to the Plainfield Press. Evidently we have tread upon its toes. When you say Plainfielders consider Hackensack as a "jumping off place," you reflected upon your own people but builded better than you knew. More people get off our two trains at Hackensack than any place along the lines. Our sense of propriety forbids a comparison with Plainfield. The information contained in The Record, referred to by The Press, was obtained directly from one who knows more of the possibilities on the subject, than the esteemed editor criticising, and who will have more influence in the manipulation of any law that may cause Plainfield to change its spots. Perhaps we had no right to comment on the future of what Hackensack people look upon as one of New Jersey's most delightful suburban municipalities and if we have trespassed on forbidden ground, pardon we pray.—Hackensack Record.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Although the fire gong, which blows at 12 o'clock noon and 5 o'clock, is not infallible, yet the clock that governs it seems to give the time for the city. No matter where people are or what they are doing, whether they are in church, at home, out calling or on the street, the moment that gong blows out come their watches for comparison. No matter how important or how solemn the occasion may be, it is the same.

A story is told of a prominent borough resident who used to have a great habit of turning out to fires, no matter what hour the borough fire bell rang. His wife greatly objected to his rousing the household in the middle of the night to rush to a fire, and determined to break him of the habit. The week of the blizzard, it will be remembered, there was a big fire out Duer street late one night when a residence was destroyed by the flames. When the alarm bell rang this citizen hopped out of bed and prepared to don his raiment and hasten to the scene of the conflagration. When it came to putting on his trousers, that very necessary part of his wardrobe was not to be found. Not caring to wear his best trousers to the fire the citizen finally gave up, whereupon his wife soon discovered the missing trousers in a convenient hiding place. She now believes that she has discovered an effective way of keeping her husband at home on such occasions.

South Jersey may lay claim to many quaint characters, possessing more or less unique environments, and certainly one of them is the eccentric figure known in parts of Cumberland country as "Bedaddle Bedike"—a queer chap, from whom it would not be difficult to imagine, the veteran Joseph Jefferson may well have received the inspiration of his dressing of Rip Van Winkle. This modern "Rip" occupies a sort of latter-day "Wolfert's Roost" in the woods near Millville N. J., whence he sallies only in search of occasional jobs, for "Bedike," whose Christian name is Sam Woolford, is by intermittent occupation a hog killer. The shanty he occupies he erected himself, it is said, and it is further averred by the folk of Cumberland county that "Bedike" once had a wife, as did also "Rip," who left him because of his vague, uncertain ways. Albeit no legend connects him with a mystical spell of years-long sleep, yet much of mystery surrounds the coming and going of this peculiar denizen of the woods, who bears his familiar cognomen because of a habit of continually ejaculating "Bedaddle! Bedike!" in his none too frequent conversations with his fellows.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, Feb. 23 — Rev. Frank Fletcher was in attendance at the council of Baptist ministers of the East New Jersey Baptist Association which met at the Park Avenue Baptist church, Plainfield, Tuesday afternoon to examine George Poole, of Oak Tree, for ordination as a minister.

The borough election will be held March 14th. The only office about which there will be any fighting is that of Mayor, and there is not much prospect of any trouble over that.

The Bound Brook car burned out Tuesday soon after the trolley road was opened, and a car from Plainfield had to be substituted.

John Fisher, Corporal in Co. H, 3d N. J. Vols., attended the reception tendered his company at Somerville yesterday.

Many people from here attended the Plainfield Street Railway employes' ball at Plainfield Tuesday night.

A crowd of people went to Bound Brook yesterday to attend the exercises of Washington Camp Association.

Miss Mary Coleman, of New Brunswick, was a guest of friends in the borough Tuesday.

Mrs. Josephine Dunham, of Church street, is visiting Mrs. Hudson Lovell, of Jersey City.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stephens spent yesterday visiting friends and relatives at Califon.

John Runyon and William H. Terry spent Tuesday visiting friends in Plainfield.

NEW MARKET

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press)

New Market, Feb. 23—Tonight Lakeside Council, D. of L., will hold a dime sociable for the members and their friends in Friendship Hall. Progressive games will be the feature of the evening followed by light refreshments and a short dance.

The Farther Light Society will meet Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William Giles.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 23—Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock begins what promises to be one of the most successful fairs and bazaars ever held in the village. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the public library. Of course every one in town is interested in it. The young ladies of the village have planned and arranged the whole affair. The fair will open with an address by John O. Wilson, of New York city, a former resident of the town and one who still has an interest in the town of his birth. Mr. Wilson will take for his subject "Scotch Plains Sixty Years Ago."

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. M., celebrated their fifth anniversary in their lodge rooms Tuesday evening. A very pleasing programme, consisting of phonographic selections, recitations and selections by the orchestra, was rendered. After the entertainment the council room was cleared for dancing, and the members and their friends tripped "the light fantastic toe" to the strains of Guttman's orchestra until near midnight.

Norman Dunn is quite ill at his home on Mountain avenue. During his illness Miss Emma Clark, his able assistant, is taking full charge of the postoffice.

Louis Allen, a former Scotch Plains boy, but now a resident of Hackensack, was married Tuesday evening to a Jersey City belle.

Rev. Mr. Shott and family took formal possession of the Baptist parsonage yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schwalbach have taken the flat over Mrs. Cleaver's store.

Miss Amy Cook is entertaining her cousin, Miss Wagoner, of Madison.

It has been fully demonstrated that Ely's Cream Balm is a specific for Nasal Catarrh and cold in the head. This distinction has been acheived only as the result of continued successful use. A morbid condition of the membrane in the nasal passages can be cured by this purifying and healing treatment. Sold by druggists or will be mailed for 50 cents by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York. It spreads over the membrane, is absorbed and relief is immediate.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another great discovery has been made, and that, too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night, and with two bottles has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

Regular size 50c. and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Feb. 23—The Board of Education have called a special meeting for Monday evening, March 6th to be held in the Westfield Club hall for the purpose of acting on the proposition to buy a tract of ground at the corner of Elm and Orchard streets for the proposed new primary school building. An appropriation will also be asked for to build a new school house in Mountainside borough. The cost of the two buildings, with grounds, is not to exceed $40,000 and part of this will be covered by the money to be raised by the sale of the present school building on Prospect street.

The social event of the season in this town took place last evening when the Westfield Club gave its annual entertainment and Colonial dance. The large hall was comfortably filled when the curtain rose on the first part, which consisted of singing by the chorus, a vocal solo by Miss Ada Sergeant, mandolin solo by Adolph Ganzel, quartette by Miss Ada Sergeant, Mrs. Herman Naething, Harry Harbison and Mr. Angleman, of Plainfield. The second part of the entertainment was a monologue, entitled "Washington's Reception" and was written expressly for the occasion by Lawrence Bogert, one of the club members.

The Township Committee will hold a meeting Saturday evening for the purpose of further considering the application of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railroad Company for a franchise for a trolley road on Mountain avenue.

Tax collector has received from County Superintendent W. J. Shearer a check for $400.67, which is Westfield's share of the 10 per cent reserve fund of the State school tax.

The ladies' prizes were won by Miss Mary Fraleigh and Miss Florence Spaulding. Charles Close and R. Harman Ashley were the winners among the sterner sex. Dancing followed the euchre.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. THE HAPPY FAMILY.

MRS. BEECHER DOES NOT RECOGNIZE SUPREMACY IN MAN.

She Believes in a Certain Equality Between Man and Wife, Though They Occupy Widely Different Spheres in the Household.

The best traits in a young man's character will naturally be revealed when, after intimate acquaintance with a young lady, his interest in her ripens into deep affection and an earnest desire to win hers in return. If at length this interest becomes mutual, with no desire to make a false impression or to appear better than they really are, both are likely to manifest the best and most lovable traits in their characters. For love, if true, softens and refines the daily life.

With the lover is this most emphatically the case. To him no effort is burdensome by which he can gratify her slightest wish. Every act of self-denial for her sake increases his happiness. But when the prize is won and the twain are made one—how is it then? Will all the kind and thoughtful, the sweet and graceful courtesies grow brighter and holier as the years roll by? Will the respectful attention and honor every true gentleman gives to woman be even more scrupulously given to the wife? If so, "then will sweet peace wreathe her chain round them forever," and the love born in youth will grow deeper and more sacred with the coming years.

But there can be no hope of true happiness in any household if marriage brings indifference, or the husband feels released through a sense of ownership from giving the wife the attention and politeness he was so ready to bestow before marriage. The first year of married life is no doubt in in some respects the most trying and critical. During the period of courtship and engagement young people do not really become fully acquainted with each other, because they then live largely in an unnatural atmosphere. There is a fairy-like spell upon them, which tends to hide, without the least intention of deceiving, all disagreeable or inharmonious peculiarities of character—and everybody has some. Life is then calm and beautiful, and in this new joy they are lifted above the many frets and infelicities that are apt to irritate and disturb in common life.

Many young people enter the married relation thoroughly ignorant of the duties connected with the new life upon which they have apparently thoughtlessly entered. The husband naturally understands what is right and honorable in his intercourse with the men with whom he may be associated. But, especially if he is so unfortunate as to have no sisters, he often appears to have no idea of the respect and attention which every wife has a right to expect, and which he as an honorable man is bound to give. I claim for wives respect and attention even beyond what a true gentleman will give to any other woman. I also claim that wives are bound by the same law, or true happiness and a true home can never be realized.

Both should be affable, courteous and kind-hearted to all with whom they associate, lacking in no kind and obliging act that can make all that come under their influence happy. But for each other, whose lives are now united, there should be respect and affection beyond what is ever seen in their intercourse with others, however worthy and well-beloved.

Unless children, growing up under parental guidance, learn by their parents' example the sacredness of the obligations assumed by marriage, the records of crime and cruelty that fill our daily papers will continue and happy homes will be "like angels' visits, few and far between."

I have written on this subject by earnest request and my only wish is that it should be understood that this manner of securing domestic happiness should be regarded as applicable to both parties. I beg for unity between husband and wife, not only in thought but in purpose. All rules for governing their lives, bound together as they are by their marriage vows, should be accepted by both unitedly. I have no battle to wage about man's supremacy or woman's rights. I simply claim that they should equally labor together for one purpose, the welfare of each, the building of their homes, working as one in spirit, but each taking that part best adapted to the abilities given. I long to see those united in this most sacred relation governed by the law of kindness and confiding love, to see the respect and courtesies that are bestowed on strangers and acquaintances blossom into riper and more tender respect and attention when bestowed on each other.

Through the Chilkoot Pass.

Some idea of the hardships attending a journey over the Chilkoot Pass on the way to the Klondike can be gained from this picture. A man with a team of horses has earned as much as $100 a day transporting the outfits of miners and an Indian who owned seven dogs made $75 a day. The dogs were not attached to a sled but portions of the outfit were strapped on their backs. A good strong dog carries ten pounds and as the rate is 20 cents a pound and often times more it can readily be seen that the Alaska canine has good earning power.

Fastest Warship Afloat.

England claims to have the fastest warship afloat in the new torpedo boat destroyer Whiting. She made 32:8 knots on her trial run and the accompanying picture was made from a photograph taken during the wonderful trip.

H.M.S. WHITING FASTEST DESTROYER.

The Whiting carries a crew of 53 men and cost $250,000 to build. Her sea power will shortly be tested as she is to be sent on a long voyage to the British naval station in the China sea. She is of 300 tons displacement; length 210 feet; beam 21 feet 7 inches, draught 5 feet 8 inches and indicated horse power 6,000. She carries a 12 pounder and 5 six pounders and is fitted with two torpedo tubes.

Hiervon entfallen auf landesfürstliche Steuern 38,071,818 Gulden, Landesumlagen 8,454,061 Gulden, städtische Umlagen 19,255,846 Gulden, Gewölbwachebeiträge 59,705 Gulden, Handelskammerbeiträge 184,150 Gulden, Gewerbeschulbeiträge 138,068 Gulden. Die Summe der reinen Empfänge ist um 7,681,091 Gulden höher als im Jahre 1897.—Im Ministerium des Innern ist bereits mit den Vorarbeiten für die nächste Volkszählung im Jahre 1900 begonnen worden.

Bozen. Fürst Scipio Borghese gerieth bei einem Versuch der Besteigung der Adamello-Spitze in einen Schneesturm und konnte nur mühevoll gerettet werden. Einem Führer und Träger sind die Füße gänzlich erfroren, so daß die Amputation nothwendig geworden ist.

Budapest. Die Komitatskongregation in Erlau beschloß aus Mißtrauen gegen die Regierung, keine Steuern einzuheben, keine Rekruten zu bewilligen, und im Falle der Auflösung des Abgeordnetenhauses keine Abgeordneten zu wählen.

Gmunden. Die hiesige Stadtgemeinde erbaut ein großes, modern angelegtes Sanatorium, dessen Eröffnung im Mai d. J. erfolgen soll. Die mit allem Komfort versehene, auf dem schönsten Punkt gelegene Anstalt enthält für alle Heilzwecke modern eingerichtete schöne Räume, ein großes geheiztes Schwimmbassin und auch einen prachtvollen Park u. s. w. Diese neue Kuranstalt reiht sich würdig jenen Institutionen an, welche Gmunden in den letzten Jahren geschaffen hat.

Goisern. Hier lebt ein pensionirter Forstarbeiter Namens Pesendorfer, welcher im Jahre 1797 geboren ist, also auch schon den Hunderter überschritten hat und sich noch ganz wohlauf befindet.

Graz. Beim Umbau der Puntigamer Bierhalle, in welcher seit einem Menschenalter die besuchtesten Tanzfeste der steierischen Hauptstadt abgehalten wurden und die jetzt in ein Orpheum umgestaltet werden soll, stieß man auf zahlreiche Menschenknochen. Es ergab sich, daß an dieser Stelle im 17. Jahrhundert ein großer Friedhof bestand.

Innsbruck. In den hiesigen Bürgerkreisen ist eine Automobilwagen-Gesellschaft in Bildung begriffen, welche regelmäßige Personenfahrten in die Umgebung Innsbrucks einzuführen beabsichtigt. Probefahrten mit einem Automobilwagen wurden in den letzten Tagen nach allen Richtungen mit Erfolg unternommen.

Schweiz.

Bern. Heftige Stürme und Regengüsse haben in den letzten Tagen allerorten in der Schweiz großen Schaden angerichtet. Bäche und Flüsse sind über die Ufer getreten und die Lawinengefahr ist mancherorts so groß, daß der Verkehr eingestellt werden mußte.—Die Berner Oberlandbahnen haben letztes Jahr 624,707 Francs vereinnahmt gegen 582,214 Francs in 1897.

Basel. Nach dem Urtheil von Sachverständigen ist der gegenwärtige Zustand und die Konstruktion der alten seit 1225 bestehenden Rheinbrücke derart mangelhaft, daß sie gegen die Einwirkungen des Hochwassers und des Verkehrs auch bei sorgfältigster Unterhaltung nicht mehr Stand zu halten vermag. Dieses sachverständige Urtheil hat die Regierung bewogen, dem Großen Rathe eine Vorlage über den Neubau einer Brücke, der unter Berücksichtigung der erforderlichen Nebenarbeiten 2,160,000 Francs kosten soll, zu unterbreiten. Mit diesem Brückenbau sind auf den beiden Rheinseiten Straßenkorrekturen und das Niederlegen alter Häuser verbunden, die insgesammt 2,390,700 Francs kosten, zu welchen Arbeiten noch die Birsigkorrektur kommt, für die 400,000 Francs verlangt werden.

Graubünden. In der Nähe von Disentis ist eine Lawine niedergegangen, deren Schneemasse 300 Meter breit, 4 bis 10 Meter hoch und 700 bis 800 Meter lang ist. In Val Mulineuns zwischen Rabius und Somvix kam eine Lawine bis zur steinernen Brücke der Landstraße herunter und richtete unterwegs bedeutenden Schaden an.

Waadt. Der Simplontunnel soll nach Aussage der Unternehmer im November 1903 vollendet sein. Die Simplonbahngesellschaft studirt in Gemeinschaft mit der Paris-Lyon-Mittelmeerbahngesellschaft die Erstellung eines Tunnels zwischen Fraznes und Vallorbe, wodurch die Linie nach Paris um 17 Kilometer verkürzt und der Umweg über Pontarlier vermieden würde.

Neuenburg. Der als Philanthrop bekannte gegenwärtige Inhaber der ehemaligen Suchard'schen Chokoladefabrik in Serrieres, Herr Roß-Suchard, hat hoch im Val de Ruz auf seine Kosten ein stattliches Sanatorium für Lungenkranke einrichten lassen, das in Anwesenheit zahlreicher Aerzte und Menschenfreunde eingeweiht wurde.

HOLY CROSS COLLEGE

NEW THEOLOGICAL INSTITUTION TO BE ERECTED AT WASHINGTON.

Dr. Zahm and Mgr. Conaty Turn the First Shovelfuls of Earth on Site Adjoining the Catholic University. Equipment of the Edifice.

Last October the Very Rev. Dr. Zahm, provincial of the Congregation of the Holy Cross, purchased the beautiful tract of land known as Rosemont, adjoining the Catholic university in Washington, with a view of erecting on it a college for the use of advanced ecclesiastical students of his order. It was announced then that work on the contemplated building would be commenced at an early date. Ground was broken recently and Holy Cross college is to be ready for occupancy early next September.

In the presence of Mgr. Conaty, rector of the Catholic university; Mr. A. von Herbulis, the architect, and Mr. Owen Donnelly, who has the contract for erecting the building, Mr. Zahm, after determining the exact site of the new structure, put a spade into the ground and threw aside the first shovelful of earth. Mgr. Conaty, who is much interested in this new addition to the university group of buildings, raised the second shovelful. The corners of the building were afterward located by the architect and contractor, and a few hours later a large force of men was busily engaged in the work of excavation.

The plans for Holy Cross college have been drawn by Mr. A. von Herbulis of Washington. The style of architecture is purely classical—Corinthian—and while embodying some of the most attractive features of such famous and imposing structures as the Lichtenstein palace in Vienna and the Palazzo Farnese of Rome it is nevertheless of chaste simplicity and admirably adapted for the purpose for which it is destined.

The exterior of the edifice will be of Indiana limestone and Vermont granite, which will be so distributed as to bring out in bold relief the external beauties of the building. The interior arrangements of the college have received particular attention both from Dr. Zahm, who is an old college man and thoroughly familiar with all the great educational institutions of the United States and Europe, and from Mr. von Herbulis, who has made a special study of the sanitary as well as of the artistic features of modern architecture. The plumbing and ventilation are all that could be desired, and, judging from the plans and specifications, Holy Cross college will be second to no institution of learning in the country in the perfection of its appointments.

Notre Dame university, of which Holy Cross college is a branch, is famous for the beauty of its many buildings. Dr. Zahm, in selecting the plans for the new building, wished to have a structure that would be worthy of the institution with which he has so long been identified. Notre Dame, too, will have every reason to be proud of her youngest daughter in the capital of the nation, for Holy Cross college in point of architectural beauty promises to compare favorably with many of the many beautiful buildings for which Washington is so celebrated.

Holy Cross college is intended for those members of the congregation of the Holy Cross who have taken their degrees in the University of Notre Dame and who are in Washington to complete their theological course, or who are to do postgraduate work in some of the many departments of the Catholic university. Most of the students of the new establishment will equip themselves for future work in the various educational institutions conducted by the congregation of the Holy Cross in the new and the old world. Others still will prepare themselves for missionary and cognate work.

Dr. Zahm, as is well known, is an ardent advocate of the higher education of the clergy. His books and contributions to the press are full of the subject, and, now that he has been given charge of the province of his order in the United States, he is evidently determined to put in execution what he has so long and so strenuously been urging.

In his well known address before the international Catholic scientific congress at Brussels some years ago Dr. Zahm outlined a programme of study for the clergy. His friends say he will now carry his plan into effect and point to the results achieved by him in building up the splendid school of science at Notre Dame university as an evidence of his earnestness and persistence of purpose in a work to which he is thoroughly devoted.

In connection with Holy Cross college Dr. Zahm proposes organizing at Notre Dame a special school for candidates for the priesthood who have not the means of educating themselves. To these deserving youths the provincial of Holy Cross intends to extend a helping hand.

Holy Cross college is to be completed early next September, but it will not be formally dedicated until next October, at the annual meeting of the board of directors of the Catholic university. The archbishops of the country will then likewise have their annual meeting, and the occasion will be an auspicious one.—Washington Post.

No Color Line in the Catholic Church.

The action of Archbishop Williams in providing separate services in the cathedral for the colored Catholics of Boston is published by certain journals as evidence that the color line is drawn in the Catholic church. Special and separate services have been provided for the Catholic negroes of Boston at their own request solely, and in the future, as they always have been free to do in the past, they can attend the services of any Catholic church at any time on exactly the same footing as white Catholics.—Boston Pilot.

THE HOLY CRADLE.

One of the Most Precious Relics Preserved In Rome.

La sainte creche—the holy cradle—or the portion of it which is preserved, is only a part of the grating that was placed across the stable trough in Bethlehem to hold the fodder for the animals that fed there. It became the cradle of the infant Saviour when he was laid within the rough trough by his mother and came in time to be regarded as one of the most sacred things on earth. This broken piece of the grating was taken from Bethlehem at the time of the Mussulman invasion in the year 642 and was carried to Rome, where Pope Theodosius took charge of it as one of the most precious relics.

Whether or not the grating now shown is the true relic, it is certainly extremely old, and is interesting for that reason and because of associations that have gathered about it since it became one of the mementos cherished in the imperial city. It is one of the greatest treasures of the ancient church of Santa Maria Maggiore. It consists of five worn bars; these are of wood—worm eaten and gray, that look as though they might be oak powdered with flour. The bars average about 90 centimeters in length—nearly a yard—and the entire grating is suspended in a crystal case by silver ribbons. This case is supported on carved gold and silver feet, and its full length is a meter. It is surmounted by a beautiful enameled statue of the infant Jesus.

During the year this magnificent reliquary is inclosed in a golden case and disposed on one of the altars of the church. At Christmas time it is exposed to view, and the festival of the Nativity terminates with an imposing procession in which the relic is carried, the solemn occasion being presided over by a cardinal.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

FACTS AS TO THE POPES.

Interesting Notes Concerning the Pontiffs of the Church.

Leo XIII will enter upon the ninetieth year of his age March 2 and the twenty-second of his supreme pontificate Feb. 20. Two hundred and sixty-two pontiffs have preceded Leo XIII, but of these only seven have occupied it for 21 years. The average length of a papal reign is but little more than seven years. Ten popes died within a month after their election, and the shortest reign in the history of the papacy is that of St. Stephen II, which lasted only three days.

Of the 262 popes who preceded Leo XIII, 88 have been canonized or beatified. Twelve popes have borne the name of Leo, and of the Leos five have been canonized as saints. Leo X, the patron of Michael Angelo and Raphael and the great promoter of the revival of learning, was the youngest pontiff elected during the last 500 years, having been only 38 years of age, whereas the average age of popes at their election (at least during this period) has been about 60 years.

Of the 57 cardinals living 31 are Italian, 7 French, 5 Spanish, 4 Austria-Hungarian, 3 German, 1 Pole, 1 American, 1 Belgian, 1 Irish, 1 English, 1 Swiss and 1 Australian. Pope Leo has created 117 cardinals, and during his pontificate 128 cardinals have passed away. Not a solitary member of the sacred college to which he was admitted by Pius IX 46 years ago is now living.—Freeman's Journal.

A PRINCE OF FAKERS.

A Daring Schemer Makes a Big Haul at Nevada City.

One of the slickest articles that ever struck this town held forth last night at the corner of Broad and Pine streets. He had a team from one of the local livery stables and the usual gasoline torch and valise. With the voice of a Midway Plaisance spieler he began by announcing that he "was an honest man," and would rather throw his money in the street than take a dollar that did not belong to him.

Instead of leaving in disgust at hearing this shameless assertion the crowd drew nearer, anxious to have a good look at such a freak. They drew still nearer—they wedged in tight and blocked the street, and they were his'n.

He offered some trumpery for sale, and threw all the small change he received into the street for the boys to scramble for. It took. They lived it, and hollered for more. He sold some trifling "galvanic batteries" at $1 apiece, and then gave the purchaser back his dollar.

The crowd grew enthusiastic, and the fakir grew bolder. His next move was to boldly ask who would give him a dollar outright, to throw away, get drunk on, or spend as he pleased. A couple of men timidly pushed their way forward, and actually gave him a dollar cash. He took the silver and chuckled with glee. Then pretending to repent having begged anything, he called the donors up and returned each man's dollar and gave them a dollar as a reward of merit.

The crowd began to cheer, and were disappointed when the fakir again offered the electric belts for sale. But it was only for a few minutes, and then he again asked who would "give him a dollar outright and expect absolutely nothing for it."

The crowd fell over each other in their haste to reach the fellow's buggy and make their contributions. He would take a dollar from some one, add a few more dollars to it, and then wrap the whole in a greenback, making nice little rools which he put into his hat. They came so thick that he was obliged to ask the people to wait until he could get their Christmas presents wrapped up. When dollars finally ceased pouring in the hat was full.

He placed the tile where all could see it, and began a "song and dance" about what good people they were, and how much he appreciated getting into such a liberal town. He would not be out done in generosity. He would make each of them a present of one of his famous galvanic belts. Yes, he would, by ginger!

He talked so rapidly that few could catch the drift of his proposition, but they all stepped up and took the packages offered them, thus accepting value for their money. Then they fell back and waited until the gentleman threw the hatful of money out into the crowd.

But he did not do it?

No.

Instead, he said, "Now, suppose you were in my place. What would you do with all this money?"

Some one on the edge of the crowd answered "Keep it."

"That's a good suggestion," said Mr. Fakir, and in a trice he had dumped the hatful of money into his valise and snapped the lock.

He paused a moment and coolly lit a cigar in the flame of his torch, and the crowd hesitated, paralyzed at his nerve. In that moment of hesitation they were lost (or their money was), for the fakir suddenly seized the reins and drove swiftly around the corner.

He did not leave town, though, and apparently had no fears for his personal safety. While he was skinning this town a confederate did the same thing in Grass Valley, and the two went away together on the early train this morning several hundred dollars richer for their visit to the mountains.—Nevada City Herald.

She Showed Him.

Out in the midway district, Minneapolis, there is a tall Swedish washerwoman who has a keen sense of right and wrong, and she put her views into practical effect the other day in a very positive sort of way. She was walking along on University avenue, when she was overtaken by a bicycle rider who had more speed than courtesy. In place of turning out he rode up to her and pushed his wheel along so that it struck her, but did not throw him off.

"I tank I show you how to get off a wheel," she said, with fire in her voice, "yes, I tank I vill," and as she spoke she projected one of her feet at the end of a long and very sturdy leg, and kicked the wheel from under the rider. He fell into the dirt at the edge of the sidewalk as he walked on, and the wheel located itself on his stomach.

And all he could hear as he picked himself up and caressed his bruises was a voice coming to him from a tall, swift striding Swede:

"Ya, ya, I tank I show him, I tank so."

Expected Him.

"Is your mamma in?"

"What's your name?"

"I'm Mr. Whiteband, the new minister."

"Then I guess mamma's expectin' you—'cause she said she'd bet a dollar you'd be sure to come on washday!"—Cleveland Post.

Proceedings of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders.

[OFFICIAL.]

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, Feb. 2, 1899, at 2.30 p. m.

Roll-call showed all members present except Freeholder Wahl.

The minutes of the previous meeting, (reading of bills being omitted), were on motion approved as read.

Before proceeding with the regular order of business, Director Hubbard suggested that the matter of new indices in the surrogate's office be taken up and on motion of Freeholder Swain, Surrogate Parrot addressed the Board. He briefly explained as to the time it might take to make said indices, etc., and also said that the expense involved would be about $500, not exceeding $550.

Freeholder Farrel moved that the resolution providing for said new indices be taken from the table, which was so ordered.

Freeholder Roll moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll-call it was unanimously adopted.

"By order of the Township Committee of the Township of Westfield, N. J., (Signed)

Yours truly,

Township Clerk.

On motion of Freeholder Farrel received and referred to the Committee on Legal Question, the County Road Committee and County Attorney.

Freeholder Burnett presented by request, a petition containing 306 names of property owners, residents along the line of Westfield and North Avenue, and others. The said petition requested the Board of Freeholders to pass a resolution requesting the representatives of the County of Union in the Legislature, and the Governor, to favor and secure the passage of the act, a copy of which was annexed to the petition.

Said act contained among other provisions, the right of appeal to jury, to all persons who might feel aggrieved with the award made by Commissioners, etc.

The said petition, resolution and copy of act mentioned were read in full.

Petitions same as foregoing and containing twenty seven names were also presented and read.

On motion of Freeholder King, the petitions as presented were received and placed on file.

NEW BUSINESS.

Freeholder Farrel moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll-call it was adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder Ehrlich:

Resolved that the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars ($2500 00) be advanced to W. T. Kirk, on account of contract for iron work Bridge Street bridge at Rahway, N. J.

Freeholder Brucklacher moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll-call it was adopted unanimously.

Freeholder Farrel moved that the clerk notify John Rehill, contractor for constuction of macadam road in Rahway on St Georges Avenue from Lake Avenue to Middlesex County line, that said road was in a poor state of repair, and that he put said road in good condition for public use and travel, failing in which the work would be done by the county at the expense of Mr. Rehill.

County Attorney Codington presented the following:

February 2, 1899.

WILLIAM R. CODINGTON, Esq., County Attorney, Plainfield, N. J.:

MY DEAR SIR.—In reply to your inquiry of January 31, I will say that the Elizabeth City Horse Railroad Co. is ready to advance to the county under its contract made last August, whatever sum of money is required by the Board of Freeholders to widen Westfield avenue as provided in the agreement. My recollection is that the agreement provides that the money shall be advanced by instalments on demand of the Board and the company will not hesitate to honor any demand that may be made. I suppose, however, that the Board will only ask for money by instalments as it is needed to make payments from time to time.

(Signed)

Very truly yours,
Frank Bergen.

A bill of James Mitchell's Sons, marked "approved subject to opinion of County Attorney," and signed "F. W. Westcott," amount $15, for burial of Peter Smith, who died at Elizabeth General Hospital, was on motion of Freeholder Robison referred to the County Attorney.

On motion of Freeholder Adams the Board was then addressed by the Hon. P. H Gilhooly, relative to the petitions as presented by property owners and others along Westfield avenue. He said in part that the law providing for the Union county boulevard was unique in certain ways. It gave benefits to the south side of the avenue; it gave no right of appeal to jury; all matters were settled by a commission with results unsatisfactory to property owners; the said property owners recognized that it would be useless to appeal to the Legislature for relief unless such appeal met with the approval and support of the Board of Freeholders. He desired also to say that he was in favor of the said improvement as he had publicly stated heretofore.

Freeholder Farrell replied that he had attended public meetings which had been addressed by Judge Gilhooly where the judge had advocated the proposed new boulevard as a great public improvement and a good law but now the law appeared to be not so good. Mr. Farrell said that he had been influenced by what Judge Gilhooly had said when the proposed new boulevard was first before the board, but now he was at a loss what to think.

Judge Gilhooly replied that he was still in favor of the boulevard and that when he first spoke in favor of the same he was not aware that the law did not provide for an appeal to a jury.

Freeholder Farrell moved to adjourn, which was carried.

The director declared the board adjourned until Thursday, March 2d, 1899, at 2:30 p. m.

S. Rusling Ryno, Clerk.

Lucky for the Burglar.

The butler of a peer discovered a burglar hiding in the china closet one evening about nine o'clock. Being by far the stronger man of the two, the butler took the depredator to his master, who happened to be in his study at the time, and asked whether he should send for a policeman.

"Of course," replied his lordship; "or, rather," added he, with the instinct of self-preservation, "I'll ring for one" and so saying he rang the bell.

A servant appeared, whom his lordship requested to "go into the kitchen and bring up a policeman or two." The domestic returned and said there were no policemen on the premises.

"What!" exclaimed his lordship, in incredulous tones, "do you mean to tell me that with a cook, two scullery maids, and three housemaids in my employ, there is no policeman in my kitchen? It is indeed a miracle, and our prisoner shall reap the benefit. James, let the man go instantly!"

A Grewsome Reminder.

It is announced by a Bulgarian journal that the ex-Premier's widow has had her husband's hands, which were amputated by the surgeons after the murderous attack, embalmed and placed under a glass case in the dead man's chamber. The hands are crossed like two fencing gloves, and behind is a hideous photograph of Stambuloff, showing him in all the horror of his terrible wounds just after his death. In speaking of these grewsome relics Mme. Stambuloff said: "I have preserved these mutilated tokens of my dear husband in order to keep constantly before the eyes of my children the great crime of his death."—New York Tribune.

Fully Explained.

"Spell ferment and give its definition," requested the school teacher.

"F-e-r-m-e-n-t, ferment, to work," responded a diminutive maiden.

"Now place it in a sentence, so that I may be sure you understand its meaning," said the teacher.

"In summer I would rather play out-of-doors than ferment in the school house," returned the small scholar with such decided frankness and unconscious humor that the teacher found it hard to suppress a smile.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

"The Little Minister" which is a beautiful heart-filling story in the original, and which J. M. Barrie, its author, has successfully transferred to the stage, will be presented by Charles Frohman at Music Hall, Friday night. This comedy which ran through an entire season in New York, having exactly 300 performances, every one of which was given to a standing room audience, has rightly been designated as the success of the century. Never until "The Little Minister" accomplished it had any play succeeded in attracting, night after night, without missing a single performance, audiences that claimed absolutely the capacity of the house. "The Little Minister" did it and thus achieved a unique and conspicuous position among the play triumphs of the American stage. Not only in New York, but in Boston also, the piece had a most phenomenal run—playing there, too, night after night, to standing room audiences. Without doubt, "The Little Minister" is the most popular play ever offered American theatregoers.

PROF. SUMNER TALKS ON NATIONAL POLICY.

He Opposes the Tendency of the Present Administration.

A NATION BY OURSELVES.

DECLARES EXPANSION IDEAS ARE DISTINCTLY SPANISH.

He Says That Self-Government is Not a Matter of Flags and Fourth of July Orations—Thirst for Glory Robs People of Their Judgment—Conquest Can Do Nothing for Trade in This Country

Since the days of President Woolsey there is no one who has so impressed himself on the students of Yale College as Prof. W. G. Sumner. His cleaness of thought and honesty of purpose have extended his reputation far beyond the limits of his classroom.

His lecture at Grace church chapel last evening was an intellectual treat. His subject was "The Recent Conquest of the United States by Spain," his point being that the ideas now dominating this country in reference to expansion are distinctively Spanish.

The war was brought by the irresponsible classes; its primary cause was partisan jobbery, aided by sentimentalism and sensationalism; the conservative classes, including the pulpit, the press and the platform (from which better things could have been expected) acquiesced in the evil and can be justly accused of moral cowardice.

Spain had self government and lost it when she entered on a career of military glory; the same fate probably awaits us if we persevere in the same course.

We cannot assimilate the Filipinos and Spanish-Americans; they hate our manners, customs, institutions and religion; we must rule them by force, just as Spain did.

We cannot admit them as states; our confederation has too many heterogeneous elements already. We need more intension, not more extension.

Our national existence began in a revolt against this Spanish colonial system, and yet we are proceeding to fasten the same system on these islands; if liberty is good for us, why not for them?

If imperialism becomes dominant we must give up our constitution and then our liberty will become nothing but a lot of phrases.

The English colonial system is a matter of slow growth; it is utterly foreign to our ideas and habits. We cannot improvise such a system without previous training, any more than we could improvise an army last summer.

Are these colonies to be brought into our tariff and navigation system? If they are, it means that they will be forced to trade with us; that is the regular Spanish system which prevailed everywhere in the last century. If they remain outside our system then they will impose taxes on our own trade, which we will hardly tolerate.

Imperialism — which is merely another name for war, debt, corruption, jobbery, glory, pomp and a big army and navy—will kill democracy. Our ancestors saw this and tried to avoid these burdens. We have been tolerably free from them for a century, and it has been our glory and our strength; yet now we voluntarily assume them.

It is mere bombast to say that Americans can do anything, and such optimism will be fatal to us. We have problems enough at home without seeking others abroad. If we reject and neglect our advantages we must not complain if we suffer ununpleasant consequences.

Some of Prof. Sumner's remarks are worth quoting verbatim:

"Self-government is not a matter of flags and Fourth-of-July orations, nor yet of strife to get offices."

"The most important thing which we shall inherit from the Spaniards will be the task of suppressing rebellions."

"The thirst for glory is an epidemic which robs a people of their judgment, seduces their vanity, cheats them of their interests and corrupts their consciences."

"Conquest can do nothing for trade, except to remove the political obstacles which the conquered could not or would not remove."

"The time when a maxim or principle is worth something is when you are tempted to violate it."

Prof. Sumner's hearers may not all have agreed with him, but his earnest and impressive address will not be soon forgotten.

AT A CHRISTIAN'S BIER.

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL SERVICES OVER REMAINS OF LATE WM. SWALM.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Pastor of the Late Mr. Swalm, Spoke in Feeling Terms of Deceased—Love for Church.

The funeral services of the late William Swalm were held at 8 o'clock last evening at the residence of the son, Alburtis Swalm, corner of West Front street and Plainfield avenue, and were largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., pastor of Trinity Reformed church, where the deceased was a member, officiated. He spoke from the text found in Gen. 15 15: "And thou shalt go to thy fathers in peace; thou shalt be buried in good old age." His words were filled with comfort to the bereaved ones. He dwelt at length on the beautiful Christian character and life of the departed and of his faithfulness in attending the House of God.

Mr. Schenck referred in his remarks to a pathetic incident just before the close of Mr. Swalm's life. It was about a week ago that he was found by members of his family in an attitude of prayer, and in his supplication to his Divine Master he prayed for each relative, for his pastor and wife, and for his church, which he loved so dearly; concluding the prayer, he recited a verse of that beautiful hymn, "Jesus Lover of My Soul."

At the close of Pastor Schenck's remarks, the Rev. Isaac S. Schenck, of West Ghent, N. Y., brother of the former, offered a beautiful prayer in which he invoked the richest blessing of the Heavenly Father on those left behind.

During the service, Miss Florence Kline sang two beautiful solos, one being "The Christian's Good-night."

The floral tributes consisted of roses, palms and pinks, the latter being a favorite with the deceased. There was also a beautiful wreath of galax leaves.

Interment took place this morning in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn, and Pastor Schenck accompanied the remains to the last resting place.

PREACHER DECLARED A MOCK MURDERER.

AN OBJECT LESSON IN TEMPERANCE.

A Mock Trial Held by the Reform Club—All the Accessories of an Organized Court.

The members of the Reform Club chose a new way to drive home the truths about temperance last night, and gave a lecture upon that subject in an entirely new way. An entertainment was given at which the main feature was a mock trial, when one of Plainfield's preachers was tried for the murder of his wife.

As a temperance lecture and also as an amusing form of entertainment the trial was a success and attracted a large number of spectators, who sat throughout it all. The unfortunate prisoner, a victim of strong drink, was Benjamin Hand. He was accused of shooting his wife while in a drunken rage, and after the jury had brought in a verdict of guilty delivered a forcible temperance lecture in answer to the judge's question, "Why should sentence not be passed upon you?"

The judge was J. E. Mosher, but his best friends would not have known him in a black gown and grey wig. He looked very dignified as he sat upon the bench, busily taking down notes. William G. DeMeza was prosecutor, and S. S. Swackhamer used all his eloquence to have the prisoner discharged, but without avail, for the jury had made up their minds as to the prisoner's guilt days before they went into the jury box, and their opinion couldn't be changed. A number of witnesses were sworn on both sides, and the trial made as real as possible. At the close of the trial, when the prisoner was led out to receive the sentence of the court, "that he be hanged by the neck until dead," refreshments were served, and a social time enjoyed. This was the celebration of the Reform Club's fifteenth anniversary.

Open Pentathlon Contest.

The open pentathlon contest at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium will be held Saturday evening, beginning at 8 o'clock. There will be eight events, four gymnastic and four athletic. The visitors' gallery will be free to visitors and all the friends of the association, particularly the ladies, are invited to be present.

Mayoralty Possibilities.

In addition to those already mentioned L. E. Barkalew, Dr. Cooley and Charles Place are talked of as possibilities for the borough Mayoralty.

—Cevera's ships went under water and were ruined. The difference with the canned fruits and vegetables, offered at the fire sale by J. A. Smith & Bro, is that they are as good as ever.

BARD COMPANY'S FINISH

FIRST NATIONAL BANK TO FORECLOSE A CHATTEL MORTGAGE.

Liabilities of the Concern Said to be $6,000 and Assets Only $800—President Has Gone to California For a Time.

The affairs of the Bard Company, the successors to the Bard Cycle Company, are at present in the hands of lawyers, with a prospect of an ultimate sale and dissolution of business. The firm of Murphy & Blatz are representing the company whose liabilities, it is said, are about $6,000, and their assets about $800 which are covered by a chattel mortgage held by the First National Bank, and already on record.

Several weeks ago G. W. V. Moy obtained a judgment against the Bard Cycle Company for Augustus Marsh, for about $75. Mr. Moy has had an execution issued and a levy made, but as the suit was brought against the "Bard Cycle Company" not against the "Bard Company" it is said that the execution may be worthless.

To tide them over other difficulties with the First National Bank, a chattle mortgage was given the institution. Mr. Colgate, president of the company, has left the city, and today the store is closed, and there is no one around. Woolston & Buckle own the store, and say they have not been paid their last month's rent.

The First National Bank has decided to foreclose on the mortgage on account of a distress warrant on behalf of Woolston & Buckle.

A NEW ENGLAND SUPPER TICKLED PALATES OF ALL.

LADIES AID SOCIETY WAS IN CHARGE.

Given in the Chapel of the First Presbyterian Church—Way Down East Dishes in Plenty.

A New England supper under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church, was given in the chapel last night from 6 o'clock on. Everything in the way of edibles was on the bill of fare, from Boston baked beans and brown bread to fried oysters, clam chowder, pie and cake.

The tables were presided over by a lady and a corps of assistants. With their bright flowers and pretty settings they made a handsome appearance. Mrs. J. A. Haynes was chairman of the committeee and had charge of the supper. She was assisted by Miss Sarah Boss, Mrs. Engelheart, J. A. Haynes and Howard Pope.

Mrs. Waldorf, Mrs. George Wean, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. George, Mrs. Remsen, Mrs. Howard Pope and Mrs. Charles Hummer presided over the tables, and were assisted by the following waitresses: Miss Charlotte Cave, Miss VanFleet, Miss Julia Williams, Miss Ida Tallamy, Miss Mamie Male, Miss Annie Weigman, Miss Ethel Laing, Miss Clara Dunham, Miss Lillian Remsen, Miss Miner, Miss Ella Lounsbury, Miss Jean Dunham, Miss Evans, Miss Mildred Ulrick and Miss Jessie Pruden.

Candy was sold by Miss Nettie Remsen, Miss Abbott, Miss Wood and Miss Helen Boice, and cake by Mrs. Currie, Miss Jessie McKillop and Miss Evelyn Searing.

The supper was patronized all through the evening and until late at night and was a success in every way.

M'VEY GETS LICENSE AFTER MUCH TALK

Councilman Hetfield Objected To Signer on Application.

HIS ANIMUS QUESTIONED.

COUNCILMAN BUCKLE CRITICISED HIM WITH SEVERITY.

All But One of the Applications for License Were Granted—Mr. Hetfield Made a Great Demand for the Exact Letter of the Law to Be Followed Out—Sewage Beds Looked After.

There was a warm time at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council last evening and the exchange of words between members regarding the granting of a liquor license to John H. McVey, of North avenue, was very strong, almost reaching personality. The discussion finally came to an end and after the meeting the participants shook hands and had a good laugh.

In the first place there were four remonstrances presented against the granting of licenses, three of which applied to the application of Andrew Schlick. One was from the Pond Machine Tool Works, another from Mrs. Taylor, a third from residents of the Third and Fourth wards, while the fourth was from the Friends' Society. The latter referred to all licenses. After these presentations Mr. Coriell, chairman of the license committee, stated that he had all the respect for those who protested, but that it was a well-known fact that some licenses had to be granted. He said that the committee had spent considerable time in examining the applications While in many cases they were obligned to accept affadavits, they believed that all applications were correct and he then moved that they be granted, presenting Mr. McVey's application first.

Here is where the trouble began and ended. Mr. Hetfield asked for a ten minute recess so that the licenses could be discussed by a committee of the whole. This was done last year and he saw no reason why the same rule should not prevail again. This request was refused and the discussion waxed exceedingly warm.

Mr. Coriell stated that the committee was ready to report, and he saw no reason why the matter should be taken out of their hands.

Mr. Hetfield then said that as inasmuch as a recess would not be taken he would have his say in open Council. He stated that regarding Mr. McVey's application he had been furnished with a deed, a copy, showing that William Warnock, one of the signers to the application had purchased of Mrs. Frank Linke and her husband, for the sum of $1, a 12-foot lot in Netherwood, so that he could sign the application. This, Mr. Hetfield said, took place on January 25th of the present year. He said that it would not stand the test of the Supreme Court and if ever tested would be knocked out. He added that this same lot at Netherwood had figured previously in similar deals. He then moved that the application lie on the table until the next meeting, and that the Corporation Counsel be instructed to take testimony regarding the conveyance of the property in question.

Mr. Coriell took exception to this, and stated that it is a well-known fact to many that lots are often transferred for such purposes and that Mr. Warnock is according to law a freeholder. Mr. Barrows added a word by saying that if the Council should go into extreme details in such matters many licenses would not be granted. He spoke of the applicant as being a first-class hotel keeper and thereby entitled to a license.

Mr. Buckle remarked that one year ago Mr. Hetfield took steps to abolish the ordinance compelling applicants to secure signers, and now he was laying such stress on the matter. It seemed to him that Mr. Hetfield had taken particular pains to look into Mr. McVey's application, and that there must be something behind it. He also remarked that Mr. Hetfield was the last man to expect of objecting to a license.

Mr. Hetfield continued the argument by saying that the members should talk to the question and not to him. He said that if Mr. McVey's application conformed to the law he would willingly vote for it. It was nothing to him, but if the law is a farce the Council is obliged to follow it. He thought that the remarks by Mr. Coriell and Mr. Buckle were unkind, and insisted that they could not call him down for doing his duty, the very thing he was placed in the Council to do. He added that he remembered Mr. Buckle voting against a license because it was too near another place, and he was sure that the Court would declare the acts unconstitutional if the matter should be tested.

Mr. Coriell remarked further that he thought Mr. Hetfield had waited for a poor time to object, and intimated that personal spite was shown. He also said that if Mr. Hetfield's point was a ruling factor two thirds of the licenses in Plainfield and Elizabeth would be revoked.

The discussion was finally concluded and the licenses were acted upon. Mr. McVey, as well as all the other applicants, receiving the license, with the exception of Andrew Schlick, of 724 West Third street. This one the committee had decided not to recommend and the remonstrances had influnced them more strongly against this applicant. The following persons received a license: J. H. McVey, J. H. Staats, J. E. Beerbower, Jacob Blimm, Hans Hansen, Henry Haurand, J. A. Blatz, Martin J. Kane, John Rafferty, Daniel Galbraith, Alex Findlay, Bernard Clark, John Goff and Frank Linke. In all cases Mr. Andrews voted in the negative, except for the licenses to keep a hotel. Mr. Hetfield voted against Mr. McVey's application, but in favor of all others. Those who voted for all licenses were Messrs. Barrows, Coriell, Homan, VanHerwerden, Mellick, Tolles, Hetfield, Buckle and Smith. Mr. Leifke was absent from the meeting. On Mr. Schlick's application Messrs. Smith and Hetfield voted in the affirmative and the rest of the members voted against the application.

The next important matter introduced was that regarding the present condition of the sewer. The report was made by Mr. Barrows and accompanying his remarks he presented a large map, prepared by Street Commissioner Garrett, showing the present difficulties in the system. Mr. Barrows stated that the sewer system is a legacy left with the city, and while many theories had been offered to remedy the difficulties he was convinced that the system was being run too cheaply. The committee on streets and sewers had been convinced that the system is all right by Engineer Farquar, who had made several inspections. Mr. Barrows said that a year ago 600,000 gallons of ground water was flooding the beds, while today there are 1,250,000 gallons. He said that there is now a suit against the city brought by Mrs. Milliken, and that the borough of Dunellen would probably bring suit on account of the sewer beds. He thought it was the duty of the Council to make the system such a success that no one would be able to abolish it even if a few thousand dollars had to be expended in accomplishing the purpose of keeping the beds right.

He informed the Council that Mr. Farquar had made two suggestions to remedy the difficulty now experienced by the beds being flooded by ground water caused by leaks. One was to locate underground drains and another was to use cast iron pipe with lead joints. The former would cost about $2,000, while the latter would necessitate an expense of about $5,000. The immediate necessity of doing this work was impressed on the Council and Mr. Barrows stated that if a large amount of money was necessary it could be secured under a new law to be enacted. This law is to be introduced by Mr. Murray, and the committee had been assured of its adoption by both Houses of Legislature and the signature of the Governor.

Mr. Barrows then offered three resolutions, all of which were adopted. One was that underdrains be located on Watchung avenue and Richmond street, according to the maps and specifications filed. The second resolution approved the plans and specifications filed, while the third resolution provided for the proper two weeks advertising of the notice in the city papers, that the Council would meet Monday evening, March 13th, to receive bids for the work according to the plans.

Residents of West Front street petitioned the Council for a fire-alarm box to be located between Plainfield avenue and Albert street. This matter was referred to the fire and building committee. The work of macadamizing East Ninth street, East Sixth street and Franklin place was awarded to A. I. & M. B. Smalley, as their bids were the lowest. Mr. Barrows offered a resolution that the sum of $600 be appropriated to repair the steam roller.

Mr. Hetfield took exception to the amount asked for, and he thought estimates should be asked for and the matter discussed in open Council instead of by the committee.

Mr. Barrows told the members that if they could not trust the street committee they surely ought to be willing

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Stroudsburg, Pa., Feb. 24.—The body of John Gleason, who was shot by Postmaster Milliard Houser, of Delaware Water Gap, was identified yesterday by officers from Somerville, N. Rankin viewed the body as it lay in the undertaker's establishment yesterday morning. Rankin was positive that the man robbed the Swift Beef Company on January 18th.

Deputy Barkalow says the Swift safe was blown open in a similar fashion to the one at the Water Gap post office.

$1,000 CHECK TO PAY WAY TO HOLY LAND.

Dr. Richards Given a Substantial Farewell by His Church.

HE WILL SAIL TOMORROW.

THE CHECK PRESENTED WITH A SPEECH BY CHARLES PLACE.

The Reception Held in the Chapel of the Crescent Avenue Church and Largely Attended by Parishoners of Dr. Richards—The Recipient Made Appropriate Thanks—Refreshments Served.

The high esteem in which Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards is held by the members of his congregation of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, was well attested last evening in several ways. The congregation turned out en masse to attend the reception in his honor on the eve of his departure to the Holy Land, presented him with a check for $1,000 to meet the expenses of the trip, and bid him farewell with a hearty grasp of the hand.

The reception was held in the chapel of the church and was arranged by the social committee of the Christion Endeavor Society. It was the night for one of the Endeavor sociables but the occasion was taken to give the pastor a farewell reception before his departure Saturday. Mrs. Richards was to share with her husband in receiving the good wishes of their friends but an unfortunate attack of the grip kept her at home.

During the first part of the evening a musical programme was rendered in the Sunday-school rooms. It included violin solos by Mrs. Nellie Udell-Smith, accompanied by Mrs. Charles L. Lewis, piano solos by Miss Lavinia French, and baritone solos by William Holmes, accompanied by Howard Case.

Henry C. Squires made a short speech preliminary to the presentation which was then made by former Mayor Charles Place, president of the board of trustees. The check for $1,000 was made up by private gifts from the different members of the congregation and was intended to meet the cost of Dr. Richards' trip. Dr. Richards followed with a short speech in which he thanked his kind friends and pictured some of the scenes that he was likely to see and places of interest that he would visit. Ira Winthrop Travell, chairman of the social committee, presided.

The congregation then adjourned to the parlors where the reception was held. Here Dr. Richards stood while his flock filed past, each with a shake of the hand and a word of farewell.

Refreshments were served by a number of the young women of the church. The Misses Tracy were in charge, assisted by Miss Bushnell, Miss Jessie Bushnell, Miss Gertrude Andrews, Miss Hunter, Miss Clark, Miss VanDeventer, Miss Elsie Jobs, Miss Gilbert and Miss Burnett. Max Munger was in charge of the ushers and the ice cream.

Roesel May Be Sentenced Tomorrow.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 24—Supreme Court Justice VanSyckel will be in Elizabeth tomorrow to confirm assessments on sewers in Rahway. He will probably also at that time resentence to death Louis Roesel, the murderer of James C. Pitts, of Summit. This will make Roesel's fourth sentence. Only the Court of Pardons can then prevent his execution, as his case has been decided adversely by the United States Supreme Court.

HEART DISEASE.

SOME FACTS REGARDING THE RAPID INCREASE OF HEART TROUBLES.

Do Not Be Alarmed, But Look For The Cause.

Heart troubles, at least among the Americans, are certainly increasing, and while this may be largely due to the excitement and worry of American business life, it is more often the result of weak stomachs, of poor digestion.

Real organic disease is incurable; but not one case in a hundred of heart trouble is organic.

The close relation between heart trouble and poor digestion is because both organs are controlled by the same great nerves, the Sympathetic and Pneumogastric.

In another way, also the heart is effected by the form of poor digestion, which causes gas and fermentation from half digested food; there is a feeling of oppression and heaviness in the chest caused by pressure of the distended stomach on the heart and lungs, interfering with their action; hence arises palpitation and short breath.

Poor digestion also poisons the blood, making it thin and watery, which irritates and weakens the heart.

The most sensible treatment for heart trouble is to improve the digestion and to insure the prompt assimilation of food.

This can be done by the regular use after meals of some safe, pleasant and effective digestive preparation, like Stuarts Dyspepsia Tablets, which may be found at most drug stores and which contain valuable, harmless digestive elements in a pleasant, convenient form.

It is safe to say that the regular persistent use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at meal time will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer ot the stomach.

Full sized package of these tablets sold by druggists at 50 cents. Little book on stomach troubles mailed free. Address F. A. Stuart, Co., Marshall, Mich.

SENSATIONAL HANGING IN JERSEY.

The Slayer of Andrew Henry Expiates His Crime.

Jersey City, Feb. 24.—William Reid, the murderer of Andrew Henry, was hanged yesterday at 11.20 o'clock in the Hudson county jail. The murderer's lawyer made every effort to have the time of the execution postponed.

About thirty persons were present as jurors and witnesses when Reid was brought in to the corridor by Hangman Van Hise.

Reid was accompanied by Father Moran. He was handcuffed and his arms were strapped behind his body. When within ten feet of the gallows Reid turned to Detective James Larkin, who was in the line of witnesses and said:

"It isn't right, Larkin. It isn't right. I ought to have the same chance as any other man. They don't know that the law is right. They ought to have waited. Denny Gallagher brought me to this; Denny Gallagher, who lives at Pavonia avenue and Henderson street.

As the black cap was pulled down over Reid's eyes, he said:

"God curse Denny—"

"Reid! Reid!" said Father Moran, and then the signal was given and the murderer's body shot in the air.

The body was taken down at 11.25 and at 11.35 o'clock the physician said that life was extinct.

Father Moran said afterward that Reid was undoubtedly insane.

The crime of which Reid was convicted was the murder of Andrew Henry on the night of May 14, in front of J. C. Woltmann's saloon, at 353 Newark street, Hoboken.

Fight in Utah Capitol.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Feb. 24.—The talk in connection with bribery in the legislature has generated bad feeling amon gthe members. Before the joint session met yesterday Representatives Bywater and Cook indulged in a bloody fistic conflict in the lobby of the House.

When Representative Jackson's name was reached on the roll call he spoke in reference to an attempt at bribery, which, he said, were made by the McCune managers.

His speech was interrupted by calls for order, but the speaker decided that he could proceed.

An appeal was taken and the chair sustained. Several other members spoke of bribery.

The result of the ballot was: King 6, Powers 1, McCune 25, Cannon 8, Nebeker 7, Rideout 1, Sutherland 13. Necessary to a choice, 31.

NO DISTURBANCE IN PARIS.

M. Faure's Funeral Orderly — Great Crowds Line the Route.

Paris, Feb. 24.—Amid the solemn splendor with which France, better than any other nation, knows how to honor her dead, the obsequies of President Faure proceeded without a single unseemly interruption. There was no concealing of the anxiety of the government, which in sudden fear of a coup d'etat, summoned several fresh regiments to Paris.

Whatever may happen later, Paris was spared the disgrace of any incident which might mar the magnificent tribute to France's late ruler.

President Loubet arrived at the Elysee at 9.50 o'clock. He was greeted along the street by a silent raising of hats. The line moved promptly toward the Notre Dame Cathedral. It was an imposing cavalcade, similar in all respects to that which marched over the same route upon the occasion of President Carnot's funeral five years ago.

The ceremony was finished in an hour and the route promptly taken up in the same order of procession to the Cemetery of Pere Lachaise, which was reached at two o'clock.

A civil ceremony, including funeral orations, preceded the burial. There were nine speakers, including Premier Dupuy, M. Franck Chauveau, first vice president of the Senate; M. Deschanel, president of the Chamber of Deputies, and Deputy Guillain.

Paris was somewhat startled by the sound of cannon just after noon. It had not been announced that a salute would be fired in honor of the dead president, and the report had become current throughout Paris that the Duke of Orleans had arrived in the city.

There were a few insulting cries directed at President Loubet in the Place de la Republique after the funeral, but they were quickly suppressed.

The Dervishes Lost 26,000.

London, Feb. 24.—Replying to a question by Mr. Labouchere in the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. George Wyndham, parliamentary secretary to the war office, said that General Lord Kitchener's officers reported that 10,000 Dervishes had been killed at Omdurman and 16,000 wounded, besides the 400 killed in taking the town. No official returns existed, he said, of the number of wounded treated in the hospitals.

SITUATION AT MANILA

The Native Secret Militia Started the Big Fire.

INSURRECTION SUBDUED.

Latest Advices Confirm the Reports of Yesterday Concerning the Attempt of Resident Insurgents to Burn the City—The American Generals Take Prompt Measures to Subdue Incendiarism.

Manila, Feb. 24.—The remainder of the objectionable part of Tondo was burned by our troops yesterday, thus destroying the hotbed of the secret insurgents of the city, and several hundred prisoners were taken by the United States forces.

A considerable body of insurgents from Malabon, crossing the estuaries and swamps on General Arthur's left, entered the city to the north of Tondo Wednesday night. Companies of the Minnesota, Oregon and Montana infantry regiments advanced from the city, and scattered them, killing many after hard fighting. There were a number of casualties on our side.

In the meantime the enemy's force outside the city opened fire on General MacArthur's brigade with artillery and infantry, but they were soon silenced, the Monadnock and the Utah artillery shelling them out.

Lieutenant Eugene S. French of the First Montana, and Private Oscar L. Filker of the First Dakota infantry, were killed and two of the South Dakota men wounded.

Extra precautions have been taken to prevent the threatened burning of Escolta, the principal business street of Manila. General Otis has issued an order requiring the inhabitants to remain in their homes after seven o'clock in the evening, stating that very active demonstrations would be made upon incendiaries or suspects.

Imported provisions will be admitted free of duty during the present scarcity here.

The burned districts comprise an area of about one square mile, the largest part of which is Tondo, a native settlement composed mostly of nipa huts. The wind was blowing briskly and the flames spread rapidly.

The fire department was practically powerless to subdue the flames by the ordinary methods, so rapidly did they spread, and it was only by blowing up buildings in the path of the flames in the San Nicolas district that their further spread in the business sections of the city was prevented.

During the progress of the fire insurgent sharpshooters on the outskirts of Tondo continued to fire from places of concealment upon the Americans who were fighting the flames. Several natives were killed by our men and many others were undoubtedly burned to death, being penned in by the cordon of American guards.

Filipinos Explain the Fire.

London Feb. 24.—The following statement is made by the Filipino representative in London:

"We have received a cablegram from Hong Kong stating that the foreign residents in Manila met under the auspices of the consuls and decided to protest to the American leaders against the great damage to trade caused by the continued blockade of the islands.

"Outbreaks of fire at Paco are frequent at this time of the year. All of the dwellings are constructed of light materials, and the sun scorches everything. The slightest carelessness causes outbreaks. All of the brick buildings in the town, consisting of the church, rectory, civil barracks and court house, were destroyed by fire in the fighting on February 11."

Why Tobacco is Going Up.

New York, Feb. 24.—It was announced in Wall street yesterday that an arrangement had been practically consummated by the American Tobacco Company and the Union Tobacco and the Liggett & Myers companies. It was said to have been completed last week, and its details, which are not made public for the present, are reported to be equivalent to an actual consolidation of all the interests named.

This means that the monopoly of the tobacco business has passed into the hands of the American Tobacco Company.

The Union Tobacco Company was organized by William C. Whitney and his friends, and a trade war between it and the American Tobacco Company was threatened.

Last Friday American Tobacco stock had sold as low as 132½. After that the stock jumped skyward.

The opening sale yesterday was at 178, and the price touched 178½ soon after. It dropped to 172 later, but after that started again with renewed vigor. The announcement of the tobacco deal made by the Wall street news agencies sent the stock above 184. This represented an advance of 51½ points compared with the lowest price on Friday.

In Honor of M. Faure.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—Requiem mass was celebrated at St. Matthew's Church yesterday in memory of the late Felix Faure, president of France. The service was attended by President McKinley and most of the members of the cabinet; by the members of the French embassy in Washington in deep mourning, and the members of the diplomatic corps generally, by officers of the United States army and navy in full uniform, and by many senators and representatives in Congress.

Although the occasion was one of much pomp, President McKinley went to the service in democratic fashion, by walking from the White House to the church, accompanied by Secretary of State John Hay and Adjutant General Corbin, the adjutant general being in full dress uniform.

Gen. Alger's Intentions.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 24.—Secretary Alger and Secretary Wilson left for Washington soon after midnight last night. Concerning a report that the secretary intended to resign from the cabinet, General Alger's business partner, M. S. Smith, stated positively yesterday that the general had no such intention and that if he had he (Mr. Smith) would certainly have been informed of it.

MANHATTAN IS HUMBLE.

Counsel Says the Company Will Comply With All Demands.

New York, Feb. 24.—The public hearing granted by the board of health to the Manhattan Elevated Railway Company to answer the demands made upon the road in the furtherance of Tammany's scheme of persecution, began before Commissioners M. E. Murphy, president, and Drs. William T. Jenkins, John [illegible]sky and A. H. Doty. The railroad company was represented by Judge [illegible] general counsel of the railroad.

Word was sent to President Murphy that Colonel James was engaged in a case before Justice Smyth in the supreme court which could not be neglected, and the request was made that the case be adjourned for a week. Colonel James explained that the conduct of the elevated road's side of the case had been assigned to him, and that it was essential that he should appear at the hearing.

President Murphy denied the request. He said that one adjournment had already been granted and that the "public interest" demanded that the hearing be taken up without delay.

The answer that he sent back to the elevated railroad was that the hearing would begin at 10.30 o'clock sharp.

Mr. Davies and Mr. Wheat appeared at the office of the Board of Health with a big bundle of documents done up in a brown paper package. The papers contained the 756 orders made by the Board of Health in the past two weeks on the elevated railroad company. Six hundred and fifty of them referred to the order relative to placing drip pans under crossings, the daily fumigating of cars and their re-equipment with new mats and the making of other sanitary improvements. The board demanded that more than four thousand drip pans be put in place within twenty-four hours.

The elevated railroad company was ordered to place drip pans under that part of the Ninth avenue elevated railroad between Fifty-ninth and 110th streets, and in front of and for 150 feet on either side of every station on the Second avenue line. Forty-eight hours were given to the railroad to do this work.

The order had not been complied with because it was a physical impossibility to do so. Fifty orders applied to the establishment of waiting rooms where none existed. One bunch of orders containing demands that must be complied with within twenty-four hours, Mr. Wheat said, was received on the Saturday before Lincoln's birthday, which came on a Sunday and was observed on a Monday, making two holidays in succession. The other demands, said Mr. Wheat, had been equally as unreasonable.

When the hearing began Mr. Davies explained that he was present to represent the railroad company. He had not made any special preparations for the hearing, but rather than cause further delay he would take up the case. He was satisfied, he said, that the Board of Health was actuated in its proceedings against the elevated railroad "by the desire to promote the public interest." The elevated railroad company accepted the matter in that spirit and stood ready to carry out whatever orders the board might issue. The closest attention had been paid to the orders already given, and the reason that they had not been fully complied with was that the time allowed had not been long enough. He said that he was sure that the board was ready to accord the company fair treatment, and it was to the railroad's interest to do anything within its power to improve its service.

President Murphy assured Mr. Davies that the company would get the same consideration accorded by public servants to all citizens and taxpayers; "that the board was actuated only by its desire to do its duty and that it would proceed wholly with that end in view."

Mr. Davies said that he had been aware of that already and that he did not need the president's assurance of it.

"I have this to say," he continued. "The safety of the Manhattan Railway Company's structure is next to our heart. We watch it as we watch a new born child, and any defects are quickly discovered and immediately remedied."

Croker's Big Dinner.

New York, Feb. 24.—A meeting of the board of governors of the Democratic Club will be held at the club house today to consider a proposition to celebrate the birthday of Thomas Jefferson by a dinner, to be served in the Metropolitan Opera House.

Mr. Croker has suggested that the day be celebrated by a dinner on an elaborate scale, and as his suggestions are the laws of the Democratic Club, it is expected that the board of governors will conclude the arrangements.

It is understood by members of the club that Mr. Croker's idea is to make the dinner a political affair of national importance. Plates are to be laid for fifteen hundred members of the club and for one hundred invited guests. The guests are to be prominent Democratic politicians, who will, in their speeches, agree with the leader of Tammany that free silver is a dead issue.

If the celebration is carried out according to the ideas of Tammany politicians, the invited guests and speakers will be expected to recognize Mr. Croker as the new leader of the Democratic party.

My stomach had got into such a fix I could not digest my victuals at all; everything I ate I threw up, with great pains in my chest and bowels. I tried several doctors, who did me no good. At last, after spending about $75, a friend advised me to try Ripans Tabules. I commenced taking them and soon I could eat almost anything, and I had the satisfaction of knowing that what I eat 'would stay with me.' EXPERIMENTAL BEEF

There Were Just Four Quarters of It Aboard a Transport.

ARMY SCANDAL RESULTS

Army Beef Was More Satisfactory Than Fresh Native Beef—Chemically Treated Meat Was Not Supplied to the Soldiers Col. Weston's Emphatic Testimony.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—When the Miles court of inquiry met yesterday the announcement was made by Colonel Davis that General Eagan, former commissary general of subsistence, had missed the train and was detained in New York. He was, therefore, unable to appear as a witness.

Captain Alexander R. Piper, commissary of subsistence with Gen. Brooke's expedition to Porto Rico was then introduced to the court.

"The first refrigerated beef which I issued in Porto Rico," said the witness, "was from the Massachusetts under orders from Colonel Sharpe. Some of the men complained of canned roast beef, but the first official complaint was in September, when General Grant asked me to hear the complaints of certain officers of the Fourth Ohio regiment. These complaints I considered trivial. The men also complained about the beef on the hoof. They thought it too fresh. One officer thought too much fresh beef was being issued and charged that it caused sickness."

"How much of the native fresh beef was issued to the troops?" Colonel Davis asked.

"I cannot say, but I issued it for a long time, from August to October."

"When did you first issue refrigerated beef?"

"In the latter part of August. It was while the Massachusetts was in port. The Manitoba was also there. I issued 59,000 pounds from the former, but none from the Manitoba. I next issued refrigerated beef in January."

"So that you issued native beef for some time?"

"Yes."

"And you received many complaints?"

"Yes. The men thought it too fresh. That was the principal complaint. It had to be killed at night to keep it from being fly blown. When refrigerated beef was furnished entirely by orders of the commissary general, Swift & Co. established refrigerators where it could be kept. The men were very glad to get the refrigerated beef. One officer told me that the men were so pleased at getting a good piece of beef that they left only the bones. There was no complaint whatever of the beef issued from the Massachusetts.

"There was a decided preference among the troops for the refrigerated beef. The issue of refrigerated beef was made under orders, though, and not altogether because of the preference of the men for it. After January 1 the refrigerated beef displaced the native beef and was welcomed by the troops. The native beef contracts were discontinued wherever possible, and no protests were made by officers against this action. At the present time native beef is supplied only to the posts in Porto Rico to which refrigerated beef cannot be furnished."

Replying to questions of General Davis, the witness said that there were specific complaints about the canned roast beef. The men had a preference for certain brands.

"Was the native beef plentiful?" asked Colonel Gillespie.

"Yes, very."

"Was it from a high grade of cattle?"

"I did not consider it so. The cattle were lean and small, and there was little meat for the proportion of bone. There was not much fat."

"Did you at any time attribute disease to insufficient or unwholesome food?"

"Yes. There seemed to be different opinions about the cause of disease. Some thought it was due to canned tomatoes, and they were for a time discontinued. Others attributed it to the native fresh beef."

"Did you ever hear the sickness attributed to the canned roast beef?"

"No, I did not. While at Chickamauga there was quite a demand for canned roast beef. It was purchased by the officers for their mess. In Porto Rico I preferred canned roast beef to the native fresh beef. The refrigerated beef was the finest I ever saw."

"Did you ever suspect that it had been treated with chemicals?"

"I did not."

"Did you ever hear any one suggest that it was treated with chemicals?"

"I did not."

Colonel J. F. Weston, acting commissary general of subsistence, was the next witness.

"What constituted the fresh beef component of the ration for the troops at Tampa?" he was asked.

"Refrigerated beef supplied by Armour & Co. Oh, that was fine beef. There were no complaints about it."

"As to the meat component of the travel ration?"

"I tried to get corned beef."

"Could you have supplied canned corned beef for all applications that might have been made for it as a travel ration?"

"I could not. Not at that time."

"By whom was the canned roast beef supplied at Tampa upon whose order?"

"The order came from here. It was given by General Eagan."

"So that if canned roast beef was sent to Tampa, as part of the travel ration, it was by order of the commissary general?"

"Yes, it was."

"What experiments were made with the canned roast beef at Tampa?"

"I ordered an experiment. The experiment was made with a canned beef put up with potatoes and onions in it, but this was not adopted."

Colonel Weston said that he thought that canned beef should have been prepared with some potatoes and onions to make it palatable and appetizing.

Speaking of the supplying of the troops in Cuba, he remarked that the men never got a full ration. "This was because they could not carry it," he added.

"What complaints were received by you about the refrigerated beef?"

"The beef was certainly refrigerated beef because it would not last very long. No official complaint was made to me."

For the horse, as for his master,
Ivory finds abundant scope;
Galls and scratches heal much faster,
When well cleansed with Ivory Soap.
Where 'tis used, the work is lighter,
Sleek and smooth the horses' coats,
Harness softer, carriage brighter,
And—a final charm—it floats.

COPYRIGHT 1898 BY THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO. CINCINNATI

"When refrigerated beef was spoiled what remedy was there?"

"Come right back for more."

"So you replaced it?"

"Yes. I replaced it and cut it away from the contractor. As to complaints about it spoiling we took the officers' word for that. The loss fell on the contractor."

"What experiments, if any, were ordered by the commissary general with refrigerated or frozen beef?" asked Colonel Davis.

"Armour & Co. sent a box of frozen beef to Tampa. The boxes were not re-iced at Tampa, and after an examination a report was made adverse to it. The result of the experiment of frozen beef was a failure. I sent the report to the commissary general."

"Was any other experiment made at Tampa of any other beef?"

"Do you refer to the Powell beef?"

"Yes."

"That was not under the government at all. The agent of Armour & Co. told me that some beef was coming that would be treated. He did not know how. He asked me if I would determine its lengevity. He thought that the best place to try it would be on the mast of a ship. I did not hesitate at all. It was not United States beef. It was brought to me and Mr. Powell appeared and I asked him how it was treated. He laughed and said: 'There is nothing harmful in that beef. Anybody can eat it. I have been furnishing beef to the Florida hotels for years and I am sure that it will hold out longer than seventy-two hours.' He said that if the beef held out for seventy-two hours, and that if a contract was awarded him, he would furnish the process so we would know about it before we bought the beef. I took some of it, five or six quarters. I wanted no more of it. I suggested that he take the rest of it to Colonel Woodruff and also to Colonel Sumner's command. I hung that received by me in the sun and some on canvas. That without canvas held out for about twenty hours but that with canvas held out over seventy hours."

"It was purely a private experiment?"

"It was."

"Could you have prevented the experiment?"

"I could have refused to look at it. I do not wish to avoid any responsibility for my action. I thought I was doing my duty."

Colonel Weston declared that he had no suspicion that the refrigerated beef supplied to troops had been treated with chemicals.

"If any had been used the fellow who did it should have been whipped for his stupidity; it spoiled too quickly," he said.

Colonel Weston referred to the sickness of troops, and said he attributed it to the climate and exposure. It was not due to the food they ate, but was probably aggravated by the men not eating all they should.

"Tell us about Dr. Daly seeing the processed beef," said Colonel Davis.

"I called his attention to it on the transport. I explained to him that it was processed by Mr. Powell and was put there to see how long it would keep. I went to him particularly because he seemed to be interested in it. I told him all that I knew about it."

"Then he did not know about it until you called his attention to it?" asked Colonel Gillespie.

"He did not."

Colonel Henry B. Osgood, former purchasing depot commissary at Santiago, followed Colonel Weston and testified that he knew of four quarters of processed beef having been placed on a transport at Tampa. Referring to this he remarked:

"I suppose Colonel Weston told you all about that beef."

After a slight pause he exclaimed vehemently:

"And I have no doubt that those four quarters have caused all of this trouble."

The suddenness of this remark disturbed the court slightly, and Colonel Davis, with some appearance of annoyance, answered:

"That will all be inquired into in due season."

$500,000 for Buffalo Exposition.

Washington, Feb. 24.—The Senate Committee on International Expositions has ordered a favorable report on the bill introduced by Mr. Platt of New York appropriating $500,000 for a Government building and exhibit at the Pan-American Exposition to be held at Buffalo in 1901.

Industrial Activity.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 24.—There is not a mill, factory, or workshop in this district that can be found with idle men. Every mill and factody is overflowed with orders, and the manufacturers in general are compelled to make extensive arrangements to supply the demand.

The manufacturers say that never in the history of this gigantic iron and glass center was the demand for iron and glass so great, and the demand is such that those who are pressin gthe orders cannot be supplied.

Rebels Expulsed at Caloocan.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—Official news of the attempt to burn Manila was received at the war department at 3.35 o'clock yesterday in the following telegram from General Otis:

"Determined endeavor to burn city last night. Buildings fired in three different sections of the city. The fires were controlled by our troops after severe labor. A considerable number of incendiaries shot and a few soldiers wounded.

Early this morning a large body of insurgents made a demonstration off MacArthur's front, near Caloocan, and were repulsed.

"Loss of property by fire last night probably $500,000."

A Conspiracy Foiled.

Paris, Feb. 24.—MM. Deroulede, Millevoye and Habert were arrested last night, charged with conspiracy against the state. The government has evidence of the existence of a plot to spring a coup d'etat. The proofs were taken from information obtained on the Boulevard at 8 o'clock.

Large groups of men and boys attempted at that hour to parade on the Grand Boulevard, shouting "Vive, Vive Vive l'Armeee" in staccato rhythm. The police turned many to the side streets, but they returned and the general crowd to some extent took up the cry.

Forgave Him on the Spot.

Another story of the late Eugene Field's irrepressible love of joking comes from the "Youth's Companion." He and his wife had entered a street car, to find all the seats taken save one at each end of the car, and they seated themselves accordingly.

When the conductor collected the fares Mr. Field announced in audible tones, as he gave him a dime, at the same time pointing to the far end of the car: "That is to pay the fare of the lady over there—the one wearing the new beautiful brown silk dress."

All eyes were turned to her, and her pretty face took a most becoming rose color, but back of the reproving glances she threw him was one of mingled indulgence, appreciation and mirth at the unexpected and apparently truthful announcement.

The Flight of Geese.

Wild geese conduct their migration in an extremely methodical fashion. The birds form themselves into lines shaped like an old-fashioned drag or harrow. Sometimes there are two rows, one behind the other. There are always distinct leaders, but these very soon tire, and, by careful watching with a glass, one may see the leaders drop back and others take their places. It has been suggested that this arrangement is on the principle of a ticket office window, and that all of the ganders successively take the leadership. When weary, they fall back to the rear and others come up. If the flock is scattered by shot or accident they immediately form again.

Fast German Express Trains.

Germany's railways, which are owned by the government, are more progressive than the average American traveller abroad finds reason to suppose. One German express train covers 851 miles in twenty-two and a half hours, a mean speed, including stops, of 39.1 miles an hour, which is comparable with some of the best American long-distance express runs. An express running between Berlin and Hamburg covers 176½ miles in three hours and thirty-six minutes, a mean speed of 49.1 miles an hour.

NO EXTRA SESSION

The Minority Accepts President's Terms for an Army Bill.

TO DRAFT A NEW MEASURE

It Provides for a Provisional Corps of 35,000 Men to Serve Until 1901, Besides the Present Regular Force—The Situation at Manila Will Doubtless Lead to Concession by Opponents of the Bill.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—There will be no extra session of Congress. The Democrats have accepted the president's terms in regard to an army bill.

There will be a permanent army with a maximum of 62,000 soldiers, and a provisional army of thirty-five regiments for two years, with the understanding that the next Congress will provide for a complete reorganization and increase of the permanent army to one hundred thousand.

It was decided at the White House to submit a proposition to the Democratic leaders, which they must either accept in its entirety or take the alternative of an extra session.

The matter was discussed for over an hour, there being present, besides the president, Senators Allison, Hawley, Hanna, Spooner, Platt of Connecticut and Carter and Adjutant General Corbin.

The proposition made by Senators Cockrell and Gorman on behalf of the Democrats that they should allow a bill providing for a temporary army of one hundred thousand until 1901 to be passed, was laid before the president. The president said that such a bill would not be satisfactory and could not be accepted.

Then the conference discussed what could be arranged in the way of a new bill to be presented by the Senate military affairs committee, and submitted as a sort of ultimatum to the Democrats.

It was finally decided that the six senators should present a proposition to the Democratic leaders as coming from the president, embodying his views as to an army bill.

This proposition was that the adjutant general should draft a bill which would provide for the permanent retention of the present regular army of 62,000, and for the enlistment of thirty-five additional regiments to serve until 1901, thus bringing the army up to one hundred thousand men for the next two years.

This provisional army of thirty-five regiments is to be organized somewhat after the fashion followed during the civil war, the president appointing the line officers, it being understood that those in the volunteer army shall have preference, if possible.

It is also understood that the matter of providing for a permanent army of one hundred thousand is to be left to the next Congress.

The details of the bill, especially in regard to the organization of the provisional army, as it is to be called, will be left to the war department, and be incorporated in the measure.

The majority of the features of the Hull bill are to be retained.

After the senators who had the conference at the White House reached the Senate, Senator Allison sent for Senators Cockrell and Gorman, and the three met in the appropriations committee room.

The president's plan was laid before the Democrats and discussed. Senators Hawley, Platt of Connecticut, and Spooner were sent for, and the conference ended in the Democrats accepting the new bill, as well as the proviso that the matter of making the provisional army permanent should be left to the next Congress.

News of the agreement was communicated to the president, and orders were sent to the war department to hasten the work on the new bill, so that it will be ready to present to the Senate to-day.

The dispatches disclosing the grave situation at Manila impressed both parties to the controversy with the necessity of ending their disagreement in the face of the present emergency.

COURT OF INQUIRY FOR SCHLEY?

Naval Officers in Washington Think an Investigation is Inevitable.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—The opinion is prevalent at the navy department at the present time that the attempts of Admiral Schley and his friends, in Congress and out, to combat the assertions of Secretary Long in regard to Schley's movements off the south coast of Cuba and in the naval engagement of July 3 are converging towards the appointment of a court of inquiry to investigate the conduct of Admiral Schley in the war. That the officers of the department are surprised at the character of the defence made by Schley in his communication to the Senate is freely avowed by them. They do not hesitate to pronounce his statement that he obeyed the order to go to Santiago absolutely misleading and evasive, not to use harsher terms.

Naval circles still view with astonishment Admiral Schley's answer to the reference in Secretary Long's letter to the Senate regarding the peculiar manoeuvre of the Brooklyn in the first part of the engagement with Cervera's fleet, and the opinion is expressed by some officers that to preserve his reputation for bravery and professional ability, Schley will be obliged to ask for a court of inquiry to investigate the allegations against him.

Officers appear to believe, however, that Schley will not take this course on account of the overwhelming evidence against him presented to the Senate in response to the resolution of January 23.

But the patience of the navy department is becoming exhausted over the attacks that have been made on its fairness and honesty by the Schley partisans, and it was asserted yesterday that the department might take matters into its own hands and order a court of inquiry or even a court martial in the Schley case.

Khalifa Fights a Battle.

Cairo, Feb. 24.—It is reported that the Khalifa has suffered a severe defeat at the hands of Soudanese friendly to the Anglo-Egyptians.

Another report has been received here saying that the Khalifa has been victorious over a force of Soudanese.

Why Mayor Wilson is Popular.

The preliminary activity of the borough municipal campaign indicates that Mayor Wilson has a strong following, and that it will take more opposition and influence than now appears on the surface to defeat his renomination and re-election. Many leading Republicans are openly proclaiming their purpose of aiding in the movement to have Mayor Wilson succeed himself as the borough's chief executive. Inasmuch as Col. Wilson's administration has been a thoroughly non-partisan one the Republicans feel that devotion to his candidacy does not impair their fealty to the political party with which they are affiliated. They are right in that respect.

Mayor Wilson has earnestly and consistently devoted his time in office to securing for the municipality the same satisfaction and perfection for his constituents as he would if he was engaged in a private business wherin thoroughly honest and courteous conduct were the keystones to success. During his administration he has had some delicate problems to deal with—issues which he faced resolutely and fairly and carried out to the best interests of the taxpayers—and it is but natural that there should be a movement for his retention in office.

Hark, ye who feed at the public crib in New Jersey and feel that you are honestly earning the liberal salaries paid by "the people." Peruse the following paragraph clipped from the report of a meeting of the officials of a Canadian town, and then ponder on the ease and good time with which New Jersey office-holding is surrounded:

The by-law was introduced, read the required number of times and passed, R. H. Graham being re-engaged at a salary of Four Hundred and Fifty Dollars, his duties being defined as follows: Assessor, Collector, Sanitary Inspector, Caretaker town hall, public school, cemetery, public park, making monthly collections in connection with the electric light plant, cutting weeds, repairing and building sidewalks, Village Constable, Pound Keeper, Truant Officer and whatever other duties may be required in connection with the work of the municipality.

The Senate has passed the bill making the salary of the members of the Board of Freeholders in Mercer, Monmouth and Union counties at $300 per annum. If the bill becomes a law it will make a nice lot of offices for the practical politicians to make a hustle for. At present the Union county board is made up of substantial business men who serve the county in splendid manner. With a $300 emolument tagged to the office it is more than likely that there would be more candidates for the positions than there are now.

Assemblyman Murray evidently has taken a second thought about the bill which he introduced fixing the term of a city clerk in second-class cities at one year, if so decided by the Common Council. He has withdrawn it. When the measure was introduced many thought that the Assemblyman was hot on the trail of City Clerk MacMurray, but Mr. Murray avowed that this was not so.

Congressman Fowler has taken a commanding position in the financial legislation of Congress since he has been a member of the House of Representatives, and as a result prominent Jersey Republicans are signing a petition addressed to Speaker Reed urging the appointment of Mr. Fowler as chairman of the committee on Banking and Insurance.

THEY WERE LIVING PICTURES.

An "Album Sociable" Given in the First Baptist Church.

An "album sociable," consisting of a series of living pictures, was given at the First Baptist church last night under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society. The entertainment furnished amusement in abundance for all who attended, the pictures being well presented and appropriately costumed. George F. Brown had charge of the pictures, and introduced them to the audience with humorous remarks.

Harold Serrell was grandpa; Miss Florence Serrell the best girl; Miss Grace Yerkes was aunt; Miss Ida Yerkes, mother; John MacLaughlin a college boy; Miss Bertha Thorn, city cousin; Mrs. George F. Brown, grandma; Miss Bertha Needham, winter girl; Mrs. Alice Case, summer girl; Miss Hattie Shreve, college girl; Miss Mary Vail, golf girl; Miss Etta Webster, Miss Cairns and Miss Josephine Serrell, sisters; G. H. Batchelor, father; Miss Susie Milne and Miss Elsie Brokaw, country cousins; college chum, William Chapman; brother, Willie Flanders; college chum's sister, Miss Mary French.

L. H. Biglow, Jr., sang, Miss Beulah VanWinkle recited, and Miss Florence Serrell rendered several piano solos during the evening, and refreshments were served at the close. The committee in charge was Mrs. Chapman, Mrs. J. T. Vail, Miss Sarah Woodland, Miss Margaret Harold, Miss Grace Yerkes and Miss May French.

A COMPARISON.

A Borough Correspondent Praises Mayor Wilson's Administration.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The "I," "me" and "my" correspondent who signs himself "Taxpayer" in Tuesday's paper is not the Sir Oracle he arrogantly self assumes and which he would have the public believe him to be. Had he perused the reports of the preceding administration of ex-Mayor Hegeman he would have found there a pilot who would have shown him where he was drifting. Here are the figures:

EX-MAYOR HEGEMAN'S TERM.

Receipts.	Expenditures.
1895. $27,783.10	$22,.33.61
1896. $29,486.18	$21,465.40

PRESENT ADMINISTRATION.

1898. $38,751.03	$34,500.84

The e extra items make up the difference in expense:

Teeple Pleaded Not Guilty.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 24.—The only one to plead in county court yesterday was John Teeple, of Plainfield, who was committed by Justice Nash, of Plainfield, on the charge of embezzling flour and other goods from the flour mill of P. THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

"Perfectly lovely" is what the women say in speaking of the performance of Charles Frohman's "Little Minister" company the men echo their sentiments by the remark that "it was great." Everyone goes into raptures over this, the most successful play of the century. Mr. Barrie who made the dramatization from his famous and much talked of novel, has undoubtedly given us a play that is if anything stronger than the novel. It is customary now a days in announcing the play to speak of its phenominal success, especially if it has been seen for any period of time in any one city, but when it is stated that the "Little Minister" was seen for 300 performances in New York and that the theatre was crowded to the doors at each one of these performances, the truth is told. The success of the "Little Minister" has caused more talk than any play that has been produced for a number of years. It will be seen at Music Hall tonight, performed by a company said to be one of the best and strongest ever sent out under the auspices of Chas. Frohman.

* * * * *

A repertoire company of merit, and one highly praised by the press and public of cities where they have played for the past three years, The Miles Ideal Stock Company will make their first appearance here at Music Hall next Monday night. It is said to be one of the best company's traveling, equal in every respect to the Corse Payton, Waite, or Bennett-Moulton companies. The star John E. Miles, appears to great advantage in leading roles, including comedy and romantic character. The management has wisely surrounded him with the strongest support seen in repertoire. There is not what can be termed a stick in the company. In addition to their clever dramatic work, they are all fine looking and excellent dressers. There are twelve people in the specialties alone. Reserved seat tickets are now ready at box office for the opening night.

Mr. VanHerwerden offered a resolution to the effect that the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company be instructed to place a telephone in the house of Mayor Rockfellow, as per agreement.

Remonstrance to the Council.

The following remonstrance was presented to the Common Council last night:

At Rahway and Plainfield Monthly Meeting of the Society of Friends, held second month, 19th, 1899, the following minute was apporved and adopted by the meeting:

"This meeting learns with regret of the renewal of applications for licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors for drinking purposes in Plainfield, and it hereby protests, in the interests of the public welfare, against their being granted by the Common Council."

Signed by direction and on behalf of the said meeting.

Print Exhibition Arranged for First Week in April—Awards to be Made in Nine Classes—Three Exhibit Awards Announced

Much interest is manifested by the local amateur photographers in the approaching print exhibition which the Plainfield Camera Club will hold in its gallery during the first week in April. The exhibition will be open to all amateurs in this city and vicinity. To encourage as many exhibits as possible, it has been decided to make awards in various classes which have been selected as follows: Landscapes. interiors, portraiture, groups, hand camera work, mechanical, enlargements, animal study and beginner's work.

All the members of the Plainfield Camera Club are expected to make some exhibit and, for their encouragement, an award will be made for the best exhibit of any member of the club. There will also be two other awards, one for the best exhibit of any lady exhibitor outside of the club membership, and the other for the best exhibit by any gentleman exhibitor outside of the club.

Mounted prints of any size may be framed collectively, with or without glass, or arranged on fountain boards. If entering for competition all work must be done by the exhibitor.

Already there are a number outside of the ranks of the club who have expressed a determination to enter the contest for the awards, and place their pictures on exhibition. The exhibition last year was very successful but this year's promises to be an even greater success.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. THE TOWN OF "USED-TO-BE."

Grandma lives in a funny place,
The town of "Used-to-Be,"
Where streets are "turnpikes" and people are "folks,"
And a nice hot supper a "tea."

Where is the town of "Used-to-B ?"
In grandma's memory bright.
"The way?" Upstairs to grandma's room
(The cozy room on the right).

"When can you go there?" Twilight's best,
For the dreamy glow in the grate
Lights the way to the town of "Used-to-Be,"
And nobody need to wait.

And ughl the sermons, two hours' long,
And three of them Sabbath-day.
In a "meeting place" so cold a d drear
Where the "tight-stove" held its sway.

But if grandma shows you a summer scene,
In a farmhouse and orchard fair,
With rows of cheese on dairy shelves,
And bees in the clover-sweet air,

And there, beyond, in the kitchen wide,
Grandma herself at the wheel,
Spinning, singing, a fair young bride,
You say, for you can but feel—
"What a dear, dear town of "Used-to-Be;"
But grandma's voice drops low.
And she says with a half-sad, half-sweet smile,
"'Twas all so long ago."

Snake Swallowed a Lion Cub.

McKinley, a cub lion, was dozing beside the stove in the winter quarters of Lemen Bros.' circus in Argentine one morning not long ago, and not far from the little sleeping fellow stood several large boxes of snakes.

There was not a human being in the room. It was as still as death.

Suddenly the head of a large South American boa constrictor appeared above one of the boxes. It rose slowly up into the air until about two feet of its body was in sight. Then its head dropped over the side of the box and it began moving across the floor. The snake moved up to within a few feet of the lion cub, when it paused. The cub's tail was closest to the snake. It glided closer yet, and then drew the tail into its mouth. As the tail disappeared a wide spreading of its jaws took in the entire hindquarters of the cub. McKinley awoke, and began to cry in a plaintive voice. Swiftly its body disappeared, and louder grew its cries. The mother of the only lion cub born in captivity in the United States heard the wails of her offspring, and, looking between the bars of her cage, comprehended the situation at a glance. She sprang to the bars and let out a roar that brought every animal in every cage to its feet, and pandemonium broke loose. The mother of McKinley roared incessantly, while the lions joined in the chorus, and even the sea lions bellowed, and soon the elephants began to trumpet. The turmoil of the animals reached the circus attaches in another building, and they ran quickly to the scene. One of them ran to the elephants, which were tugging at their chains and trumpeting, and with an iron prod quieted them. Others tried to extricate McKinley. One man caught McKinley by the paws, and the other men held the snake, and they all pulled together. McKinley stayed where he was. Matters were approaching a crisis. It was either the life of the snake or the cub. A quick consultation was held, and it was decided to sacrifice the South American native. Knives were procured, and the snake was cut in two. The snake was handicapped by its meal. It did not ake long to sever the body, though, and then they tried to pull the cub through, but it stuck, and stuck tight. It was necessary to split the snake's jaws and pry them apart before the cub could be released. Then McKinley was taken out. He was nearer dead than alive.

His Opportunity.

A story which is not new is well told by George Cary Eggleston. A large company had been invited to a banquet at the mansion of Signor Faliero, in France, and just before the hour, the confectioner, who had been making a large ornament for the table, sent word that he had spoiled the piece.

"If you will let me try, I think I can make something that will do," said a boy, who had been employed as a scullion.

"You!" exclaimed the head servant in astonishment. "And who are you?"

"I am Antonio Canova, the grandson of Pisano, the stonecutter," replied the pale-faced little fellow.

"And pray what can you do?" asked the major domo.

"I can make you something that will do for the middle of the table, if you'll let me try."

The servant was at his wits' end, so he told Antonio to go ahead and see what he could do. Calling for some butter, the scullion quickly moulded a large, crouching lion.

Dinner was announced, and many of the most noted merchants, princes and noblemen of Venice were ushered into the dining-room. Among them were skilled critics of art work. When their eyes fell upon the butter lion, they recognized it as a work of genius. They examined it long and carefully, and asked Signor Faliero what great sculptor had been persuaded to waste his skill upon a work in such temporary material.

When the distinguished guests learned that the lion had been made in a short time by a scullion, the dinner was turned into a feast in his honor. The rich host declared that he would pay the boy's expenses under the best masters, and he kept his word, but Antonio was not spoiled by his good fortune. He remained at heart the same simple, earnest, faithful boy who had tried so hard to become a good stonecutter in the shop of Pisano.

Some may not have heard how the boy Antonio took advantage of this first great opportunity, but all know of Canova, one of the greatest sculptors of all time.

PLAIDS AND TWEEDS.

Machine Stitching Used for Trimmings on the Jacket.

Suitable for plaid, chequered or fancy woolens, serge, tweed, alpaca, faced cloth, coating, &c., the collar being faced with silk, satin, velvet or moire. The five-gore skirt measures 4 yards round hem, and would be used for cutting lining and material, which make up together, and interline foot part all round about eight inches up with real horsehair cloth, cut the same shape as each gore and stitched in with each seam. The front is cut without a seam down center, the front edge of side and back gores being placed to selvedge, then a small gore joined to back part of side gore, as perforations show. The front is shaped at the waist, side gore fitted with one dart, and back gathered, the placket-hole being arranged in center of back or on left side as preferred.

The coat fastens invisibly, single-breasted under a fly lap, the upper part being ornamented with a mitred strap of double material, machine-stitched and fastened to coat by means of buttons and buttonholes, while on either hip is a machine-stitched pocket-flap. Just beyond the front edge a row of machine-stitching is run in, the basque being machine-stitched, also the small wrap in center of back, while between the round side piece and back the superfluous fulness in the basque is made into a single pleat underneath to fall towards the back, which pleat well press.

The wide collar joins to the back of the neck, as one notch shows, and would be lined with sarcenet, interlined canvas and machine stitched, over this being arranged the satin or velvet collar, lined sarcenet, interlined canvas. The sleeve is machine-stitched just above wrist in lieu of a cuff, where it should be faced up with canvas to give it the necessary firmness, the shoulder fulness being formed into two single pleats either side of center.

Collar of Silk.

This design shows for plaid or fancy woolens, tweed goods, mohair, striped or plain goods, &c., the collar being of silk, satin, or faced cloth. Use the five-gore skirt for cutting lining and material, which make up together, and in cutting out, place center-front to a fold, the front edge of back gore to selvedge, and the lengthway line of oblong perforations in side gore, on the straight of material, then join on a small gore to back part of side gore, as round holes show. The hem measures about 3¾ yards, and would be interlined all round about 8 inches up with real horsehair cloth, which cut the same shape as each gore and stitch in with each seam.

The neck is finished with a roll-over collar of plain material, which line sarcenet, interline firm canvas, machine stitch at edge, place neck of jacket between upper edges of collar, and fell same down either side. With this jacket is intended to be worn a linen collar and front. The sleeve lining and material are cut alike, made up together, and the wrist twice machine-stitched, the shoulder fulness being arranged in two single downward pleats either side of the center, bringing a double box-pleat on top.

Berlin. Der frühere Mitinhaber des Theaters des Westens, Kunstmaler Dvorak, wurde wegen Untreue, Unterschlagung, Urkundenfälschung und Betrugs zu 1½ Jahren Gefängniß verurtheilt.—Dieser Tage ist der 87jährige Geheimrath Scriba in der Wohnung seines Schwiegersohnes General v. Hartmann in Folge eines Schwindelanfalles aus dem Fenster gestürzt und auf der Stelle getödtet worden.—Der Kaiser beabsichtigt, dem Thurmknopf des an Stelle des niedergelegten alten Domes erbauten neuen Domes ein auf die Fahrt in's Heilige Land bezügliches Dokument einzuverleiben; aus diesem Grunde darf das Baugerüst, welches den Thurm umgibt, noch nicht beseitigt werden, sondern muß bleiben, bis der Thurmknopf mit dem dokumentarischen Inhalt verlöthet ist.

Er hat auf Wechseln die Namen hiesiger Kaufleute gefälscht, und zwar so geschickt, daß ihm die Papiere von der Reichsbank diskontirt wurden. Es sollen bis jetzt drei Fälle dieser Art festgestellt sein, in welchen es sich um Beträge von 600 bis 1500 Mark handelt.

Kassel. Die Maschinenfabrik Henschel u. Sohn hat kürzlich ihre 5000. Lokomotive fertiggestellt. Aus diesem Anlaß wurde den Beamten und der Arbeiterschaft des Werkes etwa eine halbe Million an Gratifikationen und Stiftungen zugewendet. Die von der Firma herausgegebene Denkschrift ist sehr hübsch ausgestattet und berichtet, daß die Vorfahren der Familie Henschel schon im Mittelalter als kurfürstlich-hessische Stück- und Glockengießer in Kassel ansässig waren. Aus der Gießerei des Werkes stammt auch das Bonifaziusstandbild in Fulda. Die erste Lokomotive wurde 1848 hergestellt.

Wachtmann begann den Streit, indem er dem Krakow mit einem Messer die Backe aufschlitzte. Der Verletzte sowie Hübner drangen nun in voller Wuth auf Wachtmann ein, schlugen und stachen ihn so gefährlich, daß er nach kurzer Zeit starb.

Wolgast. Dieser Tage feierte hier der alte Freiheitskämpfer August Schmidt seinen 104. Geburtstag. Der alte Herr trat 1813 als freiwilliger Jäger beim Militär ein und hat an den Befreiungskriegen gegen Frankreich ruhmreichen Antheil genommen. Auch in diesem Jahre waren mehrfache Veranstaltungen getroffen worden, um den alten Krieger, der leider sein Augenlicht jetzt beinahe gänzlich verloren hat, an seinem Geburtstage zu ehren.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 26—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Palm tree Christians.—Ps. xcii, 1-15.

The Ninety-second Psalm, as we learn from the Talmud, was sung in the temple on Sabbath morning. It speaks of the appropriateness of giving thanks unto God day and night, and praises His just government of the world and prophesies the final destruction of the wicked and the success and prosperity of the righteous. This latter fact is made more vivid by comparing the righteous to the palm and the cedar "The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree; he shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon." This comparison was a peculiarly happy one in Palestine, where the palm at one time was very abundant and useful, though rarely found today. Many comparisons readily suggest themselves between the righteous, the Christian and the palm tree. The leading characteristics of the palm will illustrate this fact.

1. The palm tree is noted for its beauty. "Its trunk is straight, tall and unbroken, terminating in a crown of emerald green plumes, like a diadem of gigantic ostrich feathers. These leaves are frequently 20 feet in length, droop slightly at the ends and whisper musically in the breeze." It is a most beautiful tree. In its beauty it is emblematic of Christian righteousness. What more beautiful than a Christian life? Moral beauty is much more to be desired than physical beauty, and, though it may not always seem so, yet it is really more admired even by men of the world. There is nothing more beautiful in the world than a pure, ennobling, humble, consistent Christian life.

2. The palm tree is noted for its fruitfulness. When 6 or 8 years old, it begins to bear fruit and does not cease its work until a century has passed away. Millions receive from it their daily food. It is put to 360 different uses and supplies almost all the wants of the Arab or Egyptian. It bears its best fruit in old age. The Christian should also be noted for fruitfulness. Fruit bearing is his mission in the world. "I have chosen you," says Christ, "that you might go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain."

3. The palm tree is noted for its height. It is usually at least 40 or 50 feet in height, and often attains a height of 80 feet. It grows heavenward, as the Christian should also do, partaking more and more of those graces which adorn the inhabitants of God's eternal home.

4. The palm tree is an indogenous tree. It grows on the inside. In this respect it also typifies the Christian. Christianity is not a reformation outside, but the implanting within us of new principles of life, which change the entire moral exterior of the man.

5. The palm tree is noted for its perpetual greenness. In winter's cold or summer's heat the palm continues green. It is evergreen, symbolical of the eternal life of the Christian.

Thus this beautiful, useful plant may well inspire us to strive to adorn the spiritual world with the same characteristics with which it beautifies and ennobles the physical world.

Bible Readings.—Job xvii, 9; Ps. i, 1-6; xxxiv, 19; xxxvii, 19, 29; lii, 1-9; cxii, 1-10; Isa. lxi, 1-3; Jer. xvii, 8; Hos. xiv, 5-7; Prov. x, 3, 11, 25; Math. v, 10-16; xiii, 41-43; xxv, 34-46; John xv, 16; Rev. xxii, 10-12.

Depend on Christ.

Reckon on Christ to do His part perfectly. "Directly you give, He takes. Directly you will open the door, He enters. Directly you will open the floodgates, He pours in a glorious tide of fullness—fullness of wealth, of power, of joy. The clay has only to be plastic to the hand of a Palissy, the marble has only to be pliant to the chisel of a Michael Angelo, the organ has only to be responsive to the slightest touch of a Handel, the student has only to follow the least hint of a Faraday or a Whewell—and there will be no failure in results. Oh, to be equally susceptible to the molding influences of Christ! We shall not fail in realizing the highest ideal of which we are capable if only we will let Him do His work unhindered.—Rev. F. B. Meyer.

A Perennial Benefit.

A cheerful temper is a perennial benefit as well as a very rainbow of peace and joy in the home. We feel pity for those who can see only ill in everybody and everything, evil only everywhere; believing naturally, too, that the "race is degenerating, that all men are dreadfully wicked" and "going to the dogs" or to the "bad place;" that nothing is as good or correct as it "used to be!" The unfortunates born to these common and pessimistic ideas surely deserve our commiseration.—Churchman.

The Penalty Will Come.

There are many forms of sin in the world. Some are more heinous than others, but all are of the same nature—transgression of the law. Their greatness cannot be told by the immediate injury that follows, for often there appears to be no immediate evil results. But in process of time the penalty will come. "Be sure your sin will find you out."—Christian Instructor.

Prayer.

Jesus never taught his disciples how to preach, only how to pray. He did not speak much of what was needed to preach well, but much of praying well. To know how to speak to God is more than knowing how to speak to men. Not power with men, but power with God, is the first thing. Jesus loves to teach us how to pray.—Andrew Murray.

Unequal to the Strain.

Whatever men may say, God is no party to the idea of interminable punishment, and whatever punishment and whatever natural immortality may mean it would be unequal to the strain of God's endless wrath.—Universalist Leader.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 26, "Palm Tree Christians." Text, Ps. xcii, 12-15.

"The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree." Few objects are more beautifully majestic than the palm. The charm of the tropical landscape is greatly enhanced by the towering fronds of palms lifted high above the luxuriance of tangled jungles of shrubs and vines. So, says the Bible, does a Christian man appear in the mass of men. What dignity and power there is in a life like that of David Livingstone, of Bishop Hannington of Uganda, of Judson of Burma or of Chinese Gordon, of Havelock and the heroes of the Christian faith of many lands and times!

Whoever cares to know the truth can quickly assure himself of the fact that during the ages past as well as today the man who prospers most and the people who achieve most substantial success and progress are those who maintain the highest moral integrity. The man who disregards truth and the rights of others, the people who indulge in oppression, fraud and violence, may for a little while acquire an advantage over others, but in the long run they weaken themselves and will invariably fall.

Permanent wealth cannot be acquired by gambling or theft. Industry and frugality alone lay the foundations of stable fortunes. Experience teaches this, reason approves it.

Happiness is an element of all human advancement. No man or people are flourishing unless there are contentment of spirit and joyousness in the life. Happiness was never known to rest in the heart of one doing evil. No people can be prosperous and contented who are fraudulent and wicked.

Today in all the higher circles of trade the honest yard and honest dollar are recognized as necessities. Over all other considerations of self approval and the regard of fellow men rises the fact that the approbation of God is the most necessary thing to the human heart. He is pure and just and good. His blessing is on righteousness only. His mercies are over all, even the evil, but His promises of peace and prosperity are only to the upright in heart and life.

However iniquity may seem to abound no lie prospers and no fraud is stable. From the vantage ground of heaven we shall look back and see in human history that righteousness alone has been prosperous. "Trust in the Lord and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed."

What Is It Good For?

Thistles and thorns have their place and worth, but the man who cultivates them in hope of harvesting grapes and figs from them loses time and labor. So some folks have started in the Christian way, thinking it yielded fruits of a variety different from what it does. "Can a man make more money and make it faster by being a Christian than by not being one?" is a question not infrequently asked. "Is a Christian more prospered in business than one not a Christian?" These questions mistake the nature of Christianity and salvation. It is not possible for any one to confound a full pocketbook with love for his child, though the two may have close connection and profound influence on each other.

Religion of the right sort will make a man better in every part of life and work, but it is not of the nature of an insurance policy on his business prosperity. Righteousness in all his transactions and intentions, peaceableness and assurance of Divine pardon and favor and joyousness in consciousness of Christ as Saviour and God as Father, that is the nature of Christian prosperity. It is worth something, it is worth everything, for a man to have peace with God, whether he be beggar or billionaire. Religion is for the soul. It saves it. Prosper in all else and fail here, and all is lost.

The Royal Palms.

No more stately tree can be found than the royal palm, as it grows in the Bermudas, Cuba and the West Indies. With a trunk 1 foot to 18 inches in diameter, it rises 50 to 75 feet without branch or knot, a pillar of gray wood, resembling nothing so much as a column of granite turned in a monster lathe. At the top the leaf stems are brightest green, terminating in feathery foliage many feet in length.

An interesting exercise for this week would be to examine by the aid of a concordance all the passages in the Bible which speak of palm trees and compare them with others which refer to godly people as trees and plants.

It will be instructive and fascinating to look up the character and value of the palm. It is possible in a short essay or address to present much on this point not generally known. Most people have some idea of cocoanuts and dates as fruit of palms, but how few have any idea that there are over 1,100 different species, some of the nature of vines and others over 100 feet in height. No member of the vegetable kingdom, except the grasses, is so useful to mankind. Food, shelter, dress, utensils, drink, furniture, tools, weapons and medicine are all supplied from it. And it often grows where little else can live.

On Church Attendance.

If the homage of the sanctuary is neglected without cause, if men and women who owe it their personal attendance stay away for indulgence or gain or amusement or indifference, if employers deprive of its sacred benefits those they employ by exacting secular labor in business offices or factories or kitchens, they are personally answerable to their Maker and Judge for their irreligion, and their judgment is to come. If faithless legislatures or flighty local governments make such impiety easy, their reckoning must be with Him who is a lawgiver higher than they.—Bishop F. D. Huntington.

THE SUNDAY LESSON.

INTERNANIONAL SERIES, WITH COMMENTARY BY DR. STEARNS.

Golden Text—If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink.—John vii: 37.

Feb. 26.

14. "Now about the midst of the feast Jesus went up into the temple and thought." It was the feast of tabernacles, and His brethren who did not believe in Him had in a sort of sneering way advised Him to go up to the feast. His reply was, "My time is not yet come," so they went without Him, but He went up later, and as He taught the Jews wondered at His knowledge and His teaching, as He had not been to their schools. His reply to them was, "My doctrine is not mine, but His that sent me" (verse 16). He took no credit for His words or works. He sought no glory for Himself.

28. "Then cried Jesus in the temple as He taught, saying, Ye both know Me, and ye know whence I am; and I am not come of Myself, but He that sent me is true, whom ye know not." They had said, We know this man whence He is, but when Christ cometh no man knoweth whence He is (verse 27). They know that He was from Nazareth and of humble parentage, and that was all they professed to know, but if they had been honest they would have said, We know that Thou art a teacher come from God (John iii, 2).

29. "But I know Him, for I am from Him, and He hath sent Me." He said again, "As the Father knoweth Me, even so I know the Father" (John x, 15) and again, "No man knoweth the Son but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father save the Son and He to whomsoever the Son will reveal Him" (Math. xi, 27). In His prayer He said, "O righteous Father the world hath not known Thee, but I have known Thee, and these have known that Thou hast sent Me" (John xvii, 25).

30. "Then they sought to take Him, but no man laid hands on Him because His hour was not yet come." Many a time would they have taken Him, but they could not touch Him till the appointed time. When they did finally take Him, it was because He allowed them to, and when He died He freely gave up His life. He laid it down of Himself; they could not take it from Him (John x, 18).

31. "And many of the people believed on Him and said, When Christ cometh will He do more miracles than these which this man hath done?" While some believed and some believed not and many who professed to believe turned back and walked no more with Him (chapter vi, 66) He kept steadily on bearing faithful testimony and doing the Father's works and will, sure that all whom the Father gave to Him would come unto Him (chapter vi, 37) and that He would see of the travail of His soul and be satisfied (Isa liii, 11).

32. "The Pharisees heard that the people murmured such things concerning Him, and the Pharisees and the chief priests sent officers to take Him." They might have remembered that a certain king of Syria did his best to take Elisha, but in vain, or that Ahab did his best to find Elijah, but also failed; that Sennacherib would have taken Jerusalem, but could not. When will the enemies of God stop imagining vain things? Not till the antichrist, yet to be manifested, is destroyed, and satan shut up in the pit, and even after that there shall be enemies of God until satan is finally cast into the lake of fire and the kingdom comes.

33. "Then Jesus said unto them, Yet a little while I am with you, and then I go unto Him that sent me." The time was short until He would give Himself up and let them take Him and kill Him, but even in death He would go to the Father, and after the resurrection He would in His glorified body ascend to the Father. For more than 30 years He had willingly absented Himself from His home in glory, bearing all manner of humiliation and scorn for our sakes, and soon He was to become our sin offering, bearing our sins in His own body on the cross.

34. "Ye shall seek Me and shall not find Me, and where I am thither ye cannot come." In chapter viii, 21, He says, "I go my way, and ye shall seek Me and shall die in your sins." Whither I go ye cannot come." In verse 24 of the same chapter He says, "If ye believe not that I am He, ye shall die in your sins." Now is the time to seek Him, for it is written, "Seek ye the Lord while He may be found," and all who truly seek surely will find (Isa. lv, 6; Jer. xxix, 13; Math. vii, 8), but if the sinner will not yield to the seeking Saviour—for He is always seeking ever since He sought Adam hiding from Him in Eden—then there is a possibility of the experience of Prov. i, 28: "Then shall they call upon Me, but I will not answer. They shall seek Me early, but they shall not find Me."

35. "Then said the Jews among themselves, Whither will He go that we shall not find Him? Will He go unto the dispersed among the gentiles and teach the gentiles?" If they believed Him to be possessed of a devil, as they said, they could not think of His going to heaven to leave them, but even if He should possibly be a good man and go to heaven surely they would find Him, for were they not all going that way, at least in their own opinion? Anything more than a mere man they could not see Him to be and so they understood Him, not because they would not receive Him.

LOCAL GYMNASTS AND ATHLETES TO COMPETE

Open Pentathlon Contest at Y. M. C. A. GYM.

IT TAKES PLACE TONIGHT.

WILL INCLUDE GYMNASTIC AND ATHLETIC EVENTS, EIGHT IN ALL.

Medal Winners and all Will be Eligible to Compete—Promise of a Lively Contest—Many of the Best Men Will Enter—Expert Officials to Act—What the Events Will be—The System of Scoring.

Every member of the Y. M. C. A. who has any athletic or gymnastic aspirations, will have a chance this evening to win new laurels in that line. The open pentathlon or all round contest will be held in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium this evening. Medal winners, novices and all will be eligible to try for the silver and bronze medals which will be respectively awarded to first and second.

The contest is considerably different from any previous one of the season. It will include both gymnastic and athletic work. There will be eight events. The first of these will be the "free work," or the preparatory drill, including marching, facing and the like. The next will be calesthenics. There will be 30 possible points to be scored in each event for absolutely perfect work, which will afterwards be reduced to a percentage basis.

The three following events will be of a gymnastic nature. Each will consist of three moves on one chosen piece of apparatus. The apparatus will be the parallel bars, the side horse and the high horizontal bar. The moves will be the standard ones in the intermediate grade, which have been furnished to Physical Director Heywood by the international committee. The thirty points of each event will be divided with ten for each move, two for approach, two for execution, two for retreat and four for general form.

The three last events will be athletic. They are the potato race, three standing broad jumps and the running high jump. Each competitor will be scored according to the excellence of his performance, after a table prepared by the international committee.

William McMonigle, of the Twenty-third Street Branch of the New York Y. M. C. A., will be one of the judges. He was president of the leaders' corps at the Branch, after Mr. Heywood's term there expired, and was a winner of the all-round championship there. He is an expert judge. Robert A. Meeker, of this city, will probably be the other judge. He is also well qualified.

There are nearly a score of the local athletes who will probably compete in the contest. Among those expected to enter are: Walter L. Long, George Proctor Smith, Frank O. Bristol, Eric Moraller, Frank Marcley, William Townsend, Hervey K. Doane, Ivan Hardingham, Herbert Brokaw and Raymond B. Carroll.

THE END IS NIGH.

The Daily Press Subscription Contest Will Close on Monday Night, March 6th.

The end of The Daily Press subscription contest is now in sight. It lies only nine days off. The contest will end on the evening of Monday, March 6th, at 6 o'clock. Until that time the young people in the contest will hustle their hardest to advance the number of new subscribers that they have secured. There is still considerable doubt as to who is to be the winner. The race is open yet and there's no telling when the fabled "dark horse" will suddedly put in his appearance and carry off the honors.

Several of the young men in the contest have been putting forth unusual efforts of late and are crawling well up toward the top. Their efforts have kept the total number of new subscribers for this week close to the record mark. The blizzard rather cooled the vigor of some of the contestants but they are up again and working hard now.

The diplomas to the Plainfield Business College and the Gregg School of Shorthand, first and second prize respectively, and Webster dictionary, the third prize, are now on exhibition at The Press office on North avenue.

Some Startling Evidence.

The case of Patrolman Cash against Michael Powers for $50 due for services, was adjourned in Justice Nash's court yesterday for one week. It is said that some startling evidence will be produced at the trial.

A Building Boom.

The local real estate dealers claim that next spring there will be considerable change in property in Plainfield and that there will be a building boom.

FOUGHT FIRE IN A ROOM.

OTTO ARENS AND HIS SON BADLY BURNED LAST NIGHT.

Blaze Caught From Gas Burner and Threatened House With Destruction—Hand Extinguishers Did the Work.

A persistent little blaze roused out the household of Otto Arens, of Park avenue, shortly after 10:30 o'clock last evening, and was only extinguished by the prompt efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Arens and their son, Seigfried. Father and son had their hands badly burned while the room and its furniture and hangings were damaged to the extent of $250.

The family were about to retire last evening while the maid was in the front bedchamber opening the bed. She lighted the Welsbach burner near the window and then turned toward the bed. When she turned the window hangings and curtains were all ablaze. The maid was paralyzed with fright.

Mrs. Arens saw the light and discovered the fire. Calling husband, she hurried downstairs for two hand fire extinguishers that were kept there. Mr. Ahrens fought the fire with pitchers of water until the arrival of his son who pulled down the burning hangings, badly burning his hands while doing so.

The extinguishers were then used and the flames all extinguished. The casing and wall had caught fire and the hard wood floor was somewhat burned. A bureau and desk were ruined by the flames.

Chief Doane, of the fire department, was notified by telephone after it was all over. He offered to send assistance but the fire was all gone then.

SEMINARY IN DIRE STRAITS.

Reformed Church Theological Institution Must Have Funds.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, Feb. 25—The officials of the Reformed Theological Seminary are much concerned over the first public announcement that has been made of the grave financial crisis confronting the institution.

The treasurer, Rev. James Demarest, has submitted his report, in which he shows that, through shrinkage and depreciation of investments, it has become so necessary to increase the endowment that unless $100,000 is raised the existence of the institution will be in jeopardy.

The total endowment of the seminary at present is only $369 000. So straitened have the circumstances of the institution become that for the past eight months religious exercises have been conducted without organ or piano.

The seminary used to rent a piano, but this year the piano was dispensed with, in order to save the rental. An especial effort is to be made by all the churches of the synod to raise a fund sufficient to maintain the seminary.

THREE WOMEN AND A LETTER.

One in Jail and Another a Fugitive for Opening the Third's Mail

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 25—Miss Kittie James, Miss Roberta Harris and Mrs. Anna Ellis, of Cranford, disputed over a letter containing money, and now Miss James is in the county jail and a marshal from United States Commissioner Whitehead's office, of Newark, is looking for Mrs. Ellis.

The dispute arose when a special delivery letter addressed to Miss James containing money was delivered to Mrs. Ellis by mistake. Mrs. Ellis opened the letter and, finding it was not for her, sent it to Miss James. When Miss James received it she found only five dollars remaining and she took it to the postmaster at Cranford, who refused to make the amount right. Miss James then went before Commissioner Whitehead and swore out a warrant charging Mrs. Ellis with opening her mail.

In some way the news reached the defendant and she sent her cousin, Miss Harris, to try and "square" the matter with Miss James. A fight followed, and the latter young woman is now languishing in the county jail awaiting the action of the May Grand Jury, and Mrs. Ellis is a fugitive from justice.

Fruit Not Ruined.

Councilman Valiant, of Washington Park, who has been sojourning in the south, is expected to return home the first of next week. In a letter written home he says that the fruit generally throughout the south is not ruined, as supposed.

Supper Netted $100.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church are rejoicing over the fact that they have realized about $100 net from the New England supper given in the chapel of the church last Thursday evening.

SULPHUR BLAZED UP TO SET FIRE TO DRESS

Mrs. Andrew F. Marsh, of Vine Street, Terribly Burned.

WOOLEN DRESS SAVED LIFE

HER SCREAMS ATTRACTED QUICK ATTENTION OF DAUGHTER.

Mrs. Marsh Threw a Piece of Sulphur Into the Kitchen Stove, Which Made Flames That Communicated to Her Dress and Made a Living Torch of Her—Arms and Shoulders Badly Burned

A narrow escape from burning to death was experienced yesterday forenoon by Mrs. Andrew F. Marsh, of Vine street, in the borough. She picked up a good-sized piece of sulphur which was found in the kitchen and thoughtlessly threw it in the stove. In an instant a large blaze leaped in the air and set fire to Mrs. Marsh's dress.

She gave several screams which attracted the attention of one of her daughters, who hastened to learn the trouble. When the daughter rushed into the kitchen she found her mother enveloped in flames. She secured a large apron and threw it around her mother's body and after a great deal of trouble succeeded in extinguishing the flames.

Mrs. Marsh was terribly burned. The front of her hair was ruined. Her arms and shoulders were severely burned, as well as other parts of her body. One thing that saved her from more serious injury was that she wore a woolen dress and the action of the flames was not as disastrous as they would have been with a dress of other material.

Mrs. Marsh retained her presence of mind during her terrible experience, but her condition was very weak afterward. The proper treatment was at once secured for her, and she is now doing as well as can be expected. She is obliged to remain in the house and will be detained for some time.

This is the second narrow escape that Mrs. Marsh has had. Not a great while ago a lamp exploded in her home, and she came near losing her life in that accident.

AT THE GRACE M. E. FAIR.

The Attendance Last Night Was Larger Than Opening Night.

Last evening the fair and bazaar was continued and closed at Grace M. E. church under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. There was by far a much larger attendance than on the first evening and a larger sum of money was realized. During the evening there were piano solos by Bert Simpson, recitations by Miss Elizabeth Hoagland, and a dialogue by Miss Mabel Stevens, Miss Ada Van-Horn, Miss Carrie Pangborn and Miss Mary Hoagland.

The various booths and tables where good things were sold did a good business and were liberally patronized. The first evening the women realized about $25, and last evening the amount was considerably larger. The proceeds will be used first to pay the interest on the church, and if anything is left it will be given toward furnishing the new church parsonage.

The Jolly Whisters.

The Jolly Whist Club was delightfully entertained last night by Councilman and Mrs. R. I. Tolles, of Westervelt avenue, at their home. There were twenty members of the club present and everyone had a good time. Mrs. Taylor was the winner of the first prize for the women, while Mrs. S. C. Baker secured the second prize. Councilman J. F. Buckle was awarded first prize for the men and Postmaster E. H. Bird was presented with the second prize. Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Baker, of Fifth street, will entertain the club at the next meeting, Frievening, March 10th.

To Remove to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton S. Jones, who have been residents of Plainfield for two years, where they have made many pleasant acquaintances, leave today for New York, where they will take up their residence at 261 West Twenty-third street. Their many friends will be sorry to learn of their removal, but the change is partially necessitated on account of business.

Wanted on a Serious Charge.

Chief Grant received a warrant from the Elizabeth police last evening for the arrest of Henry Parker, colored, on a serious charge. The warrant was issued by Justice Hetfield, of Elizabeth. Parker was arrested early this morning by Patrolman Higgins in a barn on Watchung avenue. He was taken to Elizabeth for a hearing.

FADS OF LAST CENTURY DEPICTED AT TRINITY.

A COLONIAL SOCIABLE WAS HELD.

Affair Given by Christian Endeavor Society—Old-Fashioned Costumes Were Worn.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church gave a colonial sociable last night. Everything about it was suggestive of the last century, the patriotic decorations and the old fashioned costumes worn by the members of the social committee, who had the sociable in charge. There was not a large attendance for some reason, but those who were there played games and chatted and enjoyed themselves.

The social committee trimmed the Sunday-school room with flags and bunting, and made it look gay and cosy with rugs and lamps. The lady members of the committee wore lace scarfs or handkerchiefs around their necks and their hair was sprinkled with powder, giving them a real colonial look.

"Baiting the bear" and "going to Jerusalem" were played until 10 o'clock, then cake and chocolate were served. The gentlemen chose their partners for refreshments by the help of slips of paper with some prominent person's name written upon it. The paper was cut in two, and one piece given to a lady. A gentleman had the other, and he was expected to find her who had the missing half of the name, and set with her while the refreshments were eaten. There were several nice cakes left, and these were auctioned off at good prices by E. E. Anthony. Before the sociable was over, H. J. Martin sang a solo, accompanied on the piano by his son, H. J. Martin, Jr.

The committee in charge was Miss Cora E. Laire, Miss Nellie Bacher, Miss Corinna Young, Miss Edith M. DuBois and Miss Lottie Wilson.

$500 FOR NEW MARKET WOMAN FROM CALIFORNIA

SECURED AFTER MUCH LITIGATION.

Mrs. Newton Secured One-Sixth of Estate Represented in a California Ranch.

Several years ago G. W. Newton, formerly of New Market, became a part owner of a large ranch in Colusa county, Cal., which was worth considerable money. Some few years later Mr. Newton died and letters of administration were taken out by his brother, Charles A. Newton. In the legal transaction, it is alleged, he tried to deprive Mrs. George W. Newton, who still resides at New Market, of her one-sixth share in the estate.

Mrs. Newton sought Lawyer J. P. D. Kirch, of this city, who instituted proceedings against the administrator, Charles A. Newton. The case was in litigation for several months and fought bitterly. As all of the business had to be transacted by correspondence it was made just that more difficult. For sometime it look as though the plaintiff might lose the case.

Mrs. Newton was, however, greatly pleased yesterday, when she received a check for $500, this being her one-sixth share in the estate.

SHIN PLASTERS NO GOOD.

Returned by U. S. Treasury to John H. DeMeza Branded Counterfeit.

Last Monday, John H. DeMeza, of West Second street, sent the Secretary of the U. S. Treasury three "shin plasters," or fraternal currency. There were two 50 cent bills and one 25 cent one that he had taken in payment of a bill. He sent them to learn if they were of any value.

This morning he received a communication containing the bills, branded "bad," and stating that they were counterfeit and of no value. They are to be returned to the Secret Service Bureau. The "shin plasters" are evidently very old.

Young Folks Enjoy Themselves.

The Misses Tillie and Rosie Rowe entertained a number of their friends in a pleasant manner at the home of their sister, Mrs. W. W. Mills, of Summit avenue, Thursday evening. THE FISKS LOSE SUIT BROUGHT BY KINSMAN

An Important Decision Rendered by New York Court.

MANY INVOLVED POINTS.

COMPANY WHICH WAS TO DEVELOP KINSMAN'S INVENTION.

Mr Kinsman Was to Receive a Salary of $5,000 a Year for Three Years, But Company Went Into Insolvency and Cut Off His Services—Contract Was Not Abrogated by a Receivership.

The First Appelate Division of the New York Supreme Court has rendered a decision which is of great interest to Plainfielders. It is the action of Frank E. Kinsman, of Sherman avenue, against Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Harvey E. Fisk and Pliny Fisk, as guarantors, to recover salary due plaintiff for services actually rendered as consulting engineer in a company formed to develop his inventions, and also to recover damages for failure of the company to pay him salary for the remaining portions of two years for which he had been employed. In reporting the case the New York Times said:

Mr. Kinsman was in the employ of the company prior to the appointment of a receiver, and notice was given him by the receiver that his services would be no longer required. His salary was to be $5,000 a year for three years, and payment of it was guaranteed by the defendants. After plaintiff had rendered services part of the first year the defendants brought an action in the Court of Chancery, New Jersey, against the company, alleging its insolvency, and had a receiver appointed. The trial justice decided that defendants were liable for the salary until the time of the appointment of the receiver, but not afterward. The First Appellate Divison, on plaintiff's appeal, has reversed the judgment and ordered a new trial.

"Here, a receiver was appointed upon the application of the defendant," Justice O'Brien giving the decision, said, "and that fact is relied upon to release them from their obligation. But it is not made to appear that the corporation was dissolved, and the mere bringing of the suit alleging insolvency and obtaining the appointment of a receiver did not abrogate the contract of the company for the obligation of the defendant."

The Court held that it would be both inequitable and unjust to import into the agreement an implied condition contrary to the meaning and intent of the parties, and thus enable the defendants to obtain the control of the corporation and its management, apply for and secure the appointment of a receiver on the allegation of insolvency, and to use this as the ground for refusing to comply with an agreement which in effect called upon them as a consideration for the delivery of certain stock, to pay $10,000 in monthly instalments, covering a period of two years. That the payment of such sum was what the plaintiff desired to secure, and the defendants agreed to pay as the consideration for the stock, is evident from the character of the employment which the plaintiff was to obtain. The agreement did not specify that he was to render any particular services, but provided that he was to be appointed as vice-president or consulting engineer, which necessarily excludes the idea that he was to have his whole time continuously employed with the details of the company during the period, as a condition precedent to his right to receive the stipulated sum.

Death of Mrs. Sharp.

The death of Mrs. Elsie Sharp, widow of Smith Sharp, is recorded today. She was in the 76th year of her age, and has been ill for sometime past. The funeral services will be held at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. R. W. Ware, 810 Second place, Thurday next at 11 a. m.

WILL DIE ON GALLOWS.

LOUIS ROESEL SENTENCED TO DEATH AGAIN THIS MORNING.

Only Board of Pardons Can Intervene Now and There's Little Likelihood of That—The Date Set for March 10th.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, February 25.—The shadow of the gallows once more falls over Louis Roesel, the condemned murderer of Farmer Pitts, of Summit. This morning he was sentenced to be hung by the neck until dead. It is the fourth time that such sentence has been passed on him, but there now appears very little chance of his escaping capital punishment.

Roesel was brought before Justice VanSyckel in the Supreme Court this morning. He looked wan and pale from his long confinement and worriment but passed through the ordeal without any demonstration.

Justice VanSyckel sentenced him to be hung March 10th, between the hours of 10 and 2 o'clock. Only the Board of Pardons stands between Roesel and death now and there seems little hope that the Board will interfere to change the present sentence.

FORMER MAYOR ANSWERS.

Mr. Hegeman Says He is Will to Have His Administration Scanned.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I read with much amusement the effort of your correspondent who hides his identity behind the innocent sobriquet of "not an official."

I have no desire to intrude on your valuable space except to say that as far as my administration goes I am perfectly willing to stand by it and make no apoligies for it. My position in this respect is fully supported by the figures of my unofficial friend.

There is one point I do wish to refer to and that is where Nemo labels three items in his cast statement as "Legacy from Hegeman term." He pays me a high compliment, as I certainly feel that the opening of Watchung avenue and the providing a thickly settled portion of our borough with fire protection are improvements of which I can feel justly proud.

Yours very truly,
B. A. Hegeman, Jr.

Mock Breach of Promise Suit.

This afternoon at Whitehouse there will be a mock breach of promise suit tried for the benefit of the M. E. church of that place. The case is that of Hannah Gray against Moses Roberts. S. S. Swackhamer, of this city, will represent the plaintiff, while J. P. D. Kirch, also of this city, will represent the defendant. The case will be tried before a jury of twelve men.

Some Were Converted.

The evangelistic meetings in the First M. E. church closed for the week with a special service for young people last evening. Rev. Dr. J. D. Bell had was in charge and made the meeting an interesting one. There was a number who expressed a determination to lead a better life henceforth. The meeting was well attended.

Public Endeavor Conference.

A public conference of the Plainfield Local Union Christian Endeavor will be held in the Trinity Reformed church Tuesday, February 28th. There will be two open discussions, one of them to be conducted by Rev. J. W. Richardson, one of the vice-presidents of the N. J. State Union, and the other by Rev. A. I. Martine, of Dunellen.

Beware, Small Boys.

Some small boys, whose names are withheld for their parents' sake, had better stop smoking cigarettes, throwing mud at Hall's drug store windows, and on people's personal property, thereby making a general public nuisance of themselves, or they may find themselves in the station house and their names made public.

Another Commuter Councilman.

Councilman Frank Smith, who has been associated for fifteen years with the Potter Press Company, has tendered his resignation, to take effect March 1st. He will engage in the insurance business in New York.

—In their advertisement today Woodhull & Martin announce they will double the number of trading stamps with all cash purchases from 6 o'clock until 10 tonight. The trading stamp idea is no longer an experiment. Its benefits are now generally admitted. It gets people in the habit of paying cash, and thus enables them to take advantage of special sales where worthy goods are sold cheap. Besides when a book is filled the owner is absolutely certain of getting a splended premium free.

ONLY TWO BIG FIRES REPORTED LAST YEAR

Substance of Report to National Board of Underwriters.

MADE BY T. O. DOANE.

INTERESTING FACTS PRESENTED BY CHIEF OF FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Bard Fire Was Largely Accountable For an Increase in Amount of Property Involved and the Loss—Fifteen Fires so Far This Year—The Result of the Cold and Blizzard.

So far this year, there have been fifteen fires in the city of Plainfield. Most of them, however, have amounted to very little. The number, however, is greater than that recorded in an equal length of time in previous years. It may be easily accounted for by the great cold wave and the following blizzard that necessitated plenty of heat from stovee and furnaces which sometimes got themselves into trouble through overheating.

Some interesting facts regarding the fires that took place in Plainfield during the last year, the number and damage done, are to be found in the report that Chief T. O. Doane, of the Plainfield Fire Department, recently sent to the National Board of Underwriters from which to prepare their statistics.

During the year of 1898 there were 61 alarms. Of these, 12 of the fires were in brick or stone buildings, 29 in wooden buildings and 20 were other than building fires. All but two of the fires were confined to the premises in which they originated. The other two, it will be remembered, were the Bard Company's fire and the blaze at the Climax Bottle Stopper Factory.

In comparison with these figures, the report for the year of 1897 show 43 alarms, of which 39 were in wooden buildings and 4 other than building fires. They were all confined to the place of origin.

The entire property involved by the fires of last year amounted to $253,970 70, as against $196,288 for the previous year. The loss for 1898 was $57,515.26, and for 1897, $10,995 12. The insurance was $181,850 and $155,800 for the two years respectively.

At first sight it looks as if there had been a great increase in fires during the past year. A little thought on the subject and an investigation of the records of the fire department show that the great fire of last year, commonly known as the Bard fire, was the cause of the great increase in the amount of property involved in the loss.

Plainfield investors have found it perfectly satisfactory and include many of the prominent citizens of this place. Now the Mercantile Co-operative Bank is planning to open a savings department branch in Plainfield which will offer splendid opportunities to those who have a large or small amount of money that they wish to lay by at interest and yet be able to recover possession of at any time.

Mr. Martens, the superintendent of the bank, has been in Plainfield and made the necessary arrangements to start the savings bank here where sums of $1 and up may be deposited. Interest at 4 per cent. will be paid on all deposits of $5 and over. A local cashier will be employed.

DEWEY'S HURRY ORDER

Asks That the Battleship Oregon Be Sent for Political Reasons

ADMINISTRATION PUZZLED

It is Surmised That the Germans or Some Other Foreign Elements Are Making Themselves Too Conspicuous to Suit Admiral Dewey and That He Proposes to Call Them Down If Necessary.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—A brief dispatch was received at the navy department yesterday from Admiral Dewey requesting that the Oregon be sent to Manila "for political reasons." Officers of the navy department do not know what the meaning of the dispatch is. The Oregon was reported last night as having arrived at Honolulu. Secretary Long took the message, together with a second brief dispatch, to the cabinet meeting yesterday.

Following is the text of the messages:

Manila, Feb. 24.

Secretary Navy, Washington:

For political reasons Oregon should be sent at once.

DEWEY.

Manila, Feb. 24.

Secretary Navy, Washington:

Yorktown arrived. Charleston and Petrel cruising around Philippine islands. Affairs more quiet.

DEWEY.

This dispatch was received from Captain Barker of the Oregon, having been forwarded from San Francisco by the dispatch agent:

"Oregon arrived at Hilo February 4; Honolulu February 5. Scandia and Iris arrived at Honolulu on February 12.

"BARKER."

The dispatch from Admiral Dewey advising that the Oregon be sent at once to Manila created some astonishment at the navy department. There have been no recent occurrences to justify the belief that trouble from any foreign nation was expected at Manila or elsewhere in the Philippines, and the officers are satisfied that the big battleship is not needed in connection with quelling the outbreak of the insurgents.

The message from Dewey is the more inexplicable because the Oregon was ordered to Manila some time ago and will have started from Honolulu before the navy department can communicate to her commander instructions based on Admiral Dewey's dispatch. The dispatch from Captain Barker received at the navy department through the United States dispatch agent at San Francisco did not indicate how long the Oregon would stay at Honolulu, but it is certain that she will have departed before a vessel carrying a message from the navy department can reach there; in fact, it is supposed at the department that she has already left for Manila.

Knowing Dewey to be cool-headed and not inclined to exaggerate the importance of the situation, the administration authorities are satisfied that he had good cause to urge that the Oregon be sent to him with all haste. The phraseology of his message indicates to the minds of the officers that there is danger of foreign complications, and naturally, in view of the past experiences of Dewey, the first supposition was that the German warships at Manila had been again acting in an offensive manner.

The theory which has the greatest number of believers among the officers, and is, in fact, the only theory advanced in explanation of the "political reasons" to which Dewey refers, is that some foreign power has made a move to land marines in Manila under the plea of protecting the interests of subjects of that power in the Philippine capital.

That something of the sort might be attempted has been suspected here since the news of the big fire of February 22 was received, but the government determined not to permit its ability to preserve order and protect the lives and property of all persons, irrespective of nationality, to be questioned by the landing of a foreign force. To permit this, it is contended, would be an admission of the inability of this government to preserve its authority in the Philippines, and it may be accepted as true that no foreign marines or troops will be allowed to go ashore at Manila.

If an attempt should be made to land foreign marines against the wishes of the United States the necessity for the Oregon's presence would be apparent.

The Oregon is able to make the voyage from Honolulu to Manila going at her most economical rate of speed, in about three weeks. Dewey has two other armored ships with him now, the monitors Monadnock and Monterey. The battleship Iowa, which accompanied the Oregon from New York to Callao, is at the Mare Island navy yard undergoing repairs to her machinery and will not be ready for active service for several weeks. She will probably be sent to Manila if Dewey telegraphs that the situation justifies her presence there.

An inquiry will be sent to Admiral Dewey at once, asking him what are the "political reasons" that necessitate the presence of the Oregon. His explanation is awaited with interest at the White House and the navy department.

The arrival of the Twentieth infantry at Manila is very gratifying to the government in view of Dewey's dispatch. This is one of the best regiments of the regular service. It is being closely followed by the Twenty-second regiment, which left San Francisco a few days later than the Twentieth regiment, and in about ten days the Fourth regiment and four companies of the Seventeenth infantry will reach Manila on the Grant, which proceeded from New York by the Suez route.

With the arrival of the Yorktown, Admiral Dewey has another of the light draught gunboats that he urged the navy department to send. With the war vessels now at Manila and those on the way to Manila, Dewey will have sixteen fighting ships.

Rebels Still Make Trouble.

Manila, Feb. 25.—Despite the excitement of the past two days, business is proceeding as usual, and there is general confidence in the ability of the authorities to maintain order.

The American women in the city were sent on board the transports in the bay to safeguard them against danger.

The sharpshooting which has been going on in various parts of the city has practically ceased, but there is continued skirmishing on General MacArthur's front. One American was killed and four were wounded yesterday morning.

The Church of San Francisco Delmonte, which was used by the insurgents as a fortress, and from which Thursday's attack upon the First South Dakota infantry was made, was bombarded by the Utah battery yesterday morning.

A military government similar to that of Manila, has been established at Iloilo.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—The following dispatch was received from Major General Otis at the war department yesterday:

Manila, Feb. 24.

Adjutant General, Washington:

Scandia arrived last night. On the nights of 21st and 22nd and yesterday morning the insurgent troops gained access to the outskirts of the city behind our lines. Many in hiding and about one thousand entrenched themselves. Completely routed yesterday, with loss of killed and wounded about five hundred and two hundred prisoners.

Our loss was very slight. City quiet; confidence restored, and business progressing.

DUN'S WEEKLY REPORT.

Business on the Whole Never Better—The Iron Industry is Booming.

New York, Feb. 25.—The situation is without precedent. Business has never been better on the whole, and in some great industries the gain is astonishing. Exports surpass last year's as much as imports, though the excess over imports then was heavy. Failures are smaller than last year, and smaller than in either of six years past. Stocks are stronger, the average for the active railway securities being a little higher, and for trusts much more owing to the extraordinary advance of $48.75 in tobacco.

Payments through exchanges show a greater volume of business than ever before at this season, and nearly one-half larger than in the best of previous years. The outgo of breadstuffs and cotton continues heavy. But there are some who fear that such prosperity cannot last.

Popular impressions have to be reckoned with, because they control events. Yet at every point of danger except one the signs are in every respect favorable. The upward rush of 16.5 per cent. in the prices of pig iron since January 1st, and 17.6 per cent. in prices of iron and steel products, does indeed raise a question whether exports of such products may not be temporarily checked, but if they could be entirely stopped, as they are not, the balance due this country would still be large. The crush of demand for finished products, at a time when nearly all the works are crowded by orders covering production until July 1st or later, cause many to refuse to contract beyond that date except at higher prices, and a rise under such circumstances may prove the one thing needful to sober buyers, and to bring into the list of producers other establishments hitherto idle. While a fairly large capacity of production is still in reserve, the demand now pressing for cars, vessels, bridges, buildings and pipes, is partly to anticipate an expected rise in prices. The best sign is that the great producers appear to be anxious to maintain their hold on foreign markets, although just now unable to take orders for future delivery.

Wheat has gained only 1¾ cents in price, although Atlantic exports, flour included, have been 2,567,264 bushels against 2,089,417 last year, and including other exports, 3,279,736 bushels against 3,656,793 last year. The exports have been so heavy that many doubt their continuance, and yet grain comes from the farms and goes abroad, as if such doubt had no basis.

Railroad earnings during the first half of February have been 4.5 per cent. larger than last year and 2.8 per cent. smaller than in 1892, severe storms being a sufficient explanation. Even Chicago tonnage has on that account been six per cent. smaller than in 1892 for three weeks past. But practical investors in the stock market have not been deterred from advancing prices, since they realize that the enormous and increasing demand for products is not affected by temporary storms, and the average for railway securities has advanced five cents per share.

Speculation in industries has been rampant, especially in tobacco, which has advanced $48.75 per share, but buyers for investment in that class of securities have nearly ceased operations.

The money market has been comparatively easy, with only fair demand for commercial loans, though showing some increase.

Failures for three weeks of February have been $7,129,780, against $7,293,439 last year, $10,619,784 in 1897, and $10,889,986 in 1896. Manufacturing have been $3,643,864, against $3,266,280 last year, and trading $3,237,472 against $3,787,351 last year.

Failures for the week have been 191 in the United States, against 233 last year, and 40 in Canada, against 30 last year.

Col. Hilton Sues for Slander.

New York, Feb. 25.—Judge Scott of the supreme court has denied a motion made on behalf of Henry C. Hilton, son of former Judge Hilton, for an order striking out certain alleged slanderous statements contained in an answer filed by Benjamin Carr in a suit brought against him by Hilton to recover $25,000 damages for slander.

Hilton's suit against Carr is the result of a violent quarrel between Hilton and Carr, which took place at Hilton's home on Sedgwick avenue, in 1898, over a bill for $208, for carpenter work done by Carr and his son.

Lady Curzon Ill at India.

Calcutta, Feb. 25.—Lady Curzon, the wife of Lord Curzon of Kedleston, the viceroy of India, is suffering from a slight attack of fever; but there is no cause for anxiety.

She will proceed to Simla, the summer capital of India, in a week.

THEIR FEMININE VALET.

She Attends to the Clothing of Four Society Men.

There are at least four men in St. Louis who will never be hampered and "done for" when they marry as they are now. One of them is a widower, the other three are dyed-in-the-wool bachelors. They live in handsome apartments in the West End, and between them they have a woman valet. She is a motherly-looking, middle-aged creature, quite lady-like, and always as neat as a pin in her attire. She probably does not see her employers once a month. She goes to their rooms every day after they have left them, and puts their clothes in order. She gets the laundry ready and delivers it to the laundry wagon on specified days. She is there when it is returned, sorts it, sews on missing buttons, darns the silken socks, puts the handkerchiefs between their scent bags, and regularly once a week she cleans out the drawers.

When one of her charges leaves her a note, saying that he is going to the theater or a party at night, she lays his dress suit out, puts the shirt ready, adjusts the buttons, varnishes his pumps, in fact, has everything so that all the man has to do is to put them on. Next morning they are as carefully put away. His various suits of clothes are brushed every day, and his valet doesn't have to be told when they should go to the tailor's for fresh creases in the trousers and a sponging of coat and vest.

A moderate charge per week is made for the service by this woman, who makes really a good living out of her clever idea of "doing" for gentlemen.—St. Louis Republican.

We men here on the road are always in such a "hustle," and get so little time to eat and have to swallow our food so quickly, no wonder we have dyspepsia. I know I suffered with it for nearly two years before I got "onto" the Tabules, and I was in misery all the time. I constantly had pains in my stomach and chest, and a dizzy feeling about my head. My bowels didn't work regularly, and I felt "mean" all the time. I saw Ripans Tabules advertised so much I bought some, and after taking them for a month felt like a new man. GEN. EAGAN A WITNESS

The General Explains Away the Accusation of Miles.

HE REJECTED EXPERIMENT

Did Not Consult With Miles, Shafter or Sternberg About the Meat Component of the Army Ration—No Experimental Beef Was Ordered for the Use of the Soldiers.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—Brigadier General Charles P. Eagan, former commissary general, gave testimony before the army court of inquiry yesterday. He was attired in service uniform.

General Eagan made explanation of the contracts made by the subsistence department with Swift & Co. for refrigerated beef for the Cuban and Porto Rican expeditions. The arrangement was made with the contractor that he must be responsible for the beef until it was delivered at the point of delivery. No beef was sent on any transport except in a refrigerating room. The government furnished the transports for the transportation of beef. Some of them had refrigerating plants on board, but on those which did not Swift & Co. were required to erect such plants at their own expense. They were also required to construct refrigerating houses at Santiago and at Ponce. The clause in the contract requiring the beef to keep seventy-two hours General Eagan insisted upon with the contractor.

"I did not intend that beef should be sent that would not keep until time for its use," he said.

"If it spoiled who bore the loss?" asked the recorder.

"The contractor."

"Have any payments been made on the contracts?"

"Oh yes; a great many."

"Have any controversies arose?"

"Yes, I remember that at Santiago the agent of Swift & Co. complained that some of the troops were rejecting beef that was perfectly good."

General Eagan then related the occasion when a board of survey condemned a cargo of beef thats upon subsequent examination, was found to have spoiled only on the exterior.

General Eagan was asked about the proposition for supplying the Porto Rican expedition.

"Who did you understand was to command that expedition?"

"General Brooke, sir."

"Did you have any idea that another general would supersede him in command?"

"I did not."

"Another did assume command later, did he not?"

"Yes, I understand the general commanding came over from Cuba and took command."

"Do you know if he knew what arrangements you had made for provisioning the expedition?"

"I do not."

Returning to the question of refrigerated beef and its keeping qualities, General Eagan repeated his statement that doubt was expressed by Armour & Co. that refrigerated beef would keep seventy-two hours. The firm then made a proposition to furnish samples of frozen and refrigerated beef for experiment to see how long it would keep. It was decided to allow the Armour Packing Company to do this, and a box containing a half carcass of frozen beef was sent to Tampa, and experiments were made with it by Captain L. H. Ripley, who reported adversely upon it. Colonel J. F. Weston also indorsed the adverse report, stating that the beef would not do. He recommended that canned roast beef be used.

General Eagan explained the difference between frozen beef and refrigerated beef. The frozen beef, he said, was prepared at a temperature below the freezing point, while the refrigerated meat was kept above the freezing point. He said he did not want to supply frozen meat to the army. He did not consider it good.

"The frozen beef," said General Eagan, "frequently has what is known as bone taint. It begins to decay at the bone, while refrigerated beef decays on the outside.

"Do you know if the navy used the frozen beef?"

"I think they did when they could not get anything else. They should at Manila."

General Eagan said commissaries in the field had power to purchase beef on the hoof if canned could be obtained. This was [illegible] Porto Rico.

"How desirable was this beef?"

"The whole trend of all my information and all my reports from Porto Rico is that the native beef is not so desirable as the refrigerated beef. The native beef is only purchased where they cannot get refrigerated beef. My reports show that the men prefer the refrigerated beef. They are very emphatic on that point."

He reverted to the subject of refrigerated beef, saying: "The first practical knowledge of the result of the refrigerated beef was received at Santiago. General Shafter cabled to the department his satisfaction with this beef, and the adjutant general instructed me to be sure and keep up the supply of the refrigerated beef."

"Was any beef furnished the troops as an experiment?" asked Colonel Davis.

"Five thousand pounds of the Dole beef was purchased and sent to Tampa. It was put up in cans and intended to be cooked like a Hamburger steak. It was intended to go to Santiago, but did not. It found its way on a transport for Porto Rico, and was there found by Colonel Smith to be in good condition."

Respecting any process for keeping beef, he testified that a man of the name of Powell proposed to furnish a process that would keep beef from decaying. He did not think that Powell mentioned chemicals, but he took it that way and rejected the proposition.

General Eagan said that he expected that the beef would be preserved in the usual way by refrigerators, and never heard that any chemicals had been used until General Miles testified.

"Has anything at that time been furnished under the 'pretence of an experiment'?" asked Colonel Davis.

"Absolutely none; not even the value of one cent," was the answer.

"Did you have any correspondence with General Miles while he was in Porto Rico about the refrigerated beef?"

"Absolutely none."

"You received some telegrams from him?"

"I received nothing from him. A telegram dated August 2 to the war department, and received by the adjutant general, was sent me, saying that General Miles had plenty of beef and desired that no more be sent him. A cargo of beef was then loading on the Manitoba and this was sent to Porto Rico. If the telegram had come before the cargo had left Chicago its shipment could have been stopped. Canned beef had been furnished the troops in the Philippines, but I had heard no complaints about it."

Reverting to propositions to supply the army with experimental food, General Eagan explained that a Michigan firm had made a proposal to provide a concentrated food. "I objected to it to the secretary of war," said he, "because I did not believe in concentrated food."

In conclusion General Eagan said he would like to say about the tinned roast beef that the effect of shipment and climate was, like the effect of the climate on butter in Arizona. It made it repulsive in appearance. He had expected that refrigerated beef in delivery to the troops would be protected from the sun by the use of wagon covers.

General Davis questioned General Eagan about the tinned roast beef, eliciting the information that tinned roast beef was not intended for use as a travel ration, but a makeshift and a substitute until fresh beef could be provided.

"How did you expect it to be used?" asked General Davis.

"With condiments, of course; pepper and salt and potatoes and onions, when the latter could be had," was the reply.

"Where did you expect these condiments to be had in travelling?"

"Well, as I told Colonel Roosevelt, there was plenty of salt and pepper sent with the expedition. It was not entirely a travel ration, however. It was, as I say, a substitute."

Misinterpreting a question of General Davis, General Eagan spoke of the refrigerated beef on the Panama, on which ship Dr. Daly procured a sample of beef extract which he charged contained chemicals.

General Eagan remarked that he believed that the beef on the Panama was not refrigerated beef, but had reason to believe that it was native beef from the shore.

"Was it expected that this canned roast beef was to be eaten right from the can?" asked Colonel Gillespie.

"Yes, in an emergency in the trenches; but it was intended the soldiers should make a stew of it whenever possible."

"During the discussion about the proposed food supply of the army was the opinion of the major general commanding asked?"

"No, sir."

"Was the opinion of the surgeon general asked?"

"I had an impression of some favorable opinions of the surgeon general."

"Was the opinion of General Shafter asked about the meat compound?"

"No, sir; I had no opportunity to see him."

"Did the major general commanding ever make inquiry of you or of your representative as to what was being done about a meat compound for the rations?"

"No, sir."

Major General S. M. B. Young was next sworn and testified that he received no complaints of the travel ration on the voyage to Cuba. Canned corned beef was the meat component on the transport, not canned roast beef. General Young said that the canned roast beef was used in Cuba.

"How was it received?" was asked.

"We rather liked it." was the response. "We had it in the form of a hash. The only thing about it that I heard was when some one said that eaten from the can it lacked seasoning. There were no complaints about it. I never heard of it in the army before the Cuban expedition."

SENSATION IN HARRISBURG.

Investigation of Charges of Bribery Suggested in the House.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 25.—A resolution calling for an investigation of the charges of bribery in connection with the vote on the McCarrell jury bill was introduced in the House yesterday by Mr. Koontz, of Somerset, one of the anti-Quay Republican leaders.

The resolution calls for a committee of three Republicans and two Democrats to conduct the inquiry at an expense not to exceed one thousand dollars.

The charges are made in the Philadelphia Press, that paper stating that it is in possession of evidence that three members of the House were corruptly solicited to vote in favor of the reconsideration of the vote by which the McCarrell bill was placed on the postponed calendar.

The paper omits the names of the members, but declares its willingness to disclose them when a formal demand is made.

The ballot for United States senator resulted as follows:

Quay, Republican, 80; Jenks, Democrat, 65; Dalzell, Republican, 12; Huff, Republican, 4; Irvin, Republican, 6; Stewart, Republican, 7; Tubbs, Republican, 2; Widener, Republican, 2; Riter, Republican, 1; Stone, Republican, 4; Rice, Republican, 1; and Grow, Republican, 1. Total, 185. Necessary to a choice, 93. Paired and not voting, 69. No election.

Big Seizure by N. Y. Police.

New York, Feb. 25.—In two trunks that are at police headquarters are $6,000 worth of property, the proceeds of two burglaries in Cincinnati. In one trunk are 175 pairs of fine opera glasses, pearl, gold, aluminum and silver mounted, eighteen gold lorgnettes, 620 pen knives, a lot of gold spectacles and a great quantity of eye glasses, magnifying glasses and reading glasses. In the other are nearly eight hundred pairs of kid gloves.

The recovery of the goods is a sequel to the arrest in Cincinnati of Joseph Williams, alias Simon Moses, 25 years old, and John Sutton, alias Southgate, 22 years of age.

The Cincinnati police say that they have their pictures in the rogues' gallery, and that they have lived in New York.

THE COMPROMISE BILL

Provisions for the Army Which It Contains.

MR. JOHNSON GETS LOOSE

There Was a Hitch in Reporting the Hull Measure Owing to Objections of the Democrats With Reference to Staff Provisions—The Trouble However Was Adjusted Amicably.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—The subcommittee of the Senate military affairs committee concluded its consideration of the compromise army bill just after two o'clock yesterday.

The staff provisions agreed upon are practically the same as those of the Hull bill.

The new bill was submitted to the Senate committee on military affairs and changed in one or two details to suit the demands of the Democrats. It provides for the continuing until 1901 of the present regular army with a strength of sixty-two thousand. Of this thirty-seven thousand is to be considered a permanent organization, thus granting an increase of about ten thousand.

This increase was first planned by the addition of two new regiments of artillery, but Thursday night, because of Democratic objection, was changed to allow the adding of two batteries of light artillery to each of the seven regiments of artillery now in existence. This increases the regular army by fourteen batteries of artillery, so that if Congress does not provide for a permanent increase by July 1, 1901, the army will number thirty-seven thousand instead of 28,500, as before the war.

The measure also provides for the enlistment of thirty-seven regiments to serve until 1901, to be known as the provisional army, these to be enlisted for service in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines.

The third provision is for the increase of staff officers, as provided in the Hull bill, with the exception that the proviso for four additional brigadier generals is omitted. The other details are practically those of the Hull bill.

The Democratic objection is to the increase of the staff along the lines of the Hull bill. They demand that the number of officers shall not be increased, and that although the army is to be raised to the strength of ninety-seven thousand, the staff officers commanding the regular army of less than twenty-seven thousand shall be sufficient for the new organization.

This objection was laid before the president. Mr. McKinley stated that it would be impossible to reorganize the army without an increase of the staff officers, and that unless an agreement could be reached on this matter the Republicans in the Senate would have to return to the demand for the passage of the Hull bill, and throw the responsibility for its defeat or an extra session upon the Democrats.

There were several conferences over the matter at the Capitol, but no agreement was reached. Those present were Senators Hawley and Carter for the Republicans, Senator Cockrell for the Democrats, and Colonel Carter, assistant attorney general, for the war department.

The three senators represented a sub-committee, and if an agreement is reached they will report the bill to the full committee.

Besides the disagreement over the increase in the staff, the Democrats object to the power given to the president to increase the army to its maximum strength "when, in his opinion, a condition of war exists." This phase is particularly distasteful to them. They contend that if the discretion is not given to the president there will be no need of an increase of the staff.

Late yesterday afternoon the impression was that the Democrats would yield rather than force an extra session.

Taken Up in the House.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—Immediately after the reading of the journal an agreement was reached to limit the general debate on the army appropriation bill to five hours.

The House then went into committee of the whole and entered upon the consideration of that measure. Mr. Hopkins, Republican of Illinois, was in the chair.

Mr. Hull, in charge of the measure, made a general explanation of the bill, which provided for one hundred thousand men, for which the bill carried $79,038,000. In addition, Mr. Hull said, an amendment appropriating $50,000 for ordnance would be offered. He thought there would be no deficiency in the appropriation for the army if the bill passed, but even if this should be the case, a small deficiency, he argued, would be better than a surplus. The committee, he said, provided one hundred thousand dollars to feed the Cubans during the next year, although Mr. Hull gave it as his personal opinion that the supplies for the Cubans should cease after June 30 next.

After completing his statement, Mr. Hull had read at the clerk's desk a copy of the compromise army reorganization bill.

So far as he was concerned, he said, he would not have accepted the compromise at the dictation of a minority. This statement was greeted with scattering applause from the Republican side. He believed the majority had the right to rule.

Johnson is Rampant.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—Mr. Johnson, Republican of Indiana, who made a vigorous opposition to the army reorganization bill, while it was before the House, yesterday delivered a most remarkable and sensational speech, arraigning the administration for its alleged imperialistic programme. It was carefully prepared and read from manuscript, quite contrary to Mr. Johnson's usual custom.

He referred to the recent banquet at Boston, attended by the president and members of his cabinet, and paid his respects to Secretary Alger, who, he said, had been retained in the cabinet despite his incompetency, on account of his contributions to the campaign fund in 1896.

As Mr. Johnson proceeded his remarkable utterances fairly amazed members of the House, who gathered in the aisles to listen. Christianizing with the sword and civilizing with cannon, he declared, was the administration's policy.

The president's speech at the Boston banquet, Mr. Johnson declared, was the most disingenuous that ever fell from the lips of a chief executive.

"Apart from its platitudes and professions of virtue, it was," he said, "a carefully devised and studious misstatement of facts."

The sensation Mr. Johnson was creating increased as he likened the president to Pecksniff. If the president really felt that Congress should determine upon the future of the Philippines, he asked why the president did not call Congress in extra session and then keep his hands off.

He charged that the president coerced the Senate into ratifying the treaty; that he would not permit a vote on the Bacon resolution, and only allowed the McEnery resolution, which meant nothing, to pass in order to lull the opposition of the country to sleep while he went ahead waging relentless war against a helpless people, struggling for liberty.

How the two-thirds vote to ratify the treaty was secured, Mr. Johnson said, only the president could tell. The people did not indorse the action of the Senate. If the president could hush the noise of the self-seekers about him he would hear not the tread of the 100,000 men with whom he desired to enforce his crusade against liberty, but the murmurings of the mighty army of the American people, who would overthrow him in the end.

The true cause of the president's change of attitude toward the Philippines, Mr. Johnson declared, was to be found in the demands of selfish capitalists. They were the gentlemen, he declared, who had furnished the money for his nomination and election, and he had no doubt they had already pledged him a renomination and reelection.

He charged that these men had already seized valuable concessions in China, which the acquisition of the Philippines would benefit. He said vast concessions had already been granted in Porto Rico and Cuba, and he had no doubt the board created by the president would farm out valuable franchises to Americans which properly belonged to the natives of those islands.

Secretary Alger Talks.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—Secretary Alger when asked concerning reports that he intended to resign from the cabinet, said that he never had entertained such an idea, and that so far as his own disposition was concerned he would remain in the cabinet until the end of the present administration.

"I could not afford to leave the cabinet under the present conditions. I am perfectly satisfied to leave the investigation of my conduct during the Spanish-American war with the investigating committees that have been appointed. I have no fear of the result. I could not relinquish the portfolio as secretary of war while still under fire."

THE PARIS PRISONERS.

Gen. Roget Says the Arrested Deputies Approached Him.

Paris, Feb. 25. Deputies Deroulede, Marcel, Habert and Millevoye, who were arrested, were confronted with General Roget, who declared that M. Deroulede had tried to induce him and his troops to marchon the Elysee Palace.

The fdiends of M. Deroulede fear he will be tried before the Senate, sitting as a high court.

There was much excitement in the Chamber of Deputies and a large attendance of members. The president of the House, M. Deschanel, announced that he had received a request to prosecute MM. Deroulede and Marcel Habert.

The statement was greeted with cries of "Read it!"

The president then read a letter from the public prosecutor, according to which General Roget deposed that a band of men, headed by MM. Deroulede and Habert, followed his brigade and entered the court yard of the barracks occupied by the troops. MM. Deroulede and Habert questioned the officers and refused to leave when requested to do so. Therefore they were arrested and confessed that they wished to lead the troops into a revolutionary movement and to replace the "parliamentary republic by a plebiscite republic."

GOMEZ THE HERO.

Havana a Scene of Gayety for the Cuban General's Entry.

Havana, Feb. 25.—Four years ago the revolution in Cuba which ended in the disappearance of Spanish rule from this island, broke out, and these are general holidays. Triumphal arches have been erected in different quarters of the city, bearing patriotic inscriptions; bands are playing, and General Ludlow, governor of Havana, gave permission to the Cubans to bring five hundred of their troops into the city, with General Maximo Gomez, who selected yesterday for his triumphal entry into the Cuban capital.

General Ludlow received General Gomez with military honors, and General Brooke showed the Cuban commander every attention. Gomez attended a charity ball last evening at the Tacon, the proceeds going to the orphans of Cuba.

The Cuban assembly meets to-day, under the presidency of General Gomez, when it is expected the members will get down to business.

General Gomez arrived on the outskirts of the town from Marianao at 12.30 p. m., escorted by the Second Illinois band and three battalions.

The procession entered the city in the following order: The band of the Seventh regiment, mounted, playing the Cuban hymn and national airs; Company L of the Seventh cavalry; the staff of General Gomez, with escort; General Mayia Rodriguez and staff; General Gomez, upon whose right was Major General Ludlow; the members of Ludlow's staff; Cuban generals and officers, some mounted and some in carriages, and, finally, two thousand Cuban cavalry and infantry.

As General Gomez passed the crowds went wild with vivas, hats were flung in the air and women showered flowers on all sides. He bowed and raised his hat incessantly, as the crowds struggled to get near his horse and cling to the animal's sides as long as possible.

Ban on Sunday Funerals.

The ministers at New Brunswick have taken a somewhat novel stand in reference to a very important part of their professional services. It is a determination not to officiate at funerals Sundays. The matter has been under discussion by the parsons for some time, and yesterday it culminated in a public notice, signed by fifteen ministers, declaring their intention of discouraging the holding of Sunday funerals. They refer to the fact that though their duties of an ordinary religious character are particularly arduous Sunday, without the additional demand on their strength and time, it is really another view that prompts them to take the action.

It is compassion on the rest of humanity — undertakers, gravediggers, liverymen, florists and the like, who are important incidentals of final obsequies in cases of death. Sunday funerals compel them to labor on the Holy Day the same as they would on a secular date. Such a condition is a deplorable one in the minds of the clergymen, because it prevents the undertakers, gravediggers, etc, from participating in the sacred privileges of the day, as well as deprives them of the enjoyment of the Scriptural commandment of six days shall thou labor and do all thy work.

In conclusion the ministers announce that they will notify their congregations of their newly assumed position with respect to Sunday funerals and withhold their countenance of such services. Just what effect the edict of the clergymon will have remains to be seen, but to say the least it will be an interesting observation. The practice of holding Sunday funerals extends beyond memory, and so far as we know New Brunswick is the first place wherein an attempt is to be made to make it obsolete by open opposition of the clergy.

Codding's Chances.

The Trenton True American holds a poor opinion of Hon. Charles Codding's chances for an appointment as a member of the State Board of Taxation. The True American declares the Westfield gentleman to be "a professional lobbyist, in which he is accredited with being a success." According to Trenton advices time hangs heavily on the hands of the members of the "Third House" when the Legislature is not in session, and a place on the State Board of Taxation, with a $2,500 salary attached to it, would be welcomed as a means of furnishing variety to Mr. Codding's life, if nothing else. The True American concludes that "It is rather doubtful, however, if Governor Voorhees can be induced to give the "Third House" this recognition. There are so many Republicans who are considered big men in the party seeking office that a $2,500 job is a little above what an ordinary lobbyist can hope for."

Not satisfied with the glory accruing to it as being the capital of New Jersey, the Common Council of Trenton has adopted resolutions calling on the Senators and Representatives from New Jersey to use their influence with the Navy Department to have one of the new cruisers authorized this year named Trenton. During the civil war and up to the famous hurricane at Apia, in 1888, Trenton had a namesake in the navy. The ship which bore the name distinguished herself during her career. She was wrecked in the hurricane, and the conduct of her sailors on that occasion elicited warm praise, not only in this country, but in European naval circles. Now Trenton thinks it is time the name was revived in the naval list. New Jersey already has two representatives in the navy, the Newark and the Princeton.

It is a deplorable fact that there are a few lawyers who have been making lots of money out of damage cases, following the custom adopted by lawyers in large cities, to take one half of the winning stakes. A bill has been introduced in the Legislature which provides that in suits in damages for injury to employes it shall not be lawful for the person bringing suit to pay his attorney a fee in excess of $100, except where the case is carried to a higher court, where an additional $100 may be paid. It further provides that the trial court, or court of review, may allow a further fee of not more than $500, which shall be added to the judgment.

Assemblyman Cooper, of Somerset county, seems to have struck an interesting subject in his measure providing for a reduction of the legal rate of interest to five per cent. In discussing the bill the Paterson Call says:

It is said that a determined effort will be made before the adjournment of the Legislature to get through the five per cent. interest bill, but the best information on the subject makes it very doubtful of the measure passing. As remarked before, if the rate of interest in the State of New York were similarly decreased it would make comparatively little difference, but with 5 per cent. in one State and 6 per cent. in the other, and the two States so intimately connected in business as they are, it would result in no end of confusion and annoyance.

The Trenton True American observes that "the Attorney-General of Ohio is making a great fight against the Standard Oil and other trusts, but what is the good of it? For every trust that is attacked the State of New Jersey provides a half dozen new ones, and stands ready, for a consideration, to furnish new charters for old trusts. The present Legislature has done nothing to correct or even recognize this great evil, which is sapping the vital energies of the nation."

The thought seems to be gradually permeating the minds of Jerseymen that perhaps it is the best policy for the Legislature to meet and do nothing at all rather than to do much that is bad, as has been the case too frequently.

A bill is pending in the Legislature of Illinois providing an increase of salary for Chicago aldermen to $5,000. If this sort of thing goes too far Congress will have no attractions for the statesmen of the Windy City.

An Iowa woman has written to Union County Clerk that she is heir to $300,000,000, part of which is in Union county. It is to be hoped that the fortunate woman will give us, at least, thirty days notice to move.

Since Mayor Wilson has been a resident of the borough he has paid over $20,000 as taxes, and was for many years the heaviest taxpayer in in the borough.

The local political situation in the borough of North Plainfield is a somewhat peculiar one. The present Mayor is a Democrat and there is some opposition in his own party to his renomination. On the other hand, the Republicans have decided not to name a candidate, but will indorse the present Mayor, if he shall be the candidate of his own party, and if not will seek to have him run upon a Citizens' ticket.—Newark News.

John L. Anderson is said to be slated as Sheriff Schoonmaker's deputy. We have not a word to say against the choice, for Mr. Anderson is fully capable of filling the position. But what will Wm. Killiger and his friends say? It has been said all along by Mr. Killiger's friends that he had been promised the position before election. Raritan gave the sheriff a nice vote as though she realized that it meant something to one of her own. But she is turned down for another. Mr. Killiger would have made a capable official, but then Mr. Anderson is equally efficient. Sheriff Schoonmaker had so much good material to choose from that he doubtless found it difficult to make a choice. Somerville as well as Raritan complimented him with a nice majority. Possibly Anderson is a wiser choice than Killiger, only it is Raritan that is left out in the cold—Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

"The Little Minister" has come and gone, but the memory of it remains with the theatre-goers of Plainfield as about the most charming, delicious bit of play acting that it has been the good fortune of Music Hall patrons to witness this season. The engaging Welch comedy made its debut to the most fashionable audience of the season last night, and its treatment by Mr. Frohman's company of players was fully equal to the performance which ran for 300 nights in New York last season. It is seldom, indeed, when a provincial audience has the opportunity of seeing a metropolitan success presented with talent equally as good as that which figured in it to give the first reputation, but it is no exaggeration to accord the "road" company that appeared here last night such credit. Those who witnessed the original production in the Garrick Theatre last season were even prone to credit some of the performers last night as superior to those who had created the parts they impersonated. In the enchanting part of "Lady Babbie" Miss Adelaide Thurston was a second Maude Adams. Perhaps, though, it is hardly fair to the winsome little lady to compare her to anyone, but rather it should be that she should have the praise of imparting to the character a piquant, sympathetic treatment all her own, and fully as pleasant as that of Miss Adams. It is probably the work of dramatic ethics that prevents Miss Thurston from having her name printed in big, bold type as a star, but she is an artist whose bright, vivacious treatment of the role won a warm place in the admiration of the audience as quickly as though her features were familiar from the billboard lithograph long before any of them saw her on the stage. As "The Little Minister" Horace Mitchell gave a powerful portrayal of how even the most resolute of men in the artifices of a stern profession are compelled to come under the wiles of a wee bit of a lassie, and forget all but honest love. Henry Weaver, as "Thomas Whabond," the chief elder, gave to the character a wealth of dramatic strength. The rest of the support was excellent.

The Miles Ideal Stock Company begin a week's engagement at Music Hall Monday night of next week, appearing in a new play here, but a great success in New York, entitled "A Conditional Pardon." The star of the organization, John E. Miles, is said to be one of the very best actors in the wide range of repertoire, and a well known critic says of him: "Miles is extremely effective and assumes character parts of all kinds with professional ease. He is endowed with a fine sense of humor and is eloquent without effort. He is equally at home in comedy and melo-drama and is established as a strong favorite with those who have heard him and noted his consummate versatility." The leading lady, Miss Mildred Hyland, was formerly with Charles Frohman and the supporting company is very strong, both from a dramatic and artistic standpoint as well as to numbers, as it includes a number of specialty artists who rank high in the vaudeville world, Miss St. Felix, of the original St. Felix Sisters; Annette Wiltsie, a very pleasing song and dance artist; Susie Wiltsie, a very petite soubrette; W. Culhane, James Leslie, Will Carleton, Jas. A. Bligg and others. The dramas are all new and very strong being brimfull of comedy and situation.

Special Correspondence to The Press.)

It has been fully demonstrated that Ely's Cream Balm is a specific for Nasal Catarrh and cold in the head. This distinction has been acheived only as the result of continued successful use. A morbid condition of the membrane in the nasal passages can be cured by this purifying and healing treatment. Sold by druggists or will be mailed for 50 cents by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York. It spreads over the membrane, is absorbed and relief is immediate.

—All who want to enjoy a real treat of music come to Monroe Avenue February 28th. The Metronome Banjo and Mandolin Club will surprise you under the auspices of the Young Men's Bible class.

—A public conference of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Local Union will be held Tuesday night in the Trinity Reformed church. Rev. J. W. Richardson and Rev. A. I. Martine will both lead open discussions.

As he had a personal experience, being a boy in the village at that time, his remarks were very interesting to the large audience which greeted him. After the address the large hall was thrown open and the fair opened. Those attending found that the ladies, who had been working hard for several days, had transferred the hall from a large bare and cheerless room into a bright and inviting place. There was the fancy booth, Japanese booth, grocery booth, etc., together with the usual Rebecca at the well, where one could stop to quench their thirst. Altogether the fair has had a very auspicuous and successful opening and the young ladies in charge feel much encouraged by the receipts. It will be brought to a close tonight.

Dr. Pogson, of New York, will probably occupy the pulpit of the Baptist church tomorrow morning and evening. Mr. Shott will spend the day with his former charge the North Baptist church, of New York.

The Township Clerk has posted the annual township election notices. This is a sure sign that spring is near.

H. C Drake intends giving up his position in Fanwood, and will return to his home in Plainfield.

John Wilson is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Parks during his stay in town.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

South Plainfield, February 25—The Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist church gave an entertainment last evening in Washington Hall for the benefit of the church. It was a very successful affair in every particular and was largely attended. One of the pleasing features of the evening was a "Tom Thumb" mock wedding of little children, in which little 3-year-old Marion Soper was the bride and John Linderbury, aged nine years, officiated as the minister. The young couple were also attended by bridemaids and best man, and all marched up the aisle of the hall and to the platform, where the ceremony of marrying was gone through with. The ladies will realize a handsome sum for their treasury.

Another great discovery has been made, and that, too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. She finally discovered a way to recovery by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night, and with two bottles has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, fetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion build up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, druggist. Guaranteed.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

Ingenious Teaching.

A mother, who could hear in the next room every morning her small son of nine talking to himself as he spelled out the words and added the figures, crosswise, up and down, and in every possible way, of a large calendar which hung directly in front of his bed, bethought herself of furnishing him better occupation. She took down the calendar and put in its place a good print of Raphael's "Madonna della Segiola," this with no word to him of the change. The next morning the little one's voice was stilled, but a noiseless peep into the room showed his eyes glued rapturously to the picture, while about his lips the hint of a smile betrayed that his absorbing interest was a pleased one. Since then at intervals his morning picture is changed, not too frequently, for a child demands reiteration, until the boy has become a small connoisseur in famous paintings, and his occasional short visits to an art gallery are a great delight to him because of his latin studies. The first ten minutes of a child's day are a most valuable receptive period. The young brain is refreshed by sleep, unexcited by any of the day's occupations, eager for impressions and peculiarly responsive to their influence.

A writer on child-study considers that equally important with the first waking hours should be the last of the day. The mother who sits at her little one's bed as the tired, small frame is settling into repose will almost invariably find that the mind just before sleep works with unusual, if brief, clearness; she will be wise to let this last, strongly imprinted impression be a soothing one. A gentle voice, a short, easily comprehended tale with no sadness, no tragedy, no sharp elements of any sort, will send the temporarily keen but fast succumbing faculties off into slumberland under the best and most healthful auspices. Too many mothers leave to servants these significant moments of their children's lives, lovely to the mothers if they will enjoy them, and priceless to the growing character of their receptive powers if taken advantage of.—New York Evening Post.

A Curious Will.

The will of Mme. Brasseux, an eccentric Frenchwoman who recently died in Paris, might furnish food for thought for some of our American millionaires. She was very rich, and had been a hopeless invalid for many years, but she succeeded in extracting a great deal of pleasure from life. She filled her house with pretty young girls, and once a week for their entertainment gave a large ball, to which she invited any one and every one who pleased her, irrespective of social status. At each of these entertainments the hostess sat in her invalid chair, near the musicians, watching her guests dance and enjoy themselves.

When she died, her will was found to be as eccentric as her life had been. She had left the whole of her vast fortune to individuals of all sorts and conditions, selected from time to time at these entertainments. Two thousand francs were left to a young man who danced unusually well; three thousand to a girl with a musical laugh; five hundred to a young woman with beautiful hair, and so on. All the bequests were small, but all were made for some definite reason, in return for some definite pleasure given by the legatee to the eccentric old lady.—The Puritan.

Patti's Fondness for Linen.

Mme. Patti, who is a wonderful housewife, has a perfect passion for linen. Her cupboards are among the wonders of Craig-y-nos. With innocent coquetry Caroline, her faithful servitress for thirty years standing, has tied up the beautiful sets of sheets and pillow cases and towels and tablecloths and napkins in pink and blue ribbon, with little upstanding bows, so the cupboard, when opened, resembles a flower garden. Patti might well make the same reply that Mme. Roland made when one of her friends said, wonderingly, "How your servants love you!" She answered, "And how I love them!" Mme. Patti, indeed, is literally adored by her servants, and is even a heroine to her maid.—New York Journal.

The New Woman as a Wife.

It is the man who marries the new woman who is going to get the most out of this life, for even in living there is everything in knowing how. And, far from leaving man out of her problem of life, her philosophy is teaching her to look for his possibilities with the same anxiety that she employs in studying her own; that to adopt herself to his individuality need not necessarily imperil her own; that the first element in the forming of this perfect home, which it is her ambition to establish, is perfect congeniality of spirit between herself and her husband.—Woman's Home Companion.

The Kitchen Apron.

Make your kitchen aprons with a full ruffle across the bottom. This will stand out from your dress skirt and catch whatever you may drop or spill, thus protecting the dress skirt. The front of a dress skirt is often soiled round the bottom because the apron does not quite cover it, or is drawn too tightly across it, but this ruffle will effectually prevent any soiling of the dress.

HEATABLE SHOE FOR WINTER.

Cold Feet a Thing of the Past and Grumblers Must Find Some Other Subject.

Cold feet are an affliction common to the human race. Many plans have been tried to attract a shy and retiring blood circulation to the extremities, but none has afforded any but the merest temporary relief. The cold-feet brigade may take heart, however, for a benefactor has arisen in the person of Paul Wonneberger, of Gruna, near Dresden, who has invented what he calls "Heatable shoes."

Wonneberger has devised a heatable shoe, which is now being worn by cold-footed Europeans, and may soon be looked for on this side of the water.

This novel remedy for cold feet consists of a tiny boiler and furnace in the heel and sole of the shoe, which causes a continuous circulation of warm water around the extremities. Within the heel of the heatable shoe, which is hollowed out for the purpose, the inventor has placed a glowing substance similar in its nature to that used in the familiar Japanese hand-warmers. The soles of the shoe are hollowed out for the reception of a rubber bag covered with asbestos, and containing the water that keeps the feet warm.

This water communicates with the receptacle in the heel of the shoe, and derives its heat from the heated substance located there. When the owner of a pair of heatable shoes wishes to go out into the cold and sloppy street he opens the receptacle in the heel of the shoe, lights the punk-like substance, closes the perforated band that holds it in place, and then sallies forth to bid defiance to his old enemy, the chills.

Walking keeps the water circulating, and at every step the grateful warmth is felt, the upper, as well as the lower, surface of the feet feeling its effects. There is no danger of the feet being uncomfortably warmed, for the water cannot be heated by the tiny furnace in the heel to a heat more than 70 degrees Fahrenheit. The inventor has provided against the bursting of the little boiler by the insertion in the soles of a small safety valve.

The shoes are a trifle heavier than the ordinary ones. The sole is but very little thicker than that of the wet-weather shoe sold by New York dealers. The inventor is at work on a new shoe that will be no heavier than the ordinary one.—New York World.

BLIND, BUT DON'T MIND IT.

Miss Fannie Crosby Devotes Her Life to the Writing of Hymns.

Brooklyn has been the home of many men and women whose names are known throughout the length and breadth of the land. Among all these celebrities few are better known by their works or more beloved by the masses of the people than Miss Fannie Crosby, whose hymns are sung in the churches and homes of every State in the Union.

No one would think, to see the cheerful face of the woman, that she was totally blind, had, in fact, been sightless since early childhood. Miss Crosby has borne her affliction without complaining, and even looks upon it as being for the best, for it has enabled her to concentrate all her abilities upon the composing of hymns.

When delivering an address a few years ago she spoke of the joy that should be hers and a blind friend's then present, when they should be called home, and for the first time view a face, that of their Saviour and their God.

Miss Crosby has devoted her energies almost exclusively to hymn writing, over four thousand hymns and poems bearing her signature. She composes more readily at night, and most of her work is done at that time. In the morning she will go over it in her mind until all the lines are smooth and rhythmical, and then dictate to an amanuensis.

She writes on an average eight hymns a week and has written many Easter services, Christmas carols and cantatas. She is peculiarly fitted for her work, as she knows the Scriptures almost by heart, and passages suitable to every phrase of religious experience come readily to her mind.

"Safe in the Arms of Jesus" was composed for Dr. W. H. Doane, who, whistling a tune in her presence, requested words for it. "You will have to hurry, Fanny," he said, "for I have just forty minutes before my train goes," but in fifteen minutes she had finished and repeated to him the famous words which have been translated into eight languages.

An Enterprising Barrister.

Lord Chelmsford relates that a friend of his at the bar was once engaged in a nautical case, in which it appeared that a vessel had been exposed to a very severe gale of wind and had been thrown upon her beam ends. The barrister, ignorant of nautical matters, asked a seaman who was in the witness box how it was they did not lower the topmast, upon which the witness said with a sneer: "If you knew as much of the sea as I do you would know that that is not a very easy matter." This incident led the counsel to turn his attention to the subject, and he invented an apparatus for lowering topmasts, for which he obtained a patent and realized thereby upward of $100,000 by this invention.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Provinz Sachsen.

Beetzendorf. Hier wird von der Centralgenossenschaft Halle a. d. S. ein Kornhaus errichtet und die Arbeiten demnächst in Angriff genommen werden.

Erfurt. Ein schrecklicher Unglücksfall ereignete sich auf dem Güterbahnhof. Der Hilfsheizer Seiring wurde von einer aus dem Lokomotivschuppen fahrenden Maschine gegen eine Mauer gedrückt und im wahren Sinne des Wortes zerquetscht, so daß der Tod sofort eintrat.

Provinz Schlesien.

Breslau. Die Haynauer Handschuhindustrie liegt seit Neujahr arg darnieder. Es sind große Arbeiterentlassungen in den Fabriken von Franke, Kippermann und Thonas erfolgt. Verschiedene Breslauer Fabriken haben ihren Betrieb herabgesetzt.

Ratibor. In das hiesige Gerichtsgefängniß wurde ein Knecht aus Polnisch-Neukirch eingeliefert, welcher nach seinem eigenen Geständniß seine Ehefrau, die Mutter von fünf Kindern, erschlagen und in eine Kalkgrube vergraben hat. Das Eheleben des Mörders war in Folge seines Verhältnisses zu einer Frauensperson sehr unglücklich gewesen. Die letztere, sowie seine Mutter, welche bei der That Mithilfe geleistet haben, sind gleichfalls in Untersuchung genommen worden.

Provinz Schleswig-Holstein.

Altona. Wegen Ungebühr vor Gericht wurden fünf junge Leute, die sich wegen groben Unfugs zu verantworten hatten und sämmtlich in Gesellschaftstoilette, „Frack, weiße Kravatte und Lackschuhe," erschienen waren, mit dem Bemerken des Amtsrichters: „Wir sind hier nicht in einer Puppenstube," zu je 30 Mark Geldstrafe verurtheilt.

Kiel. Der Kontreadmiral Barandon übernahm endgiltig die Oberleitung der hiesigen Germaniawerft. — Als Sommerresidenz wurde durch einen Kommissär, im Auftrage der Kaiserin, die Besitzung Augustenburger Hof auf Alsen für 360,000 Mark angekauft.

Provinz Westfalen.

Münster. Drei junge Burschen, die sich entgegen dem polizeilichen Verbot auf dem Eise des Aaflusses vergnügten, brachen durch die dünne Decke. Einer wurde gerettet, dem zweiten wurde bei den Rettungsversuchen durch einen Eishaken die Pulsader aufgerissen, so daß er in Lebensgefahr schwebte; der dritte ertrank.

Plettenberg. Der Fabrikbesitzer Wilhelm Seißenschmidt hat der Stadtgemeinde 30,000 Mark zur Erbauung eines städtischen Armenhauses geschenkt. Die städtischen Behörden haben diese hochherzige Schenkung unter dem Ausdruck des Dankes angenommen. Vor einigen Jahren hatte Herr Seißenschmidt der hiesigen evangelischen Kirchengemeinde ein vollständig eingerichtetes Krankenhaus geschenkt.

Sachsen.

Dresden. Der langjährige Vorsitzende der Handelskammer, Kommerzienrath Hultzsch, hatte wegen Krankheit sein Amt niedergelegt. Die Kammer wählte jetzt zum Vorsitzenden den Konsul Lüder und zu dessen Stellvertreter Kommerzienrath Collenbusch. — Die diesjährigen schweren Wasserkatastrophen haben dazu geführt, daß jetzt in den oberen Thälern verschiedener Gebirgsbäche und Flüsse Meldestellen eingerichtet werden, die den Bewohnern der unteren Thäler den Eintritt einer Wassergefahr anzeigen. Dabei werden drei Stufen unterschieden: Hochfluth innerhalb des Flußbettes, Wasseraustritt und Ueberschwemmung.

Bautzen. Vor dem hiesigen Landgericht stand der Lehrer und Kantor Suschke aus Klein-Bautzen. Durch 40 Zeugen wurde erwiesen, daß er jahrelang die ihm anvertrauten Schulkinder in barbarischer Weise gemißhandelt hat. Er schlug die Kinder mit starken Stöcken auf Kopf und Rücken, so daß starke Striemen und Beulen entstanden. Ein Knabe bekam 20 starke Schläge hinter einander auf die Hand, die nach einer dadurch hervorgerufenen Knochenhautentzündung dauernd verkrüppelte. Suschke hatte sich für seine Mißhandlung förmliche Systeme zurechtgemacht. So mußten die Kinder zur Strafe stundenlang mit eng angezogenen Beinen auf einer scharfen Pultkante sitzen. Ferner zog er unter den Nasen der Kinder Bindfaden von einer Wand des Zimmers zur anderen, um ihnen das „Stillsitzen" beizubringen. Eine ganze Reihe Einzelfälle wurden festgestellt; wegen mehrerer besonders schwerer Vergehen konnte aber keine Anklage erhoben werden, weil Verjährung vorlag. Suschke wurde zu sechs Monaten Gefängniß verurtheilt.

Crimmitschau. Die Krise in der sächsischen Vigogne-Industrie hat besonders im Bezirk Crimmitschau-Werdau zu geschäftlichen Katastrophen geführt. Seit dem 1. Januar sind nicht weniger als 60,000 Spindeln zum Stillstand gelangt. Ursache dieser Krise ist die planlose Produktion. Selbst als sich vor einem Jahre bereits die Merkmale der herankommenden Geschäftsstockung zeigten, wurde ein von der Vigognespinner-Vereinigung gestellter Antrag auf Produktionsbeschränkung zurückgewiesen. Jetzt haben Unternehmer und nicht zuletzt auch die Arbeiter die Folgen zu tragen.

Frohnau. Hier sind bei einem Brande der Fabrikarbeiter Meyer, dessen Frau und zwei Kinder des Ehepaares in den Flammen umgekommen. Sechs Kinder wurden mit knapper Noth gerettet.

Thüringische Staaten.

Eisenach. Der Gemeinderath beschloß die Errichtung eines Krematoriums nach den Plänen des Civilingenieurs Richard Schneider in Dresden und bewilligte für die Anlage die Summe von 14,800 Mark. Eisenach wird nach Gotha und Jena die dritte thüringische Stadt sein, welche die Leichenverbrennung ermöglicht. Auch in Apolda schweben Verhandlungen wegen Einführung der Feuerbestattung.

Oelsnau. Hier hat der praktische Arzt Dr. Grosch Selbstmord begangen, weil ihm wegen einer verunglückten Kur strafrechtliche Verfolgung drohte.

Sonneberg. Die Erbauung einer elektrischen Bahn in hiesiger Stadt, die auch nach den Vororten und nach Neustadt führen soll, wird geplant.

Freie Städte.

Hamburg. Hier wird demnächst die erste öffentliche Bücherhalle zur allgemeinen unentgeltlichen Benutzung eröffnet werden. Die „Patriotische Gesellschaft" und eine Anzahl von Privatleuten haben die nothwendigen Mittel, der Stadt das Gebäude, ein ehemaliges Leihhaus an den Kohlhöfen, zur Verfügung gestellt. Man plant nicht nur eine Benutzung der Werke innerhalb des Hauses, sondern auch ein Ausleihen derselben, und zwar ohne Pfand und Bürgschaft. Erfahrungen auf diesem Gebiete werden erst gesammelt werden müssen.—Sechs Deserteure der deutschen Marine trafen mit dem Dampfer „Lesbos" der Levantelinie hier ein; die Leute waren auf der Palästinareise des Kaisers von den Kriegsschiffen, die den Kaiser begleiteten, zum Theil in Folge anstrengenden Dienstes desertirt und hatten sich dann, in Noth gerathen, an den deutschen Konsul in Chios gewandt, der sie nach Hamburg befördern ließ.

Bremen. Die Firma Wischhusen u. Kimme richtet eine neue direkte Dampferlinie zwischen Bremen und Stettin ein, und zwar mit kleineren Dampfern frei von Schifffahrtsabgabe. Außerdem wird genannte Firma die im vorigen Jahre eingeleiteten Dampfer-Expeditionen ab Bremen nach verschiedenen schwedischen Häfen, wie Malmö, Halmstad, Gothenburg, Karlstadt u. s. w. wieder aufnehmen und in diesem Jahre noch weiter ausdehnen.

Lübeck. Der Strike in der größten hiesigen Cigarrenfabrik von Rose u. Schweighöffer ist nach dreimonatiger Dauer beendet. Die Arbeiter treten zu den alten Bedingungen wieder ein und scheiden aus dem Fachverein aus.—Der Bürgerausschuß nahm einen Senatsantrag betreffend die Entschädigung im Wiederaufnahmeverfahren Freigesprochener an.

Oldenburg.

Varel. Der bei dem Mühlenbesitzer Oltmanns wohnende Rentier Klüsener hatte sich auf das sogenannte Zwischenstell der Windmühle begeben und war so den Flügeln zu nahe gekommen. Ein Flügel traf ihn, und warf ihn zu Boden, während der nächste Flügel den Bedauernswerthen in weitem Bogen über das Geländer in die Tiefe schleuderte. Er fiel auf das Dach der neben der Mühle stehenden Scheune und stürzte von dort auf die Erde. Der alte, bereits 75jährige Herr erlitt einen Bruch der Wirbelsäule und einen doppelten Beinbruch, so daß er bereits nach einer Stunde verschied.

FRANK JAMES'S NEW JOB.

Will Guard Bullion Cars Against Western Train Robbers.

It would be odd if Frank James, Jesse's brother, were to die at the hand of train robbers who followed in his early footsteps! It may come to pass, too.

For now that oft quoted bit of advice, "Set a thief to catch a thief," has been heeded by the express companies who carry fortunes through the Southwestern States in their strong boxes, and who lose them sometimes at the hands of desperadoes.

Frank James, whose career of crime is, perhaps, second only to that of his notorious brother Jesse, is to accept a position as special express messenger, his duty being no other than that of meeting train robbers at their own game.

Frank James is no longer young, but he can shoot with both hands, and shoot straight. But it is not on that account alone that his services are in demand. The men who have made him an offer have decided that the reputation which the man won as a desperado, when the band which he and his brother led was the dreaded scourge of several states, will prove a better safeguard for their bullion than even his ready revolver.

Indeed, it has been said, and with some foundation, that if Jesse James had heeded his brother's warning, he would never have been shot down by Ford, whom he trusted so fully that he removed his pistol belt and turned his back to him, only to receive his death wound. Frank James had said:

"Trust no one when the price on your head is enough to make a man rich."

He is willing to become a watchdog and guard bullion for a living provided the men who wish to employ him will agree to his terms.

"I'll take the job," he told them, "and any one who gets the money from any car I'm riding on will get it over my dead body. But I've been supporting my family and little more, and if I go under I want to be sure that they'll be provided for.

"Now, I'll tell you what I'll do. You sign an agreement by which they are to get $20,000 in case I'm killed, and I'm your man. I know enough about some of them to be sure that they can still shoot a little, even if the business isn't what it used to be."

So the man whose name was once feared throughout several states is now waiting to see if the expressmen will pay $20,000 against his stake, which is his life. It will be strange, indeed, if the former desperado, the brains of the most bloodthirsty set of outlaws this country has known, stands on the side of the law against men who regard him and his brother as patterns to be followed.

Saw for the First Time.

Blind people's first experience of sight is curious. An old man in Pembroke, Ontario, who was born blind, received his sight by the removal of a cataract. When the bandage was first removed, the patient started violently and cried out as if with fear, and for a while was quite nervous from the effects of the shock. For the first time in his life he looked upon the earth. The first thing he noticed was a flock of wild sparrows. In relating his experience he said that he thought they were teacups, although a few moments afterwards he readily distinguished a watch which was shown to him. It is supposed that this recognition is owing to the fact that he heard it ticking. The blaze from a lamp excited the most lively surprise in his mind. He had no idea what it was, and when it was brought near he wanted to pick it up. When the night approached upon the day, when he first used his eyes, he was in a fright, fearing that he was losing the sight which he had so wonderfully found after sixty years of darkness.

Spontaneous Combustion in Ice-Houses.

The Iowa Dairy Mutual Fire Insurance company has issued a circular containing the following on spontaneous combustion:

"Sawdust in icehouses is self-ignitable, caused by spontaneous combustion in hot weather. In order to avoid a fire from above cause the sawdust should not be allowed to pile up over four or five inches on top of the ice. The surplus should be removed and kept out of the ice house. Where the sawdust is allowed to accumulate on top of your ice it will consume the ice."

The Good Man's Compliments.

One Sunday, as a certain Scottish minister was returning homeward, he was accosted by an old woman, who said:

"Oh, sir, well do I like the day when you preach."

The minister was aware that he was not very popular, and answered:

"My good woman, I am glad to hear it. There are few like you. And why do you like it when I preach?"

"Oh, sir," she replied, "when you preach I always get a good seat."

Had Papa's Trait.

Papa—"Are you sure that you and mamma thought of me while you were away?"

Little Grace—"Yes; we heard a man just scolding awful about his breakfast and mamma said, 'That's just like papa.'"

Weakness of a Rector.

"Well, Ben, how do you like the new rector?

"Well, miss 'e ain't bad; but I don't know, somehow 'e don't seem to bamboozle and confound the judgment same as t' old rector used to."

OVERPRODUCTION.

There's an overproduction of cotton,
An overproduction of corn;
Too much of everything is grown;
Too many people born;
A surplus yield of wheat and bread,
Of potatoes, oats and rye,
Hog and hominy, ham and eggs,
And home-made pumpkin pie.

Too much too eat, too much to wear,
And cattle on too many hills;
Too many agricultural tools,
Too many scrapers, ploughs and drills.
There's such a glut in low of clothing
Of every grade and kind;
Too many books and papers,
Too much thought and mind.

Too many men to do the work,
Too many women to weep;
More daylight than the people need,
Too much night for sleep;
Of benedicts a surplus,
An oversupply of wives;
Too many birds and blossoms,
More bees than there are hives.

More sunshine and more shadow
Than is needed for the dell;
An overproduction of gravestones,
More coffins than we sell;
An overproduction of ignorance,
A sight too many schools;
Too many poor, too many rich,
And lots too many fools.

THE GYPSY DANCER.

A gypsy band were in the West Riding of Yorkshire, England, and the beautiful danseuse Minitti, with her handsome companion, were performing to the delighted villagers of the country. It did not escape the inquisitive eyes of the spectators that her companion, Fernando, watched with loving eye each motion of Minitti.

The little town in the environs of which the gypsy band were encamped was one day thrown into commotion by one of the inhabitants declaring that an article of considerable value had been stolen from his house. One of the inhabitants even remembered to have seen a female of the tribe near the door of the house whence the jewel was missing, and was ready to make oath that it was none other than Minitti, the danseuse of the tribe.

This was quite sufficient, and upon such strong circumstantial evidence the beautiful girl was seized and rudely carried before the Justice of the county for examination. In vain was all the proof offered by the tribe as to her innocence; no court would heed a gypsy's evidence, and the Justice was forced, though compassion was in his heart, aye, and it beamed broadly from his countenance, too, to commit the girl.

Immediately after the Justice had pronounced the sentence, and the weeping girl was about to be borne away by the officers of the court, a young man stepped suddenly forward from the crowd and said, while he thrust aside the rough hands that were extended to seize Minitti:

"Stand back, if you would not have me take your lives. The girl is innocent—I stole the jewel. Why should you charge this upon that gentle being, innocent and pure, aye, purer than the best of ye! It is I who am guilty."

"Thou!" cried the gypsy girl, "impossible, Fernando!" for it was her companion of the dance. And the gentle girl, rejoicing to find one friend so near her in this fearful moment, threw her arms about his neck and wept upon his breast.

"Even so, dear Minitti," he replied, "but fear not for me. I shall soon be released again. Keep up a brave heart, dear girl."

As he said these words, the Justice directed officers to release the girl and commit the young man to prison, glad of an opportunity to clear one whom he could not find in his heart to commit.

The Justice was Sir George Pasely, and that same night while he sat alone in his study, musing upon the examination of the gypsy and the singular circumstance relating to it, a servant announced that a stranger desired to see him. He was admitted and the tall, gaunt person of the gypsy leader was before him. Sir George motioned him to a seat.

"Judge," said he at once, "I am a man of a few words. I have come here on a matter of business, and with your permission will speak at once to the point."

"Go on, sir."

"Twelve years ago," continued the gypsy, "you lost a child."

The old man sprang like an infuriated animal upon the person of the gypsy, and seizing him by the throat, had nearly thrown him upon the floor before the gypsy sufficiently recovered himself to release his neck from Sir George's grasp.

"Stay," said the gypsy, casting off the Justice with an ease that showed at once his superior physical power, and with a degree of composure that proved him to be no stranger to scenes of personal conflict, "no power on earth can make me speak unless I choose. Now deal with me like a man and I will do so; resort to force, and I am dumb forever."

"Speak then," said the old man, trembling in every limb, speak—what of my child?"

"As I said before, this is purely a matter of business on my part," continued the gypsy. "will you give me £50 if I will return your daughter to you?"

Without a word further, Sir George drew a bill upon his bank for the amount specified, saying to the gypsy as he exhibited the draft, honestly drawn and filled up:

"Now, sir, speak, and if you give me faithful intelligence, upon my honor the draft and money shall be yours."

"Enough, I am satisfied. Now, Sir George, the girl that was tried before you today, charged with the theft, is thy daughter."

"My God!" exclaimed the agitated parent, scarcely able to contain himself, "bring her to me at once."

"Stay, sir," continued the gypsy, "first let me explain to you my own agency in the affair."

"No matter, no matter, I forgive you—bring me my child."

"But I ask no forgiveness; first let me explain. I learned this secret in a distant land, from a man who had been paid to destroy your child, but who, taking a fancy to her, preferred to save her life, and adopted her. When I learned this from him he was on his deathbed. I promised him to bring her to you. I have done so, and now only demand payment for my expenses."

At the expiration of an hour, during which Sir George could hardly conquer his impatience, Minitti, the lovely danseuse, entered St. George's apartment, and was at once clasped in his arms, with barely a word that told her all.

"Oh, heaven!" said the father, while he alternately pressed her to his heart, and held her from him, that he might see more clearly her womanly perfections, "I thank thee for at last returning her to me, so beautiful, so gentle, so lovely, aye, and so pure there can be no guile or deceit in that face," and Sir George was almost beside himself with joy and delight. "Louise," said he, the tears streaming from his eyes, "dear, dear Louise."

"I do remember that name," said she, musing, "it comes over me like a dream, long, long forgotten."

"Ah, my child," said Sir George, "nothing on earth shall again separate us from each other."

"But father, dear father," said Louise, bewildered and overjoyed, "will you release Fernando?"

"Aye, at once. The brave fellow would have saved thee at the expense of his own liberty and shall be suitably rewarded."

As he spoke he wrote an order for his immediate release, which was despatched forthwith by a servant, with directions to bring the gypsy to Sir George's apartment. In the meantime Louise's early history was crowded upon her astonished ears, almost in a single breath.

Fernando came at last, little dreaming of the document that was awaiting him. He was surprised to find Minitti in the company of Sir George and at once rightly conjectured that his release was owing to her intercession, but his astonishment was beyond description when the true position of the matter was explained to him. Suddenly he became sad, and a tear even trembled in his handsome eye, when the Justice asked:

"What grieves you, my friend?"

"To realize, sir, that Minitti's finding a father must be the cause of our separation."

"How so, sir?"

"Would one of your blood and standing in the world marry a child so one of the proscribed race?"

"Aye," said the Justice, "Louise should be yours if you were the—the—I won't exactly say what, after the proofs of affection you have shown her."

Fernando pressed the tearful girl to his breast, saying:

"Dear Louise, blessed be the power that overrules us all."

"Dear Fernando, how happy we shall be now, with every opportunity for improvement and all the things you have taught me, to read, to write, and everything. I can improve them all."

"We will, indeed," replied Fernando. Then, turning to the Justice, said: "The trial is passed, and now I, too, will speak. One year since I made a vow on quitting my studies that I would seek a wife who should love me for myself alone. Being of noble birth—nay, start not, it is true—I assumed these rustic garments, and determined to wear them until I found a heart and proved it worthy of my love. I saw Louise as a gypsy. I loved her at once, yet I determined to keep my oath. I tested her affection in every reasonable way, and learned to love her for her purity of mind, as well as her extraordinary beauty, and when the time had nearly come for me to take a gypsy wife to my bosom, lo, I find her of gentle birth like myself, while each has truly proved the other's love."

Fernando de Cortez was indeed born of the blood royal of Spain, and in this romantic way had he chosen himself a wife. We might make our tale more complete by adding to it, but still we could only show that happiness was the future lot of the gypsy danseuse.—Buffalo Times.

To Prevent Walls Becoming Damp.

The walls of a stone house and sometimes of a brick house are covered with dampness. This is due to the very same causes by which dew is deposited on grasses or moisture on the side of a glass or pitcher that is filled with ice water and brought into a warm room. The walls become cold, and as stone is a non-conductor of heat, they remain cold for a long time. When the weather changes suddenly from cold to warm the air becomes filled with moisture, for the warmer the air is the more moisture it will absorb. When this warm air strikes the cold wall, the moisture is deposited on it from the air, which is suddenly cooled by contact with them, and as the warm air is continually coming in contact with the cold walls, the dampness accumulates until it appears like dew upon them, and pours down in streams at times. It is easily prevented. No plaster should be put directly upon brick or stone, but furring strips should be nailed to the wall and the laths put on these. Cellars are frequently made very damp in the same way by too much ventilation in warm weather.

"What extenuating circumstances can you give?" asked the judge.

"Please, your honor, I made the money to pay for my lodging," replied the counterfeiter.

"Very good. It will pay for your board and lodgings for the next five years."

Happenings of Interest to Plainfield Enthusiasts—What the Local Teams are Doing—Gossip Among the Players.

There are several games to be played in this city by the Y. M. C. A. team but the dates for them have not yet been definitely settled. The Summit Y. M. C. A. has a return game to play here while the Eastern District of the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A. has promised to play in Plainfield.

The interassociation basket ball tournament in the Plainfield Y.M.C.A. has narrowed down from three teams to two. Team C is now defunct. After loosing several games by default, the members of the team gave up all hopes of ever getting together and have now left A and B to settle it between themselves. Each has now won three games and lost one. A series of three games will be played between the two teams and the banner awarded to the winner.

A date for the proposed match between the girls' basket ball teams of the Plainfield and Montclair High Schools has at last been set. Unless something happens in the interum to upset all the plans, the game will be played in Montclair Friday afternoon of next week. Both teams are anxious for the game. The Montclair girls have promised to play a return match in this city at an early date. A party of the friends of the Plainfield team will accompany them to Montclair.

The girls of the Plainfield High School cannot be commended too highly for the wonderful improvement they have made in basket ball as evidenced at the game played in the Whittier School Wednesday afternoon. Most of them still lack, however, the faculty of keeping always on the move which has been the making of the Y. M. C. A. team. It is pretty lively work for them and they do play very creditably. A little less of the inclination to stand still and watch the rest would improve the playing of several and bring their work up to a high standard.

WRETCHED VANITY.

Frequently Met With and as Often to be Deplored.

Twenty years ago a poor woman was left a widow in the city of New York with two children. She was honest, energetic and an expert laundress. She succeeded in keeping a comfortable home for her children and in educating them. Her ambition was not that they should be honest, energetic working people, but a "lady and a gentleman."

Emma, the daughter, was sent to a private school, taught superficial accomplishments, and to play on the piano and to dance. She made her way, through some of her school acquaintances into families who would not have recognized the poor washerwoman, and wore gaudy clothes and cheap jewelry which her mother slaved to buy for her. She married a salesman in a retail shop, a man weak in body and mind. His scanty salary she wasted on finery for herself and her children, and when he lost his situation a year ago she came back with them to the mother whom she had so long declared was too "vulgar" to acknowledge before the world.

Tom, her brother, was a keen-witted young fellow, whose only ambition was to be "swell." He had a place as copying clerk in a shop on the Bowery, but lost it at the beginning of the hard times two years ago, and remained idle, dependent on his mother. When her employer offered to give him a situation as a messenger of porter, he haughtily refused it, as he "had not come into the world to do menial work."

Last spring the old washerwoman, worn out at last, fell ill, and Tom found himself starving. He picked a woman's pocket on a ferryboat, was caught in the act, tried and sentenced to six months' imprisonment. His defence was that he was starving.

"You could have sold the expensive clothes you wear, or that scarf pin," said his lawyer.

"No, sir," Tom replied; "I may be unfortunate, but I shall always dress and behave like a gentleman that I am."

There is a sad, if not a shameful future for the boy or girl who has never learned at home that humble independence is better than polite shiftlessness.

One Way of Putting It.

The Southern Bivouac quotes a story of a negro, John Williams, who, filled with zeal for his master's cause, accompanied a Georgia regiment to the army of General Floyd. The campaign was unsuccessful, and John, becoming homesick, was allowed to depart. Before starting he went to say good-by to the general. "So you are going to leave us, John?" said General Floyd. "Yes, Marse Floyd. It 'pears like I can do no more good at home now dan bein' here; so I thought I'd go home and 'courage up our people to hold on."

"That's right, John. But are you going to tell 'em you left us running from the Yankees?" "No, sir—no, Marse Floyd, dat I ain't. You may 'pend on my not tellin' nothin' to 'moralize dem people." But how will you get around telling them, John?" "Easy 'nough, Marse Floyd. It won't do to 'moralize dem people. I'm goin' to tell 'em dat when I lef' de army it was in firs'-rate sperrits, an' dat, owin' to de situation ob de country an' de way de lan' lay, we was advancin' backward an' de Yankees was a-treatin' for'ard."

She Knew How to Ride a Tandem.

He was an estimable young man in every way, and she was more than estimable—in his opinion—so, with the idea of wheeling his way into her heart, he saved and hoarded his shekels and purchased a fine tandem. But "the best-laid plans o'mice and men gang aft agley." They had ridden some fifteen miles, and after slowly and laboriously pedaling to the top of a long hill he, after mopping his dripping brow, gasped out convulsively: "M—M—May, you c—c—can p—p—put your feet on the c—c—coasters now." "Why," said his companion, "I've had them on ever since we started." He said nothing, but set his teeth grimly, and she has wondered since then why he has not called on Sunday evenings.—Philadelphia Record.

DEFENDED HERSELF WITH PAIL OF BEER

But Other Things She Did Made Trouble.

TALKED TOO MUCH IN COURT.

MRS. HOWARD CAME AS COMPLAINANT, BUT LEFT AS PRISONER.

Accused Eva Lee With Assaulting Her—Eva's Story Laid the Blame Elsewhere—Eva Also Told of Drunken Carousals in Which White and Colored Men Participated—Callers' Names.

There's been too much "fussing" up at "Pop" Freeman's on East Fourth street lately. Those are the sentiments of "Pop" himself. The last "fussing" was incidental to the celebration of the birthday of the "Father of Our Country." "Pop's" daughter, Mrs. Arabella Howard, brought the matter into the city court this morning. She accused Miss Eva Lee with assault, whereat Eva turned state evidence and told things about Mrs. Howard that made a sensation in court and gave the latter a term in the county jail.

"Pop" Freeman, more properly called Jarvis Freeman, is an aged colored man living on East Fourth street near Church street. His daughter says that she has been home very little, but the police claim otherwise.

Last Wednesday there were a number of visitors at Freeman's. Eva says that there were two white men among the number. Beer flowed freely and the "growler" made many trips. At last Mrs. Howard made some unkindly remarks about Eva, who is a boarder at the house. Eva pushed her into a corner, and Mrs. Howard says it was by a blow with the fist. Then Mrs. Howard threw the contents of the "growler" on the boarder and followed the beer up with the pail itself. The guests interfered and the combatants were compelled to content themselves with words.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. Howard swore out a warrant against Eva, who was arrested by Roundsman Frederickson. This morning the case came up before City Judge Runyon. It was painfully evident at the very start that the complainant had not a proper respect for the honor and dignity of the court.

She talked without cessation. The Judge suggested quiet. Still she talked uninterruptedly. The Judge demanded quiet. Mrs. Howard kept up the hub-bub until the Judge ordered one of the officers to lock her up. In a cell she subsided.

Then Eva Lee turned State evidence and told how the house was the scene of frequent carousals. Mrs. Howard, she said, entertained both white and black and all got drunk together. Then she told the names of the callers, which were carefully noted by the Judge.

Other witnesses, including Mail Messenger Frisbie, were sworn and told of these "black and white teas" that Mrs. Howard and her friends conducted. The Judge suspended sentence on Eva Lee and sent Mrs. Howard to jail for forty days in default of $10 fine.

AMATEUR THEATRICALS.

"Diplomacy" to be Produced by Local Talent in Music Hall.

"Diplomacy," one of Sardou's best plays, will be given in Music Hall during the latter part of April. Many well known amateurs will be in the cast, among them former Mayor and Mrs. W. L. Saunders, Mr. VanFleet, Miss Huntington, Laurens VanBuren, Miss Wickinham, Miss Waring, Mr. Waring, Miss Grace Cooley and Mr. Pincoffs.

Rehearsals are being held at ex-Mayor Saunders' house on Rockview avenue, and the cast is almost complete. The play will be given for charity.

Mrs. Grant's Tea.

Mrs. Gussie F. Grant, of Kensington avenue, celebrated the thirteenth anniversary of her marriage Friday afternoon last by giving a delightful tea to a number of her friends. The home was attractively decorated with roses, palms, etc., for the occasion. The afternoon was passed in sociability and about 5 o'clock the guests were served with a pleasing repast.

HIS AGE WAS A RIPE ONE

DENNIS MOFFETT THREE YEARS PAST FOUR SCORE POINT.

Died Yesterday After an Illness of Three Weeks—Born at Mount Horeb and Always Engaged in Agricultural Pursuits.

The death of Dennis T. Moffett, aged 83 years, occurred yesterday morning after an illness lasting about three weeks. Death was due to general debility, and was not wholly unexpected by the immediate family.

Mr. Moffett was born August 8th, 1816, at Mt. Horeb, where he spent his boyhood. Later he engaged in the farming and stock raising business in Union and Middlesex counties, which he continued up to four years ago when he gave up business and took up his residence with his son at 1328 Watchung avenue. In early life he was engaged in politics to some extent and held several minor offices. He was a staunch Democrat. He was a member of the Westfield M. E. church, where he attended when able. In 1839 he was married to Charlotte Wilcox, of VanFeltville, and she died in 1890. There were ten children, seven of whom are now living. They are Mrs. Samuel F. Randolph, Harvey Moffett, Wilbur Moffett, Miss Carrie Moffett and Charles O. Moffett, of this city, and Rev. Edwin O. Moffett, of Pine Bush, N. Y.

The funeral services will be held from the late home Wednesday afternoon next at 2 o'clock.

Disappearing Frost May Make Trouble.

The frost is beginning to come out of the ground during these warm spells, and Street Commissioner Gavett expects that he will have some trouble with the streets this spring. The frost this year went down deep, and, when it comes out, will no doubt raise or lower the roadbed in various places and make it uneven. There is one place on Central avenue, just within the city line, where every year the crust breaks and rises until there are depressions in the road eight inches deep.

—Tomorrow evening there will be a meeting of the local union Christian Endeavor at Trinity Reformed church, at which time there will be two discussions of popular topics.

COLT HAD A WILD RUN.

EX-JUDGE CODDINGTON'S STEPPER WRECKED A COSTLY TRAP.

Left Untied on Somerset Street and Became Frightened—Ran to Babcock Building, Probably From Force of Habit.

The big bay colt belonging to Former Judge W. A. Coddington, of East Second street, ran away Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and succeeded in completely wrecking the Judge's trap. Thomas McCormick, the coachman, drove Mrs. Coddington over to call on Grove street during the afternoon. After leaving her he came up Somerset street and stopped at a store. While he was inside the horse became frightened and started forth on a wild career up Somerset street.

After the horse had run several blocks the trap struck against the curb and tipped over. It was dragged along on its side and was soon wrecked. When the horse reached Front street the trap had been broken into small pieces, which were strewn along in the path of the runaway.

The horse turned into West Front street and galloped up to the Judge's office in the Babcock building, where the wild pace slackened to a trot. Al Hoagland, the expressman, stepped out and caught the runaway.

There was nothing left of the trap, while the harness was broken in several places. The damage to the trap will amount to $300. Judge Coddington was in New York at the time.

While there were many narrow escapes in the run up Somerset street and on Front street, the runaway managed to thread her way through all the passing vehicles without collision.

DUTIES OF CITIZENSHIP.

Rev. Josiah Strong Talked to a Large Audience Saturday.

Citizenship is a serious matter, viewed from the standpoint of the League for Social Service. The president of the League, Rev. Josiah Strong, of New York, spoke Saturday in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, making a strong plea for the education of public opinion along the lines of good citizenship. Dr. Strong's subject was "The Greatest Peril of the Century," and that peril was shown to be the lack of intellectual and moral development in the nation in proportion to the material development. The speaker described the tremendous progress made in America during the present century—discoveries, inventions, wealth—and then spoke of the new problems raised by our modern life, and the crying need that the people understand their duties. Intelligence, guided by a strong, social conscience, can alone save the country from the fate which has overcome other nations where the material has outgrown the intellectual and the moral. The questions of city government, Mormonism, etc., will never be solved except by an intelligent people, and if the people are too indifferent to learn the duties of citizenship, Dr. Strong would have the knowledge taken to them. The League for Social Service would help to fill the need by the distribution of literature on the questions of the day, written by such men as Seth Low, Theodore Roosevelt and Grover Cleveland.

AMID SPRING FLOWERS.

A Charming Sociable Held at All Souls Church Friday Night.

In the Sunday-school room of All Souls church the ladies of the society held their February sociable Friday evening last. The room was beautifully decorated with daffodils, yellow tulips and roses and the entire arrangements for the evening were under the direction of Mrs. W. L. Brown, of Belvidere avenue.

Seven proverbs were acted and guessed by the lookers on. Songs were sung by Mrs. Brown and Louis Stackweather, and Stephen Hall, the organist of the church, favored the company with two very beautiful piano solos. Two tables furnished entertainment, one holding objects representing thirty-nine flowers to be guessed, the other fifty very artistic, mounted pictures, representing the titles of well-known books, also to be deciphered. After a most satisfactory evening of lively curiosity and friendly rivalry in mutual conjecture refreshments were served and the February sociable was pronounced a success.

Judgment Against Bard Company.

Justice Nash has rendered judgment for Frank W. Runyon and Daly et al against the Bard Company, and executions were issued. The first judgment was for $143.52 and the other for $135.68.

MR. SAUNDERS CALLED IT

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY TO BE HELD THURSDAY NIGHT

There Had Been Some Dispute About the Right of Chairman of Last Primary to Make the Call—Wilson Favored.

As the chairman of the last Democratic primary held in North Plainfield, Former Mayor Saunder this morning called the primary for the nomination of officers to be chosen at the approaching municipal election. The date set is Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the basement of the public school building. There has been a little dispute as to whether it was the duty of former Mayor Saunders, as the chairman of the last primary, or Elston M. French, as chairman of the executive committee, to call the primary. It was finally decided that it was the right of Mr. Saunders to make the call, and it is in accordance with that rule that he has set the primary for Thursday night.

It is expected that Mayor Wilson will be renominated by the primary, though there may be some opposition to him. The idea of holding the Democratic caucus before the Republican primary is to afford the Republicans, who are favorable to Mayor Wilson succeeding himself, a chance to either secure his endorsement by the G. O. P. or else to avoid putting up a candidate in opposition.

DANCING AND EUCHRE.

Saturday Evening Club Entertained by Mr. and Mrs. DeLong.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. DeLong, of Sandford avenue, entertained the Saturday Evening Euchre Club Saturday evening in a very delightful manner. In addition to the regular number of members there were several guests present who also enjoyed the genuine hospitality of the host and hostess. It was supposed that this would be the last meeting of the club for the season, but it was decided to hold one more meeting and that will be Saturday evening, March 11th, when Mr. and Mrs. Seymour G. Smith, of Putnam avenue, will entertain the club.

Only five games were played Saturday evening, after which dancing was enjoyed for the balance of the evening. During the playing of euchre pleasing music was furnished by a banjo and guitar. Another very pleasant diversion was a soprano solo by Miss Lambert, of New York. At a late hour the guests were served with refreshments and thus another happy event in the history of the club closed.

Among the guests present were the Misses Lambert, of New York; Miss Grace Taylor, of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. Cooms, Miss Cooms, Mr. and Mrs. Ashley, Fred Smith, of this city.

The prize winners were: Gentlemen, first, C. M. Slocum; second, Peter Schultz. Ladies, first, Mrs. C. M. Slocum; second, Mrs. R. L. Johnson.

REVIVAL TO CONTINUE.

Meetings in First M. E. Church to be Held This Week.

The revival meetings of the First M. E. church will continue through this week and will close next Sunday evening. Rev. Dr. J. D. Belknap will remain in charge of the meetings. Services will be held every night this week.

Owing to the storm yesterday, the attendance at the meetings was only fair, many being kept away by the rain. Dr. Belknap preached morning and evening and made a brief address to the Sunday-school in the afternoon. This evening, he will speak on the subject, "The Wandering Boy."

The fair which was held last week under the auspices of Martha Washington Council, No. 23, D. of A., came to a close Saturday night after a successful week. The contests were decided, and Miss Pearl DeNise won the diamond ring; Mrs. John Hope the sewing machine, and Mrs. Andrew Mattis the set of dishes. The clock was carried off by H. L. VanCamp, of Elizabeth.

A Broken Trolley Wire.

A broken trolley wire under the Watchung avenue bridge interfered with the moving of the cars this morning. There was no power on the circuit between those two points. Two cars, Nos. 3 and 12, were caught there, and had to lay idle until the break was repaired.

A Position in Cuba.

Walter N. Martin, of Grove street, has secured a good position with Swift & Co., and Saturday last he sailed for Cuba, where he will have charge of one of the firm's houses at that place.

WANT BETTER STREETS.

PROPERTY OWNERS WILL PETITION COUNCIL TO MACADAMIZE THEM.

West Sixth Street, Between Park and Plainfield Avenues, and Norwood Avenue Will be Called to Attention of Council.

There will be two more petitions presented to the Common Council at the meeting Monday evening when the residents of two streets will ask the Council to macadamize their streets. One will come from the residents on West Sixth street, between Park avenue and Plainfield avenue. The property owners along that thoroughfare agree to pay their proportion of the cost if the work is done. Sixth street has been in a deplorable condition and the improvement is greatly needed.

The other petition will come from the residents along Norwood avenue, from East Front street to the city line at Green brook. This has been another bad mud hole in stormy weather. It also is quite an important outlet into the eastern part of the borough.

NEW HOSPITAL BUILDINGS.

Board of Governors to Hear Reports This Evening.

Another move toward the securing of new buildings for the Muhlenberg Hospital was expected to be made tonight. A meeting of the Board of Governors will be held at the public library this evening, and the committee to look into the possibilities of raising the necessary funds, was expected to make a report then. The committee, which is composed of Charles J. Fisk and W. B. Cock, has not completed the work it set out to do. Mr. Fisk has been out of town part of the time and ill as well, so he was unable to do much.

A partial report may be made but the matter will probably go over until another meeting so as to allow the committee to see just what prospects there are of raising the funds for the projected additions.

EXTENDED CREDIT TO A MINOR.

Resulted in Sudden Ending of a Suit in Justice Moffett's Court.

A suit brought by VanZandt & Voorhees, flour and feed merchants, against Blimm & Henry, doing business on West Fourth street, for a bill of $3, came to a sudden end this morning in Justice Moffett's court. The case came up for trial and all parties were in court when S. S. Swackhamer, of the firm of Codington & Swackhamer, who represents the defendants, asked for a dismissal of the suit on the ground that one member of the firm being sued, Mr. Henry, was a minor. There could be no opposition to this motion, as a minor cannot be held responsible for credit extended to him, so the case was dismissed.

DR. CUYLER PREACHED.

Occupied Pulpit in Crescent Avenue Church in Place of Dr. Richards.

Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler, former pastor of the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian church, Brooklyn, occupied the pulpit of the Crescent Avenue church yesterday, both morning and evening. He had large congregations at both services, and preached two powerful sermons.

In the morning the preacher's theme was "Heaven," and he took for his text the first verse of the fifth chapter of Second Corinthians, where the Apostle speaks of the "House not built by hands, eternal in the Heavens." Rev. Mr. Cuyler is an elderly man with silvery-grey hair, but is still a powerful preacher.

A meeting of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association was held at the High School building Friday afternoon. The advisability of withdrawing from the New Jersey Interscholastic Athletic Association was discussed and action on it was postponed until the next meeting. A. L. Schomp was elected treasurer in the place of Harry Cuming, resigned. A committee was appointed to consider the advisibility of holding another benefit concert. W. A. Fisher was elected manager of the baseball team.

Funeral of Mrs. Connett.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Harry A. Connett were held from the home on East Fifth street Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiated. The floral tributes were numerous and very beautiful. The remains were interred in the receiving vault at Hillside cemetery. Those who served as pallbearers were Frank Putnam, Frazee Putnam, Charles Lister and William Beers.

WALTER LONG IS NOW ALL-ROUND CHAMPION.

Won Open Pentathlon Contest at Y. M. C. A. Gym.

FIVE OTHER CONTESTANTS.

LONG OUTCLASSED THEM ALL IN GYMNASTIC WORK.

The Contest Included Free Work, Calisthenics, Gymnastic and Athletic Events—A Fair Test of the Work of the Gymnasium—Long Fairly Won It—Eric Moraller Was Second—Summaries.

By a manifestly superior performance the all-round championship of the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium was won by Walter L. Long at the open pentathlon contest, held in the gymnasium Saturday evening. It was a fair test in free work, calisthenics, gymnastic and athletic work, and Long stood 13 per cent. higher than the nearest competitor. Contrary to expectations there were only six competitors in the contest, but they furnished a lively race for second place.

The principal competitors in line were Walter L. Long, captain of the basket ball team; Eric Moraller, winner of this year's gymnastic contest, and F. O. Bristol, winner of the athletic contest two years ago. The others were Herbert Brokaw, Ivan Hardingham and Walter Sampson. The judges were William McMonigle, of New York, and Robert A. Meeker, both experts. It was expected that George Proctor Smith and Raymond B. Carroll, winner of this year's athletic contest, would take part but both are somewhat weak in gymnastic work and felt that they had no show. Frank Marcley, a lively candidate, was detained by business. William Townsend and Hervey K. Doane were both present, but felt outclassed.

It was his general excellence in all lines that gave long the victory. In the gymnastic feats he far outshone his rivals for championship honors and stood well up in the athletic events. Even had all the other men expected taken part in the contest, there is no doubt but that Long would have stood first. At present he is undoubtedly the best all-around man in the association.

The free work, which consisted of marching and facing, under the direction of the physical director, C. E. A. Heywood, was simple. Bristol and Long were practically equal. In the exercises with the dumb-bells Sampson did the best work. Then came the gymnastic work.

Three pieces of apparatus were used, there being three moves on each, which were as follows:

Side Horse—Three quarter left circle, both legs, to straddle neck, right front vault; straddle vault to back rest, dismount with half right turn; right feint, half right circle, both legs to back.

Here Long had a particularly clever showing leaving the others far behind. On the horse he was best, scoring 27 points out of a possible 30. In this class of work Moraller stood next, Sampson and Bristol were both severely taxed to go through the moves. Haringham also fell down and lost all his chances.

When the athletic events were begun, it was expected that Bristol and Hardingham would make the best showing. Long, however, came up in unexpected form. He tied for first in one event and finished second in the others. In the high jump, Hardingham cleared five feet. Bristol gained a good lead in the standing broad jumps.

The potato race was run in three heats. Sampson and Brokaw were in the first trial. Brokaw led until the last lap when Sampson made an extra effort and won by a few feet. His time was 1 minute, 55 4-5 seconds, and Brokaw's a fifth of a second longer.

Hardingham and Moraller had a lively heat. It was nip and tuck from start to finish, Hardingham winning out by a foot. His time was 1 minute, 50 1-5 seconds. Moraller was a fifth of a second slower.

Bristol and Long were in the last heat, Bristol was a trifle in the lead at the start but Long began to gain. Then Bristol lost his nerve, and incidentally second place, for he slowed up, walked and came to a full stop. The spectators yelled and he started off again but Long had gained a lap and Bristol finished weakly. Long

EDITORS IN A SNOWBANK.

Editor Runyon. Editor Lewis. Editor Morrison. Editor Force.

Though the winter season is fast ebbing with the closing days of February, and the weather is balmy, the above picture will refreshen the memories of the blizzard which pervaded the country two weeks ago today. It is scarcely necessary to label the above cut, depicting a scene on Front street during the blizzard, or rather in its wake, but for those who cannot recognize the faces therein the following article, published in the New Brunswick Home News, will act as a chart:

Plainfield has a camera club, composed of wide awake members. One of these, J. Hervey Doane, a Plainfield merchant, on Feb. 14th, hit upon the idea of making large views fairly illustrating the snow storm of Monday, Feb. 13th, 1899, which the Weather Bureau says was the greatest storm of which it has any record. One of these views, sent to us by a friend, is made especially interesting by the fact that Mr. Doane managed to get in it a group of four men, each of whom, in his way, has done much to spread the fair fame of Plainfield.

These are Editors A. L. Force, A. H. Lewis, T. W. Morrison and F. W. Runyon. Mr. Morrison is a former New Brunswicker. In 1884 he started the Plainfield Evening News, which was Plainfield's first successful daily. Mr. Morrison is known to the publishers throughout the State as the first president of the State Publishers' Union, to which he was twice unanimously re elected, during part of the time being also vice-president of the New Jersey Editorial Association.

It was Mr. Force who, in 1887, started Plainfield's second successful daily, the Daily Press, the outgrowth of the Constitutionalist, which for many years he had made the most successful weekly in that section, if not in the entire State.

Mr. Runyon, in 1891, started the Courier, making it the third successful Plainfield daily. So much so that upon Mr. Morrison's retiring in 1894, Mr. Runyon was able to buy the News and by consolidation make the Courier News. The Runyons are notable in Plainfield and vicinity, many having achieved distinction. It was a cousin of Editor Runyon, a lawyer, who as General led the First Brigade of New Jersey troops to Washington to help put down the Rebellion, and so greatly distinguished himself that upon his return he was elected Chancellor, serving a few years ago as Minister to Germany.

Doctor Lewis may not be so well known to the publishers of the State, though he ought to be, as he is known throughout the United States as well as in Europe as the author of a two volume work entitled "The Influence of Christianity on the Roman Law," for which his fame shall endure long after he shall have passed away. But he is in the group because he is the editor of the Sabbath Record, published in Plainfield, and circulated through the United States as the official organ of the Seventh-day Baptists.

Plainfield seems a favorite place of residence with editors, for besides those in the view on our desk it has A. V. D. Honeyman, editor of the New Jersey Law Journal; Henry K. Carroll, for twenty years editor of the New York Independent, and Mr. Larribee, editor of Appleton's publications, and all highly gifted gentlemen.

They seem to thrive there physically, at least. We doubt if any other city in the State, population considered, can show editors of equal physique.

We are led to these observations through seeing one of Mr. Doane's excellent views, with the editorial brethren in such hearty, loving fellowship. We congratulate Plainfield on having its fame in the hands of such capable men, and we also congratulate the editors on their good taste and judgment in the selection of such an abiding place. We would remind them, however, that New Brunswick has some editors and charms of its own, which we will be glad to have them come and see.

HEART DISEASE.

SOME FACTS REGARDING THE RAPID INCREASE OF HEART TROUBLES.

Do Not Be Alarmed, But Look For The Cause.

Heart troubles, at least among the Americans, are certainly increasing and while this may be largely due to the excitement and worry of American business life it is more often the result of weak stomachs, of poor digestion.

Real organic disease is incurable; but not one case in a hundred of heart trouble is organic.

The close relation between heart trouble and poor digestion is because both organs are controlled by the same great nerves, the Sympathetic and Pneumogastric.

In another way, also the heart is effected by the form of poor digestion, which causes gas and fermentation from half digested food; there is a feeling of oppression and heaviness in the chest caused by pressure of the distended stomach on the heart and lungs, interfering with their action; hence arises palpitation and short breath.

Poor digestion also poisons the blood, making it thin and watery, which irritates and weakens the heart.

The most sensible treatment for heart trouble is to improve the digestion and to insure the prompt assimilation of food.

This can be done by the regular use after meals of some safe, pleasant and effective digestive preparation, like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which may be found at most drug stores and which contain valuable, harmless digestive elements in a pleasant, convenient form.

It is safe to say that the regular persistent use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at meal-time will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach.

Full sized package of these tablets sold by druggists at 50 cents. Little book on stomach troubles mailed free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

HANNA IS ALL RIGHT

Ex-Secretary Day Named as a U. S. Circuit Judge.

ALGER'S JUNKET TRIP OFF

The Army Bill is in Some Danger Yet from Obstructionists—There is Treasonable Talk in the House—Roosevelt Sees the Secretary of War—Dewey Bill Recommended.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—The Senate committee on privileges and elections has decided that no case was made in the protest against Senator Hanna of Ohio, and ordered such a report made to the Senate.

Senator Turley of Tennessee reserved the right to make a statement concerning the matter to the Senate, though no minority report will be made on the matter.

Senator Gorman and Senator Allen seriously threatened to filibuster against the passage of the compromise army bill. Neither senator would acknowledge that he was resorting to obstructive tactics, but they were doing nothing else.

Senator Gorman was led to take this course by what he considered a violation of the agreement entered into between the Republican and Democratic senators. He asserted that under that agreement all the increase above the present legal peace strength of the army was to exist only until July 1, 1901.

As the bill was reported to the Senate, however, it carried provisions that would increase the minimum peace strength of the army from 26,000 men to about 38,400—most of the increase being made by the addition of two heavy batteries t oeach regiment of artillery, making each regiment consist of twelve heavy batteries and two light batteries.

As Senator Cockrell and other Democratic members of the committee on military affairs agreed to this increase and defended it, Senator Gorman would seem to have more ground of complaint against his Democratic associates than against the Republicans.

There is still a bare possibility that the compromise bill may fail. Senators Gorman and Allen succeeded in preventing any agreement as to the time for a vote, and if they persist in their obstruction they can easily prevent the passage of the measure. It is not believed, however, that they will go that far.

The House is still to be reckoned with, however, and it is possible that a snag may be struck in that body.

Chairman Hull of the House committee is very much opposed to the compromise bill, which was brought in not as a substitute for his bill, which had already passed the House, but as a new measure.

Commenting upon section nine of the bill, which gives to cooks the pay and allowances of sergeants of infantry, Senator Allen said, ironically, it evidently required a higher order of talent to cook than to fight.

"If all that has been said about canned beef and embalmed beef is true," said he, "the ordinary cook ought to have higher pay than a colonel, because it would require a high order of skill to cook and serve such food successfully."

Mr. Allen said that he regarded it as a glorious thing that Rear Admiral Dewey had the presence of mind to cut the cable between him and Washington, and it was fortunate for Dewey he was in a position to sever connection with Washington.

"Then, too," said Mr. Allen, "we have the controversy over the two rear admirals in the navy. Whether the man who fought the battle resulting in the destruction of Cervera's fleet and won it shall have the laurels of victory, or whether they shall go to a man who was ten miles away, seems a subject of controversy by the navy department.

"The American people—seventy millions of honest hearts and honest souls—will always believe that Schley was the hero of that battle and won that battle, and I am not detracting anything from the service of Admiral Sampson, who, if he had been there, would have acquitted himself nobly."

Talk of Treason in the House.

While the army appropriation bill was before the House, Mr. Cochran of Missouri declared, upon the testimony of three American generals, that we solicited an alliance with Aguinaldo, that it was solemnly formed, that the Filipinos kept their faith, and that we shamefully violated our compact.

He referred to the reports of Generals Anderson, Greene and Merritt to prove his assertions of the valuable aid rendered by Aguinaldo and the insurgents.

Mr. Cochran also insisted that the four hundred thousand dollars said to have been embezzled by Aguinaldo had been used in the purchase of arms and in fighting the Spanish domination in the Philippines. This, he said, was proved by the testimony of Consul Wildman.

Mr. Lacey of Iowa denounced the Democrats generally for "firing into the rear of Otis" by sounding the praises of Aguinaldo and Agoncillo upon the floor of the House. While Aguinaldo was being compared with George Washington, he said, American soldiers were being killed and wounded.

"When we captured Manila," said Mr. Lacey, "your George Washington wanted to enter and loot it. With the evidence that Aguinaldo planned a massacre of our troops in Manila before them, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Lentz) might have withheld his comparison of Aguinaldo with Patrick Henry and others might have repressed their fulsome eulogies liking him to Bolivar and Washington."

"If the speeches made here yesterday by Mr. Simpson and others," said Mr. Cannon of Illinois, "had been made in Manila they would have been arrested, tried by drumhead court martial and shot."

Day Named for Judge.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—The president has sent to the Senate the nomination of William R. Day of Ohio to be United States circuit judge for the Sixth judicial district.

President McKinley's intention to give this appointment to Mr. Day was forecast several weeks ago. It is believed that Mr. Day will be advanced to the supreme court bench should a vacancy occur while Mr. McKinley is president.

Dewey Bill Recommended.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—The naval committee of the House has directed a favorable report on the Senate bill creating the grade of admiral, intended for Rear Admiral Dewey.

The bill was recently added as an amendment to the naval appropriation bill, but as some question was raised as to this method of procedure, the committee determined to report the bill as an independent measure.

The committee also acted favorably on the Senate bill granting two months' extra pay for naval service outside the United States during the war with Spain.

Alger and Roosevelt in Conference.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—For more than two hours Saturday afternoon Governor Roosevelt and Secretary Alger were together in the latter's office discussing the war.

This conference was arranged by the secretary, who sent a personal note to the New York governor requesting him to call upon him.

There is reason to believe that Secretary Alger assured Colonel Roosevelt that, notwithstanding reports printed to the contrary, he did not hold him responsible for the "round robin" circulated at Santiago and sent to the war department, which brought about the removal of the troops to Montauk Point. The secretary came to the conclusion several months ago that General Wood was really the author of the "round robin."

The governor sai dthat he had not come to Washington to appear before the beef court of inquiry. The object of his visit was to bid Senator Lodge good bye, as that gentleman will leave immediately after Congress adjourns for a European trip. The governor will leave for home to-night.

The Junket Trip Given Up.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—The junket which Secretary Alger and members of the military committees of the Senate and House contemplated taking on the Berlin, it has been officially announced at the war department, has been abandoned. This is the secretary's explanation of his determination:

"The present condition of the army bill and the work in the war department which will immediately follow should this bill become a law, make it necessary for the secretary of war to recall his invitation for the official trip to Cuba and Porto Rico on the Berlin, which was to have left New York on March 6."

GOMEZ COMING TO WASHINGTON.

Veteran Leader of the Cuban Insurrectionists Wants a Personal Interview.

Havana, Cuba, Feb. 27.—Maximo Gomes has decided to visit Washington and have a personal interview with President McKinley, who is regarded by the veteran insurrectionist as a great statesman and the ablest man America has produced since the civil war.

There are intimates of Gomez who say that he has held these sentiments less than a year, but be that as it may, Gomez is open in his regard for McKinley, who, he believes, is earnestly in favor of absolute independence for Cuba.

Gomez will not go North until the weather moderates and settles, but he will reach Washington, according to present plans, not later than April 20. In visiting the president, General Gomez believes he will be able to reach an understanding regarding the future which will be of great advantage to Cuba.

It is known that he agreed to accept three million dollars to pay troops only with the understanding that under certain conditions the United States would agree to guarantee Cuban bonds for a much larger amount.

It is to discuss these conditions that Gomez desires to visit the White House. He objects, it is well understood, to the continued military occupation of the island, though he might agree to grant a naval station in Havana harbor and the American occupation of one or two of the principal land defences about the city.

A petition has been prepared, directed to the president and Congress, asking for the removal of Generals Brooke and Ludlow. This has so far been circulated only in private, and the originators have not met with much success in securing signatures that are most wanted.

Why Depew Lost Presidency.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 27.—Senator-elect Depew, in speaking of the influence of railroads on politics, and the general idea citizens have of railroads in politics, said:

"Although in many of the smaller towns the station masters and operators, the railroad engineers and conductors are the brainest men in the town, it is impossible for one of them to be elected even to a trusteeship. They are regarded as servants of the 'octopus.'

"It was this feeling which prevented me from getting the presidential nomination in 1888. The New York delegation was enthusiastic for me, but the politicians of the West, Democratic and Republican, had vied with each other in teaching the people that to elect a railroad man to office meant to turn over the authority of government to the railroads and monopolies.

"The western delegation came to me and said: 'Mr. Depew, you can undoubtedly get the nomination, and you should be elected, but if you are the party will be disrupted. We will lose the legislatures, the senators and most of the congressmen in our states."

Warrant F. P. G. C. of K. of P.

Jersey City, N. J., Feb. 27.—Ralph Donath, who has been missing from No. 105 Wayne street since February 18, is wanted by the police, who have a warrant charging him with obtaining money on a worthless check, cashed by Tobias Cohen, of No. 23 Montgomery street.

It is said that he also induced Solomon Harris of Bloomfield, a Knight of Pythias, to cash a worthless check for fifty dollars, which was drawn on a Jersey City bank. There are said to be one or two others in Jersey City who were swindled by cashing Donath's checks.

SENATOR QUAY'S TRIAL

A Statement of the Case Against Pennsylvania's Senator.

DEFENCE WINS ONE POINT

Case Delayed by Legal Expedients Until Expiration of the Term of District Attorney Graham—Defendants Accused of Improper Use of State Funds Deposited in the Peoples Bank.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 27.—After a protracted battle for delay the criminal charges against Senator M. S. Quay and his son, former Representative R. R. Quay, will, by the consent of both sides, come to trial in the court of quarter sessions, before Judge Abraham M. Beitler to-day.

One important point that the senator and his counsel fought for it is conceded, has been won by them—that is, the elimination of former District Attorney George S. Graham from any connection with the prosecution, as District Attorney Rothermel will conduct the case with the aid of his regular assistants.

While the arrests were made early last October, and the defendants declared then that they would force the charges to a speedy trial, by the filing of demurrers, appeals for more time, and, finally, by appeal to the supreme court, they carried the case along until Mr. Graham retired from the office he had filled for eighteen years, and a district attorney whose face was practically unknown in the criminal courts took his place.

Those who were anxious to see everything there was in the case brought out, urged that Mr. Graham should be retained by Mr. Rothermel as a special assistant for the trial, so that his familiarity with the evidence and the preparation of the cases could be utilized for the benefit of the state's case, but it has been determined that he shall not appear at all.

Added to Quay's Counsel.

Mr. Quay has not pursued his policy of swapping horses while crossing the stream. He has spent a great deal of time in Philadelphia in consultation with his lawyers. His array of legal talent has just been added to in the person of John P. Elkin, attorney general of Pennsylvania, and, as chairman of the Republican state committee, one of Senator Quay's chief lieutenants.

Senator Quay has lost one point for which he was playing—the passing of the so-called McCarrell bill, depriving the prosecution of the power it has had for two hundred years in Pennsylvania of standing aside, without giving a reason, a certain number of jurors, in addition to any rejected for cause. The bill passed the state Senate, but in the House was postponed by Quay's opponents until March 21, in the belief that the Quay case would be disposed of by that time. However, the defence in a political case in Philadelphia is held to have an advantage in that the names that go into the jury wheel are furnished by the political leaders in the various wards.

Indictments in the cases to be tried were found on November 21, 1898. They charge conspiracy on the part of Senator Quay, Richard R. Quay and former State Treasurer Benjamin J. Haywood, who died on Thursday last, to convert to their use certain moneys of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which were deposited in the now defunct People's Bank of Philadelphia, whose cashier, John S. Hopkins, committed suicide nearly a year ago. Senator Quay is also charged with conspiring with Hopkins to unlawfully use the moneys of the People's Bank in the purchase and sale of stocks.

The People's Bank went into liquidation last spring after it was found that Hopkins had by his financial operations impaired its capital approximately to four hundred thousand dollars, which its saved president, James McJames made good out of his private fortune.

Although Thomas W. Barlow, chief assistant to District Attorney Graham, was the receiver of the bank, no steps against the Quays were taken until September 20 when a detective in the district attorney's office made oath to the affidavit upon which the present criminal charges were based. This fact became public on October 3, and the same day the Messrs. Quay appeared and entered bail for a hearing on October 5.

It is charged by the Quay side that this long delay is evidence of a conspiracy on the part of the district attorney, former Judge Gordon, a bitter political enemy of Quay, who has since resigned from the bench, and John Wanamaker, to injure the senator politically by springing criminal charges at a time when they were calculated to do the most harm—while the election of the legislature that was to elect Mr. Quay's successor was before the people.

Tt the hearing before a committee magistrate on October 5, Senator Quay made a statement in which he branded the charges as absolutely false and wholly without foundation. He said they were instigated by political enemies who hid behind the district attorney and would not permit him to reveal their names.

"I have instructed my counsel," he said, "to force this case to a speedy trial, in a court where both sides can be heard, and after that to expose illegally and punish to the utmost the instigators of this proceeding.

"Not a single share of stock was ever bought for me, either directly or indirectly, nor did I ever have the use or benefit, either directly or indirectly, to the extent of one penny, of any of the state money on deposit in the People's Bank.

"As to my son's transaction, which was perfectly legitimate, I had nothing whatever to do with it, except that, having full confidence in his ability to pay the loan, I indorsed his paper, and it was fully paid at maturity."

Kiplings Serious Condition.

New York, Feb. 2.—The illness of Rudyard Kipling has assumed a grave aspect. It was said yesterday at the Hotel Grenoble, where Mr. Kipling is living, that the patient was suffering from congestion of the right lung, as the result of a severe cold. At a consultation held yesterday Drs. Janeway and Dunham, who are attending Mr. Kipling, examined the patient and found that his left lung also has become slightly congested.

The advertisement canvasser for a St. Louis daily paper says of Ripans Tabules: "Ever since I can remember I have been troubled with constipation in its severest form. So acute, in fact, at times, as to produce dreadful headaches that, notwithstanding all the outdoor work afforded me by my vocation, and the latitude it allowed me to test my pedestrian abilities—which is supposed to be a successful manner of displacing constipation—I was very often compelled to forego my pursuit of 'business.' Constipation with me seemed to be hereditary rather than due to accidental causes, therefore much harder to relieve. In my extremity I often resorted to most drastic measures, but found no cure to be permanent. In 1892, while connected with the Times of El Paso, Tex., Ripans Tabules were brought to my notice, and I used them with marked success. Nowadays I never suffer from such severe cases of constipation, and the violent headaches I formerly experienced never worry me in the least. Sometimes, though, when I allow myself to lapse for a period into irregular habits, I become slightly constipated, but by taking the Tabules according to directions, my bowels again perform their functions in a highly pleasing manner."

JUDGE AND LAWYER DIVIDE.

An Ohio Senator and a Judge of the Common Pleas Will be Disbarred.

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 27.—State Senator Vernon H. Burke has been found guilty in the circuit court of the charge of dividing fees with a judge in a divorce case. Judge Caldwell read the findings of the court.

"As the evidence now stands before this court," he said, "we find that Judge Dellenbaugh and Vernon H. Burke were jointly the attorneys of Nettie A. Manning during the acts complained of in the first specification. We previously found that Judge Dellenbaugh did receive $1,000—one-third of the fees paid in the Manning case and that the weight of the evidence showed that Dellenbaugh participated in the management of the Manning case up to the time of the division of the fees."

Judge Caldwell said that the evidence showed that Mrs. Manning could not have obtained a divorce.

"There was a conspiracy," he said, "between Judge Dellenbaugh and Burke to get that decree upon the journal, and we feel warranted in placing the guilt equally upon Burke. We find Burke guilty on both specifications, and our judgment is that he be disbarred."

The court then declared the sentence in both cases to be disbarment. Judge Dellenbaugh can continue to act as judge of the common pleas court unless the legislature should remove him by impeachment proceedings.

Until a year or two ago Dellenbaugh and Burke were personal friends. When M. A. Hanna began his campaign for the United States Senate, Judge Dellenbaugh became one of his most active supporters. Burke, on the other hand, as a member of the Ohio Senate, was the leader in the state legislature of the anti-Hanna movement. This resulted in a bitter quarrel between Dellenbaugh and Burke. Eventually sensational rumors were circulated concerning Judge Dellenbaugh. Burke openly asserted that he knew enough to drive Dellenbaugh from the bench; that he had divided fees with him in a case which had been tried before Dellenbaugh as judge.

Dellenbaugh denied these rumors in open court and asked that the Cleveland Bar Association investigate them This was done, with the result that both Burke and Dellenbaugh were brought before the circuit court in disbarment proceedings.

TRYING TO GET STANDARD BOOKS

Secretary Refuses Because of Incriminating Evidence that Might be Obtained.

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 27.—Attorney General Monnett has filed a petition in the Ohio supreme court praying for an order of the court requiring F. B. Squire, secretary of the Standard Oil Company, to appear and show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court in violating the order of the court to produce the Standard Oil Company's account books showing its gross earnings from March, 1892, to November, 1897, and what has been done with the same; also to whom earnings and dividends have been distributed.

Admitting that the books are in his possession as secretary of the company, Squire refused to produce them for three reasons:

First, because they are demanded in an action instituted against the Standard Oil Company for contempt of court and for the purpose of proving the company guilty of contempt in order tha tthe penalties for contempt may be inflicted upon it and its officers, and I am informed that to enforce their production in such a case and for such a purpose is an unreasonable search and seizure.

Second, because the books disclose facts and circumstances which may be used against the Standard Oil Company, tending to prove it guilty of offenses made criminal by an act of the legislature of Ohio.

Third, because they disclose facts and circumstances which may be used against myself personally as an officer of said company, tending to prove me guilty of offenses made criminal by that act.

Porters' Trip in the Interest of Beef.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—Robert P. Porter's mission to Germany is in the interest of the beef packers of the United States.

It has been repeatedly denied by the authorities that he has any official connection with the government, though statements made by Mr. Porter have given this impression.

Officials of the administration were informed by Mr. Porter before his departure that he was going abroad as the representative of the beef interests for the purpose of making an investigation of the needs of the people of Europe, especially of Germany, in the way of meats, the restrictions applied to their importation and the steps that should be taken to counteract them.

Baron De Reuter Passes Away.

Nice, Feb. 27.—Baron Julius de Reuter died in the Villa Reuter Saturday. He was eighty-three years old and had been failing since January.

He was only in bed a week. The funeral will be in London on Tuesday.

Baron Paul Julius de Reuter's career is almost identical with the development of the telegraph from the days of its inception by Morse.

He was born in Cassel in 1816. The first public telegraph line between Berlin and Aix-la-Chapelle had hardly been successfully opened, in 1849, before he established an office in the latter city for the dissemination of news. In the infancy of telegraphy he bridged gaps between the wires with carrier pigeons and relays of fast horses.

Kaiser Decorates Bulgaria's Captain.

Berlin, Feb. 27.—Emperor William's dispatch to the director of the Hamburg-American steamship line, congratulating the company on the happy issue of the Bulgaria's experience, says:

"With deep gratitude to God, who has so marvellously saved the ship and crew, I express my warmest congratulations on the saving of the Bulgaria. Captain Schmidt, like a true German seaman, and with a firm trust in God, victoriously carried on a life and death struggle for twenty-four days against the ocean, assisted by a crew, gallant and self-sicrificing, devoted to duty. As a mark of my recignition of his services I bestow upon Captain Schmidt the Cross of Commander of the Hohenzollern Family Order. You will communicate to me the names of the crew who are deserving of distinction."

GLORY FLIES IN CEBU

Dewey's Political Reasons Are Germany and Japan.

FILIBUSTERS ARE ACTIVE

The German Cruiser Kaiserin Augusta Has Arrived at Manila—Expeditions Sent Out in the Interest of Aguinaldo—Large Force Visible to the Northward of Manila.

Manila, Philippine Islands, Feb. 27.—The German cruiser Kaiserin Augusta, which arrived here Saturday from Iloilo, brought the news that the United States gunboat Petrel had visited the island of Cebu, in the Visayan group of the Philippines, and hoisted the American flag. The president of the local government of the island declared he yielded only to superior force.

The deputation from Negros island, which came here after the people there had accepted the rule of the United States, is evidently pleasel with its reception. Its members will return to Bacolet, the capital of the island, on Tuesday.

Later reports show that there was considerable firing at Caloocan Saturday night. The Filipinos are becoming more accurate in their firing. During the skirmish Saturday night two men on the railroad were slightly wounded. A member of the Kansas regiment was shot through the head Sunday morning. It is believed that his wound is mortal.

A Spaniard with a flag of truce came through the lines of the Kansas regiment yesterday morning at half past eight o'clock.

The Filipinos are visible in force to the northward.

The island of Cebu is the most important province of the Visayas group of the Philippines, its area being two thousand square miles and its population more than half a million. Under the Spanish regime the capital was a city of considerable commercial and political importance.

Cause of Dewey's Cabig.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—With the arrival of the German cruiser Kaiserin Augusta at Manila and the reports of filibustering expeditions from Japan in the interest of Aguinaldo, there is a well defined suspicion in the public mind here that the "political reasons" of Admiral Dewey for desiring the Oregon must be interpreted in the broadest sense—that her presence is desired as much for the moral effect in preventing foreign interference as in bringing the insurgent forces to terms.

Rear Admiral Dewey's only dispatch to the navy department was one of the usually happy messages he sends. It told of the peaceful occupation of Cebu by the Petrel. This message was confirmed by General Otis, who cabled to the war department:

Manila, Feb. 25.

Adjutant General, Washington:

Condition of affairs quiet. Progressing favorably. Anxiety need not be felt in regard to the situation. Will send a small body of troops to Cebu, where navy took quiet possession.

The anxiety of the officials has reached such a point that there is no further doubt that Rear Admiral Dewey will be asked to submit an explanation. The meeting of the foreign consuls on Saturday, followed by Admiral Dewey's request for the Oregon, is regarded as highly significant, but in the official dispatches there is no connection of the two incidents, and in fact the authorities declare that they have not been advised that the foreign consuls did confer.

The statement that Admiral Dewey's dispatch came in open English is an error. The department received from him two dispatches Saturday, one relating to the arrival of the Yorktown which fas in plain English, and the other relative to the Oregon, which was in the navy cipher. It was not intended that this dispatch should have been given publicity, but in the haste of preparation of matter to go before the cabinet, it escaped official scrutiny on the part of Secretary Long and was permitted to reach the press along with the other current routine dispatches.

It was pointed out that this government had an ample force at Manila to provide protection to foreign interests, and that the vessels which might be landed from foreign men of war would form a very small guard, which could not be effective against the Filipinos unless supported by the American troops.

While the authorities are anxious to place at General Otis's disposal all the troops he may need, there seems to be no apparent desire on his part for the department to hasten reinforcements to him.

The statement in his last dispatch that no anxiety need be felt there had a quieting effect, and the result was an order directing that two companies of the Ninth infantry be sent to the Vancouver barracks and there take station, and that the remainder of the regiment proceed to San Francisco. It is now apparent to the authorities that General Otis is confident that he has the situation well in hand, and the only thing over which they now feel any concern is Rear Admiral Dewey's mysterious dispatch concerning the Oregon.

Much to the surprise of the officials, the civilian members of the Philippines commission have not yet arrived at Hong Kong, where the Baltimore is waiting to convey them to Manila. The administration will be glad when Professor Schurman and his associates arrive at Manila, because they expect that they will be able to establish immediate communication with the insurgents, which will result in convincing them o fthe friendly purposes of the United States. What has been one of the embafrassing features of the Philippine situation has been the inability of the American military force to impress the Filipinos with the friendly intentions of the administration.

Many Arrests Keep Filipinos Quiet

Manila, Feb. 27.—The military police have raided several suspected houses in various districts, capturing small bodies of twenty to thirty prisoners in each place. This and the seven o'clock ordinance is effectually dispelling the fears of the threatened outbreak of the natives, who do not dare, singly or collectively, to appear in the streets after dark.

The feeling in the city has decidedly improved, although the Chinese are still timorous. Hundreds of applicants for cedulas besiege the registrar's office, the natives apparently being under the impression that their possession insures them from interference and the ignominy of being searched for arms on the streets.

It is generally believed that the disastrous attempts to attack the city and destroy property (the Filipinos themselves being the worst sufferers), will prevent their recurrence. But every precaution is being taken to deal with an emergency if it arises.

The insurance agents refuse to entertain any claims on account of Wednesday night's fires. They intimate that General Otis, having guaranteed the safety of the life and property of the inhabitants of Manila, is responsible for these claims.

Outside of the city the sharpshooters about Caloocan are very annoying. Six men belonging to the brigade commanded by General Harrison Gray Otis, have been wounded. All is quiet elsewhere.

Lawton Urged to Hurry.

Colombo, Island of Ceylon, Feb. 27.—The United States transport Grant, which sailed from New York for Manila with troops, under command of Major General Henry W. Lawton, on board, arrived here Sunday. General Lawton received a cablegram from Major General Otis, in charge of the American military forces in the Philippines, saying:

"Situation critical. Your early arrival necessary."

He also received from General Corbin, United States adjutant general, a cablegram urging him to hurry.

General Lawton ordered his officers to buy supplies regardless of expense, and the transport is taking on coal and water hurriedly. She will try to reach Manila without any further stop.

GOULD'S REBUFF TO CROKER.

The Boss Wanted to Hang His Air Pipes on the Elevated Structure.

New York, Feb. 27.—The Post of this city says that the following account of what passed between George Gould and Richard Croker in relation to attaching compressed air pipes to the structure of the elevated railroad comes from a source which can be depended upon as entirely accurate:

"Mr. Croker called upon M. Gould and demanded the privilege, in behalf of his auto-truck company, of attaching its compressed air pipes to the elevated company's structure on all the streets covered by their lines. Mr. Gould met him courteously and stated that if he would submit his plans he would consult his chief engineer as to whether the structures would carry the lead. He would also ascertain from his counsel whether the Manhattan Company had authority to give the necessary permission for attaching the pipes, whereupon Mr. Croker said:

"'Oh, hell! I want the pipes put on, and I don't want any circumlocution!'

"Mr. Gould then said: 'I am surprised at the tenor of your demand. Don't you think it would be better to give me an opportunity to consult my officials?'

"'No,' answered Croker, 'we want the pipes put on, and we don't want any fuss about it.'

"Mr. Gould's final remark was: 'Under the circumstances, Mr. Croker, I will settle the question now, without referring it to my officials. I will say to you now that we will not permit you to attach your pipes to the elevated structures.'

"To the Post's informant Mr. Gould added that he had the best information to the effect that Croker and his following had for a long time been short of Manhattan elevated at about par. Mr. Gould is confident of the ability of himself and his officials of defeating Croker's plans.

Mr. Croker, when asked about the foregoing statements, expressed weariness of the many rumors that have followed the Tammany attack on the Manhattan Company.

"I do not intend to pay any attention to statements from unauthorized sources," he declared. He declined to discuss the article.

Close friends of the Tammany leader say that he thinks it "ridiculous" that any one should attribute the present fight to the failure of the American Air Power Company to close a contract with the Manhattan Company for the transmission of air power. They insist that more than a disagreement over the proposition was necessary to cause the present attack.

One of Croker's friends said that if it had not been for the publication of the Board of Health's condemnatory report the Manhattan Company and the American Air Power Company would have closed their contract within forty-eight hours. According to his statement everything had been agreed upon and the attorneys for the two corporations were engaged in preparing the final details.

This statement is denied by friends of the Manhattan Company, who assert that the Tammany attack was not made until after the Manhattan officials had rejected the application of the air power company.

It was reported that the Tammany politicians, who had been caught heavily short of Manhattan stock, ten or fifteen points below present prices, had made a private settlement and that the fight against the elevated road would not be pressed. According to one story, the chief Tammany pool, which was supposed to be carrying a short interest in one office, lost upwards of four hundred thousand dollars.

The Spirit Complied With.

Even the worst enemies of the Plainfield Street Railway Company cannot but admit that that corporation met the exigencies occasioned by our now departed blizzard in a very creditable manner. Particularly was this noticeable in the rapid removal of the snow from West Front street after the storm was over. Now the warmest advocates of the recently passed trolley ordinance, who were instrumental in its passage, point out with praise that the cleaning up of the streets in the business section was due entirely to the excellence of the provisions of the ordinance.

All the company was compelled to do by the letter of the law was to remove and cart away the snow that fell on its tracks. It was permitted to first scrape the snow to one side of the road and then cart it away. The company was not, however, at all responsible, under the ruling of the ordinance, for the huge banks of snow on the north side of Front street. The drifts were almost entirely on the north side of the street, partially covering the sidewalks. Then the latter were cleared and the snow was heaped way up just beyond the gutters.

When a prominent citizen was arguing that the ordinance deserved all the credit, that phase of the situation was suggested. Referring to the snow on the sidewalks, he indefinitely remarked that it "didn't cut any ice." Had he tried to make his way along the north side of West Front street the day of the blizzard, he might have had a different opinion regarding it.

The blizzard was an expensive thing for the street railway, costing that corporation over $1,200 in all. It is but fair, therefore, to give a corporation its due as it obeyed the spirit of the law rather than the letter and cleaned the street along the line of the trolley, whether the snow happened to be thrown there from the trolley tracks or the sidewalks.

Senator Sewell's Stand.

The colonial expansion policy, which has come to be recognized as distinctly of the McKinley administration, has been attacked by Senator Sewell, of New Jersey, who comes out in plain words against the idea of retaining the Philippines. In a speech before the Senate last Friday, which has attracted widespread attention, Mr. Sewell described his attitude on this important National problem in no uncertain tone.

After describing how he hoped that war with Spain could have been avoided, but after once in it how anxious he was for victory, the Senator gets down to the Philippine legacy which the conflict left us and says:

"I was never in favor of the acquisition of the Philippines. I said to the President the day after Dewey's magnificent victory in Manila Bay: 'For God's sake, order him away from there!'"

Mr. Sewell then stated his reasons for not desiring the Pacific Islands. He said that he had visited them and was satisfied from personal observation that they and their inhabitants were not desirable acquisitions to this country. He declared that it would take an army of from 25,000 to 50,000 to maintain our control in the Philippines. Even now the American troops were cooped up in Manila, and thus far had been able to accomplish little. In his opinion, 20,000 men would be required in Cuba and several thousand in Puerto Rico, so that practically the entire army would be used in what might be termed our island possessions. With the mustering out of the volunteers, we would not be in position to hold our own anywhere, as many men would be needed to take care of the coast fortifications if they were to have proper attention.

Under the present law sheriffs in various counties receive twenty-three cents per mile for conveying prisoners to the State prison in Trenton, which is ample to pay the expenses and leave a liberal sum for most of them to pocket for their private use. But there is one sheriff who is deprived of mileage fees, and that is the Mercer county official, because his office is located in the same city with the prison. As everlasting hope of greater returns from their position always springs eternal in the breast of a public official, a bill has appeared in the Legislature providing that all sheriffs receive a stipulated fee of $3 for transporting prisoners to the State prison. The reason thereof is obvious. It is a bill of the bad species and should be killed without more ado. In discussing the measure, however, the Newark News makes this timely suggestion: "A sensible system would pay the sheriff a fixed salary and tax the county for the actual cost of removing the prisoners, which in Mercer would be nothing."

The local correspondent of the Newark Advertiser seems to have got things slightly twisted in borough politics. In a Plainfield news item in the Advertiser it is stated that Mayor Wilson is likely to fall of the Democratic nomination to succeed himself, and in that case he will be named by the G. O. P. From an impartial standpoint it looks as though Col. Wilson would surely be nominated by his own party, as well as standing a fair chance of Republican support.

Now, who would ever think, looking at the picture taken during the blizzard, but that all was lovely and the goose hung high in the editorial ranks of the local press. Really, editors are not so bad towards each other as editorials sometimes suggest.

Owing to a pecular state of affairs the Borough election occurs March 14th and the term of Borough officials expire on the following day, thus necessitating a meeting of the new Mayor and Council the evening after election.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The mayor's salary bill has passed the senate. It applies to Elizabeth, Paterson, Camden, Trenton, Hoboken, Orange, New Brunswick, Passaic, Plainfield, Bridgeton, Perth Amboy and Bayonne. It authorizes the common council in second class cities to pass an ordinance fixing the salary to be paid to the mayor at $2,500, or any lesser sum. It originated in Bayonne.—Elizabeth Journal.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A Plainfield man, who is a regular attendant at one of the churches of the city, succeeded in attending service yesterday morning as usual, and the way he enjoyed the service can best be imagined by the following lines which he penned afterwards: "The sermon of Dr. —— without a doubt was instructive and interesting, judging from the attention given by those members of the church who occupied seats near the writer who who tried to obtain a view of the speaker, but was prevented. The view was entirely obliterated by feathers, plumes and the contents of a millinery store placed on top of a small hat worn by a devout young lady who supposed, no doubt, the speaker was trying to edify her to the exclusion of those who occupied the pews in the rear. Why is it that the milliners are afraid to leave the plumes, feathers and all the various devices which go to make up their stock in the store over Sunday? Or do they hire them out to be displayed on the top of hats to shut off the view of that part of the congregation who are unfortunate enough to occupy seats directly behind these pyramids of artificial ingenuity."

The two days' fair for the benefit of the public library was brought to a close Saturday night, and the treasury of the association will be increased by a nice sum. At the close the remaining articles in the booths were auctioned off to the highest bidders and in that way every thing was turned into cash. George Goodborough acted as auctioneer and with his ready wit and sally made the articles bring good prices. During the evening the hall was filled with a large audience and all sorts of money making schemes were indulged in at the expense of those attending.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongued coated, pain continually in the back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50cts., guaranteed, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store.

MILLIONS WASTED.

SUCH IS THE CLAIM OF THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

They Are Now Trying to Get a Bill Through Congress to Do Away with Letters That Are Not Sounded—A Spelling Reform.

Spelling reform must come, says the American Philological association. And it says so emphatically. While the country is being asked to exercise itself and grow heated over the discussion of reforms in police departments, aldermanic boards, street car companies, trust legislation and the question of the eternal feminine, too little attention is being paid to the subject of spelling reform, in which not a small class of citizens, not a select few from a certain walk in life, not the members of an individual community, but every man, woman and child in the United States, is decidedly interested. The 74,500,000 persons in this Republic, says the officers of the association, are all directly affected by the proposition to reform the manner of spelling many of the words in daily use.

The association is trying to get a bill through congress which shall correct what it describes as an evil. The statement is made that the irregular spelling of the English language causes a loss of two years of the school time of each child and is mainly the cause of the alarming illiteracy of our people; that it involves an expense of hundreds of millions of dollars annually for teachers and for writing and printing superfluous letters, and that it is an obstacle in many ways to the progress of the education of those speaking the English language and to the spread of the language among other nations.

"The changes of preterits and past participles of our verbs suggest another and perhaps more interesting rule. In the early English the preterits of our regular verbs are two syllables longer than they are now. In the Wyclifite Bible 'axide' (asked), 'blesside' (blessed), 'kisside' (kissed), 'filide' (filled), 'passide' (passed), and 'walkide' (walked), are familiar examples of preterits of three syllables now of one; 'answeride,' 'perischide,' 'apperide,' and 'worschipide' of four syllables formerly, but now of two. The unaccented, weak vowels in 'ide' were freely dropped. Some early verbs have 'ade,' some 'ede,' some 'ude,' some 'ede' and in some the vowel before 'de' is absent — 'lufade — ode — ude — ede' (loved); 'lyfode—ede,' 'lifde' (lived); 'demed,' 'demde' (deemed); 'de' was the significant part of the suffix, and the law of least effort led to the weakening and dropping of the unaccented vowel before it.

"It is of no use to try to characterize with fitting epithets and adequate terms of objurgation the monstrous spelling of the English language. The time lost by it is a large part of the whole school time of the mass of men. Count the hours that each man wastes in learning to read at school, the hours which he wastes thru life from the hindrance to easy reading; the hours wasted at scool in learing to spel; the hours spent thru life in keeping up and perfecting this knowledge of spelling, in consulting dictionaries—a work that never ends; the hours that he spends in writing silent letters, and multiply this time by the number of persons who speak English, and we shall have a total of millions of years wasted by each generation. The cost of printing the silent letters of the English language is to be counted by millions of dollars for each generation, and yet literary amateurs fall in luv with these squintings and lispings. They try to defend them by pleading their advantage in the study of etymology, but a changeless orthografy destroys the material for etymological study, and writn records ar valuabl to the filologist just in proportion as they ar accurat records of speech as spoken from year to year."

Here is a sample bill, which, in one form or another, the association is trying to get through congress:—

"Resolved, That the public printer be and is hereby directed in all works for congress and for the departments begun after the passage of this resolution to adopt the following rules for amended spellings, except in educational and other works where a different orthography may be required:—

"First—Drop 'ue' at the end of words like 'dialogue,' 'catalogue,' etc., where the preceding vowel is short. Thus, spell 'demagog,' 'epilog,' 'synagog,' etc. When the preceding vowel is long, as in 'prorogue,' 'vogue,' 'disembogue,' etc., retain final letters as at present.

"Second — drop final 'e' in such." words as 'definite,' 'infinite,' 'favorite,' etc., when the preceding vowel is short. Thus, spell 'opposit,' 'preterit,' 'hypocrit,' 'requisit,' etc. When the preceding vowel is long, as in 'polite,' 'finite,' 'unite,' etc., retain present forms unchanged.

"Third—Drop final 'te' in words like 'quartette,' 'coquette,' 'cigarette,' etc. Thus, spell 'cigaret,' 'roset,' 'epaulet,' 'vedet,' 'gazet,' etc.

"Fourth—Drop final 'me' in words like 'programme.' Thus, spell 'program,' 'orifiam,' 'gram,' etc.

"Fifth—Change 'ph' to 'f' in words like 'phantom,' 'telegraph,' 'phase,' etc. Thus, spell 'alfabet,' 'paragraf,' 'filosofy,' 'fonetic,' 'fotograf,' etc.

Sixth—Substitute 'e' for the diphthongs 'ae' and 'oe' when they have the sound of that letter, as in 'eolian,' 'eatheneum,' etc.

"N. B.—No

THE AMERICAN WASH-DAY.

Some Royal People of Europe Had but Two a Year, Some None.

Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, writing to the New York World, says when housekeepers sometimes entertain friends with the discomforts and trials of washing day, one is tempted to suggest a return to the primitive customs of the ancients or to the days of the Tudors and Stuarts, and inquire if that would make life more enjoyable. No cotton or linen was known in those days, and wearing apparel was never washed. What happiness! What glorious lives they must have led!

The garments of the poor were made of harsh, coarse woolens, and were unwashed and uncleansed until they could hold together no longer. No underclothing was worn by rich or poor! How would our dainty matrons like being served by such unwashed attendants? The nobles and people of wealth were clothed in rich silks and velvets, or taffetas—a kind of thick silk with a wavy lustre—much like the watered silks of more modern times. Washing such garments was, of course, never attempted. If by long continual use they became unseemly they were colored. It was years after this before any linen undergarments were ever heard or thought of—and even then, if some royal personage occasionally received such a treasure, it would occasion as much curiosity and comment as could be given to anything before reporters of newspapers were abroad in the land.

Anne Boleyn and Queen Elizabeth were, I think, the first to introduce wearing nightgowns. But they were made of heavy silks and velvet, trimmed with lace and often lined with fur. We have seen copies of Queen Bess's orders in some historical records for a certain number of sable skins to line a purple velvet nightgown, and also the quantity of lace required. When such garments passed out of her hands they were dyed, if her ladies in waiting chose, but never washed.

After many years a more cleanly order of things began to creep gradually in. With this approach to decency and comfort the necessity of washing such articles began to dawn upon the now partially cultivated community; but, like the housecleaning of the present day, it was only two or three times a year. As the product of the loom became more abundant, so the desire for a larger quantity of clothing grew with the increased supply, and as garments multiplied the pleasure and comfort of having them clean became more apparent.

Weekly family washings became a regular arrangement with us much earlier than in the old country. Some time after the Hungarian revolution, when Kossuth, with many of his brave compeers was in America, one of the noble ladies who was in our family some weeks was greatly astonished to learn that our washing was done every week, and in our own house. From her I learned better than ever before how this work was managed throughout Europe generally.

Spring and autumn were the times usually employed for the great washing carnival. The clothes from many families were brought in large hampers to the bank of some river, where, after being washed, they were spread out to bleach for several days, but need enough there must have been for a long process of bleaching to whiten clothes than had been soiled for six months.

The grounds were under the care of public authorities day and night, to prevent any disturbance where so many were assembled together; but when washing, bleaching, drying, mangling and ironing were all completed, those who had borne the burden and heat of the day finished, as they do with us in hop-picking season, by a night of dancing and hilarity. That part of the performance may have been some compensation to the employes. But what promised sport after the work was done would seem any compensation for having their clothes lie six months dirty, growing yellow and rotten to escape the trouble of a weekly washing?

The Actor's Check.

There was once a comedian who out-financed Edward E. Rice. Startling as the statement may seem, it is nevertheless true that when this farceur retired from Mr. Rice's company he owed the manager $700. To Mr. Rice the condition was not alone unusual—it was also irksome. One morning when he was fretting under it he learned that the actor had secured a first-rate engagement at a large salary. He sat down and wrote an urgent letter, finishing with a demand for an immediate remittance of "a check for seven hundred." In due course he received a communication by mail containing a heavy metallic disc. The letter read:

"Dear Ned—Yours received. Find enclosed, as requested, a check for seven hundred."

The metallic disc was a C. B. & Q. railway baggage check numbered 700.

The Proper Attitude.

"There's just one thing about this financial question," said the confident young man, "that I don't understand."

His father gazed at him and exclaimed:

"There's no use, my son, in your coming to me for information. If you've gotten that subject mastered to such a degree that there's only one thing about it that you don't understand, it isn't my place to say a word. The thing for me to do is to drag up a footstool, sit down on it, look up into your eyes, and drink wisdom."—Washington Star.

YELLOWSTONE PARK.

ONE OF THE SEVEN THOUSAND WONDERS OF THE WORLD.

Bears Fed by the Visitors—Every Fur Bearing Animal That Ever Flourished in America Is There—Excellent Rules for Their Preservation.

The Yellowstone National Park is one of the seven thousand wonders of the modern world. Its wonders may be seen there which nowhere else greet the eye.

What do you think, for instance, of agreeable bears, laying aside their primitive roughness, which stroll in the park, are fed by visitors to its hotels, and steal the tourists' luncheons from their baskets? How different from the days, not greatly remote, when tourists, from a different point of view, were objects of interest and enjoyment to bears!

The wolverine also lives in the park, and the whole race of fur-bearing animals, great and small, are prospering. Beavers are peopling the brooks and their colonies are watched and protected. Numerous new dams have been built during the year.

Every fur-bearing animal that ever flourished in North America is here, except the cross-fox. Martens are plentiful, otters fairly abundant, the mink, wild cat and even the lynx are common. The lynx feeds mainly on rabbits and birds and does not injure deer. Badgers, swarms of muskrats, squirrels, chipmunks, rabbits of many kinds, down to the tiny "paca," or rock-rabbit, and porcupines are increasing yearly, and the red fox and scarce block fox are frequently seen.

To these must be added such a list of birds as would have rejoiced Audubon himself. Pelicans, geese, ducks, king-fischers, gulls, cranes, swans, and ospreys haunt the lakes and warm streams and marshes; eagles and falcons nest in the forests and feed upon the wild fowl; and the woods are full of game birds.

The bison is almost the only animal that does not increase. They are not sufficient in number and the breeding is too close. But, except the grizzly bear, the musk-ox, which did not come so far south, and the puma, there is hardly a mammal missing. The finest deer in the world, the wapiti, are numerous and increasing. They breed and feed in the reserve, coming into the low grounds in winter to feed, and in summer to drop their calves.

The fine "mule-deer" and black-tailed deer are very common. The only enemy to their increase, as well as of all the other cervidae and the wild sheep, are the coyotes. The larger wolves have not yet appeared in any number, as they have in the Algonquin park, which Canada has set aside for a national preserve, but the coyotes kill fawns of deer, moose, antelope and wapiti, and are difficult to kill down with poison.

The moose are increasing, so are prong-horned antelope and wild sheep. The big-horn sheep is one of the finest of his race, and though it now survives in some ranges of the Sawtooth mountains and similar ground in the Northwest, is always within measurable distance of extirpation.

The rules for preservation of the animals are excellent. No person may carry firearms through the park without a permit. The scouts sleep out at night, even in the winter, to watch possible poachers. It is probable that the reindeer bought for the Klondike relief expedition may be brought down from Alaska for their use.

In one respect the park is open to sportsmen. Fishing is permitted, and very fine fishing it is.

Be Careful How You Sit.

Recently an eminent physician gave utterance to the opinion that appendicitis is more common in this country than in others, because of the Yankee custom that men have—and men are more frequently sufferers from the disease than women—of habitually sitting with one leg thrown over the other. The habit, the physician was quoted as saying, restricts the action of the digestive apparatus, and especially of the lower intestines, and causes stagnation of the contents and the stretching of the opening of the vermiform appendix, making it possible for obstructions to reach the latter, and thus giving rise to appendicitis. There is no other disease, if we may judge from the attention given to it by current publications, in which the general public takes so much interest as in this one, which is comparatively new to medical practice. Probably much of the popular interest is due to the fact that only within a few years what may be called the literature of appendicitis has reached the reading community.—Leslie's Weekly.

Pennies for Fruit.

"I wish," said the doctor the other day, as he watched a group of school children troop out of a candy store, where they had been spending their pennies, according to the New York Times, "that I could form a society among little folks in which each member would take a pledge to spend all his pocket money for fruit instead of candy." It seemed a funny way of putting it, didn't it? But the physician was very much in earnest, and at the moment it probably occurred to him that, as children like clubs, an anti-candy club would be a good one for them. He wanted to do two things—to stop their eating the unhealthful sweet, and to coax them to eat more fruit. An apple or a banana, or an orange can usually, one or the other of them, be bought for the price of a little candy, and the fruit is much better in every way than the sweet.

Braunschweig.

Anhalt.

Braunschweig. Die kunstgeschichtlich weltberühmte Fassade des Demmerschen Hauses im Sack wurde von der Stadt für 25,000 Mark angekauft, um an anderer Stelle wieder aufgerichtet zu werden.

Sandersleben. Hier hat der „Darlehens- und Kreditverein" bankerott gemacht, weil der mit der Kassenverwaltung betraute Stadtrath Lorenz 72,000 Mark unterschlagen hat. Lorenz wurde verhaftet, konnte jedoch wegen seiner schwachen Gesundheit die Gefängnißhaft nicht vertragen und wurde deshalb wieder auf freien Fuß gesetzt.

Großherzogthum Hessen.

Darmstadt. Der hiesige Gastwirthe-Verein hat die Gründung einer Innungs-Krankenkasse beantragt. Nachdem bereits die Bürgermeisterei Darmstadt in den eingeforderten Gutachten sich gegen die Bildung einer solchen Kasse ausgesprochen hat, äußerte sich kürzlich das Gewerbegericht auf Befragen des Kreisamts in gleichem Sinne. Es verneinte einstimmig die Frage des Bedürfnisses und der Zweckmäßigkeit der Errichtung.

Mainz. Der hier seit einigen Jahren gegründete Bau- und Sparverein zur Errichtung kleiner und gesunder Wohnungen wird mit der Eröffnung der Bausaison in der Nähe des Zollhafens eine Anzahl Neubauten für 50 bis 60 Wohnungen von zwei bis drei Zimmern errichten. Der Verein besitzt bereits an der Mombacher Straße mehrere Häuser, deren Einwohner sehr zufrieden sind.—Die Bürgermeisterei beabsichtigt die Einführung von Frauen in die öffentliche Armenpflege.

Worms. Bei der neuen Steuerreform ist das zur Zeit höchste Einkommen im Großherzogthum Hessen auf 1,353,000 bis 1,354,000 Mark per Jahr angegeben und vermuthlich in Worms zu suchen und zu finden. Interessant ist dabei die Thatsache, daß dieses größte hessische Einkommen circa 100,000 Mark mehr als die großherzogliche Civilliste beträgt.

Bayern.

München. In Folge des Orpheumsbrandes nimmt der Magistrat die Theater- und Vergnügungslokale wieder unter schärfere baupolizeiliche Aufsicht. So mußte das Volkstheater und das katholische Kasino die Vorstellungen einstellen, ersteres im Mai, letzteres sofort. Außerdem werden den Besitzern mehrerer neuerbauter Lokalsäle feuerpolizeiliche Auflagen gemacht. —Gelegentlich der diesjährigen Fastnacht hatte die Polizei der hiesigen Künstlergesellschaft verboten, in ihrem Karnevalszug drei Gruppen aufzunehmen, welche sich auf die Abrüstungskonferenz bezogen.—Der Reichstags- und bayerische Landtags-Abgeordnete Dr. Ratzinger hat sich hier einer Magenresektion unterzogen und liegt in kritischem Zustande darnieder.

Freyung. Die Gendarmerie von Oberkreuzberg hat einen gewissen Burggraf, Fabrikarbeiter von Fürstenhut, unter dem dringenden Verdachte verhaftet, daß er am 22. Januar zu Schönberg den Dienstknecht Josef Fürst von Kleinmüssberg erstochen hat. Burggraf war in Spiegelau beschäftigt und hat bereits ein Geständniß abgelegt.

Furth i. W. Zwei hiesige Revisionsbeamte hatten das Glück, eine schon lange in üblem Rufe stehende, als besonders schlau bekannte Schmuggerin aus Böhmen festzunehmen, als sie Spitzen im Werthe von etwa 1000 Mark auf dem Leibe, ihre nächtlichen Wege über die Grenze wandelte.

Landshut. Im Jahre 1898 wurden im Kreise Niederbayern zehn Lehrer dauernd und sieben Lehrer und Lehrerinnen zeitweise in den Ruhestand versetzt. Hiervon erreichte das höchste Dienstalter mit 54 Jahren der sich seltener Rüstigkeit erfreuende Herr Schwarz in Englmar. Mehr als 40 Dienstjahre zählten neun Lehrer, während sich ein Hilfslehrer mit drei Dienstjahren auf Lebenszeit und eine Hilfslehrerin schon nach sechsmonatiger Verwendung im Schulfache temporär pensioniren lassen mußte.

Schwaben. In einem Waggon dritter Klasse auf der Strecke zwischen Erding und hier lud ein Reisender während der Fahrt den mitgeführten Revolver und fing damit im Wagen zu schießen an. Die geängstigten Mitpassagiere veranlaßten auf der nächsten Station, daß ihr unheimlicher Reisegefährte aus dem Wagen entfernt wurde. TOMMY ATKINS.

It was quite a romance in the beginning, rather funny in the middle, and in the end positively audacious.

Little Gertie Kingston, driving a pony along a country lane that skirted a big field in which a battalion of soldiers were exercising, pulled up to watch them, when without the least warning, down went the front rank on their knees. An officer shouted "Fire!" and off went the pony as fast as he could lay his legs to the ground.

Remembering a very steep, unprotected declivity not more than a mile ahead, the frightened girl, she was only 13, set her feet against the splashboard and pulled desperately. She cut her gloves to ribbons, but Bobs galloped on with speed unabated, and, dashing round a corner, almost plunged into a company of soldiers.

The men sprang right and left—all but one. He made a leap at the runaway and caught hold of his bridle. Terrified anew, the pony dragged him some little distance, but, failing to shake him off, eventually gave up the struggle.

Of course, Gertie burst into tears when quite sure the danger was over. So the soldier got up beside her and drove her half a mile on her way.

"I've only a shilling," she said, offering the coin. "I wish it was a sovereign. If you tell me your name, Uncle John will send you one. I thank you very much, and shall never forget that you saved my life."

The soldier took the shilling and eyed it comically. He was a well-set-up fellow, and he looked very handsome in his red coat. So, at least, Gertie thought.

"I can't take this, don't you know," he said, smilingly.

And he tossed the shilling into Gertie's lap.

"But won't you tell me your name?" she urged, thinking that the smallness of the reward was the reason of its non-acceptance.

The soldier laughed merrily.

"With pleasure. It's Tommy Atkins. Private Tommy Atkins. Now, don't you forget it."

And with another laugh off he ran, Gertie watching him, very sorry that the despised shilling was all she had. The soldiers formed when "Private Atkins" rejoined them, and, turning the corner at the double, passed out of the girl's sight.

Nine years passed. Gertie was now Miss Kingston of Balcomer. She had not expected any such stroke of fortune, but two male cousins had died, and a third had offended. Mr. Raynor, who, being able to dispose of his property as he saw fit, had bequeathed a few thousands to the offending nephew and the Balcomer estate to Gertie.

The girl, never to her knowledge, met this distant cousin Richard; nor, indeed was she aware that she had displaced him. That had been kept from her.

During all these years she had not forgotten Tommy Atkins, the name by which she persisted in speaking of the soldier who had stopped her pony. Although only a private, he was her typical hero, a veritable Paladin.

It was not surprising, therefore, that one of her first resolves, on realizing what seemed to her unlimited wealth, should be to reward her hero in the proper manner.

Having ascertained that the Hertford Fusiliers were stationed at Pembury she visited a jeweller's shop and bought an elaborate gold watch and a massive chain of the same costly metal. The watch she left to be suitably engraved.

"Presented to Tommy Atkins, of the 1st Battalion, Hertfordshire Regiment, by Gertrude Kingston, as a mark of gratitude."

"I don't suppose that is the soldier's name," Miss Kingston explained, "but I want to put it on the watch. He saved my life, and that was the name he gave me."

Having purchased the most expensive purse the shop contained, she placed inside it five bank notes. When the watch had been delivered she set out alone for Pembury.

To and fro before the door which led to the officers' quarters at Pembury barracks Private Glossup was doing sentry-go.

Miss Kingston stopped in her path.

"Can you tell me," she asked, "if there is a soldier here named Tommy—Thomas Atkins?"

Private Glossup grounded his Lee-Metford.

"That's my name," he said, with a knowing wink; then bringing his rifle to the shoulder smartly, he marched to the sentry box, turned right about face, and marched back.

At this juncture Sergeant Smith appeared in the doorway, smart in sash, gloves and sword, and swinging a natty cane. Miss Kingston addressed her question to him.

"Somebody's been having you on toast, Miss," he answered, interrupting the explanation which she had concluded was very necessary.

Stepping aside to make room, he saluted an officer who passed in—tall and handsome, with a face bronzed to copper color. The battalion had not long returned from India.

"That is he!" exclaimed Miss Kingston. "I should know him anywhere. Will you kndly tell him that a lady wishes to speak to him? Stay a moment," she went on, producing her card case. "Give him this card, and say I am the girl whose life he saved near Balcomer about nine years ago. My pony ran away and he stopped it. I dare say he will remember."

He conducted her to an orderly room, gave her a chair, and entered his commanding officer's quarters.

Lieut-Col. Graham, almost the youngest officer of that rank in the British army, had just taken off his gloves when the sergeant entered, and, saluting, gave him the card.

"Lady wants to see you," he said.

The colonel started. "Miss Kingston, Balcomer Hall!" he exclaimed, in tones of surprise. "What the dickens does she want with me. I won't see her. Tell her—tell her—don't tell her anything. It wasn't her fault—" This to himself. "Did she mention her business?"

"Not exactly, sir. I was to say that you saved her life about nine years ago. Stopped a runaway pony, sir. She asked for a soldier of the name of Tommy Atkins—begging your pardon, sir," added the sergeant with an ill-concealed grin.

Col. Graham pondered for a moment. "By Jove! I remember," he cried at length. "She must be the little girl in a short frock who wanted to give me a shilling, and begged me to tell her my name. You say she asked for Tommy Atkins?"

"Yes, sir. And she recognized you as him—begging your pardon, again, sir."

"Then she doesn't know me? I'll see her! What a coincidence? And she really thought I was a private? Did she have a good look at me when I passed?"

"Not more than a glimpse, I should say, sir."

"Ahem! Crockett!"

"I want you to change tunics with me," said the Colonel, "or lend me yours, anyway. You are about my size, I think."

When Miss Kingston entered Col. Graham was standing at attention, with his thumbs pressed tightly against the seams of his trousers, in the stiffest, I've-just-swallowed-a-bayonet attitude that he could assume. But his eyes said: "Awfully pretty girl," as plainly as eyes could speak.

"I'm so glad to meet you again," she said. "I've never forgotten you; and I've brought you a little gift, if you will accept it."

Col. Graham executed a half right turn and faced Private Crockett.

"Is it against the regulations to receive a reward for doing my duty, sir?" he asked.

"I—I—I don't think so," stammered Crockett, almost as red as the tunic that covered his manly breast.

Miss Kingston looked at him in surprise, then glanced inquiringly at her hero, whose bronzed features wore the most wooden expression that he could summon up. Evidently she suspected something. But she produced the watch and chain and the purse and presented them with a few graceful words.

"I had the name you gave me engraved on the watch," she said; "but that is not correct, I think."

"No, Miss," answered the Colonel, glancing at the case. "That was a joke. But Tommy Atkins will do very well. I am very much obliged."

It was rather a singular coincidence that on the day following her return to Balcomer Miss Kingston should receive a visit from Miss Raynor, a spinster sister of the late Squire, who had hitherto, for some reason or other, held aloof, and that this white-haired old lady should almost at once introduce the subject of her nephew Richard.

"You don't know him, I think, my dear," she said. "He is Lieutenant-Colonel of the army, and I must tell you that he was always led to expect that he would succeed to Balcomer. Unfortunately for him, he quarrelled with your uncle, and, in consequence, you are here."

"I never heard a word of it. Why did he quarrel?"

"My brother wished him to marry a certain lady, and Dick did not see his way."

"What a shame!" exclaimed the girl, deeply interested. "I am so sorry! I feel that I have no right to Balcomer. Can't something be done? Is it possible to divide the property?"

Miss Raynor smiled.

"Wouldn't that be rather quixotic, my dear?" she asked.

"I don't know," was the reply. "I think I ought to do it."

Miss Raynor soon afterward took her leave. But a week later she paid another visit to Balcomer.

"I have heard from Dick," she said, "and he'll call on you the first time he is in the neighborhood. He says he doesn't resent your being here in the least, and he will be very pleased to know you."

Miss Raynor had scarcely been at Balcomer fifteen minutes—devoted to praises of her nephew Dick—when that gentleman arrived and sent up his card.

Lieut. Col. Richard Graham, 1st Battalion Hertfordshire Regiment!" exclaimed Miss Kingston, reading from the card. "Why I was at Pembury ten days ago and I saw—"

"Dick!" interrupted Miss Raynor, blandly.

"I don't know, I saw Private Tommy Atkins and, I think, his Colonel. It's very funny. The Colonel looked and spoke like a prince, and Tommy Atkins like a gentleman."

The footman retired. Next moment the Colonel came in, and Miss Kingston stood face to face with her hero, across whose white waistcoat the massive chain she had given him was proudly displayed.

"Why—why—" she began, blushing almost as red as Private Crockett when seated in the officer's chair, "we are old acquaintances!"

"And cousins," added the Colonel, bowing.

"You saved my life!"

"It pleases you to say so. I have come to thank you for your offer to share the Balcomer with me."

"It would be a pity to divide Balcomer, my dears," interposed Miss Raynor, shaking her white ringlets archly. Isn't there a better way to put things straight?"

OUR FAIRY.

There's a fairy lives in our house—
Don't you wish you lived there too?
She's always full of comfort
For everyone that's "blue."

She is so sympathetic!
When you almost crack your head
She'll bathe it with her sweet cologne;
She'll sing when you're in bed.

If your horrid, dull old jack-knife
Slips, and cuts your hand most off,
She'll bind it up with salve and stuff;
(She gives candy for a cough!)

If sometimes you are careless
And tear your bestest clothes,
The fairy's sorry for you;
She finds her thread and sews

The holes up tight and handsome
'Fore anyone can scold.
This fairy's very pretty
Though she's very, very old.

Her eyes are bright and snappy,
And she's fond of every game,
Though she wears a pair of spectacles,
And "Grandma" is her name!

TWO AND LOVE.

It was a moist, unpleasant day. The rain had begun immediately after breakfast, and now at eleven o'clock it looked like raining till the crack of doom. I had wandered up and down, seeking congenial company, and finding none had finally cast anchor in the billiard room where I practiced the spot stroke.

I had made a break of nine, and was beginning to feel more cheerful, when suddenly the door opened, and Miss Anstruther appeared.

"Oh," she said, as she shut the door and stood with her hands behind upon the handle. "I thought it was Mr. McDonald."

"It is a better—and a poorer—man," I said, resting my cue on the floor. "Do you want to find Mr. McDonald?"

"Yes—no! It doesn't matter," said Miss Anstruther.

"Perhaps you can say it to me as well?" I suggested.

Miss Anstruther thought a moment or two, and then shook her head.

"No; I couldn't say it to you."

It may have been my fancy, but I thought that Miss Anstruther blushed.

"Anyway," I said cheerfully, "if it doesn't matter you come and play billiards with me. I'm lonely."

"But I play very badly," said Miss Anstruther, doubtfully. "I don't think I ever played seriously."

"Well, this won't be serious," I said, selecting a light cue and chalking the tip. "Now, all you have to do is to make your ball hit the red and go into the pocket—or both."

"Oh, dear," said Miss Anstruther, "what a lot to think about. There! What does that count?"

"One to me," I said, and I missed an easy hazard.

"Why were you so funny last night?" said Miss Anstruther.

"I am never funny," I said. "Serious, humorous, stupid—perhaps—but not funny."

Miss Anstruther aimed wildly. Her ball went twice around the table and hit nothing.

"How provoking!" she said.

Then she lifted her chin and rested it on the tip of her cue.

"You know what I mean," she said. "Why did you leave me alone all the evening with Mr. McDonald?"

"Well," I said, "I was talking—let me see—to Miss Bates."

"You found her amusing?"

"Not amusing. Better—pretty."

"Oh, you couldn't call her pretty. Nice, but"—

"Decidedly pretty—in her way. Now—you are plain, aren't you?" I said, seeing a likely cannon.

"I beg your pardon," said Miss Anstruther, coldly.

"I mean—I'm playing with spot. By Jove!" I exclaimed as I turned away in disgust after missing the cannon. "There he is."

"Whom?" asked Miss Anstruther.

"Mr. McDonald, walking up and down in the garden, smoking a cigar, in the rain. Shall I whistle him in?"

"Oh, no," said Miss Anstruther.

"Why not?" I asked, facing round toward her. I thought you wanted to see him."

"Oh, there's no hurry—no immediate hurry," she said. "He doesn't leave till this afternoon."

"I thought it might be something important.' I said.

"It is important," said Miss Anstruther. "Oh, you are horrid!" she continued, stamping her foot. "You know quite well that—I shouldn't tell you, should I?"

"But you haven't told me," I said, consolingly.

"Oh, but you can guess," said Miss Anstruther, shaking her head. "You must have noticed—something. And I have no right to say anything about it."

I paused judicially.

"It seems," I said, after an appropriate interval, "quite a suitable arrangement. Mr. McDonald is very wealthy."

"Yes," said Miss Anstruther, reflectively, "he has money. But, then so have I."

"That is what makes it so suitable," I said.

"But," said Miss Anstruther, lifting her eyebrows pathetically, "he's—well."

"That's true," I said, "but we all have our faults. And poverty's the worst of them."

"I don't think so," said Miss Anstruther quickly.

"Mrs. Anstruther thinks so," I replied.

"Yes, of course, you could see mama wanted"—

Miss Anstruther tapped the floor with her foot.

I turned to the window and watched Mr. McDonald walking up and down in the rain.

"It happened here last night," she said suddenly, "when you were"—

"What happened?" I asked.

"Oh, you know!"

"Your engagement?"

"I am not engaged."

"Not engaged? Then what are you talking about?"

"You are stupid. Don't you understand? That is what I have to decide—to tell Mr. McDonald this morning—before he goes away. Oh, I oughtn't to tell you all this. But you made me, you know. And I think you might help me."

"I would with pleasure, if I only knew"—

"What should a girl do when her mother wants her to—and the man is"—

"Rich," I suggested.

"Yes, and—like that," and Miss Anstruther nodded toward the window.

"It's a difficult question," I said, "a very difficult question. As you have asked me to advise you—well—do you love him?"

"You may put that aside," said Miss Anstruther, with a sweep of her hand. "That simplifies matters," I said. Then there comes the question of filial duty. You see, a parent judges in these matters with less—I mean with greater freedom from—personal feeling."

"But," objected Miss Anstruther, "it is a very personal matter, isn't it? Besides, I am sure mamma would never want me to—to marry any one whom she thought I didn't really—I didn't—or, I mean, if I"—

I shook my head gravely.

"You really must be frank with me, if I am to advise you profitably," I said.

"If I really cared for some one else." Miss Anstruther nodded.

"Who doesn't care for you?"

"Oh, yes he does," said Miss Anstruther, quickly, raising her eyes for a moment to mine, and dropping them again.

"I was just addressing my mind to this fresh complication, when Miss Anstruther jumped up.

"Oh, but we are not playing," she said. "It's my turn, isn't it?"

"It is," I said with a sigh, for I should have preferred to follow out the subject. "But, excuse me, you won't do it that way, and if you hold your cue like that you'll dig a hole in the cloth."

I went round the table to where Miss Anstruther was standing.

"Keep quite still, and I'll show you," I said. I placed my hand in the right position, at the butt end of the cue and, holding it there, showed her how to make a proper bridge with the left hand and slide the cue smoothly and horizontally over it.

"Now," I said, still retaining a guiding hand on the cue, "if you aim so, you'll get the pocket—unless the balls kiss."

Naturally I was compelled to stand very close to Miss Anstruther during this object lesson—so close that the curl that nestled round her left ear tickled my lips as my breath stirred it.

Miss Anstruther made her stroke. It was a ridiculous stroke.

"Were you really going for the pocket?" I asked.

"I think," she said, turning and facing me, "the kiss spoiled it."

Miss Anstruther was strangely agitated over her failure. Thinking it better to change the subject from billiards, I said:

"Tell me what you are going to say to Mr. McDonald."

We were, as I have said, of necessity very close together, and Miss Anstruther dropped her eyes.

"I am going to tell him," she said, "that I don't care for him—not in that way—and"—

"And that's just what you meant when you said just now that—that—you couldn't say it to me?"

Miss Anstruther's attention was fixed upon the toe of her right shoe, which she was tapping with the butt end of her cue. As she was concentrated on Miss Anstruther's drooped eyelids. Consequently neither of us heard the door open.

"Hello! Playing," said Mr. McDonald, walking round toward the marking board. "What's the game?"

"The game," I said, looking up, "is—let me see—two and love. "Isn't it, Miss Anstruther?"

Miss Anstruther looked quickly at Mr. McDonald and then at me.

"Yes," she said.

"H'm, lost forever," said Mr. McDonald, going out and slamming the door.

"I hope so," I said, as I turned to Miss Anstruther.

Reproached.

"I haven't anything new to sing to you to-night, George."

"Well, give me something old, then." She broke into a refrain that was "a song of the day" seventeen years before.

"That's very, very old, Clara," he remarked at the close.

"Yes, George; I sang that to you the night we became engaged."—Boston Globe.

Incurable.

One of the pupils in a public school persists in spelling the word gone goine. To cure him of the habit his teacher told him to write the word seventy-five times upon his slate. He did as requested, but in the meantime, his teacher having left the room and he being afraid that she would not return, wrote underneath, "I am tired waiting and have goine home."

Cost of Justice.

"Haven't you got any schoolhouse in this locality?" inquired the tourist.

"No," answered the lank, bilious looking native sittin' on top of the rail fence. "We wuz goin' to hev one last spring, but we had to hang a man fur hoss-stealin', an' that tuck all the public money."

"Ahthah, do you think the coffee we dwink comes in cans?"

"I'm sure I don't know, deah boy. Why do you awsk?"

"Because the papah says that her Gracious Majesty, the mothah of the Pwince, buys all her coffee in Cannes, don't you know."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Mr. Clubly," said Mrs. C., "will you hold the lamp a few minutes?"

"Yes, dear; but bear in mind that I'm no 'Liberty Enlightening the World.'"

"No, Clubly dear," said Mrs. C. sweetly. "You would never do that, because you go out every night."—Omaha World-Herald.

Pastor (benevolently)—I hope you are a Christian, my little man. Do you say your prayers night and morning?

The Little Man—Nope; only nights.

Pastor—Why don't you say them in the morning, too?

The Little Man—Well, dis kid can take care of hisself when he's awake.—Washington Times.

First Boy—What ye got the tacks for?

Second Boy—They're for that old Higgins, over on Grumble street. He kicked me off his porch.

First Boy—Why, he don't ride a bicycle.

Second Boy—No; but he is takin' this here Kneipp cure.—Brooklyn Life.

"Did you tell a friend of mine," the small man exclaimed, indignantly, that I could not tell the truth if I tried?"

"No, sir," replied the large man, "I wouldn't think of saying such a thing."

"I'm glad to hear it."

"I wouldn't think of saying you couldn't tell the truth if you tried, because—"

"Well?"

"So far as I am informed, you never tried."—Washington Star.

Mr. Shocker—Do you remember, my dear, our honest old neighbor, Mr. Withers, who met with such heavy business reverses, and became so reduced in circumstances?

Mrs. Shocker—Very well, indeed. What of him?

Mr. Shocker—Poor fellow! He is now filling a drunkard's grave.

Mrs. Shocker—Impossible!

Mr. Shocker—Not at all, my dear. He recently got the position of sexton at the chapel, and is over there now burying an inmate of the Inebriate Asylum.—Boston Courier.

ANOTHER MURDERER.

Philip Dwyer to be Examined by a Lunacy Commission.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 27.—Justice Van Syckel has ordered a commission of experts appointed to examine Philip Dwyer as to his sanity, and to report to him and Judge Ball on or before the 24th day of April.

Dwyer was indicted by the January Grand Jury, charged with the murder of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Catherine Dwyer, of Elizabethport. When he was arraigned to plead to the indictment he entered the novel plea, "I didn't do it, your Honor, at least I don't think I did, but I don't know as much about it as you do."

Dwyer beat his sister in-law's head to a pulp with a big club and fled to Fay's woods, where he was captured two weeks later. If the experts decide he is not insane he will be tried on the charge of murder at the May term of court.

INDIVIDUAL CUPS AT COMMUNION SERVICE.

Agitatation Among Local Advocates Going on Quietly.

USED IN A LOCAL CHURCH.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS GLAD THAT THEY CHANGED.

The Fear of Communicating Bacteria of Disease, When Using One Cup for All Communicants to Drink Out of, Predominates the Minds of Those Who Want Individual Cups in the Churches.

A few of the more liberal-minded and advanced thinkers connected with the evangelical churches of this city are quietly advocating the use of the individual communion cup in the religious services, instead of expecting all the communicants to drink from one, two or four cups as is done in every church here, with the exception of one. The subject being such a delicate one, and the churches being composed of many who are averse to any change in the mode of service, those who favor the use of individual cups are working without any unnecessary publicity.

Over a year ago the Seventh-Day Baptist church abolished the old-fashioned way and now uses the individual cup. Rev. A. E. Main in a conversation with a Daily Press reporter, said that his people were so well pleased with the new way that nothing could induce them to return to the old. There are two more churches here where there is a strong desire to follow the example of the Seventh-Day Baptists, and there is no doubt but what in time it will be. One church lacks the means; the other is afraid to move rapidly in the matter for fear of hurting some one's feelings.

The advocates of the individual communion cup point out the wrong of perpetuating a custom which, they claim, would not be tolerated for a moment in any home, that of permitting 200 or 300 persons to drink from a vessel without its being emptied and cleansed each time. They call attention to the fact that microbes in countless numbers inhabit our system, and pass back and forth, in and out of the vessels we put to our mouths, and that by the use of a common drinking cup at the communion service disease germs are carried from those who are ill to those who are well. After communion service in several churches in Rochester, a microscope revealed twenty-two living microbes, any of which would have worked incalculable harm in the system of any person who happened to imbibe them.

Physicians without exception endorse the individual cups, and it was through the efforts of Dr. T. H. Tomlinson, a member of the board of deacons of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, that the new plan was introduced there. The cups used are small glass ones holding about a tablespoonful of wine. They are filled before the service and placed on trays, fitted with little depressions to hold each cup steady while they are being carried.

When the time for service comes the deacons pass through the congregation with their trays, each one holding from 30 to 40 cups. When all are supplied the pastor gives the signal, and every cup is drained and placed in a little rack made for the purpose and placed on the back of the pews. The cups are collected afterwards and washed and scalded in hot water.

Those who use the new system say that it shortens the service and gives the communicant an opportunity to put his whole mind on the sacred ordinance, as he is not constantly thinking how he can get the cup and partake of it before his next door neighbor, who has a mouth full of tabacco, drinks from it.

In conversation with a gentleman whose antipathy to the public cup is well known, the reporter was told that some objected to the new way because only one cup was used at the Last Supper. This, he says, is not known to be so and even if it were true, when the churches introduce four or even six cups into the service for the sake of convenience, why not two hundred?

The study of bacteria is a comparatively new science, and numbers of people either do not believe in it, or laugh away the fears of their neighbors. For this reason the agitators of the individual cups are not moving rapidly, but they hope soon that public opinion will come more strongly to their aid.

—The Reform Club will hold a meeting of special interest on Thursday evening next. Several features will be presented.

PARKS LOST AT WHIST.

PLAYED ROSEVILLE FOR STATE CHAMPIONSHIP LAST NIGHT.

Final Round Had to Be Played Over—Roseville Won by Score of 13 to 10—Will Meet Ridgewoods—The Score by Rounds.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Newark, Feb. 28—The play-off of the last round for the championship of the New Jersey Whist Association was begun in the rooms of the Roseville Athletic Association last evening with a match between the teams from that club and the Park Club, of Plainfield.

The match resulted in a victory for the Roseville team by a score of 13 to 10. The first round went to the home club by a score of 5 to 3. Then they increased their lead by winning the second, 7 to 1. The last round saw the Parks brace up and win, 6 to 1, but the brace didn't come in time and Roseville won.

The Park Club was repreeented by its "pony" team, which is composed of P. B. Matthews, A. A. Freeman, Fred H. Freeman and Albert Weltmann.

The Roseville team will now meet Ridgewood and, if victorious, will get the State championship. A victory for Ridgewood would necessitate a match between them and the Parks. If the Parks win then, the final round would have to be played over a third time.

WAS ROASTED TO DEATH

TERRIBLE RESULT OF A FIRE IN SPRINGFIELD YESTERDAY.

John Smith Lived Alone and Was Unable to Get Out—Neighbors Tried to Rescue Him as He Feebly Cried for Help.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Springfield, Feb. 28.—The old Smith homestead on the road to Milltown, took fire at an early hour yesterday morning, and was burned to the ground, roasting to death its only occupant, John Smith, eighty years old, who lived alone in the building. Spencer Cooper, a neighbor, was aroused by the crackling of the flames, and with the aid of Charles VanHouten, whom he awakened, endeavored to enter the building and rescue Smith, who could be heard feebly calling for help. They were driven back by the smoke. Part of the charred body of the old man was found later in the ruins.

The Smith homestead was an old-fashioned one-and-a-half-story frame dwelling, and was one of the few houses left standing by the British Army after the battle of Springfield. It was built by Captain Scudder Smith, a grandfather of John, over 150 years ago. After the Captain's death the property went to his son Daniel, who married and settled there. Daniel at his death left one daughter, Mary, who was married and moved to Irvington, and three sons, Daniel, who is now practicing medicine in Newark, and John and Isaac, who lived alone in the old homestead. Some ten years ago Isaac died, and John had been living there alone since then.

NEW BOROUGH SCHOOL TO BE READY IN APRIL.

BUT NOT ENTIRELY COMPLETED.

Regular Meeting of the Board of Education Last Night—School Furniture Exhibited.

The regular meeting of the Borough Board of Education was held last evening with a full attendance of the members. Considerable time was spent in arranging reports to be presented at the annual meeting of the Board to be held Tuesday, March 21st.

A number of samples of school furniture were exhibited for the purpose of giving the members a chance to select furniture for the new school. Nothing was definitely done in this matter.

Architect Wilson Potter, of New York, was present at the meeting and informed the Board that he thought it would be possible to take possession of the new school by the middle of April, although it is not probable that the school will be completed by that time.

The usual batch of bills were received and ordered paid by the Board, after which the meeting adjourned.

New Church Members.

The following new members have recently been admitted by the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church: Elsie Harman, 505 West Eighth street; Helen Harman, 505 West Eighth street; Lucille Rockwell, 344 East Front street; Mrs. Catherine R. Runyon, 330 East Sixth street; Anna Cornelia Runyon, 330 East Sixth street, and Cornelia Clark Sampson, 229 East Fifth street.

—An effort will be made next summer to have Sycamore avenue macadamized and put in good shape.

HOSPITAL GOVERNORS UNABLE TO AGREE.

Animated Discussion Over Proposed New Buildings.

PLANS HELD IN ABEYANCE.

RECOGNIZED, THOUGH, THAT SOMETHING MUST BE DONE SOON.

The Present Facilities Are Inadequate for the Demands—Some of the Governors Want Proposed Plans Followed Out Entire, While Others Only Want Imperative Changes to Be Made.

One of the liveliest meetings ever held by the board of governors of Muhlenberg Hospital took place last evening, but practically no progress was made regarding the proposed new hospital buildings now under consideration. There was a full attendance of the members and an exceedingly sharp difference of opinion was evidenced by the members. It was after 10 o'clock when the meeting adjourned and at that time the members were no nearer a decision than when the meeting commenced.

Some of the members are desirous of erecting the new buildings according to the plans furnished by a New York architect, while others, thinking it too much of an undertaking, are anxious to put up the building most needed at present and then add to it as it is possible to do so. The supporters of the latter plan say that there may be great changes in methods of construction later on, and they want to take advantage of any improvements that may be made.

This is what caused the difference of opinion and the argument was continued with animation. There were just enough members on either side to prevent a ultimate decision and hold the matter in abeyance.

It was a recognized fact that something must be done at once to provide for the increased work at the hospital. There are twelve patients now occupying space that was only intended for eight people. This state of affairs handicap those in charge very much.

Many of the members feel as though it would be impossible to erect all of the proposed buildings at once, but that the main structure can be built very soon. They are confident that the necessary money will be forthcoming to meet the present exigencies, but if an attempt is made to put up all the new buildings there will be opposition not easily overcome.

As the members could not come to any decision last night the meeting was adjourned, but another meeting will probably be held at an early date. In the meantime some missionary work will probably be done. At the meeting a report from the committee on the proposed new buildings was received, but this report was not made public, and it cannot be ascertained what the committee favors.

Charles E. Brooks and E. R. Ackerman, newly-elected members of the Board, were present at the meeting for the first time, and evidenced considerable interest in the proceedings.

The monthly report of the medical director at the hospital showed that during the month 18 patients were admitted, 12 were discharged cured, 6 were discharged improved, 1 not improved and 2 died. The total number treated was 44, and 23 patients remained at the hospital on February 23d. In the dispensary department the total number of cases treated was 26 and the total number of visits 106

LOCAL UNION CONFERENCE.

Endeavorers to Hear Discussion That Will Urge Them to Work Harder.

The local union Christian Endeavor conference, which will be held tonight in the Trinity Reformed church, will be of great importance. One society has given up its own meeting for tonight in order to attend the conference.

The service will commence at 7:45 o'clock. Two open discussions, "Are Endeavorers Becoming Indifferent? If So, What is the Remedy?" and "The Missionary Work of the Christian Endeavor Society," will be the principal part of the programme.

The first one will be led by Rev. John W. Richardson, vice-president of the New Jersey State Christian Endeavor Union, and the second by Rev. A. I. Martine, of Dunellen. Miss Charlotte Messersmith will sing.

A New Drug Clerk.

John Back, of Glasgow, Scotland, a graduate of the Edinburgh College of Pharmacy, has accepted a position as clerk in Armstrong's pharmacy, corner of Park and North avenues. He will begin his duties tomorrow morning. He is a bright young man of unusual abilities and comes here very highly recommended.

THE DEATH WATCH SET OVER ROESEL.

Slayer of Pitts Is Under Shadow of the Gallows.

HE HOPES FOR CLEMENCY.

SHERIFF KIRK HAS ALL THINGS IN READINESS FOR EXECUTION.

Roesel Has Written to the Court of Pardons in His Own Behalf—He is in a Separate Cell and Three Keepers are Constantly Watching Him to See That He Does Not Try to End His Own Life.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 28.—There is a possibility that Louis Roesel, who was sentenced Saturday to be hanged March 10th for the murder of James C. Pitts, of Summit, may escape death by hanging. His sentence may be commuted to imprisonment for life. This will depend entirely upon the court of pardons, to which court an appeal may be made by the prisoner's lawyers.

It was said this morning that Roesel had written to the court in his own behalf, petitioning for clemency. It was also said that in case the court should not convene before March 10th an appeal might be made to the governor, asking him to grant an extension of 90 days, during which time the court could be petitioned.

Sheriff Kirk, however, is not taking any chances of Roesel escaping death. Saturday, as soon as sentence of death was pronounced, he caused the death watch to be set. Roesel was moved from the cell he had been occuping to a larger and more roomy one at the end of the corridor One of the watchers is with him in the cell by day and two at night. His every move is most closely watched, and every precaution is being taken against his making away with himself, should he be so disposed.

Now that sentence of death has been pronounced upon him, he is given the best in the land to eat. Anything that he may call for is provided for him, and already he is beginning to show the effect of the good food he is receiving. He is supplied with good smoking material, and his last days upon earth, should it finally be determined that he must hang, are being made as pleasant as possible for him.

WILL TELL HIS STORY OF THE LEHIGH WRECK.

TREGEMBO WAS SEVERELY INJURED.

He Has Left the Hospital and is Now Staying at the Home of Councilor Compton.

Arthur Tregembo, of Shenandoah, Pa., one of the persons injured in the Lehigh Valley Railroad wreck at West Dunellen, who has been at the hospital under treatment, was discharged yesterday, but owing to the fact that he lost both legs and is obliged to use crutches he was unable to get away unattended. Mr. Tregembo is a member of the Jr. O U. A. M., and while at the hospital he was looked after by Franklin Council, No. 41, of this city.

Councilor Ephriam Compton, of 1 322 East Second street, has taken Mr. Tregembo to his home and will keep him there until he is able to walk with his crutches. If possible Mr. Compton will get him to the meeting of the Council Thursday evening, when Mr. Tregembo will relate his story about the wreck and tell what he knows about it He is a highly interesting talker and no doubt a large attendance of members will be at the meeting. Any person desiring to meet Mr. Tregembo can do so by calling at Mr. Compton's home.

A BOOM FOR WASHINGTONVILLE.

Spencer Farm to Be Developed Into Residential District.

P. Roenricht, a prominent New York real estate dealer, who has had large experience in the development of suburban property in the vicinity of New York, has recently purchased the Spencer farm at Washingtonville, with the view of subdividing this tract into building lots.

Civil Engineer F. A. Dunham, of this city, has charge of making the improvements, which will be pushed forward with all possible speed, so that the property can be placed on the market at an early date.

$4,000 for a Life.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company effected a settlement with Mrs. H E. Weikel, widow of one of the victims of the recent wreck at West Dunellen. The amount paid was $4,000. Claim Agent P. J. Ferguson stated that every case of injury had been settled and that several families of dead victims had also been settled with.

COLONEL HINE TELLS OF TROLLEY PLANS.

New Lines to Gridiron Essex and Union Counties.

FRANCHISE IN WESTFIELD.

SCHEME HAD BEEN PENDING FOR NEARLY TWO YEARS.

Cross-country Line of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company to Reach New Territory—Will Connect Borough of Mountainside and Clark Township—Westfield the Centre.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Feb. 28—At the meeting of the Township Committee, held Saturday night, after a conference with Col. E. W. Hine and A. A. Gaddis, of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company, the franchise to operate a street railway from the Clark township line to Mountainside was passed upon its final reading. This finally disposes of street railway matters that have been before the Committee in some shape or other continuously for nearly two years. If the trolley schemes are carried out as they are now proposed Westfield will practically be the centre of the system in Union county.

It was after this address that the franchise was granted for the line it is proposed to run from Westfield to Springfield and Millburn and connect with the South Orange system, bringing into direct communication towns that have been practically isolated from each other, and between which there has practically been no business communication. The plan is to extend the line on to Rahway, where connection will be established with the line now in operation, affording communication with Woodbridge and the pleasure resorts on Staten Island Sound.

In his remarks before the committee Col. Hine stated that the next two years would see established in Essex and Union counties, and reaching out into the State, a system of street railways that would rival the systems around Boston. The line paralleling the Central Railroad would connect at Elizabeth with the Newark lines and with the Elizabeth lines, and at Netherwood connecting with the Plainfield system, would form a cheap and easy mode of access to New Brunswick and the central part of the State.

The rate of fare, as it has been fixed by the various ordinances, will make the rate from Westfield to Elizabeth seven cents; to Plainfield, seven cents; to Rahway, five cents, and to Springfield, five cents. Tickets for children going to or from school are to be sold at the rate of thirty-three for one dollar.

On the line along the Central Railroad only one franchise remains to be granted, that through the borough of Roselle, which will probably be agreed upon this week. The franchise through Clark township to Rahway was granted last week, and it is only necessary to secure the franchise in the borough of Mountainside, Springfield and Millburn, to complete the rights of way.

SUMMER HOME BURNED.

Union Village Fire Supposed to Have Been Started by Tramps.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Union Village, Feb. 28.—The furnished summer residence of Manning Hanvill, a New York optician, was totally destroyed by fire at 3 o'clock this morning. The fire is supposed to have been started by tramps. The house and its contents were entirely consumed. The loss will reach $5,000.

Mr. Hanvill is now living in New York while his place of business is on Twenty-third street, New York City. He was notified regarding the fire this morning.

Contract for Building Street Railway.

E. W. Serrel, Jr., of this city, has received the contract for the construction of the Scotch Plains extension of the Plainfield Street Railway Company. He is now making plans to commence the work. There has been a considerable increase in the price of steel rails of late, and it may that the work may be delayed a little in the hope that the prices will drop before the material is needed.

A New Department.

VanEmburgh & Son have opened a new department which is worthy of the attention of every housekeeper. The price is ridiculous for the size and quality of the goods on sale. All articles displayed in their big show window.

Jacob Pakker, of Linden avenue, has been joined by his brother from Rotterdam, Holland. The brother has accepted a position at the Potter Press Works.

SAID TO HAVE STOLE $100

PATRICK GUINEE, THE NIGHT TIME KEEPER AT POND'S, ARRESTED.

John Trainor, Night Watchman, Caught Him in the Act of Pilfering a Safe Drawer—He Was Sent to the County Jail.

Charged with stealing about $100 at various times from The Pond Machine Tool Company, Patrick Guinee, night timekeeper in the factory, was sent to Elizabeth this morning by Justice Nash until he can procure bail for his release. Guinee is a young man, single, and has not been in the employ of the company long. The evidence, it is said, was procured by John Trainor, night watchman.

The money alleged to have been taken was placed in a compartment inside the large safe. At intervals recently the company claim that sums varying in size have been missed. Last night the night watchman claims to have seen Guinee go to the safe and help himself. He immediately notified his employers, who had Justice Nash issue a warrant for Guinee's arrest.

Boundsman Frederickson was given the warrant to serve as soon as he came on duty this morning. Guinee was arrested and taken up to Chief Grant's office. Justice Nash gave him a hearing there. Guinee waived examination and was held without bail for the action of the Grand Jury.

EIGHT CARS DERAILED.

A TROUBLESOME WRECK AT GRANT AVENUE STATION.

One of the Cars Turned Over on Its Side in the Ditch—West Bound Track Blocked—Broken Truck Was the Cause.

A small wreck occurred on the Central Railroad this morning, just west of the Grant Avenue station, and delayed travel on the two west bound tracks for three hours. Eight freight cars left the track, one of which turned over on its top and lay in the ditch. One of the cars was badly broken and wrecked, and the debris was scattered along the track for several feet.

The accident occurred about 4 o'clock. A freight train was going west when a truck under one of the cars broke. The train broke in two here, and the cars in the rear piled and ran off the track before they stopped. Most of them were empty. The wrecking crew was sent for, and by 7 o'clock had cleared the main west bound track, and by 9 o'clock travel was resumed on both tracks. No one was injured.

WENT TO CHURCH OFTEN AND VISITED HEN ROOSTS.

COLORED CHARACTER IN COURT.

Said He Never Stole the Rabbit, But That They Couldn't See Him Anyhow—Must Leave Town Saturday.

"Fore de Lawd," quoth old J. C. Goldsberg to City Judge Runyon yesterday afternoon, "I nebah took Mose Quaas' brown rabbit. An' den dat littl' niggah couldn't a seen me no how 'cause de doah was shut to a crack." Then the old colored man went on to tell the Judge that he was a Christian man, attended four services every Sunday.

Last Friday, he was notified that he was wanted by the police, charged with wandering about Quaas' domicile and appropriating the rabbit. He told the Judge that he felt very much depressed but went to church and returned home revived. He was ordered to appear in court last Saturday morning but failed.

Yesterday afternoon Patrolman Flanagan found him stowed away at his home, 301 Plainfield avenue. He was haled before the Judge, found guilty despite his protestations and the Judge gave him until Saturday to get out of town.

One of his neighbors has reported that Goldberg was prowling about the former's chicken coop a few evenings ago.

LOCAL TROLLEY NOT TO GO INTO DUNELLEN.

No Transfers to Be Given From Plainfield.

RULE IN FORCE TOMORROW.

PASSENGERS FROM DUNELLEN WILL GET TRANSFERS THROUGH.

The Plainfield Street Railway Company Will Only Run Their Cars to the City Limits—New Rule Expected to Cause a Great Deal of Trouble—What the Cause of the Change Is.

The board of directors of the Plainfield Street Railway Company has formulated a new rule in reference to the running of cars on the West Front street line that is expected to cause a great wailing and gnashing of teeth among those people who use the trolley for transit between this city and Dunellen. It is an order which will go into force tomorrow allowing the cars of the company to run only as far as the city line at the outskirts of Dunellen, instead of running the cars into the centre of the borough, as is the practice now.

Ever since the Brunswick Traction Company opened their Dunellen branch and made connections with the Plainfield Street Railway system the cars of the local company have been running to the center of the borough, and carrying Dunellen passengers to and from this city for one 5-cent fare. That arrangement has been a great accommodation to hundreds of people, but in conversation with Superintendent Adelmann, of the local company, this morning, a Press reporter was told that the Dunellen people living in the west end of the borough had been making a great many complaints because the cars of the company were not run to their end of the borough. Their action, he said, has resulted in the officers of the road being importuned and negotiated with unreasonably to do things which would lessen the service in this city, and they had decided to stop running cars altogether in Dunellen.

But in arriving at the decision they have enacted a rule which will cause a great deal of trouble, it is anticipated. That is, they will not give transfers for passengers going from this city to Dunellen, to be used on the cars of the Brunswick Company from the city limits to points in the borough. Through passengers going to Dunellen or beyond will either have to pay an extra 5 cents to the Brunswick Company, or else will have to walk to their destination in the borough.

In coming from Dunellen to Plainfield, however, another rule will be in force which is right the reverse. That is that the Brunswick Traction Company will give through passengers a transfer good to any point in Plainfield, which will be accepted by the local company. This arrangement is made compulsory on the part of the Brunswick Company on account of the terms of their franchise, which says that passengers shall be carried from any point in Dunellen to any part of Plainfield for five cents. In making the terms, however, the local company held the high hand, and it is understood that they exact five cents from the Brunswick company for every transfer which they accept, thus compelling the other company to carry passengers to the eastern limits of the borough for nothing.

But under this arrangement there is bound to be trouble, too. At present the Plainfield company run their cars under a headway of twelve minutes, but the Brunswick company's cars only run in Dunellen once every hour. As a result a Dunellen car will meet only one in five cars on the Plainfield line. In the interval between the running of the cars on the Brunswick line passengers from Plainfield will be in the same predicament that they were before the former line was constructed, when all passengers had to walk from the city limits.

A Mistake in Names

The exciting happenings of Washington's Birthday, as recorded in yesterday's Press, did not take place at the home of Jarvis Freeman, but in in the rooms of Randolph Jones, commonly called "Pop." Mr. Freeman is a white man who conducts a tailoring establishment near by and had nothing to do with the trouble. Through a misconstruction of a question put to the police by the Press reporter the mistake in names occurred.

Associated Quills Met.

A meeting of the Quill Club, of Plainfield, was held last evening at 338 Franklin place. It was decided to meet on Tuesday evenings hereafter. The club is now in a flourishing condition, and its membership is rapidly increasing.

Thousands are learning to appreciate it.
Here is a West Front street citizen who does.

Mrs. Henry Bender of 118 West Front street, says: "My kidneys gave me more or less trouble for five years. I suffered almost constantly from a dull aching pain across the back and hips. Any hard work always increased the pain. I was also subject to severe headaches and dizziness when stooping, and though I tried different plasters and home remedies I could get no relief. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for such troubles as mine and got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store, used them according to directions and obtained a great deal of relief from them. In my estimation, and from my experience, Doan's Kidney Pills are a good reliable kidney medicine, and I have great faith in them. I advise others who suffer from kidney trouble to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

Friends of the Army Bill Adopt Strong Tactics—They Determine to Keep the Senate in Continuous Session Till an Agreement is Reached—The Canal Bill.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—The closing week of the Fifty-fifth Congress began yesterday in a tangle of legislative confusion almost unprecedented. Nearly every important measure of the session is either in conference, in committee or pending in one house or the other as a rider to one of the big appropriation bills.

For a week past both Senate and House have been meeting at eleven o'clock in the morning and sitting late, and it is more than likely that the session will be continued almost every night except Saturday of the present week. At noon of that day the Congress expires by limitation of law.

While many legislative propositions of the utmost importance are yet pending, the greater interest is centered in the fights over the compromise army reorganization bill and the rider attached by the Senate to the river and harbor appropriation bill providing for the construction by the government of the Nicaragua canal.

It is impossible to predict with certainty even now what the fate of either proposition will be.

The outlook for the Nicaragua canal amendment is not bright. Indeed, the leaders of the House are organized to defeat it, and according to the present outlook it will have to be withdrawn or the river and harbor bill will fail. Speaker Reed and Chairman Cannon of the appropriations committee, and Chairman Butler of the river and harbor committee, are all opposed to the proposition, the two first named on general principles, and Mr. Butler because it endangers the river and harbor bill.

The fight on the amendment in the House will be very bitter. If it were a separate measure, standing on its merits, it would be stronger. But Butler and all those members who are personally interested in the river and harbor bill, will fight to keep the amendment out.

The chances are slightly in favor of the defeat of the proposition and the passage of the bill.

The Army Bill.

An attempt to reach an agreement as to the time limit of the increase in the army resulted in failure, and the friends of the measure now propose to keep the Senate in continuous session until a vote or an agreement to vote is reached.

The Senate bill for increasing the efficiency of the army was taken up and Mr. Bate, Democrat of Tennessee, a member of the military committee, made a speech against it.

He described it as an initial step to a change in the government. It was a bill, he said, to raise a regular army of one hundred thousand men in a time of apparent peace. It was such an enormity that it had shocked the public, at least to some extent. This was the time when the army should have been reduced instead of increased. The bill was an entering wedge to a change in the constitutional existence of the government, as it would make the government derive its powers from the regular army, instead of from the consent of the people. In fact, the bill completely revolutionized every theory on which the government rested. As to the war against the Filipinos, Mr. Bate said Spain had bargained to cede the Philippine islands for twenty million dollars, and if she could not deliver the goods the bargain ought to be declared off.

The Filipinos were not rebels now, said Mr. Bate, whatever they might be after the ratifications of the peace treaty were exchanged. The president had not defined his policy. He had not declared that war existed. Where had any proclamation been issued by him? Where had the president ever said that he needed one hundred thousand men? And for what purpose? He had not done so; and therefore a bill for the increase of the army should not be passed.

Senator Bate said that his idea was that the American troops in the Philippine islands should hold what they have and stay there; and that the Denby commission should go to the front and see what could be done, before the army was increased to one hundred thousand men.

"Let us," he exclaimed, "send the Bible and the Cross in advance of the army, and show a Christian spirit by which we can bring about conciliation and save the honor of the country."

May Kill Nicaragua Bill.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—The House committee on rivers and harbors took up the river and harbor bill, with the Nicaragua canal rider yesterday. Director General Maurice Hutin of the new Panama Canal Company was granted a hearing and submitted to Mr. Burton a typewritten statement, in which the company practically places itself in the hands of the United States.

The statement is witnessed by Sullivan & Cromwell, the general counsel for the Panama Canal Company, in New York.

Mr. Hutin was accompanied by Mr. Abbott, and his communication caused considerable comment, as it is liable to embarrass the Nicaragua canal project and give Mr. Burton a chance to report back to the House a measure providing for the appointment of a commission to examine the three principal surveys, and appropriating money to carry on this investigation.

Speaker Reed and his followers intend to kill the river and harbor bill and the Nicaragua canal rider, by smothering it in committee. Whether this can be done remains to be seen. The speaker's programme is to pass all the appropriation bills before the river and harbor bill is reported. He is trying to keep his followers in line with him by holding out the hope that the public buildings bills may have a chance.

The friends of the canal bill in the Senate, however, if they find these tactics are to be pursued, will hold up the bills coming from the House until they have assurances as to what Mr. Burton's river and harbor committee is going to do.

Speaker Reed has things, however, in his hands, and the bills favored by the administration are not going to have an easy time of it.

BEEF COURT AT WORK.

Canned Beef Made Lieut. Dwyer of the Infantry Ill.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Lieutenant Thomas F. Dwyer, Ninth infantry, was the first witness called before the army court of inquiry when it met yesterday. He testified that while in Cuba he heard various complaints about the canned roast beef, some men saying it was unpalatable, and others that it was nauseating. He had eaten some of it four times and found it very unpalatable. He had eaten it only when he could not get bacon. No official action had been taken about the complaints. It was generally believed that the commissary department was doing the best it could. He heard no complaints whatever about the refrigerated beef furnished his regiment while it was stationed in Santiago, and never had any suspicion that the beef had been treated with chemicals. There was no complaint or grumbling among the men on the voyage from Cuba with respect to the food supply. He did not consider the unsatisfactory condition of the tinned roast beef as of sufficient importance to warrant any voluntary report from him.

Being cross-examined by Colonel Gillespie about the effect of the tinned roast beef, Lieutenant Dwyer said that a few hours after the last time he ate it he became ill.

Brigadier General Robert McFelly, retired, who was commissary general from 1875 to 1890, was the next witness called.

He testified that in 1878 he made a recommendation about the meat component of the regular and travel ration.

Colonel Davis, the recorder, at this point read the recommendation providing that in lieu of the regular meat portion of the ration, canned beef, fresh or corned, be issued, and in lieu of the regular dry vegetable portion, baked beans and cheese be issued.

General Sherman was at that time in command of the army, and General McFeely consulted him regarding the change in the ration. He also consulted with the secretary of war. The recommendation was adopted, the intention being that the canned goods should be issued in the field when it was impracticable to supply any other kind. It was not intended that troops in garrisons should have this food, but that it should be given ti men travelling about where they would have no opportunity for cooking. At the time the recommendation was made he did not have in mind canned roast beef.

"I never heard of tinned roast beef until within the last year," said General McFeely, replying to a question of Colonel Davis.

Referring to cheese, the witness said it was finally dropped upon his own recommendation. It would not keep. He explained that during the civil war fresh beef was supplied on the hoof. The cattle were some times driven along by the soldiers and some times by the contractors.

After the war it was supplied on the hoof also by contractors, who slaughtered it at the army posts. That method continued until some time after his retirement from office.

General Davis asked if refrigerated beef had been supplied previous to his retirement.

"No refrigerated beef was supplied during my term of office. Twice only frozen beef was supplied at some of the posts."

Since retiring from the army he had used refrigerated beef personally and found it very good.

"What was the practice in supplying Indian expeditions with the meat component of the ration?"

"They were sometimes supplied with meat and sometimes not," the witness replied.

Salt pork was generally furnished them, but one expedition in his recollection took along a herd of young ponies that were killed as needed by the men.

At the conclusion of the examination of General McFeely Colonel Davis announced that the non-appearance of a number of enlisted men who had been summoned made a change in the programme necessary. At his suggestion the court then went into executive session.

While the court was in executive session the soldiers referred to arrived, and when the court reconvened First Sergeant Howard Alexander, Ninth infantry, was called to the stand.

During his examination Major Jesse E. Lee of the Ninth infantry occupied a seat near Recorder Davis.

Sergeant Alexander testified that the men of his company complained of the canned roast beef on the voyage to Cuba. It made them ill, and his personal experience was that it was unpalatable and lacked taste.

"It was not fit to eat. It was not palatable," said the witness.

"Why was it not fit to eat?"

"It had such a disagreeable taste."

"Will you describe what was objectionable in the taste?"

"I cannot exactly; the taste was unlike anything I ever tasted before."

"Was it spoiled?"

"No, not exactly spoiled."

Rejoicing Over the Bulgaria.

Hamburg, Feb. 28.—There was a profuse display of flags here on Saturday and the day was given up to general rejoicing over the safe arrival of the Bulgaria at the Azores. The dock laborers had a holiday, and a bonus of six shillings was given each man by the employers.

In addition the Hamburg-American Company makes the following donations in token of thanksgiving for the Bulgaria's safety: One thousand pounds to the Sailors' Hospital in Hamburg, five hundred pounds to the poor of the city and five hundred pounds to the Sailors' Hospital at Kiao Chou.

The Hamburg-American Steamship Company has sent the steamer Hungaria to Ponta Delgada with gear to repair the Bulgaria. The latter vessel is expected to arrive at this port in three weeks.

A JOKE ON WEBSTER.

PREPARED BY HIS FRIEND TISDALE AND TOLD AS TRUE.

The Great Statesman's Weight in Conjunction With the Simple-Mindedness of Seth Bump Rendered Ample Opportunity for Fun.

Tisdale, who many years ago was a nail manufacturer in Agawam, was an intimate friend of the Marshfield statesman and many were the gunning and fishing trips they enjoyed together, accompanied only by a great big, strapping good-natured fellow named Seth Bump.

Calling the dogs and Seth early one sunny summer's morning, they started off well supplied with refreshments, traps and everything necessary to make a gunning trip successful.

Suddenly arriving at the shores of a pond, the dogs swam across, leaving the party to follow as best they could.

"Say, Tisdale," said Webster, looking a little glum at the prospect, "how deep is this water?"

"It's all of fifteen feet and twenty yards across. Why, going to swim it?" answered Tisdale laughing, although it meant a walk of more than three miles to go around the pond to the point opposite.

"No, but I'm going across this stream somehow."

"Say, Seth, I'll give you a dollar to swim me across on your back," said Tisdale, winking to Seth, who grinned, but shook his head rather doubtfully.

"Oh, come on! I'm a light weight," coaxed Tisdale.

Finally Seth agreed and Tisdale was soon safely landed on the other side.

"Now, Seth, I'll give you a dollar to swim me over like you did Tisdale," said Webster, who weighed more than a hundred pounds heavier than Tisdale.

A dollar was a big sum to Seth, but Webster's weight looked like a bigger job than he cared to tackle.

"Look here, Seth, I'll give you $2," said Webster, showing him the money.

This was too much for Seth and he readily agreed.

When they had got well out into deep water Tisdale shouted: "Look here, Seth! Webster just winked to me that he wasn't going to give you anything. He's fooling you."

No sooner said than done. Seth immediately sunk under water, carrying Webster out of sight, and when he came up spitting and spluttering, he shouted to Seth: "I'll give you anything you say, Seth. Get me there and you can name your own price."

"No fooling, Mr. Webster, this time, or down you go to stay," said Seth grimly.

When Seth with his live freight had all but reached shore Webster smiled, although the water was running in rivulets down his cheeks.

"Say, Seth, he's just winked again!" shouted Tisdale.

Down went Seth for a second time, carrying Webster out of sight, while Tisdale rolled in agony on the shore.

When they reappeared, language that would hardly grace a Methodist prayer meeting was heard in that vicinity.

"Say, it's all right, Tisdale, and I'll settle. But if I ever get an opportunity, you and that dod-rotted fool of a Seth Bump 'll swing for it," groaned Webster, as he wrung the water from his garments.

NEW IRISH STORIES.

Some Anecdotes Told in the Recently Published Journals of Mr. O'Neill Daunt.

Some good stories are told in the journals of Mr. O'Neill Daunt, recently published under the title, "A Life Spent in Ireland." At one time Mr. Daunt was the guest of Father Burke, in whose parish one of the sanguinary tithe affrays occurred between the parson and the Catholic people. The soldiers were called on to fire on the populace, and some persons were killed. Soon afterward Father Burke received a government circular inquiring the number of his flock for the purpose of making up a census. He answered that, as he had not yet ascertained to what extent his people were thinned out on the last shooting day he could not furnish the required information with accuracy.

When the Poor law was first introduced a Dublin beggar woman, whom a gentleman referred to the poorhouse, said:

"This Poor law's a grand thing for the sowls of the gintlemen."

"Why so?"

"Bekase now when we axes for alms they only say go to the poorhouse, but before there was a poorhouse they used to say, 'Go to the divil!'"

When Mr. Hemphill was canvassing Cashel he found that a party of electors, known as "commoners," numbering some thirteen or fourteen, were notoriously corrupt and always sold their vote to the highest bidder. Their usual price was £20 per vote. Hemphill requested the priest to preach on the sin of trafficking on the franchise, and the priest complied and denounced corrupt trafficking in votes as a mortal sin. The next day Hemphill met one of the commoners, and anxious to learn what effect the sermon had produced on these venal gentlemen, he asked the man whether he had been at mass on the previous day.

"I was your honor."

"Was not that sermon on bribery excellent?"

"It was an elegant sermon your honor."

"Will it do good, do you think?"

"I think it will make the election run very close, your honor."

"How so?"

"Why, we always got £20 for a vote before we knew it was a sin; but, as his reverence says we'll be damned for selling our votes, we can't for the future take less than £40."

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY,
Chicago. St. Louis. New York. Boston. Philadelphia. Pittsburgh. Baltimore.

An intelligent matron, a resident of Ithaca, N. Y., makes it very plain to all her neighbors that she thinks there is no medicine like Ripans Tabules.

She believes that they saved the life of her son, a boy of twelve, who had been taken sick with what the doctors called liver trouble and catarrh of the stomach. She says that after treating him a year, without doing him any good, the doctors gave him up to die. About that time his uncle, who had had experience with Ripans Tabules and found that they had done him much good for catarrh of the stomach, insisted that his nephew should try them. After they had been taken two months, according to directions, the boy was able to go to school and four months after he began taking them he replied to an inquiry: "Why, I am just as well as ever I was."

Eight Thousand Filipinos Reported Ready to Surrender.

AGUINALDO ALSO SUBDUED

At Least Such Is the Story Brought to Manila by Two Commissioners from Malolos—All Quiet Along Our Lines Last Night—Filipinos Give Another Version of the Fire.

Manila, Philippine Islands, Feb. 28.—Two commissioners who returned from Malolos under a flag of truce yesterday, report that eight thousand rebels are anxious to surrender. They also express the belief that Aguinaldo is inclined to accept pacific overtures. Major General Otis did not receive the commissioners.

Except for an occasional volley and some individual firing by the rebels from the jungle near Caloocan, along the river and in the vicinity of San Pedro Macati, all was quiet along the entire line last night.

The enemy's sharpshooters at Caloocan continue to annoy the soldiers in the day time, but the Americans no longer pay much attention to them, reserving their fire until the rebels appear in the open in sufficient force to justify a volley or an occasional shell.

During the night time the men are so accustomed to the enemy's salutes that a majority of them remain undisturbed, secured by the outposts and sentries.

In Manila absolute quiet prevails. The streets are deserted and the only sounds to be heard after seven o'clock in the evening are the tramp of the patrols and sentries and the occasional clatter of the hoofs of an officer's horse.

The insurance companies, after a conference, have decided to accept war risks at an additional premium of 5½ per cent. per month.

Filipino Versions of the Fire.

Paris, Feb. 28.—The Filipino junta here received a cable message from Manila, via Hong Kong, dated from the former place on February 24. It says:

"The fire broke out in the Chinese quarter during the Chinese New Year festivities. The Americans provoked the owners by demolishing houses before it was necessary. The Filipinos' fire engine, owned by Senor Gianco, and worked by British subjects, was largely instrumental in extinguishing the fire. The Americans interfered with the native salvagers and tried to capture the engine, leading to a conflict. Harsh conduct elsewhere led to general fighting. The Americans retired to the walled city and the fleet bombarded the suburbs, believing the city was endangered. This caused the Tondo fire.

Conference at Washington.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—The uneasiness prevalent in administration circles over the conditions at Manila was exemplified in the action of President McKinley in calling Secretary Alger and Adjutant General Corbin to the White House for a conference in regard to the facilities of the government for transporting troops to Manila.

No news of an alarming character has been received from General Otis and the conference cannot be attributed to alarm. It was held more for the purpose of exchanging views as to the possibility for getting more troops to Manila should the emergency require a heavy augmentation of the force under General Otis's command.

General Otis was instructed recently by telegraph to let the war department know if he needed reinforcements. He has not called for any more troops in response to those instructions, but in view of the many rumors concerning the danger of political trouble with foreign countries having interests in the Philippines the administration has determined to be prepared for any emergency that may come.

Another reason for the desire to have everything in readiness for sending additional troops to Manila is the nearness of the rainy season. In a recent dispatch General Otis said that with the reinforcements then on the way to Manila he could end the rebellion in twenty days.

Since then one of the six regiments of regular infantry embracing these reinforcements has arrived at Manila, another regiment is expected to reach there any day, and sixteen hundred troops on the transport Grant are due to join General Otis on March 10.

This will give General Otis four thousand additional regulars, but the rainy season will begin within two weeks after the Grant arrives at Manila.

For a few weeks of the rainy season operations may be carried on, but not beyond that time, and it is desired to have plenty of fresh troops to take the places of those now at Manila, who may be incapacitated for service on account of an arduous campaign in the worst season of a tropical climate. The president was told that the six regiments now en route comprised nearly 8,000 men.

The conference was also in some measure due to the desire of the president to relieve the volunteer regiments in the Philippines as soon as possible after the army reorganization bill becomes a law.

With authority to organize a regular army of one hundred thousand men, the government will have no difficulty in supplying the places of the volunteers.

The president wanted to know what facilities existed for bringing home the volunteers r pidly and it was agreed that unless foreign complications ensued or the rebellion assumed greater proportions, the transports sent out with new troops would bring home volunteers. No vessels are now available for service between this country and Manila, but three of the transports used between Atlantic coast ports in the United States and Cuba and Porto Rico will be withdrawn and put in condition for taking at least one regiment each from New York to the Philippines. Efforts will be made also to charter ships on the Pacific coast. The report that Aguinaldo had again made overtures for peace to General Otis has not been confirmed by the war department. Nothing on that subject has been heard from General Otis since shortly after the heavy defeat of the Filipinos following their first attack, when Aguinaldo asked for a conference to arrange terms of peace and his request was ignored by General Otis.

Many Natives Returning to Iloilo.

Manila, Feb. 28.—Brigadier General King is ill with gastritis, and has been relieved by Brigadier General Lloyd Wheaton, formerly colonel of the 20th infantry.

The insurgents have not been active for the past two days. The total losses of the American troops since the fires have been as follows: General MacArthur's brigade, three killed and thirty-seven wounded; General Anderson's brigade, one killed and seven wounded; provost guards, two killed and fifteen wounded.

Advices received from Iloilo say that all is quiet there. The natives who fled at the landing of the Americans are returning to Iloilo, and many of them are taking the oath of allegiance.

The Charleston and Concord are patrolling the islands in search of filibusters.

CUBANS FACE ABOUT.

Misunderstanding Arose Through the Ignoring of Cuban Assembly by Porter.

Havana, Feb. 28.—Now that the Cuban assembly has passed resolutions exonerating Governor Brooke from any blame for the Garcia episode, the Cubans have changed their attitude and are making explanations as to what led to the friction.

A Cuban who attended all three meetings of the assembly was vouchsafed the information that the recent visit of R. P. Porter is responsible for the misunderstanding. He says that the assembly considered itself greatly slighted because negotiations were carried on between the United States and Gomez without consulting their members. The Garcia funeral gave them a pretext to find fault with Americans openly, but the repudiation of the action of the assembly by the members of the Garcia family changed its attitude.

It is said to be well known in Washington that, with possibly three exceptions, the members of the Cuban assembly have no weight whatever with the majority of the Cuban people.

Hence it was that the assembly was entirely ignored in the Gomez negotiations.

When it comes to the question of voting for municipal officers the American people will have the opportunity of seeing how divided the Cubans are. There are factions innumerable and there will be at least two full tickets in the field. It is predicted that the one which receives the indorsement of the Spanish residents will win. The Spaniards, it is maintained, will always hold the balance of power, for the reason that they hold the land and employ the masses.

Gen. Gomez and the Cuban Assembly.

Havana, Feb. 28.—A secret meeting of the Cuban assembly, which was attended by General Maximo Gomez, was held at three o'clock on Sunday afternoon at the house of General Andrade, the president of the assembly, in this city.

It is reported that General Gomez was asked if he was prepared to recognize the assembly's authority and comply with its rulings.

The Cuban commander is said to have answered: "Certainly, in so far as its rulings work for Cuba's good."

General Gomez on Sunday evening attended the reception of the Union Club, witnessed the fireworks in the park and the torchlight procession by the Havana firemen.

The military authorities have issued two thousand rations to the Cuban troops who entered the city of Havana with General Gomez. These troops will be given an open air banquet next Sunday by the city of Havana.

Major Harrison to the Front.

Havana, Feb. 28.—The owners of the Toledo plantation, near Marianao, complained to General Fitzhugh Lee recently that Cuban soldiers carried away tons of sugar cane every day for the purpose of eating it.

Major Russell B. Harrison, provost marshal, with a guard of twenty-five men, went to the plantation yesterday and caught fifty Cubans and disarmed them. A number escaped.

As the provost guard was marching back about five hundred Cuban soldiers came running over the hill, brandishing their rifles.

Major Harrison believed that a rescue was intended and aligned his men and ordered them to load their rifles. He directed a Spanish talking soldier to tell the Cubans they must not come any nearer or he would shoot.

Followed by a crowd of Cubans, Major Harrison and the prisoners marched to the headquarters of General Mayia Rodriguez, a Cuban commander, to whom the prisoners were transferred, the major taking a receipt for them.

The American military authorities treat the Cuban soldiers as though they belonged to a foreign army, not punishing them in the civil courts, but committing them to the justice of their commanders.

To Admit Our Dried Fruit.

Berlin, Feb. 28.—The officials of the German foreign office have notified the United States embassy that the government will henceforth admit American oranges, lemons and raisins without examination, and also that all American fresh and dried fruit will be allowed to pass in bond through Germany without being examined.

The decisions are based on the favorable reports of the German experts sent to America.

The question whether dried fruit sent abroad is harmless, especially for the transmission of the San Jose and other insects, and whether the fruit may be imported without previous examination has not yet been decided.

A Dreyfus Military Governor of Paris.

London, Feb. 28.—A dispatch from Paris to a newspaper here says that its correspondent has learned that President Loubet has already signed a decree removing General Zurlinden from the post of military governor of Paris and appointing General Faure-Biguet, commander of the Sixteenth Army Corps, to succeed him.

The latter has been a consistent upholder of the innocence of Dreyfus There is no confirmation of this statement from other sources.

CONGRESS' LAST WEEK

There is a Grand Mix-Up of Proposed Legislation.

A PLAN TO FORCE ACTION

The Case Postponed Until April 10—No Reasons Given by the Prosecution and No Objection Made by the Defence—Quay's Counsel Make a Statement—The Senatorial Situation.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 28.—The trial of United States Senator Matthew Stanley Quay and his son, Richard R. Quay, on charges of conspiracy to misuse the funds of the state and of the People's Bank was postponed again yesterday when called up before Judge Beitler.

This action, which was taken at the request of District Attorney Rothermel, created great surprise in the court room, for it was the general expectation that the long awaited trial would begin at last. It was rumored after the postponement to April 10, was announced, that the case would drag along indefinitely.

The session of the court began at a few minutes after ten o'clock. There was a big crowd in the city hall and all sorts of subterfuge were resorted to by persons who wanted to hear the trial to get into the court room. They were held in check by lines of policemen who were stretched across the corridor on either side of the court room door. No one except jurors and witnesses, newspaper reporters and lawyers connected with the case could pass the police lines, and these had to have regular passes. Long before ten o'clock the court room was crowded with jurors and witnesses.

The first man who had a vital interest in the case to reach the court room were Senator Quay, his senior counsel, Mr. Shapley, Richard R. Quay, D. T. Watson of Pittsburg, who argued the case before the supreme court on January 7, J. M. Sweringer and Lyman D. Gilbert.

Mr. Quay was dressed in a business suit and walked with Mr. Shapley. As he edged his way through the crowd in the corridor before the police lines were reached he smilingly returned the salutations of a number of acquaintances.

When he entered the court room he stopped for a moment, glanced first around the court room, then at the empty jury box, and then walked to his seat at the left end of the table, in front of the judge's bench. After he took his seat Senator Quay did not look around the court room. He kept his face turned toward the bench. He spoke only occasionally and then in reply to some question asked him by Mr. Shapley.

The other members of the defence walked in behind Senator Quay, two abreast, and took seats at the same table. Richard Quay sat down next to his father.

A few minutes after Mr. Quay's arrival Judge Beitler entered the court room through the district attorney's office. He was followed by Mr. Rothermel and Mr. Finleter. The court was opened without the usual formality and then the opposing lawyers held a consultation. Of the attorneys for the defence Mr. Shields and Mr. Shapley did the talking. Mr. Watson, Mr. Sweringer and Mr. Gilbert were there merely to act in an advisory capacity, and not to take an active part in the case.

In this conference Mr. Rothermel notified the lawyers for the defence that the prosecution was to ask for a postponement. Then followed a long and earnest consultation between the defendants and all of their lawyers except Mr. Gilbert.

After this Mr. Rothermel arose and addressed the court, asking for the postponement. He said briefly:

"I am going to ask the court for a postponement in this case. I do not intend to give my reasons, but the prosecution under the circumstances is unwilling to have the trial go on."

Mr. Shapley said that the defence was ready to proceed, but neither he nor Mr. Shields raised an objection to the continuance, and Judge Beitler, at Mr. Rothermel's request, fixed April 10 as the new date for the trial.

Mr. Shapley declared in an interview afterward that the action taken by the district attorney was only what he had expected. "What the defence has contended all along," he said, "has proven true. The evidence was such that no district attorney would permit it to go to a jury. The papers of John S. Hopkins, the dead cashier of the People's Bank, upon which the prosecution based its case, were mutilated. There were forged entries in the books and there was nothing tangible on which to base the charges."

First Assistant District Attorney Finleter, after a consultation with Mr. Rothermel, denied this indignantly. He said of Mr. Shapley's remarks:

"That statement is absolutely ridiculous. The commonwealth's attitude this morning was not based upon considerations arising out of the evidence at all, but upon entirely different causes."

It was learned later that the prosecution was ready to proceed with the case, and that there was only one reason why a postponement was asked. It was said that the prosecution had carefully watched the jury panel and had discovered conditions which made the district attorney unwilling to continue.

Neither Mr. Rothermel nor Mr. Finleter would discuss for publication the subject of the jury. Mr. Rothermel, when questioned, said hastily:

"Don't ask me anything about the jury panel." Then he added that it would be unwise at this time for him to make any disclosures.

The new date fixed for the trial is eleven days before the day set for the adjournment of the legislature which is now balloting at Harrisburg for the election of Mr. Quay's successor in the United States Senate.

The Situation in Harrisburg.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 28.—The news of the postponement of the Quay trial caused a sensation here and was the sole topic of discussion among the legislators.

Quay men, as a rule, were disappointed and intimated that the opponents of Senator Quay were afraid to proceed with the trial. They declared that it was cowardly to postpone the trial. Senator McCarrell expressed the opinion that the postponement was the beginning of the end, and said that the next step would be probably an application for a nolle prosequi.

Representative Dixon of Elk, a lawyer and former district attorney, said that postponement at the request of the district attorney was not surprising. He suggested that the death of Mr. Haywood, one of the defendants, had caused a rearrangement of the testimony and that it was quite proper for the district attorney to ask a postponement until a later date.

There is talk now of a revival of the McCarrell jury bill on March 2, but the better judgment of those who are experienced in such matters is that the postponement of the Quay trial may mean a deal on the senatorship.

Henry W. Oliver's name has been suggested as a dark horse, with C. L. Magee's consent. Oliver was the regular caucus nominee in 1881.

CROKER'S FINE WORK.

To Grant Permission for an Elevated Road Tapping All the Wharves.

New York, Feb. 28.—Not content with exhausting the powers of the municipal assembly in the effort to cripple the Manhattan Company, Tammany Hall will call to its aid another branch of the city government.

It was reported at the city hall yesterday that at a meeting of the sinking fund commission, which will be held in a few days, permission will be granted to the North River Bridge Company to construct an elevated road along the North river water front from the New York terminus of the proposed structure at Forty-fourth street. As the Manhattan Company is anxious to construct an elevated road along West street, it is argued by Tammany that the grant to the bridge company will prevent the Manhattan from carrying out its plans.

The plans of the bridge company have secured the approval of the national government and the governments of the states of New York and New Jersey. The state commission, of which Andrew H. Green is chairman, reported nearly two years ago on the terminal arrangements made by the company's engineers. These arrangements contemplated the construction of an enormous depot at Forty-fourth street and Seventh avenue, and the building of an elevated road down the water front to the battery.

Under the law these plans cannot become operative until the approval of the sinking fund commission has been obtained.

It has just dawned upon Tammany Hall that if the sinking fund commission approves the terminal plans a severe blow will be delivered, and the Manhattan Company will feel its effects. Among the stories in circulation at city hall yesterday was one which hinted that the big men in Tammany have reached the conclusion that the North River Bridge project is a good thing and that it should be pushed along.

It is pointed out that an elevated structure along the water front joining the bridge up town will tap all of the principal wharves.

New York's Poisoning Case.

New York, Feb. 28.—The most important bit of testimony that has come out in the coroner's inquest into the sensational poisoning of Mrs. Kate J. Adams was that given yesterday by Nicholas A. Heckmann, who rents private letter boxes at 257 West Forty-second street. He positively identified Roland B. Molineux as the man who rented a letter box from him in May, 1898, giving the name of H. C. Barnet.

Just before Heckmann gave this testimony Mr. Koch, who rents letter boxes at 1,620 Broadway, had testified that a man giving the name of H. Cornish had rented a letter box of him in December, 1898, but had never called for anything that was sent to him. Several packages were sent to the letter box. Koch sai dthat he was nearsighted and could not identify the man.

The contention of the district attorney and the police is that the man who rented these boxes was one and the same person. The lessee of these boxes sent letters to drug firms asking for samples of medicine.

William J. Kinsley, the handwriting expert, testified yesterday afternoon that he believed that the man who wrote the address on the poison package wrote the H. Cornish and the H. C. Barnet letters.

He said further that he believed that Molineaux wrote the letters and addressed the package.

This case has been dragging along in coroner's court for two weeks without a suspicion being raised as to who was the poisoner. Molineaux has been in the case, but no more prominently than a half dozen others.

Hawaiian Trade Figures.

San Francisco, Feb. 28.—The custom house figures at Honolulu for the year 1898 have just been compiled. They show a large increase both of exports and imports. The total value of the exports was $17,346,744, as against $16,021,775 for 1897, an increase of $3,968,262.

Half of this increase was an increase in imports from the United States. The increase in imports from Great Britain and Germany come next in amount, those from Great Britain being $421,945, and from Germany $159,111. The customs duties collected were $896,975, as against $708,493 for 1897. There came to the islands during the year 17,229 persons (not including naval or military forces), and there departed 7,333, leaving a net gain of population through immigration of 9,916.

Watkins, two of the three members of the commission appointed by President McKinley to investigate the civil affairs of Porto Rico, are at the Gilsey House. COMING EVENTS.

March 2—Borough Democratic primary meeting.

Soldiers' Pay a Poser.

Though the Legislature has had a comparatively peaceable time of it thus far in their wild career of meeting a couple of times each of the eight weeks they have been in session and doing nothing, storms are brewing which may gather and cause them to do a lot of skurrying to get in out of the wet. And no matter under consideration will serve to bring about such a condition more so than the question of how much the New Jersey volunteer troops are to receive as a gift from the State for their patriotic conduct. In discussing this matter the Trenton correspondent of the Philadelphia Record makes the following interesting observations:

There is no mistaking the fact that the Legislature is in a dilemma over the question relating to extra pay for the volunteer soldiers of the late war. The volunteers insist upon the passage of King's bill which would take out of the State Treasury over $600,000, provided there is a sufficient balance from which that amount can be drawn. It is stated that there is no such balance on hand, and, consequently, if King's bill became a law, a special State tax should be imposed to meet its requirements. It is true that at the beginning of the present fiscal year there was a balance of over one million dollars. Since then there have been necessary disbursements which have reduced that balance to less than $300,000. In view of that situation then, the Legislature is very reluctant to pass any bill which would drain the State Treasury of every dollar it possesses. Senator Braun's bill would require a disbursement of about half a million of dollars. That, too, is deemed impracticable.

The concensus of opinion among the Legislators, generally, is that Senator Ketcham's bill is the one that should be passed. Less than $200,000 will be required to satisfy its provisions. There seems to be a disposition on the part of the Legislature to do everything that is practicable, holding in view the welfare of the State, to reward the gallant volunteers for the invaluable service they have rendered the State in the hour of need. At first the Ketcham bill was frowned upon by quite an element in the Legislature. A compensation of $6 per month for married and $4 for single men was deemed parsimonious, and it looks so. It seems that the bold soldier boys deserve more recognition. But then how can it be given? The State has not the money to spare, and the imposition of a State tax for the purpose would raise a storm of opposition. The volunteers have already denounced the Ketcham bill—they do not want it at all. And, perhaps, they are right. The Legislature, however, will pass it or some similar measure, and then look out for squalls! It will receive unlimited and unstinted criticism, and the Legislature will have to bear the brunt. It is suggested that the least the lawmakers can do in this matter is to pass a law which will compensate the soldiers to an extent that has been done by the Legislatures of other States in similar cases. Then, perhaps, all would be well.

Passaic, like Plainfield, has a languishing Board of Trade, and this leads the News of that city to say that "nothing seems to develop so much latent enthusiasm as a dinner. The average man is more apt to digest facts and arguments when he has

In less than a week John Kean will be United States Senator de facto. Senator Sewell has already presented Mr. Kean's credentials to the Senate, and the former will introduce the Sage of Ursino to his new colleagues. Senator Kean will not be long in getting on to the ways of Washington and the inner political circles, as his two terms in Congress well educated him in those details.

This is the last week of the subscription contest of The Daily Press. Opportunity for gaining a valuable business educations is what the two leaders will secure. The activity and competition among the contestants has resulted in a large increase of readers of The Daily Press.

Has the Legislature forgotten that there is a demand in New Jersey for a sunset election law? It looks that way in view of the fact that there has not been a suggestion thus far in the State House about enacting a law to meet the situation.

From present appearances in New York it is safe to say that the stock holders of the elevated railroad company never knew how many ardent supporters they had until it was hard hit by the municipal administration.

One week from today all voters in the borough will have an opportunity to learn whether their names appear on the registry list. This will be the only registration day. Election will occur one week later.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

According to local tradesmen, Assemblyman Mungle's bill to prevent the use of trading stamps is far superior to the bill presented last year, which was vetoed by Governor Voorhees on the ground that it was both unconstitutional and illegal.

The Mungle bill has been carefully drawn, with all the objectional features of last year's bill left out. It follows closely the law now in force in Vermont. It does not prohibit any individual or firm from giving tickets or checks redeemable by the giver, nor is it calculated to take effect immediately.

These were the chief faults found with last year's bill. It does, however, prohibit a third party from continuing the practice of levying of tribute upon the merchant and tradesman, and from beguiling the purchaser with the idea that he may get something for nothing.

The Miles Ideal Stock Company commenced a week's engagement in Music Hall last night before an audience of good proportions. For the opening piece "A Conditional Pardon" was presented. It is a melodrama of considerable strength and was presented with enough talent so that the audience seemed to be well satisfied with the presentation. John E. Miles is the particular star of the company, and he cleverly assumed the leading role. Between each of the acts entertaining specialities were given. Tonight "An American Hero" will be given, and for the matinee tomorrow afternoon "Kathleen Mavourneen" will be presented.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, February 28.—With the end of this fiscal year in Fanwood township the terms of Township Clerk E. L. Hand and Town Committeeman Thomas J. Nicholl will expire, but already there is a good deal of talk about securing their re-election to both offices. They have been among the best officials the township has ever had, and all voters, irrespective of politics, have generally been satisfied with their official conduct. They have held office for many years and if the best interests of the borough are consulted they will be chosen to succeed themselves.

George L. Dunn, who has been suffering from nervous prostration for sometime, brought on by overwork, was taken to Dr. Cooley's Sanitarium in Plainfield yesterday. Mr. Dunn's many friends in town hope a course of treatment at the above place will soon enable him to re-

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongued coated, pain continually in the back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50cts., guaranteed, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store.

Now For Man and Beast.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Now that the City Council has provided so generously for the rum and beer drinking public, it is to be hoped they will be fairminded enough to provide water for the large majority of people who do not want whiskey or beer, and especially for the dumb animals which suffer so much from thirst in hot weather. Last fall a petition for a drinking fountain for man and beast was signed by 130 business men on the east side of the city and presented to the Council who referred it to the street commitee and nothing has been heard of it since.

Mrs. DeForest.

Miss May Stelle, of Madison avenue, entertained a few of her friends at her home Saturday evening in honor of her guest, Miss Maude Benton, of New York.

RAILWAY TO THE SUN

THE SEA IS A TREASURE HOUSE OF GOLD.

Untold Billions of the Precious Metal—It Would Make a Carpet One Thousand Miles—It Would Make a Girdle of Gold Coins Around the Equator.

It is little realized that the sea is a treasure house of gold, so incredibly rich as to far exceed the wildest dreams even of a mad millionaire.

Although in every thirteen tons it holds only one grain of pure gold, its bulk is so great that its 400,000,000 cubic miles of water hold in solution gold of the value of $5,125,000,000,000,000.

If this gold could be rescued and distributed equally among all the inhabitants of the earth each man, woman and child living would have a fortune of $3,416,665, and would enjoy the comfortable living income of $2,625 a week, or more than the annual income of five cabinet ministers of the first class.

Let us coin in fancy the sea's gold, and pile our myriads of coins into one stupendous column. Our tower of gold, standing on a base a quarter of a mile each way, would soar into the clouds to a height of 14,828 feet, or 904 feet lower than the summit of Mt. Blanc. To demolish and cart away our tower of coins we should require the services of 3 2-3 horses for every man, woman and child in the world.

If we make a carpet of our marine gold we should have more than sufficient to cover an area 1,000 miles long and 183 miles wide; in fact, to "plate" with sovereigns the whole of Great Britain and Ireland, Holland, Belgium and Portugal, with a remnant of over 6,000 square miles of gold to spare.

With our golden treasure we could make a girdle of gold coins around the equator nearly eight miles in width, or as wide as from the Thames to Edmonton, or southward, to the outskirts of Croydon.

Similarly we could construct a roadway to the moon 364 yards wide, along which 150 carriages might be driven abreast in comfort.

We could make a railway track of gold to bridge the 91,725,000 miles which divide us from the sun. Our golden track would be 11 1-4 feet wide; and if in 1724, when George I had still three years to reign, an engine had started on its long journey from earth to sun, and had raced night and day over its yellow track at the rate of sixty miles an hour, it would only reach its destination as these lines are being printed.

As a final flight of astronomical fancy, let us construct two rails of gold coins each 2 1-2 inches wide, and on this track let us take a journey to Neptune, 2,755,000,000 miles away.

We should have quite sufficient gold for this purpose; but, journeying night and day at sixty miles an hour, it would take us 5,242 years to reach Neptune, by which time it would be too late to think of the return journey.

To have completed our journey today we ought to have started nearly 1,000 years before the deluge, according to recognized chronology. We should in this way have escaped the flood, at any rate.

With our treasure of the sea we could buy the United Kingdom, with its land, houses and all its accumulated wealth of every kind, 82,000 times over, and we could furnish our national revenue for the next 9,000,000 years, allowing for reasonable growth; in fact, a single minute's income from our treasure, if carefully invested, would be sufficient to meet our entire national expenses.

All the gold current to-day throughout of the world if collected together, would represent only 1.5662 part of our myriad sea coins, and if the same amount of gold could be produced by our mints every year it would take them 1,356,960 years to mint a pile as large as ours.—Tid Bits.

One Social Phase of Army Life.

"It is true that a great deal of army influence was exerted in behalf of Captain Carter, whose sentence is about to be definitely determined by President McKinley," said a gentleman connected with the service, "but it wasn't due to sympathy or any disposition to condone his offense. In fact, the movement had quite a different inspiration. You see the army (of course, I'm speaking of the commissioned officers) forms a sort of big family, knit together by a surprising number of intermarriages. A young West Pointer may do unlimited flirting in his cub period, but when he gets ready to settle down it's usually the major's daughter or the colonel's niece that he picks out for a wife. Well, the result has been that there is an immense amount of family pride in the service, and when a fellow like Carter goes wrong there's a general movement to hush it up. The army wants his case forgotten as speedily as possible, and realizes that sending him to prison is the best way in the world to keep it alive. He would be a standing advertisement of the whole affair, and when he emerged five years hence it would be revamped, embroidered with all manner of tradition. So there is a unanimous sentiment in favor of firing him and fining him and forgetting him. As far as 'not being punished enough' is concerned, the people raising that cry have evidently never encountered a cashiered army officer. You'll have to go to some out of the way corner of the universe to find one, but after you do and hear his story, I'll guarantee that you'll shudder whenever the subject is mentioned."

The man who pleases nobody is really more lovable than the man who tries to please everybody.

FRANKLIN'S TOLERANCE.

The Philosopher Was Always Ready to Serve His Sectarian Friends.

One usually thinks of Franklin as anything but a religious man, and religious in the orthodox, conventional sense he certainly was not. Yet he was a believer in God and immortality and the efficacy of good works. His close personal friends were, many of them, devout Christians. In the chapter on "Franklin's Religion" in his "Many-Sided Franklin" series, in the Century, Mr. Paul L. Ford says:

Franklin had that rarest kind of tolerance which tolerates the opinions of others, and though he laughingly asserted that "Orthodoxy is my doxy, and heterodoxy is your doxy," his whole life was one contradiction of the epigram, for the faith or lack of faith of his circle of friends ranged from the most doctrinal of ministers to the most radical of free-thinkers. For such rigid Puritans as the Rev. Drs. Cooper and Mather of Boston, for the enthusiast Whitefield, for the Anglican Bishop of St. Asaph, and for the Abbes de La Roche and Morellet he showed as much affection and respect as he did for Hume, Lord Le Despenser, Thomas Paine, and others closer in accord with his own views. Nor was it ever a one-sided regard. No man in Pennsylvania exercised such influence over the Quakers. Massachusetts made him her agent in Great Britain, and he served her faithfully, even to the defending of her religious intolerance against English criticism. In France the papal nuncio consulted him frequently and followed his advice in the changes the Revolutionary War made possible or necessary in the Catholic Church in America. Absolutely unsectarian as he was, Franklin apparently was trusted by all sects and he seems never to have refused a service that he could render any one of them.

KILLED BY THEIR FRIENDS.

Spanish Shells Aimed at the Merrimac Fell On Morro Castle.

Lieut. Hobson tells in the Century why it was that the Spanish officers at Morro Castle believed the collier "Merrimac" to be an armored man-of-war:

It was not long before the governor of the Morro came, making me a most cordial visit. He was followed by the colonel commanding the artillery. This officer, after kind salutations, referred to the heavy fire we had withstood so long, and to the gallantry of our fire in return. When I informed him that we had no guns on board, he was utterly incredulous, and seemed to conclude that I was deceiving him, for he replied: "But I know you must have fired, for I was struck myself on the foot, though I was standing away up above." I replied that it must have been a fragment resulting from their own fire; at which the colonel became serious, as though a new and unwelcome thought was passing through his mind. He too had taken us for an armored vessel forcing our way through, and what he said about our fire puzzled me. The next time Charette came in, he told me that wounded men were being operated on in the room just above the men's cell, and that the blood was running down the wall, and had run down the clues of his hammock, so that he had had to change its position. When I had a chance to speak to him and to the others afterward, they said that both a Spanish sergeant and a Spanish private had told them that the blood came from the men we had wounded—that we had killed fourteen and wounded thirty-seven!

In a visit to the Morro after the surrender, I was very much puzzled to find fresh gashes and imprints of various sizes in the rear walls, as though it had been attacked from the inshore side, while we had attacked only from the sea. Every indication seems to point to the conclusion that the Spaniards firing at the Merrimac had struck their own men across the channel. This was the more to be expected from the horizontal fire. Morro, though elevated, was in the line of fire from the Reina Mercedes, whose projectiles, exploding on the Merrimac, doubtless showered the banks and the rear of Morro beyond. No wonder, then, that they took us for an armored man-of-war.

Why throw Yourself Away.

Ex-Governor Long, in speaking to the young men of Boston, said: "If a young man can start with the feeling that he is one of the elements of society, that his character is being watched, he steps up to a higher plane, feeling his responsibility. It is a mistake to hold up such men as Lincoln and Washington for what they have achieved. Young men say they cannot be Washingtons or Lincolns. The mistake is made in placing the emphasis on the dead instead of the character.

"Not one man in one hundred thousand can reach Lincoln's position, but you can have the character and the personal worth of Lincoln or Washington. We should have won American independence without Washington, and saved the country without Lincoln, because our institutions have been turning out men of their stamp.

"Vanderbilt has no greater library than you have in this city. No king of England, before the present century, had such comfortable homes as you have. You have many municipal privileges without money and without price; and with all the advantages to start with, what is the excuse for throwing yourself away?"

AMERICAN TITLES.

A NONSENSICAL HABIT THAT PROMISES TO CONTINUE FOREVER.

The Affixes and Prefixes of Our Names May Properly be Designated as "Flummery," and Give an Excellent Opportunity for National Reform.

Why do we write "Esq." after a man's name or "Mr." before it in addressing a letter? Why do we write "Dear Sir" even in addressing the veriest stranger? Why do we subscribe ourselves to all correspondents as "Yours truly," or other words to that meaningless effect?"

We do none of these things in telegrams, yet we do not feel that we are discourteous to John Jones when we address him by telegraph only as John Jones and sign our names at the end of the despatch without any flourish of words. Why should we not be as direct, simple and truthful in our letters as in our telegrams?

All these pracices are survivals from an age of leisure, extravagance and servility of mind. They are now an absurdity and a costly one. More than three billion letters are written every year in the United States. Allowing half a minute as the time consumed in writing "Dear Sir" and "Yours truly" inside and "Mr." or "Esq." outside of each of these letters, and allowing 300 working days of ten hours each to the year, the people of the United States waste in this way 8,333 years of time every year. In other words we actually waste the whole time of more than 8,000 persons in writing "Dear Sir," "Yours truly," "Mr." and "Esq." At the lowest calculation the time thus wasted each year is worth ten millions of dollars, or half a river and a harbor bill.

The sole purpose of the superscription on a letter is to tell the postoffice people to whom and where to deliver it. All that is necessary for that purpose is to write the name and address. "J. Wintersmith, 34 John street, New York City," completely fills the requirement. All else is wasted. There is no occasion to tell the postman that J. Wintersmith is a clergyman by writing "Rev." before his name, or that he is a woman and unmarried by writing "Miss" there, or is married or has been, by writing "Mrs."

But we have worse habits than these. In addition to the meaningless "Mr." and the absurd "Esq." we are constantly addressing men as "Hon." of "Cpl." or "Rev." Why do we do it? As every little politician who gets himself elected an Alderman or a member of the Legislature is henceforth called "Hon," why should anybody think it a requirement of courtesy to address so justly distinguished ample, as "Hon. W. L. Wilson, for example, as "Hon W. L. Wilson?" We do not speak of Hon. Thomas Jefferson of Hon. Daniel Webster.

Military titles are necessary in military life. In addressing a General or a Colonel in the field an indication of rank helps to find him, and perhaps it helps discipline too. But why should we go on calling men Colonel, General, Major and the like long after they have retired to civil life, merely because they held such rank in the volunteer forces of thirty odd years ago or because some Governor has appointed them to his staff? We do not speak or think of General George Washington or General Hannibal or General Julius Caesar.

Still worse is the title gratuitously conferred, the "honorary" title of Colonel and the like. There are tens of thousands of "Colonels" in this country who never commanded a squad, and "Judges" who never sat on any bench or read a page of law.

It is all falsehood and flummery. As an honest self-respecting people, why should we not rid ourselves of it? "Mr." is convenient when the first name of the person addressed or referred to is not used. So are "Mrs." and "Miss" in like circumstances. All the rest are "leather or prunella," which is the poet's phrase for stuff and nonsense.—New York World.

Not Considered Good Evidence.

It is claimed that photographic copies of an original are not acceptable as proof before a court inasmuch as the photographs may easily be exchanged to suit the wish. Expert picture dealers can take a photograph and by various processes secure a composite containing several features desired that did not exist in the original. A photographer of note says that it is an easy matter to change photographs. Pictures can be made to show the body of one person with the head of another; or, it is possible to insert certain features desired in a photograph. The producers of art photographs often use the form of one subject and the head of another, in order to obtain the most symmetrical results, and thus form a sort of composite picture. "By the use of nitric acid," he says, "any part of the silver print photograph, the one commonly used, can be erased. If the picture were a platinum print, which is unlikely, the same effect could be secured by the use of aquaregia, or a liquid composed of a mixture of nitric and muriatic acids, which acts as a solvent for gold or platinum prints." It was shown that original signatures could be erased and others pasted or copied therefrom, and then a photograph taken from which it would seem that the result was a perfect photograph of an original paper.

Dependent Upon Circumstances.

THE NEW WOMAN'S LAWS.

These are new commandments ten
Which wives now make for married men:

1. Remember that I am thy wife,
That thou must cherish all thy life.
2. Thou shalt not stay out late at night,
When lodges, friends or clubs invite.
3. Thou shalt not smoke indoor r out,
Or chew tobacco "ound abo t."
4. Thou shalt with praise rece ve my pies,
Nor pastry made by me des ise.
5. My mother thou shalt strive to please
And let her live with us at ease.
6. Remember, 'tis thy duty clear
To dress well throughout the year.
7. Thou shalt in manner mild and meek
Give me my thy wages every week.
8. Thou shalt not be a drin ing man,
But live on prohibition plan.
9. Thou shalt not flirt, but must allow
Thy wife such freedom, anyhow.
10. Thou shalt get up when baby cries
And try thy child to tr nquilize.

These, my commandments, from to-day,
Implicitly thou shalt obey.

A DETECTIVE CAMERA

I turned into my berth, "lower 5," with the firm satisfaction, born of long experience as a traveler, of a long, comfortable night's sleep ahead of me.

The singing of the wheels, the rushes over bridges, the crooning of the wind as it caresses the sides of the car, the flashing lights as you pass rapidly through a way station, the deep-toned bell and shrill whistle—these are the ingredients of a good traveler's soothing syrup, and I was a good traveler. So I was soon asleep, my money and watch under my pillow, and my pocket camera (which I invariably carry) in the little hammock over my head.

How long I slept I did not know, when I awoke with a start and a cry of pain to find my hand pressing against my right temple, which stung as though I had been shot. In my half-asleep condition I raised myself from the pillow and looked at my hand, on the fingers of which was some warm blood. Applying my handkerchief to the wound, I soon stopped the flow, for the cut was simply an abrasion of the skin, although my head ached as though I had been struck by some weapon.

I looked about, and there on my pillow lay my pocket camera. I smiled, for ideas of an assault had flashed through my mind. It was all plain enough; the camera loosened from the hammock by a roll of the train had fallen on my head, and the sharp corner, striking my temple, had done the damage that had awakened me.

I pulled the curtain aside and looked out. It was bright daylight, and we were just leaving Baltimore, so I had a couple of hours more in which to sleep. I turned over, and in another instant was again lost to consciousness.

The porter woke me a few miles outside of Washington, and I started to dress. Putting my hand under the pillow, I withdrew it again with a cry, for my watch and pocketbook were gone. I called the conductor, and told him of my loss.

"Arrest the porter," said he, "and the brakeman who came through during the night. Hurriedly clothing myself, and saying nothing more about my loss to any one but the conductor, I waited for our arrival in Washington. The conductor gave orders for none to leave the car until a detective had come aboard.

The detective could do no more than search the employes of the car, and put them under temporary arrest on my charge, and I will say that the fellow passengers on board were better natured and more willing to lend what little aid they could than I would have been under such circumstances. With a detective, conductor and our prisoners I went to the police station and told my story. It was my opinion, as well as the officer's, that I had been robbed by somebody who had got off at Baltimore, but as eight men had left the car at Baltimore there was little clew to work on in that direction. At any rate I was $400 and a $300 watch out of pocket.

I telegraphed back to New York for money, and then transacted my business. While waiting for the cash from my firm, however, I spent the time strolling about the magnificent city, with my little camera, snap-shotting Carlisle, the Treasury building, a fight in F street and the monument, as well as several typical scenes I encountered about the market, till my roll of films was full. I discovered this when I went to turn the button for another picture, but was surprised to find that it did not respond to my twist. Strange! I remembered taking only eleven pictures, and should have had one more film left. But I supposed I had unconsciously turned two films at once, and let the matter slip my mind.

In a week I returned to New York, and one of the first things I did was to take my camera full of pictures to a photographer for development.

The next day I dropped in to get his completed work, and looked over the prints with him.

"They're all excellent except one," said he. This is your best subject, too, but you didn't have enough light."

"Why," said I, "they all had the same exposure, and were taken in the middle of the day."

"Not this one," said he. "It's really a remarkable subject. Tell me, how did you ever get it?" And, holding the film up to the light, for he had not yet printed it, he showed me a picture that made me jump with astonishment and grab it from his hands.

There on the gelatine I saw—but you'll scarcely believe me—I saw the picture of a man's face, the eyes glaring down at something before him, his left hand, which was holding a curtain aside, grasping a pocketbook and watch, and his other hand hidden outside the lower limit of the photograph, but evidently stretched forward as if to catch or grasp something.

"By heaven!" I cried, "do you know what this is?"

"What is it?"

"It's the picture of the man who robbed me in a sleeping car on my last trip." And then I told him the whole remarkable story.

"I never heard of such a thing," said he. "It's astonishing! Why, when the thief was in the act of robbing you he evidently knocked down your camera—but it doesn't seem possible."

"It must be though," said I. "When he knocked it down it 'went off' of its own accord when it hit me, and being focussed on the thief took his picture. It's wonderful!"

Well, to make a long story short, he managed to get a print of the negative, faint as it was, that gave an admirable impression of the thief. I sent copies to the chiefs of police in Baltimore and Washington, and to the conductor of the car, who remembered such a man leaving the car at a former city. He was finally apprehended, accused and confessed, and I got my watch back. The thief got five years.—New York Journal.

Doesn't Care for Leap Year.

She snapped her fingers disdainfully.

"That for leap year!" she said. "I wouldn't give one common year for a whole bushel of them."

"Perhaps," said her dearest friend, with that solicitude for which dearest friends are noted, "some one has given you the mitten."

"Not at all. He jumped at the chance to get me, and we're engaged."

The dearest friend suggested that she didn't see just what fault could be found with leap year under those circumstances, the complaint usually coming from girls who had made a trial and failed to score.

"Why, there's nothing artistic about it," explained the engaged girl. "It isn't sportsmanlike to bag your game that way, and there's no real excitement or fun in it—just a little nervousness and it's all over. Any girl can ask a man to marry her, but it's more of a trick to make a man ask her. That calls for careful and artistic work. My '95 engagement was twice the sport of the '96 affair."—Chicago Post.

The Great Queen.

The teacher was going over the good old story of King Solomon and his wisdom.

"Now, dears, who was the great queen who travelled so many miles to see the king?"

Silence prevailed in the class.

"Why, you do know, all of you. The queen who came to see the king?"

The name had been forgotten by the class. In order to help them the kind but misguided teacher began to offer a little assistance.

"You do know, I am sure. The name begins with an S, and she was a very great queen."

Just then up shot a little hand, and out spoke the triumphant voice of the little auburn-haired girl. She transfixed the listening school room with the following brief statement:

"I know; it was the Queen of Spades."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

THOUGHTS TO MAKE A NOTE OF.

Love is like a squirrel; at once enterprising and timid.

A great misfortune gives grandeur even to an insignificant being.

The kindness of youth is angelic; the kindness of old age is divine.

Every one of our actions is rewarded or punished, only we do not admit it.

Patience is not passive; on the contrary, it is active, it is concentrated strength.

Often the virtue of a woman must be very great, since it has to suffice for two.

There are people who feed themselves with their grief until they get fat on it.

Do not feel proud at having supported your misfortune. How could you not have supported it?

There is no doubt that thinkers govern the world; and it is quite as certain that the world governs potentates.

There is but one happiness—duty.—There is but one consolation—work.—There is but one enjoyment—the beautiful.

An excellent housewife is always in a state of despair; one would often like the house less perfectly kept and more peaceful.

Foolishness places itself in the foremost rank to be observed; intelligence stands in the hindmost to observe.—St. James Gazette.

The song of the nightingale and the howling of cats are two manners of expressing the same feeling; but they are not mutually intelligible.

From selfishness men make severer laws for women than for themselves, without suspecting that by doing so they raise them above themselves.

Melancholy, when it is not a physical languor, is a kind of convalescence during which one thinks one's self much more ill than during the illness.

In youth grief is a tempest which makes you ill; in old age it is only a cold wave which adds a wrinkle to your face and one more white lock to the others.

Of the the two misguided classes, those who do not advertise and those who do not read advertisements, the the former is by far the larger, as nearly everybody reads them.—Dansville Breeze.

GENTLEMANLY BRIGAND

He is Both Generous and Kindhearted and Has a Host of Friends.

A picturesque and humorous brigand is Bernardo Viola, whom the Italian authorities are just now trying to catch. He is not an ordinary, vulgar cutthroat, but a gentlemanly fellow, who has a host of friends and who is described as being both generous and kind-hearted.

Viola expects parish priests to support him, and, whenever he finds himself short of money he informs the priests of the fact and insists that it is their duty to supply him with the necessary funds. The priests who comply with his request find Viola a pleasant visitor. He takes just what he thinks they can afford to give him and then he goes his way satisfied.

Those priests, however, who refuse to comply with his demands very soon discover that he is not to be trifled with. Viola wastes no words on them, but simply lays hands on all the money and other valuables he can find in their homes and then makes off with them. Only once did he let anger get the better of him. That was when a sturdy priest tried to prevent him from plundering his home. Viola would not stand that, and so he promptly slew the unfortunate priest.

Viola's great desire at present is to form a partnership with another bandit, named Raimondo Pace, for whom the police are also looking. The two men are well known throughout the district of Aquila, and many think that for that very reason the authorities ought to be able to capture them easily. Viola, however, has many friends and relatives there, and whenever the police or soldiers show themselves these loyal fellows promptly send word to the bandits and thus enable them to get into a safe hiding place.

As a matter of fact, too, the number of policemen in the district is entirely inadequate, and the result is that Viola and other brigands do pretty much as they please. It is said that some of these lawless men have been plundering for the last quarter of a century, and, if so, the chance of their capture in the near future seems rather doubtful.

Chinese Chopstick.

With the evidences of Asiatic contact supposed to be so strong in Central America, one might have imagined that so useful a devise as the simple chopsticks would have secured a footing. These two sticks, held in one hand and known in China as "hasteners or nimble lads," are certainly the most useful, the most economical and the most efficient device for their purposes ever invented by man. Throughout that vast Asian region, embracing a population of 50,000,000, the chopstick is used as a substitute for forks, tongs, and certain forms of tweezers. Even fish, omelet and cake are separated with the chopsticks, and the cook, the street scavenger and the watch repairer use this device in the form of iron, long bamboo and delicate ivory.

The bamboo chopstick was known in China 1,000 B. C., and shortly after this date the ivory form was devised. Their use is one of great antiquity in Japan, as attested by references to it in the ancient records of that country. One may search in vain for the trace of any object in the nature of a chopstick in Central or South America. Knitting needles of wood are found in the work baskets associated with ancient Peruvian mummies, but the chopstick has not been found. Cutlus pottery rests for the chopsticks are exhumed in Japan, but even this enduring testimony of its early use is yet to be revealed in this country.—Appleton's Popular Science Monthly.

How Are Your Eyebrows.

It is popularly believed that if one's eyebrows meet it indicates deceit. Charles Kingsley indorses this belief, but Tennyson has other ideas, and poetically speaks of "married brows."

In Turkey meeting eyebrows are greatly admired, and the women use artificial means to bring the brows to this condition, and if art cannot induce thin eyebrows to grow they make up by drawing a black line with paste.

It would appear that the Greeks admired brows which almost met, and the fashionable inhabitants of Rome not only approved of them, but resorted to pigments to make up the lack which sometimes existed.

Some proverbs state that the person whose eyebrows meet will always have good luck, while others state exactly the reverse. The Chinese say that "people whose eyebrows meet can never hope to attain to the dignity of a minister of state," and in Greece of to-day the man whose eyebrows meet is said to be a vampire, while in Denmark and Germany it is said he is a werewolf.

Sonnets innumerable have been written on the shape of the eyebrow, the arched style being preferred and styled by Herder "the rainbow of peace," because "when straightened by a frown it proclaims a storm." The old masters always painted the arched brow, and in speaking of his beloved Dante says, "The eyebrow, polished and dark, as though the brush had drawn it." A woman's eyebrows should be delicately pencilled and dark, though some prefer a contrast between the eyebrows and the hair.—Exchange.

A curious incident occurred during a game of golf which was being played on the St. Duthus course, Tain, the other day, a ball struck by one of the players coming into contact with a stone perched on a neighboring hillock, killing it instantly.

It is estimated that about 2,000,000 visits have been made in Europe and America.

BETTER DEAD.

A male patient! That was an exceptional thing at St. Medard. The light from the red lamp suspended above the kneeling figure revealed the short white blouse and the coarse shoes of the laborer, one who had clung to the simple peasant faith and religious habits of his youth, doubtless, and the priest expected nothing more interesting here than he was wont to hear from the lips of the old women. So he went quietly into the confessional, and after taking a great pinch of snuff he pushed aside the green serge curtain which closed the aperture.

"Mr. Priest," began a rough voice, which tried to speak in low tones.

"I am not a priest now. Say your confiteor and call me father."

The man, whose face was hidden from Father Faber, slowly repeated the prayer, as if he had difficulty in recalling it, then continued sadly:

"Mr. Priest—no—my father, but pardon me if I don't speak as I should, for I haven't confessed in twenty-five years, not since I left the country. You know how it is here in Paris. Then I have not been very bad, and I have always thought, 'God is good and knows how it all is.' But now I have something on my conscience too heavy to be borne alone, so I must confess it to you, my father. I have killed a man."

The priest started. A murderer! Here was no every day affair; no murmuring against fate and the other insignificant things he was accustomed to hear from the old women whom he absolved without uneasiness. A murderer! That head so near his own had conceived and borne homicidal thought. Those hands humbly joined before the confessional were perhaps still red with blood. In his agitation, not unmixed with fear, he could find only the mechanical words of his office to say:

"Confess, my son. The mercy of God is infinite."

"Listen then, to the whole story," said the man in tones full of misery and grief.

"I am a poor mason, and I came to Paris about twenty years ago with a man who had been my companion from childhood. We had robbed birds' nests and learned to read together. Almost a brother, wasn't he? His name was Philip, mine was Jacques.

"He was large and handsome; I was always clumsy and awkward. There was no better workman than he, while I was always a bungler. He was kind and generous to every one. I was proud of his friendship, and felt happy to walk beside him. I loved him because I admired him; he was everything that I was not.

"Once, here in the city, I had the good luck to be employed by the man who employed him, but in the evening he left me alone most of the time; he went out to amuse himself with his comrades. That was natural at his age. He loved pleasure; he was free from all obligations to others. With me it was different. I had to be stingy for I had to support my old mother in the country, and I sent her all my savings. I took my meals at the fruit woman's where I lodged. Philip ate elsewhere, for in truth it was not a famous kitchen. But the woman was a poor widow, and I saw that my patronage helped her; beside, I had fallen in love with her daughter. Poor Catharine! You shall soon hear all that happened to her. I lived there three years without being able to tell her of my love for her. As I said before, I was a bungling workman, and could hardly earn enough for myself and my mother. I could not think of keeping a wife. After a time my poor mother died; then I was able to save something for myself. When I thought I had enough to start housekeeping I told Catherine of my feelings. At first she did not say yes or no. I didn't expect her to fall upon my neck and embrace me, as there was nothing attractive about me. She consulted her mother, however, who respected me as a sober, honest man, and the marriage was arranged. Ah! then I passed some weeks of happiness! I saw Catharine was not very affectionate toward me, but I knew she had a good heart, and once married I felt that I could win her love by kindness. Now that she had promised to be my wife, I wanted Philip to know of my happiness, so I told him. Perhaps you can guess the rest, my father.

"Philip was handsome, gay and amiable; all, in fact, that I was not, and without meaning to do it he made Catherine fall in love with him. She had a frank, honest heart, poor girl! and as soon as she knew her own mind she told me. I shall never forget that moment. It was her birthday, and as a gift for the occasion I had bought a little gold trinket, which I had put in a box with some cotton. We were alone in a back room of the shop. She had just given me my soup. I took the box from my pocket, and, opening it, showed her the ornament. She burst into tears and said:

"'Forgive me, Jacques, and keep that for the woman you marry. I can never be your wife, for I love Philip.'

"Lonely I and my fill of sorrow then. What could I do? I loved them both. I could only do what I thought would be for their happiness, let them marry; and, as Philip had no money, I lent him my little store to buy furniture.

"Well, they were married, and everything went well for a time. They had a little boy, and I was his godfather. I named him Camille, after my mother. Soon after his birth Philip began to change. I had been deceived in him; he wasn't intended for married life. He loved pleasure and frivolity too well. You live among the poor, and know by heart the story of the laborer who, little by little, falls into the habit of drinking, who stays away from home, wasting his time and finally gets to abusing and beating his wife. In less than two years Philip had come to that.

"At first I tried to turn him from his evil course, and sometimes he would be ashamed and promise to reform. Finally my interference made him dislike me, and when he saw me looking sadly around his bare rooms and at poor Catharine, who was pale and thin from suffering, he grew furious. Once he reminded me that I had loved her once, and perhaps did still, and he was very abusive to both of us.

"After that I did what was my duty—I gave up going to see Catherine and my godson, and as for Philip, I met him only once in a while, when we happened to be working on the same scaffolding.

"I had too much love for Catherine and her child to lose sight of them entirely. Saturday nights, when I knew Philip was out drinking, I walked around by their house, met the child, and by questioning him found out how things were going. If they were in want, you may believe he did not go home empty-handed.

"Years have passed, and Philip has grown worse and worse. Catherine, whom I have helped as much as I could, has brought her boy up to manhood, and now he is a fine fellow of twenty, as good as his mother. He isn't a day laborer. He has a good education; he learned to draw at night schools, and now works with an architect, where he gets good wages.

"Though the house is darkened by the presence of a drunkard, things are not so bad, for Camille is good to his mother; and when I meet Catherine leaning on the arm of her son my heart beats with joy.

"But last night when I met the boy, and he shook my hand—for he is not ashamed of me if my jacket is white with plaster—I saw that something was wrong.

"'What is the matter?' I asked.

"'Last night,' he replied, 'I had to draw to see whether or not I must enter the army, and I drew number ten, which sends me to die of fever in the colonies, and which means an absence of at least five years. I must leave my mother alone with my brutal father, who was never so bad as he is now. She will die, godfather! Ah! how the poor have to suffer!'

"I passed a dreadful night. Think of it! the result of twenty years of hard labor swept away in an instant, because a boy had put his hand in a sack and had drawn out an unlucky number. In the morning I was bowed down like an old man. I went to work on a house we were building on the Arago boulevard. However much a man suffers, he must work just the same, you know. So I climbed up the scaffolding—we had reached the fourth story—and began to lay the bricks. Presently some one touched me on the shoulder. It was Philip. He works only once in a while now, and he had come today to earn something to pay for drink, I suppose.

"I hadn't seen him for a long time, and I hardly knew him. He looked withered; his beard was white, and his hands trembled; he seemed a decrepit old man.

"'Well,' said I, 'so your boy drew the unlucky number.'

"'What of it?' said he, with a vicious look. 'Are you, too, going to torment me about that along with Catharine and Camille? The boy must serve his country as others do. I know well what they think. If I was dead he would not have to go. So much the worse for them. I am still solid on my feet, and Camille isn't a widow's son.'

"A widow's son! Ah, my father, why did he speak those words? The murderous thought came to me as I heard them, and seethed in my brain all the morning while I was working beside the miserable man. I could see all that Catherine would suffer alone with this drunkard, who was now capable of anything. Eleven o'clock struck, and the men went down to the ground to eat their lunches. Philip and I were the last to go. As he stepped on the rung of the ladder he called up to me maliciously:

"'You see I have the step of a sailor. Ha! Her Camille is far from being a widow's son!'

The hot blood deluged my brain. I seized the ladder with my two hands, and calling out 'I will make him one!' I flung it out into space.

"He was killed instantly, and every one thought it was an accident. Now Camille is a widow's son, and can stay at home with his mother.

"That is what I did, father, and what I had to confess to you and to God. I repent and pray for pardon, but when in the future I shall see Catherine in her black gown leaning on the arm of her son, I am afraid I shall not regret having done the deed. To prevent that I will emigrate to America.

"As for pay, my father, take the trinket which Catherine refused when she told me of her love for Philip, and which I have always kept in remembrance of the only happy days I have ever known. Take it and sell it. The money shall be for the poor."

Did he rise from his knees absolved from sin?

One thing is certain. Father Faber did not sell the trinket. After putting its value in the church coffers he suspended it before the Virgin's altar, where he often offered a prayer for the poor mason.

SPORTING.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

Central Journal Bowling League.	Won.	Lost.	Highest Score.
Roselle	22	11	904
Park	22	14	905
Elizabeth	18	12	911
Newark Bay C. C.	17	14	903
Westfield	13	18	915
N. J. A. C.	12	18	944
Cranford Casino	7	23	811

Elizabeth gave the Roselle Casino team the liveliest kind of a surprise party last Friday evening, when the Roselle boys went to Elizabeth to roll three games with the club there. Elizabeth won all three by good scores, while the Roselle team didn't seem to be in the race at all.

As far as the Park Club is concerned the Central Journal Bowling League is all over now. It isn't a settled question yet, however, as to where the Park Club is going to be. At present, the Parks are second. If the Roselle Casinos loose three games to Cranford, which is hardly to be expected, then the Parks will be tied for first place. There is a new factor in the race, however. Elizabeth has come up in wonderful fashion. Elizabeth still has six more games to roll and is only four behind the Parks in games won. That means four victories will tie Elizabeth and the Parks and five will put Elizabeth ahead which is not pleasant to think of. If Roselle should loose the remaining three games, then Elizabeth, under those circumstances, would jump into first place. It is altogether such a complicated situation that everybody is watching the results of the few remaining games with much interest. Never since the Journal League was organized has there been such an exciting finish and such possibilities as to changes open at the last minute. Roselle will roll its last games with Cranford and the results will be watched with great interest. Elizabeth has to meet two of the other teams and there is no telling what will come forth. Altogether, this season may be considered one of the best and the most exciting in the life of the League.

Aside from the ordinary exhibit, there will be trap shooting on the roof, rifle shooting in the basement and water polo upon an artificial lake, as well as the usual fly-casting contest and the pistol shooting matches. The show will be open from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m., and the admisson to every part will be 50 cents.

TALK ABOUT BEING COLD.

Here is a Few Remarks That Will Make You Shiver to Read.

The following is an extract of a letter from a Plainfield young man who has gone to Wyoming to try ranch life. He is in the mountains at an elevation of 7,000 feet:

It has snowed for two weeks now, not all of every day, but the sun has hardly deigned to show himself in many days, and a fellow becomes depressed. The snow gets deeper and deeper. Every one says it is an extraordinary winter. Up in the mountains the snow must be fifteen feet deep on the level, and the men who haul ore drive their sleds over roads that are packed solid, eight feet high with snow, so that their horses walk eight feet above the ground. Some of the ranchmen cannot get off their ranches with horses, so have to use snow shoes. The stage driver has missed a trip or two, so I am anticipating a good big mail tomorrow. Yesterday the mercury was eight below zero, this morning eighteen below, and I just looked now, 8 p. m., and it was twenty-four below. I can hear the willow trees snap and crack, and the frosty air rolls into the room like smoke. I look forward, a great ways forward, to the coming of spring with much pleasant longing. The mercury slipped down five degrees in the last half hour, it being at 8:30 p. m. twenty-nine below zero.

Yours,
February, 5, 1899. R. H. C.

All Women May be Pretty

Difficult Rescue of Horse.

One of the horses used by the Plainfield Ice & Cold Storage Company in cutting ice on Crystal lake, near Washingtonville, Saturday afternoon, fell into the water and was only extricated after an hour's hard work. The ice was soft so that it would not bear the weight of the horse. It was necessary to keep the horse's head above water and saw a path through the ice to the bank where the horse was led ashore.
